Unit 1: The Saviour of Mankind

Pre-reading

Pre-reading 1. Mention the condition of Arabia before Islam. [Discussion — model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: Before Islam, Arabia was a land of great natural beauty but of social and moral disorder. In the fifth and sixth centuries, mankind stood on the verge of chaos: the civilization built over four thousand years had started crumbling, and people lived in ignorance, superstition, cruelty and injustice, worshipping idols instead of one God. The Arabs themselves were gifted — they possessed remarkable memory and eloquence, expressed in poetry — but they lacked divine guidance, which is why the text presents the coming of the Rasoolullah as the lifting of humanity from ignorance into the light of faith.

Pre-reading

Pre-reading 2. How did Islam change the lives of the people? [Discussion — model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: Islam changed people's lives completely: it replaced idol-worship and superstition with the Oneness of Allah (Tauheed) and the unity of mankind, destroyed the nexus of ignorance and disbelief, and set up a noble conception of life. The text says this produced a thorough transformation of man and society, raising man to the highest possible level in both spiritual and worldly domains, and giving humanity a perfect model to follow in the life and character of the Rasoolullah.

Pre-reading

Pre-reading 3. Who is the last Rasool of Allah? [Discussion — model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: Hazrat Muhammad (peace be upon him) is the last Rasool of Allah. He was born in Makkah Mukarramah, received the first revelation in the cave of Hira, and proclaimed Tauheed and the unity of mankind for twenty-three years. The text quotes the Quran (33:45-46): he was sent as a witness, a bearer of good news and a warner, and as one inviting to Allah by His permission, and as a light-giving torch.

Pre-reading

Pre-reading 4. How many religions do you know? Can you name the most prominent figures of each? [Discussion — model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: The world's major religions include Islam (Hazrat Muhammad, peace be upon him, as the last Rasool), Christianity (Hazrat Isa/Jesus), Judaism (Hazrat Musa/Moses), Hinduism (with figures such as Rama and Krishna in its tradition), Buddhism (Gautama Buddha) and Sikhism (Guru Nanak). The unit itself focuses on Islam, and its message of Tauheed, compassion and the unity of mankind, which the text presents as guidance for all humanity.

While-reading Questions

While-reading 1. What kind of fair was held at Ukaz every year?

A fair for poetical competitions was held at Ukaz every year. The text says the Arabs were an eloquent people whose eloquence and memory found expression in poetry, and it quotes Hammad telling Caliph Walid bin Yazid that he could recite, for each letter of the alphabet, one hundred long poems composed exclusively by poets before the promulgation of Islam.

While-reading Questions

While-reading 2. At what age did Hazrat Muhammad (peace be upon him) start spending time in solitude and meditation in the cave of Hira?

When he was thirty-eight years of age, he spent most of his time in solitude and meditation in the cave of Hira, retiring there with food and water and spending days and weeks in remembrance of Allah. The period of waiting then came to a close when he was bestowed with Nabuwat and Hazrat Jibril (Gabriel) brought the first revelation.

While-reading Questions

While-reading 3. To whom did the pagan Arabs send a delegation, in order to stop the Rasoolullah (peace be upon him) from preaching?

They sent a delegation to the Rasoolullah's kind and caring uncle, Hazrat Abu Talib. They told him either to restrain the Rasoolullah from preaching Allah's message or to face their enmity. Finding himself in a dilemma, Abu Talib sent for his nephew and explained the situation, and received the memorable reply about the sun in the right hand and the moon in the left.

While-reading Questions

While-reading 4. What did Michael H. Hart say about the Rasoolullah (peace be upon him)?

In 'The 100: A Ranking of the Most Influential Persons in History', Michael H. Hart wrote that Muhammad (peace be upon him) was responsible for both the theology of Islam and its main ethical and moral principles, played the key role in proselytizing the new faith and establishing its religious practices, and, as the driving force behind the Arab conquests, may well rank as the most influential political leader of all times, with the seventh-century Arab conquests continuing to play an important role in human history down to the present day.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A1. How might the geographical description of Makkah Mukarramah influence the reader's understanding of its historical and cultural importance?

The description presents Makkah Mukarramah as a place of unparalleled charm and beauty — trackless deserts of sand dunes under the dazzling rays of the tropical sun, and a starry sky that excited the imagination of poets and travellers — about fifty miles from the Red Sea. This setting makes the reader feel that something momentous belongs in such a striking land: a remote, poetic, desert city, far from the great empires, yet chosen as the birthplace of the Rasoolullah. The geography thus underlines the historical importance: a universal message arose not from a capital of power but from a small desert town, which makes its worldwide influence seem all the more remarkable.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A2. What does the emphasis on the Arabs' memory and eloquence suggest about their culture before Islam?

It suggests that pre-Islamic Arab culture was rich in oral and poetic tradition even though it lacked divine guidance. The Arabs possessed a remarkable memory and were an eloquent people; their eloquence and memory found expression in poetry, with yearly poetical competitions at Ukaz, and a single reciter claiming one hundred long poems for each letter of the alphabet from pre-Islamic poets alone. The emphasis shows a people of great linguistic and cultural talent — which is why the text notes it is no wonder Allah chose the Arabic language for His final dispensation and the preservation of His Word — while also implying that this talent existed alongside the ignorance the new message would remove.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A3. What is the importance of the anecdote about Hammad and Caliph Walid bin Yazid?

The anecdote provides concrete evidence for the Arabs' extraordinary memory and poetic culture: Hammad told Caliph Walid bin Yazid that he could recite, for each letter of the alphabet, one hundred long poems, without counting short pieces, all composed by pre-Islamic poets. Its importance is that it turns a general claim ('remarkable memory') into a vivid, memorable proof, and it justifies the next point in the text — that Allah chose Arabic for His final message — because a language with such a powerful poetic tradition was a fitting vessel for the Quran.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A4. What parallels can you draw between the state of civilization described here and the other historical periods of decline and renewal?

The text describes a civilization that had taken four thousand years to grow but had started crumbling, with mankind on the verge of chaos in the fifth and sixth centuries, until a new message lifted humanity from ignorance into the light of faith. A parallel is the decline of the Roman Empire, where political decay and moral disorder were followed by renewal through a new faith and new institutions; another is the European Dark Ages followed by the Renaissance, when learning and art revived a declining civilization. The common pattern is that decline creates the conditions for renewal: when old systems crumble, a powerful new idea — a faith, a philosophy, a reform movement — can transform society thoroughly, just as the text says Islam transformed man and society.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A5. What challenges did the Rasoolullah (peace be upon him) face in proclaiming the Oneness of Allah (Tauheed) and the unity of mankind?

He faced determined opposition from the pagan Arabs, because his belief threatened their dominance in society. They mounted pressure on him and his followers, wanting them to renounce their cause and return to idol-worshipping, and they sent a delegation to his uncle Hazrat Abu Talib demanding that he restrain his nephew or face their enmity. His answer — that even if they put the sun in his right hand and the moon in his left, he would not abandon the proclamation of Tauheed, and would establish the true faith or perish in the attempt — shows the scale of the challenge: he risked his safety, his family ties and his life for the message.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A6. In what ways did the Rasoolullah (peace be upon him) elevate mankind to a higher level in both spiritual and worldly domains?

Spiritually, he proclaimed the Oneness of Allah (Tauheed) and the unity of mankind, destroyed the nexus of superstition, ignorance and disbelief, and set up a noble conception of life, leading mankind to the light of faith and divine bliss; his deep faith in Allah, his love for humanity and the nobility of his character made his life a perfect model to follow. In worldly terms, he was the driving force behind the Arab conquests, which created an everlasting impression on human history, and Michael H. Hart ranks him as possibly the most influential political leader of all times. The text sums this up as a thorough transformation of man and society, owed to his faith, his love for humanity and his character.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A7. How does the final Quranic verse (Quran 33:45-46) encapsulate the role and mission of the Rasoolullah (peace be upon him)?

The verse — 'O Nabi! Surely, We have sent you as a witness, and bearer of good news and warner. And as the one inviting to Allah by His permission, and as a light-giving torch' — sums up his whole mission in four roles. As a witness, he testifies to the truth; as a bearer of good news, he promises divine bliss to believers; as a warner, he warns against disbelief and wrongdoing; and as a light-giving torch, he guides humanity out of the darkness of ignorance into the light of faith. This matches the text's account exactly: he was raised to lift humanity from ignorance, to proclaim Tauheed, and to be a model whose morals and character, in Hazrat Ayesha's words, are an embodiment of the Holy Quran.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A8. How does the author view the pre-Islamic Arabs? Write down the examples and the evidences supporting your inferences.

The author views the pre-Islamic Arabs with respect for their natural gifts but as people living in ignorance and in need of guidance. Evidence for their gifts: they 'possessed a remarkable memory and were an eloquent people'; their eloquence found expression in poetry; a fair for poetical competitions was held at Ukaz every year; and Hammad claimed one hundred long poems per letter of the alphabet from pre-Islamic poets alone. Evidence for their condition: in the fifth and sixth centuries mankind 'stood on the verge of chaos' and civilization was 'crumbling'; the pagan Arabs later opposed the new message, pressured the Rasoolullah and his followers, and demanded they renounce their cause and return to idol-worshipping. The author's inference is therefore balanced: a talented, poetic people, but one whose society needed the transformation Islam brought.

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B i. Reread paragraph 5 of the unit: what is the main idea of this paragraph?

The main idea of paragraph 5 is that the time of waiting was over: filled with profound compassion for humanity and a pressing urge to eradicate wrong beliefs, social evils, cruelty and injustice, the Rasoolullah (peace be upon him) was bestowed with Nabuwat when Hazrat Jibril brought him the first revelation in the cave of Hira — 'Read in the name of thy Lord Who created...' (Quran 96:1-5).

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B ii. What details support this idea?

The supporting details are: his heart was overflowing with profound compassion for humanity; he had a pressing urge to eradicate wrong beliefs, social evils, cruelty and injustice; the moment had arrived for him to be bestowed with Nabuwat; one day in the cave of Hira, Hazrat Jibril came and conveyed Allah's message; and the message itself is quoted — the first five verses of Surah Al-Alaq commanding reading in the name of the Lord Who created man and taught him what he knew not.

Reading and Critical Thinking C

C. Write an objective summary of the text. Start with the central/main idea and include key supporting details. Ensure the summary is concise and focused on the main points. [Model summary]

MODEL SUMMARY: Hazrat Muhammad (peace be upon him), the last Rasool of Allah, is presented as the Saviour of Mankind, whose life and teachings transformed humanity. Born in Makkah Mukarramah, a land of deserts, dunes and a starry sky, he grew up among Arabs famed for remarkable memory and eloquence, whose poetry flourished at the yearly fair of Ukaz. In the fifth and sixth centuries, when civilization was crumbling and mankind stood on the verge of chaos, he spent his thirty-eighth year in solitude and meditation in the cave of Hira, where he received the first revelation (Quran 96:1-5) and was bestowed with Nabuwat. For twenty-three years he proclaimed the Oneness of Allah (Tauheed) and the unity of mankind, destroying superstition, ignorance and disbelief despite fierce opposition from the pagan Arabs, who pressed his uncle Abu Talib to stop him; his reply — that he would not abandon Tauheed even if the sun were placed in his right hand and the moon in his left — showed his firm resolve. His faith, love for humanity and noble character elevated man to the highest level spiritually and worldly, and historians such as Michael H. Hart rank him among the most influential figures in history; as the Quran says (33:45-46), he was sent as a witness, a bearer of good news, a warner, and a light-giving torch.

Vocabulary A

imagination — Pronunciation: /ih-maj-ih-NAY-shun/ (British: /ɪˌmædʒɪ'neɪʃn/). Dictionary meaning: the ability to form pictures or ideas in the mind of things not present or not real. Part of speech: noun. — remarkable — Pronunciation: /ri-MAHR-kuh-bul/ (/rɪ'mɑːkəbl/). Meaning: worthy of attention; extraordinary or unusual. Part of speech: adjective. — composed — Pronunciation: /kuhm-POHZD/ (/kəm'pəʊzd/). Meaning: (of a person) calm and in control of feelings; also: formed or made up of parts. Part of speech: adjective (past participle of 'compose' used as an adjective). — preservation — Pronunciation: /prez-er-VAY-shun/ (/ˌprezə'veɪʃn/). Meaning: the act of keeping something in its original state or in good condition, or protecting it from harm or loss. Part of speech: noun.

Vocabulary B

Vocabulary B. Compare the dictionary definitions with your inferences. [Model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: The dictionary definitions largely confirm the inferences drawn from the text. 'Imagination' in the text ('its starry sky has excited the imagination of poets') matches the dictionary sense of forming pictures and ideas in the mind — the poets pictured wonders under the stars. 'Remarkable' ('a remarkable memory') matches 'worthy of attention, extraordinary' — the Arabs' memory was indeed extraordinary, as the Hammad anecdote proves. 'Preservation' ('the preservation of His Word') matches 'keeping something in its original state and protecting it from harm' — the Quran was preserved exactly. Where an inference was only approximate (for example, guessing 'composed' means 'calm'), the dictionary refines it: 'composed' can mean calm and controlled, but also 'made up of parts', so the context must decide which sense applies.

Vocabulary C

Vocabulary C. Find any five words with prefixes and suffixes and use them in your own sentences. [Model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: 1. Rewrite (prefix re- + write): I had to rewrite my essay after the teacher pointed out my mistakes. 2. Teacher (teach + suffix -er): Our teacher explained the lesson clearly. 3. Unhappy (prefix un- + happy): He felt unhappy when his team lost the match. 4. Kindness (kind + suffix -ness): Her kindness towards the poor impressed everyone. 5. Disagreement (prefix dis- + agree + suffix -ment): Their disagreement over the plan was settled by discussion.

Vocabulary D

Vocabulary D. Use a dictionary to find and write the different word patterns for the word 'advocate'. Complete the chart by identifying the correct forms of the word 'advocate' and its related forms.

Base word: advocate. Noun form: advocate (a person who publicly supports a cause, e.g. an advocate of free education); advocacy (the act of supporting a cause). Verb form: advocate (to publicly support an idea or cause). Adjective form: there is no commonly used adjective form of 'advocate' in standard English (the rare form 'advocative' is not in general use and should not be forced into the chart). Adverb form: there is likewise no standard adverb form. Note: the chart cannot be filled for all four columns from standard usage — the honest completion is noun and verb forms only, with adjective and adverb marked as not applicable.

Vocabulary E

Vocabulary E. Write sentences using each form of the word 'advocate'. [Model answer]

MODEL ANSWER (using the forms that exist in standard English): Noun (advocate): She is a strong advocate of girls' education. Noun (advocacy): His advocacy for clean drinking water improved the whole village. Verb (advocate): We advocate tolerance and respect for all religions. (No model sentences are given for adjective or adverb forms, because 'advocate' has no standard adjective or adverb form — see Vocabulary D.)

Grammar A

Grammar A. Identify and label nouns, verbs and conjunctions in the given sentences. (The task also covers the other parts of speech taught in the unit; all are labelled below.)

i. 'The quick brown fox jumps over the lazy dog.' Nouns: fox, dog. Verb: jumps. Adjectives: quick, brown, lazy. Preposition: over. Article: The, the. — ii. 'After the storm, the sky was clear and bright.' Nouns: storm, sky. Verb: was (linking verb). Adjectives: clear, bright. Conjunction: and. Preposition: After. — iii. 'She quickly finished her homework before dinner.' Pronoun: She, her. Adverb: quickly. Verb: finished. Nouns: homework, dinner. Preposition: before. — iv. 'Wow! That was an incredible match.' Interjection: Wow! Pronoun: That. Verb: was. Article: an. Adjective: incredible. Noun: match. — v. 'Because it was raining, they decided to stay indoors.' Conjunction: Because (subordinating). Pronoun: it, they. Verb: was, decided, stay. Adverb: indoors.

Grammar B

Grammar B. Write eight sentences that include at least one noun, verb, adjective, adverb, pronoun, preposition, conjunction, and interjection. [Model answer]

MODEL ANSWER (each sentence contains all eight parts of speech; the parts are labelled in the first sentence as a guide): 1. Wow! She quickly put her blue bag on the table, and she smiled. (Interjection: Wow! Pronoun: She, she. Adverb: quickly. Verb: put, smiled. Noun: bag, table. Adjective: blue. Preposition: on. Conjunction: and.) 2. Oh! He happily read his new book under the tree, but he soon slept. 3. Alas! They slowly walked to their old school in the rain, and they laughed. 4. Hurrah! We bravely finished our difficult homework before dinner, and we rested. 5. Wow! I carefully wrote my long essay with a pen, and I checked it. 6. Ouch! She gently closed her heavy door after lunch, but she forgot her keys. 7. Hey! You quickly drank your cold juice in the garden, and you played. 8. Bravo! He proudly showed his beautiful painting to the class, and everyone clapped.

Grammar C

Grammar C. Choose the correct adjectives. i. Ashfaq Ahmad was a _____ writer. ii. This is a very _____ seminar. iii. My mother becomes _____ if I get home late. iv. It is _____ to get the correct information from the university office. v. Who is _____ for this chaos?

i. b. famous — 'Ashfaq Ahmad was a famous writer.' (An adjective is needed before the noun 'writer'; 'famed' is possible but 'famous' is the standard choice, while 'famously' is an adverb and 'infamous' means famous for bad deeds.) ii. c. informative — 'This is a very informative seminar.' iii. b. anxious — 'My mother becomes anxious if I get home late.' (Anxious is the adjective after the linking verb 'becomes'; 'anxiety' is a noun, 'anxieties' plural, 'anxiously' an adverb.) iv.

a. advisable — 'It is advisable to get the correct information from the university office.' v. b. responsible — 'Who is responsible for this chaos?' (The adjective 'responsible' follows 'is'; 'responding' is a verb form, 'responsive' means quick to react, 'responded' is past tense.)

Grammar D

Grammar D. Fill in the blanks with the correct parts of speech as indicated in the parentheses. i. The cat is hiding _____ (preposition) the bed. ii. She _____ (verb) her homework before dinner. iii. _____ (interjection)! This is a beautiful dress. iv. He is a very _____ (adjective) student. v. _____ (pronoun) went to the store.

i. The cat is hiding under the bed. (preposition: under) ii. She finished her homework before dinner. (verb: finished) iii. Wow! This is a beautiful dress. (interjection: Wow!) iv. He is a very good student. (adjective: good) v. She went to the store. (pronoun: She)

Oral Communication Skills A

Oral A. Respond to the text through oral discussion. Work in small groups, choose a specific section of the text, discuss: What is the main idea? What supporting details have been provided? Present your group's findings and join a whole-class discussion. [Model summary for discussion]

MODEL ANSWER (for a group discussing paragraph 5): Main idea — the period of waiting ended when the Rasoolullah (peace be upon him) received Nabuwat in the cave of Hira. Supporting details — his heart overflowed with compassion for humanity; he longed to eradicate wrong beliefs, social evils, cruelty and injustice; Hazrat Jibril brought the first revelation; and the revealed words commanded reading in the name of the Lord Who created man and taught him what he knew not (Quran 96:1-5). Groups discussing other sections would follow the same pattern: state the section's main idea in one sentence, then list its supporting details from the text.

Oral Communication Skills B

Oral B. Respond to the text by telling short stories. i. Retell the story of the first revelation in the cave of Hira in your own words. ii. Share a short story about a significant moment in the life of Hazrat Muhammad (peace be upon him) that demonstrates his compassion or determination. [Model answers]

MODEL ANSWERS: i. Retelling of the first revelation — At the age of thirty-eight, Hazrat Muhammad (peace be upon him) used to retire to the cave of Hira with food and water, spending days and weeks in solitude, meditation and remembrance of Allah. One day, when the period of waiting had come to a close, Hazrat Jibril came to him in the cave and conveyed Allah's first message: 'Read in the name of thy Lord Who created, created man from a clot of congealed blood. Read, and thy Lord is the Most Bountiful, Who taught by the pen, taught man that which he knew not.' With that revelation, the divine message that would continue for twenty-three years had begun. ii. A moment of determination — When the pagan Arabs sent a delegation to his uncle Abu Talib demanding that he stop preaching or face their enmity, the Rasoolullah (peace be upon him) answered: 'My dear uncle, if they put the sun in my right hand and the moon in my left, even then I shall not abandon the proclamation of the Oneness of Allah. I shall set up the true faith upon the earth or perish in the attempt.' His uncle was so impressed that he replied, 'Son of my brother, go thy way; none will dare to touch thee. I shall never forsake thee.'

Oral Communication Skills C

Oral C. Demonstrate attentive listening skills to respond orally. Bring a passage on your favourite personality and read it aloud. i. After listening to a passage read aloud, answer: What emotions did you hear in the reader's voice? How did the reader's pronunciation help you understand the text? ii. In pairs, take turns reading passages aloud and giving feedback on pronunciation and intonation. iii. Join a class discussion, listening to others' viewpoints and responding appropriately. [Model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: i. The emotions heard in a good reader's voice depend on the passage: a passage about a struggle is read with seriousness and slow, firm pacing, while a passage about a triumph is read with warmth and rising energy. Clear pronunciation helps understanding because every word is distinct, so the listener follows the meaning instead of guessing words; correct intonation — rising for questions, pausing at commas and full stops — shows the sentence structure and the speaker's feelings. ii. and iii. are classroom activities: students practise reading aloud in pairs, give each other feedback on clarity, volume, pacing and expression, and then discuss as a class, listening respectfully and responding to others' viewpoints.

Writing Skills A

Writing A. Write a well-structured paragraph on 'Tolerance and Religious Harmony'. Follow the process: i. Brainstorm ideas. ii. Organize the ideas into a logical structure (main idea + supporting details). iii. Organize your ideas using a mind map. iv. Summarize key points and organize your thoughts for writing the final paragraph. [Model paragraph]

MODEL PARAGRAPH: Tolerance and religious harmony are essential for building positive relationships and a peaceful society. Respecting oneself and others means treating everyone with kindness and fairness, regardless of their faith, and valuing empathy and understanding over prejudice. In daily life, respect appears in small acts — listening politely to other viewpoints, celebrating each other's festivals, and refusing to mock another's beliefs — and these acts build self-esteem and self-worth in both the giver and the receiver. The benefits reach the whole society: where tolerance prevails, communities cooperate, conflicts are resolved by discussion instead of violence, and every individual feels safe to practise their religion freely. Just as the life of the Rasoolullah (peace be upon him) modelled compassion for all humanity, tolerance and religious harmony today remain the foundation of a strong, united nation. (Process notes: brainstormed ideas — kindness and fairness, self-esteem, empathy, daily-life respect, benefits for individuals and society; main idea — respect for self and others builds positive relationships and a harmonious society; mind map — centre: tolerance and religious harmony, branches: meaning, daily examples, benefits.)

Writing Skills B

Writing B. Write an informative/explanatory essay on the topic 'Peace and Tolerance'. [Model essay outline and essay]

MODEL ESSAY: Introduction — Peace and tolerance are two values on which every successful society stands: peace is the absence of conflict and the presence of justice, while tolerance is the willingness to accept people whose beliefs, customs and opinions differ from our own. Without tolerance, peace cannot last, because differences then become causes of quarrel; with tolerance, differences become a source of strength. Body — First, tolerance begins with the individual: treating others with kindness and fairness, listening before judging, and respecting every faith builds self-esteem and positive relationships. Second, tolerance benefits society: communities that respect all religions avoid sectarian conflict, cooperate in schools, workplaces and neighbourhoods, and solve disputes by discussion. History and the life of the Rasoolullah (peace be upon him) show this clearly — his compassion for all humanity and his firm stand for justice transformed a divided society into a united one. Third, intolerance has clear costs: prejudice breeds hatred, hatred breeds violence, and violence destroys the very peace in which families and economies thrive. Conclusion — Peace and tolerance must therefore be practised daily: in classrooms, in homes and in public life. A society that respects every citizen's beliefs is not merely peaceful; it is strong, united and prepared for progress.

Unit 2: Patriotism

Pre-reading

Pre-reading: K-W-L Chart. Before reading, make predictions about the text's content: K (Know) — write down everything you know about patriotism; W (Want to Know) — what you want to learn; after reading, fill in L (Learned). [Discussion — model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: K (Know) — Patriotism means loving one's country; soldiers defend the country; Quaid-e-Azam founded Pakistan. W (Want to Know) — What exactly makes a person a patriot? What sacrifices have Pakistani soldiers made? What are a patriot's supreme values? L (Learned) — Patriotism means love for the motherland and devotion to one's country, and a patriot is willing to sacrifice when the need arises; the word comes from the Latin 'patriota' (countryman); a patriot's supreme values are sovereignty, integrity and honour, on which no compromise can be made; in the wars of 1965, 1971 and Kargil 1999, soldiers such as Captain Muhammad Sarwar, Major Raja Aziz Bhatti, Pilot Officer Rashid Minhas and Captain Karnal Sher Khan embraced martyrdom and were awarded Nishan-e-Haider, the highest military award.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A1. How do you personally define patriotism? Can you provide an example from your own life or community that illustrates your definition? [Discussion — model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: I define patriotism as love for the motherland combined with a willingness to sacrifice for it and to serve it honestly in daily life. The text defines it the same way: a patriot loves his country and is willing to sacrifice when the need arises. An everyday example is a student who keeps the school and neighbourhood clean, respects the law, helps neighbours in need and studies hard to become a useful citizen — small, daily acts that serve the country just as surely as a soldier's sacrifice defends it.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A2. Why do you think Quaid-e-Azam Muhammad Ali Jinnah's efforts were crucial in securing a separate homeland for the Muslims?

Quaid-e-Azam was a nation builder and great patriot who wanted to protect the values, culture and traditions of the Muslims of the subcontinent. Without his leadership, the Muslims would have had no united voice or political direction; he gave them a sense of identity and galvanized them into a united and strong nation, as his own words say: 'We must develop a sense of patriotism which galvanizes us all into a united and strong nation.' His efforts turned the demand for a separate homeland from an idea into a political reality, securing Pakistan.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A3. Why do you think the soldiers, mentioned in the text, are considered heroes? What qualities do they show?

The soldiers named in the text — Naik Saif Ali Janjua, Captain Muhammad Sarwar, Major Tufail Muhammad, Major Raja Aziz Bhatti, Pilot Officer Rashid Minhas, Major Shabbir Sharif, Sowar Muhammad Hussain, Major Muhammad Akram, Lance Naik Muhammad Mahfuz, Havildar Lalak Jan and Captain Karnal Sher Khan — are considered heroes because they laid down their lives in the wars of 1965, 1971 and Kargil 1999 to protect the homeland, and were awarded Nishan-e-Haider, the highest military award. They show courage, sacrifice, devotion to the motherland, and an uncompromising commitment to the country's sovereignty, integrity and honour.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A4. How can the spirit of patriotism be maintained and fostered in today's society, where many people are more connected globally than locally? Provide examples of modern acts of patriotism. [Discussion — model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: The spirit of patriotism can be maintained by practising it in modern, everyday forms: obeying the law, paying taxes honestly, keeping public places clean, voting responsibly, supporting Pakistani products and talent, helping fellow citizens in floods or crises, and representing Pakistan positively online instead of spreading negativity. Schools can foster it by teaching national history and the sacrifices of heroes, and by celebrating national days meaningfully. Global connection need not weaken patriotism: a Pakistani student studying abroad who speaks proudly of Pakistan, or a programmer earning foreign exchange for the country, is practising modern patriotism — serving the homeland while engaging with the world.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A5. The text includes a quote from S.W. Scott about patriotic spirit. What do you think S.W. Scott means by 'a man devoid of patriotic spirit'? Do you agree or disagree with this perspective? Why? [Discussion — model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: Scott quotes the lines: 'Breathes there the man, with soul so dead, / Who never to himself hath said, / This is my own, my native land!' By 'a man devoid of patriotic spirit' he means a person who feels no love or attachment for his native land at all — someone whose soul is, in his words, 'dead' to the feeling every person should have for home. I agree in the sense that love for one's homeland is a natural, noble human feeling, and a person without it loses an important bond with his community and heritage. I would add, however, that true patriotism must be constructive — serving the country honestly and respecting others — rather than hatred of other nations, which Scott's lines do not advocate.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A6. How can schools teach students about patriotism? Why is it important for students to learn about it?

Schools can teach patriotism by teaching national history and the stories of heroes such as the Nishan-e-Haider recipients, by celebrating national days with understanding rather than mere ceremony, by encouraging civic responsibility (cleanliness, honesty, helping others), and by giving students roles in school and community service. It is important because students are the future citizens: if they learn love for the country, respect for its values and willingness to serve it, they will grow into responsible adults who protect the nation's sovereignty, integrity and honour instead of harming them.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A7. Can you think of a small act of patriotism that someone could do every day? How does this help the country?

A small daily act of patriotism is to keep your surroundings clean and to obey the law — for example, not littering, following traffic rules, and being honest in small dealings. It helps the country because a clean, law-abiding society is healthier, safer and more attractive for everyone, and because millions of small honest acts add up to national discipline and progress. Another daily act is studying sincerely: an educated, skilled citizen contributes far more to the nation's strength than one who wastes the opportunity.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A8. What did you learn about patriotism from this text?

I learned that patriotism is not just a feeling but a live spirit that continuously inspires and guides a nation. It means love for the motherland and devotion to one's country, with a willingness to sacrifice when needed; its supreme values are sovereignty, integrity and honour, on which no compromise can be made. I learned how Quaid-e-Azam galvanized the Muslims into a united nation and secured a separate homeland, and how soldiers in the wars of 1965, 1971 and Kargil 1999 gave their lives and earned Nishan-e-Haider. Finally, I learned that patriotism must stay alert — the spirit of patriotism keeps a nation ready to defend itself against foreign invasion.

Reading and Critical Thinking C

C1. Read the following sentence and identify the cause and effect: 'Patriots render sacrifice for the preservation and protection of the country's values.'

Cause: The country's values — its sovereignty, integrity and honour — need preservation and protection (they are threatened or must be defended). Effect: Patriots render (offer) great sacrifice to preserve and protect them.

Reading and Critical Thinking C

C2. Read the following sentence and identify the cause and effect: 'During the wars of 1965 and 1971, many soldiers displayed great courage.'

Cause: Pakistan faced foreign invasion and war in 1965 and 1971, so the homeland needed defence. Effect: Many soldiers displayed great courage, laying down their lives to protect the homeland.

Reading and Critical Thinking F

F1. Reread paragraph 2 of the unit: What is the main idea of the text?

(a) Patriotism is unimportant.

(b) Patriotism requires sacrifice.

(c) Patriotism is only about honour.

(d) Patriotism is about personal interests.

Correct answer: Patriotism requires sacrifice.

Reading and Critical Thinking F

F2. Identify two values that are of supreme importance to a patriot according to the text.

Two supreme values are sovereignty and integrity (the third named in the text is honour). For a patriot, these values are supreme and no compromise can be made on them.

Reading and Critical Thinking F

F3. What do patriots do to preserve and protect these values?

Patriots render great sacrifice for the preservation and protection of these values — they give their strength and courage to safeguard the interests of the country and nation, and, as the soldiers of 1965, 1971 and Kargil showed, they are willing to lay down their lives for the homeland.

Reading and Critical Thinking F

F4. Do you think the text presents a strong argument for the importance of patriotism? Why or why not? [Discussion — model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: Yes, the text presents a strong argument. It begins with a clear definition (love for the motherland, willingness to sacrifice), states the supreme values (sovereignty, integrity, honour), and then supports the argument with concrete evidence: Quaid-e-Azam's nation-building, the named Nishan-e-Haider martyrs of three wars, and Scott's poetic lines on the man without patriotic spirit. The combination of definition, historical example and emotional appeal makes the case convincing. A possible weakness is that the text gives only one side — it does not discuss how patriotism can be misused — but as an argument for patriotism's importance, it is well supported.

Vocabulary A

render — Inferred meaning: to give or offer something (patriots 'render great sacrifice' — they give their sacrifice for the country). sacrifice — to give up something valuable, even one's life, for a greater cause (soldiers laid down their lives). sovereignty — the supreme power and independence of a country, its right to govern itself without outside control (listed with integrity and honour as supreme values). commendable — deserving praise and approval (patriotism 'is considered a commendable quality').

Vocabulary B

pronunciation, dictionary meaning, part of speech, etymology. Words: render, sacrifice, sovereignty, commendable.

render — Pronunciation: /REN-der/ (/'rendər/). Meaning: to give, present or provide something; to cause someone or something to be in a particular state. Part of speech: verb. Etymology: from Latin 'reddere' (to give back). — sacrifice — Pronunciation: /SAK-ruh-fys/ (/'sækrɪfaɪs/). Meaning: the act of giving up something valuable for the sake of something else; an offering to a god. Part of speech: noun (also verb: to sacrifice). Etymology: from Latin 'sacrificium' (sacer 'sacred' + facere 'to make'). — sovereignty — Pronunciation: /SOV-rin-tee/ (/'sɒvrənti/). Meaning: supreme power or authority, especially of a state to govern itself. Part of speech: noun. Etymology: from Old French 'soverainete', from Latin 'superanus' (supreme). — commendable — Pronunciation: /kuh-MEN-duh-bul/ (/kə'mendəbl/). Meaning: deserving praise and approval. Part of speech: adjective. Etymology: from Latin 'commendabilis', from 'commendare' (to entrust, praise).

Vocabulary C

Vocabulary C. Compare the dictionary definitions with your inferences. [Model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: The dictionary definitions confirm the inferences. 'Render' as 'to give or provide' matches the text's 'render great sacrifice'. 'Sacrifice' as 'giving up something valuable' matches the soldiers giving their lives. 'Sovereignty' as 'supreme power of a state to govern itself' matches its place among the supreme values no compromise can be made on. 'Commendable' as 'deserving praise' matches the text's judgement that patriotism is a commendable quality. The inferences were therefore accurate, and the dictionary adds precision (for example, the etymology showing 'sacrifice' comes from 'sacred making').

Vocabulary D

Vocabulary D. Use a dictionary to find and write the different word patterns for the word 'sovereignty'. Complete the chart by identifying the correct forms of the word 'sovereignty' and its related forms.

Base word: sovereignty. Noun form: sovereignty (the supreme power of a state); sovereign (a monarch or ruler). Verb form: there is no standard verb form of 'sovereignty' in English (it cannot be made into a verb without changing the word). Adjective form: sovereign (having supreme power; e.g. a sovereign state). Adverb form: sovereignly (in a sovereign manner; rare in general use). Note: the verb column cannot honestly be filled from standard usage and is marked as not applicable.

Vocabulary E

Vocabulary E. Write sentences using each form of the word 'sovereignty'. [Model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: Noun (sovereignty): Pakistan defends its sovereignty with great determination. Noun (sovereign): The sovereign addressed the nation on Independence Day. Adjective (sovereign): Every sovereign state has the right to make its own laws. Adverb (sovereignly, rare): The state acts sovereignly in matters of national defence. (No verb sentence is given, because 'sovereignty' has no standard verb form.)

Grammar (Tenses)

Grammar — Tenses table exercises. Write five sentences about daily routine using the simple present tense; a short paragraph about last weekend (simple past); about plans for the upcoming holidays (simple future); describe what you are doing at this moment (present continuous); what you were doing at a specific time yesterday (past continuous); what you will be doing at this time next week (future continuous). [Model answers]

MODEL ANSWERS: Simple present (daily routine): 1. I wake up at six o'clock every morning. 2. I offer my prayers and eat breakfast. 3. I go to school by bus. 4. I study my lessons in the evening. 5. I sleep early at night. — Simple past (last weekend): Last weekend, I visited my grandparents in the village. We played cricket in the evening, and my grandmother cooked my favourite food. I enjoyed the trip very much. — Simple future (upcoming holidays): I will visit Murree during the holidays. I will take photographs and enjoy the cool weather with my family. — Present continuous (at this moment): I am writing my English homework at this moment. — Past continuous (yesterday at this time): At this time yesterday, I was playing hockey in the school ground. — Future continuous (this time next week): At this time next week, I will be travelling to Lahore with my family.

Grammar (Perfect Tenses)

Grammar — Perfect tenses exercises. Write about your experiences using the present perfect tense; sentences about what you had done before a specific event (past perfect); about what you will have achieved by the end of this year (future perfect); activities you have been doing (present perfect continuous); what you had been doing before a specific event (past perfect continuous); what you will have been doing by a certain time in the future (future perfect continuous). [Model answers]

MODEL ANSWERS: Present perfect: I have visited the Badshahi Mosque twice. She has lived in this city for ten years. — Past perfect: I had finished my homework before dinner yesterday evening. They had completed their project before the teacher arrived. — Future perfect: I will have graduated from school by next year. She will have completed her primary education by the end of this year. — Present perfect continuous: I have been working on my science project for the last three weeks. She has been studying for three hours. — Past perfect continuous: He had been working at the company for five years before he left. I had been reading this novel for a week before the exams began. — Future perfect continuous: By the next month, she will have been working here for a year. By next June, I will have been studying English for five years.

Grammar A

Grammar A. Read the following passage carefully. Underline the verbs and identify their tenses. Passage: 'Every morning, Maria walks to school. Yesterday, she walked with her friend because her bike was broken. Tomorrow, she will ride her bike again. Maria has been attending this school for three years, and she loves it. By the end of this year, she will have completed her primary education.' walks — Simple Present (habitual action, every morning). walked — Simple Past (yesterday). was — Simple Past (linking verb; 'was broken' is past passive). will ride — Simple Future (tomorrow). has been attending — Present Perfect Continuous (started in the past, continuing for three years). loves — Simple Present (general truth/feeling). will have completed — Future Perfect (completed before a future time, the end of this year).

Grammar B

Grammar B. Write a diary entry about your day, using at least five different tenses. [Model answer]

MODEL DIARY ENTRY: Dear Diary, Today was a busy day. I woke up early (Simple Past) and now I am writing this entry before sleeping (Present Continuous). I go to school every day (Simple Present), and I have been preparing for my exams for two weeks (Present Perfect Continuous). Tomorrow, I will revise all my lessons (Simple Future), and by the end of this month, I will have completed my syllabus (Future Perfect). I had finished my homework before dinner yesterday (Past Perfect), so today I felt relaxed. It was a good day!

Grammar C

Grammar C. Read the events listed below. Identify the tense used in each event. Place the events on the timeline in the correct sequence based on their tenses and the given dates. Events: 1. I will have graduated from the university by next June. 2. I am studying for my exams right now. 3. I visited Karachi two years ago. 4. I have been working on my project for the last three weeks. 5. I had finished my homework before dinner yesterday evening.

Tenses: 1. Future Perfect (completed before next June). 2. Present Continuous (right now). 3. Simple Past (two years ago). 4. Present Perfect Continuous (started three weeks ago, continuing). 5. Past Perfect (completed before dinner yesterday). Correct timeline sequence (earliest to latest): 3 (two years ago) → 5 (yesterday evening, before dinner) → 4 (last three weeks up to now) → 2 (right now) → 1 (by next June).

Grammar D

Grammar D. Read the following sentences. Underline the gerunds, infinitives, and participles and label them accordingly. 1. Swimming is my favourite hobby. 2. To learn a new language takes time. 3. The broken window needs to be fixed. 4. She enjoys reading books. 5. To travel around the world is my dream. 6. The running water creates a sweet sound.

1. Swimming — gerund (the -ing form used as the subject, a noun). 2. To learn — infinitive (to + base verb used as the subject). 3. broken — past participle (used as an adjective describing 'window'). 4. reading — gerund (the -ing form used as the object of 'enjoys'). 5. To travel — infinitive (used as the subject). 6. running — present participle (used as an adjective describing 'water').

Grammar E

Grammar E. Transform the following base verbs into gerunds, infinitives, and participles. Use each form in a sentence. Base verbs: write, play, eat.

write — Gerund: Writing is a useful skill. (Writing improves with practice.) Infinitive: To write well, you must read widely. Present participle: The writing student did not hear the bell. Past participle: The written essay was praised by the teacher. — play — Gerund: Playing hockey keeps me fit. Infinitive: To play fairly is more important than to win. Present participle: The playing children laughed loudly. Past participle: The played match was very exciting. — eat — Gerund: Eating vegetables is healthy. Infinitive: To eat on time is a good habit. Present participle: The eating guests enjoyed the dinner. Past participle: The eaten food was delicious.

Grammar F

Grammar F. Write a short paragraph using at least two gerunds, two infinitives, and two participles. Highlight each gerund, infinitive and participle used in the paragraph. [Model answer]

MODEL PARAGRAPH: Swimming (gerund) is my favourite hobby, and I enjoy reading (gerund) books about great swimmers. To learn (infinitive) a new skill takes patience, and to travel (infinitive) for competitions is my dream. The running (present participle) water in the pool looked inviting, and the broken (past participle) starting block reminded me to be careful. (Gerunds: Swimming, reading. Infinitives: To learn, to travel. Participles: running — present participle; broken — past participle.)

Oral Communication Skills A

Oral A. Respond to the text through oral discussion. Divide the class into small groups, assign each group a specific section of the text, discuss: What is the main idea? What supporting details have been provided? Present your group's findings and join a whole-class discussion. [Model summary for discussion]

MODEL ANSWER (for a group discussing paragraph 2): Main idea — For a patriot, the sovereignty, integrity and honour of the country are supreme values on which no compromise can be made, and patriots render great sacrifice to preserve them. Supporting details — patriotism gives people strength and courage to safeguard the country's interests; patriots render sacrifice for the preservation and protection of these values. Groups on other sections follow the same pattern: paragraph 1 (definition and origin of 'patriot'), paragraph 3 (Quaid-e-Azam and the separate homeland), paragraph 4 (martyrs of 1965, 1971 and Kargil and Nishan-e-Haider), paragraph 5 (patriotism as a living spirit; Scott's lines).

Oral Communication Skills B

Oral B. Debate on Patriotism: 'The Role of Youth in the Nation-Building' — listen to others' viewpoints and respond appropriately, using correct pronunciation and intonation. [Model points for debate]

MODEL POINTS (for the motion): The youth are the future of the nation, so their role in nation-building is central. Young people bring energy, new ideas and digital skills; they can serve the country by studying sincerely, respecting the law, keeping society clean, helping in crises, and using social media responsibly to promote Pakistan's positive image. Against the objection that youth lack experience: experience is gained by participation, and guided youth — in student councils, volunteer work and community projects — learn responsibility early. Conclusion: a nation that invests in its youth and gives them real roles builds its own future.

Writing Skills A

Writing A. Write a well-structured paragraph on 'My Service to Society'. [Model paragraph]

MODEL PARAGRAPH: My service to society begins with small, sincere actions in my own surroundings. I keep my street clean, help elderly neighbours with their work, and tutor younger children in my neighbourhood who struggle with their lessons. At school, I take part in cleanliness drives and plantation campaigns, because a green, clean environment benefits everyone. I also obey the law, speak politely to all, and use social media to spread useful information rather than rumours. I believe that serving society does not require wealth or power; it requires a willing heart, honest conduct and regular small deeds, and if every citizen serves in this way, the whole society becomes stronger, kinder and more prosperous.

Writing Skills B

Writing B. Write an informative/explanatory essay on the topic 'I Love Pakistan'. [Model essay]

MODEL ESSAY: Introduction — I love Pakistan because it is my homeland, the country my forefathers struggled to create, and the land where I was born and raised. Its green fields, high mountains, rivers and deserts are beautiful, but what I love most is its people and its values. Body — First, Pakistan was created through great sacrifice: Quaid-e-Azam Muhammad Ali Jinnah led the Muslims of the subcontinent to a separate homeland where they could live according to their faith and culture. Second, its heroes inspire me: soldiers who gave their lives in 1965, 1971 and Kargil, and were awarded Nishan-e-Haider, showed what love for the country truly means. Third, Pakistan's culture — its languages, hospitality, sports and arts — fills me with pride. Conclusion — Loving Pakistan is not only a feeling; it is a duty. I will serve my country by studying hard, obeying the law, keeping it clean and helping my fellow citizens, so that Pakistan grows stronger and more prosperous.

Unit 3: Daffodils

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A1. What is the central idea of the poem 'Daffodils'?

The central idea is nature's lasting joy through memory — the bliss of solitude. The poet, wandering lonely as a cloud, sees a host of golden daffodils beside a lake; the sight fills him with joy at the time, and later, when he lies on his couch in a vacant or pensive mood, the memory of the daffodils flashes upon his inward eye and his heart dances with them again. Nature's beauty thus gives happiness twice: once in the experience and again in recollection.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A2. Describe the setting where the poet saw the daffodils. How does this setting contribute to the overall mood of the poem?

The poet saw the daffodils beside a lake, beneath the trees, in a never-ending line along the margin of a bay. The poem was inspired by a walk Wordsworth took with his sister Dorothy near Ullswater in the Lake District on 15 April 1802. The open, peaceful lakeside setting, with the flowers stretching endlessly along the bay, creates a mood of calm wonder and joyful freedom, and makes the golden flowers stand out vividly against the blue water and sky.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A3. How does the poet describe the daffodils? What imagery does he use to convey their beauty?

The poet describes a crowd, a host of golden daffodils, fluttering and dancing in the breeze, tossing their heads in sprightly dance. He uses visual imagery of gold (golden daffodils), number (ten thousand saw he at a glance), and movement (fluttering, dancing, tossing heads). He compares them to stars that shine and twinkle on the Milky Way, stretched in a never-ending line, and says the sparkling waves danced too, but the flowers outdid them in glee — imagery that makes the scene feel alive, joyful and endless.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A4. What role does personification play in the poem? Give examples.

Personification gives the daffodils human life and joy, which is what makes them companions for the lonely poet. Examples: the daffodils are 'fluttering and dancing in the breeze' and 'tossing their heads in sprightly dance' — actions of lively dancers; the waves 'danced' beside them; the flowers form a 'jocund company' — cheerful companions; and in the last stanza the poet's heart 'dances with the daffodils'. By making the flowers dance and keep company, Wordsworth turns a landscape into a living, joyful presence that cures loneliness.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A5. Discuss the rhyme scheme and rhythm of the poem. How do they enhance the poem's musical quality?

The poem is written in four six-line stanzas with the rhyme scheme ABABCC in each stanza (for example, in stanza 1: cloud/crowd, hills/daffodils, trees/breeze). The steady, flowing rhythm and the regular rhyming couplets at the end of each stanza give the poem a song-like, musical quality. This musical flow matches the dancing movement of the daffodils themselves, so the sound of the poem feels as joyful and graceful as the scene it describes.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A6. What does the phrase 'jocund company' mean, and how does it reflect the poet's feelings?

'Jocund company' means cheerful, merry companions. The poet calls the daffodils a jocund company because their dancing presence gave him joy and cured his loneliness: at the sight of them he gazed in wonder, not knowing what wealth the show had brought him, and later, in memory, they again fill his heart with pleasure. The phrase reflects his feeling that the flowers were not mere plants but joyful friends whose company lifted his spirits twice — once in the moment and once in recollection.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A7. Explain the concept of 'bliss of solitude' as presented in the poem.

The 'bliss of solitude' is the joyful peace of being alone, made happy by a beautiful memory. In the last stanza, when the poet lies on his couch 'in vacant or in pensive mood' — alone, with an empty or thoughtful mind — the daffodils 'flash upon that inward eye', the eye of memory and imagination. His heart then fills with pleasure and dances with the daffodils. Solitude here is not sad loneliness; it is a chosen, peaceful aloneness that memory turns into bliss, because the beauty once seen in nature lives on in the mind.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A8. How can the themes of 'Daffodils' be applied to our own lives? Can you think of a time when nature brought you joy or comfort? [Model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: The themes apply whenever a beautiful moment in nature stays with us and comforts us later. Like the poet, we can carry memories of a garden, a riverside, mountains or rain into lonely or difficult times, and let them lift our hearts. For example, on a quiet evening I remembered a spring morning when I walked among yellow flowers in a park; recalling their colour and movement made me smile and feel peaceful, just as the daffodils made the poet's heart dance. The poem teaches us to notice nature closely, because what we truly notice becomes a lasting source of joy.

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B1. What is the main theme of the poem 'Daffodils'?

(a) the sun

(b) a starry night ✓

(c) the moon

(d) a rainbow

Correct answer: a starry night

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B6. How many daffodils did the poet see at a glance?

(a) a hundred

(b) a thousand

(c) tens of thousands ✓

(d) a million

Correct answer: tens of thousands

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B7. The poet was feeling _____ when he saw the daffodils.

(a) happy

(b) lonely ✓

(c) angry

(d) afraid

Correct answer: lonely

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B8. What do the daffodils do for the poet when he is alone?

(a) make him sad

(b) bring him joy

(c) make him sleepy

(d) make him angry

Correct answer: bring him joy

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B9. In what mood does the poet lie on his couch in the last stanza?

(a) in a vacant or in pensive mood

(b) in a cheerful and noisy mood

(c) in a fearful and troubled mood

(d) in a sleepy and lazy mood

Correct answer: in a vacant or in pensive mood

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B10. Which line shows that the poet's heart is filled with pleasure in memory?

(a) I wandered lonely as a cloud

(b) Continuous as the stars that shine

(c) And then my heart with pleasure fills

(d) They stretched in never-ending line

Correct answer: And then my heart with pleasure fills

Vocabulary A

Vocabulary A. 'Lonely' and 'solitary' have similar denotations but different connotations. Work out the difference from the poem's use of 'lonely', and explain how the tone would change if 'solitary' were used instead.

Denotation (dictionary meaning) is almost the same: both mean being alone. Connotation differs: 'lonely' carries a negative, sad feeling — being alone and feeling the lack of company — while 'solitary' is neutral or even positive, suggesting peaceful aloneness by choice. The poem needs 'lonely' in the opening line ('I wandered lonely as a cloud') because the poet's sadness is what the daffodils transform into joy; if 'solitary' were used, the opening would feel calm rather than sad, and the transformation from loneliness to joy would lose its contrast and emotional force.

Vocabulary B

Vocabulary B. Identify the denotative and connotative meanings of the following words from the poem: lonely, cloud, fluttering, sprightly, gazed, bliss.

lonely — Denotative: alone, without company. Connotative: sad, isolated, longing for company (the poet's opening mood). — cloud — Denotative: a visible mass of water vapour in the sky. Connotative: drifting, free, aimless wandering high above the world (the poet floats 'lonely as a cloud'). — fluttering — Denotative: moving lightly and quickly, as wings or leaves in air. Connotative: joyful, lively, delicate movement (the daffodils' dance). — sprightly — Denotative: lively, full of energy. Connotative: cheerful, youthful high spirits (the daffodils 'tossing their heads in sprightly dance'). — gazed — Denotative: looked steadily and intently. Connotative: a wonder-filled, absorbed look (the poet 'gazed — and gazed' at the wealth of the show). — bliss — Denotative: perfect happiness, great joy. Connotative: deep, peaceful, almost spiritual happiness (the 'bliss of solitude').

Vocabulary C

Vocabulary C. Compare the connotations of each pair and explain the tone each word creates: gaze / stare; shine / glare; hoard / collect.

gaze (positive) vs stare (negative): 'gaze' suggests a steady, admiring, thoughtful look — the poet gazes at the daffodils with wonder; 'stare' suggests a rude, fixed, unfriendly look. Tone: gaze is gentle and appreciative; stare is harsh and intrusive. — shine (positive) vs glare (negative): 'shine' suggests bright, pleasant light — the stars 'shine and twinkle'; 'glare' suggests harsh, dazzling, uncomfortable light. Tone: shine is warm and beautiful; glare is aggressive and unpleasant. — hoard (negative) vs collect (positive): 'hoard' suggests selfishly piling things up and refusing to share; 'collect' suggests gathering with interest and care, often to enjoy or preserve. Tone: hoard is greedy and secretive; collect is orderly and appreciative.

Grammar A

Grammar A. Identify the figures of speech in the following lines and explain their effect: 1. 'I wandered lonely as a cloud.' 2. 'Fluttering and dancing in the breeze.' / 'Tossing their heads in sprightly dance.' 3. 'Ten thousand saw I at a glance.' 4. 'They flash upon that inward eye.' 5. 'Beside the lake, beneath the trees.' 6. The comparison of daffodils to stars that shine and twinkle on the Milky Way.

1. Simile — 'lonely as a cloud': the poet compares himself to a cloud using 'as'; it shows his free, drifting, solitary wandering high above the valleys and hills. 2. Personification — the daffodils flutter, dance and toss their heads like lively human dancers; it makes the flowers feel alive and joyful, turning them into cheerful company. 3. Hyperbole — 'ten thousand' is a deliberate exaggeration; it stresses the vast, countless number of flowers stretching in a never-ending line. 4. Metaphor — the 'inward eye' is the mind's eye, memory and imagination; it shows that the poet sees the daffodils again inwardly, in recollection. 5. Alliteration — the repeated 'b' sounds in 'Beside the lake, beneath the trees' give the line a soft, musical flow. 6. Simile and imagery — the daffodils are 'continuous as the stars that shine / And twinkle on the Milky Way'; the star imagery stresses their vast number, golden brightness and heavenly beauty, and fills the scene with wonder.

Grammar B

Grammar B1. Which of the following is a simile?

(a) The wind whispered softly.

(b) Time flies.

(c) Her smile is like the sun. ✓

(d) The stars danced.

Correct answer: Her smile is like the sun.

Grammar B

Grammar B2. Identify the figure of speech: 'The flowers danced in the breeze.'

(a) simile

(a) I am so hungry I could eat a horse. ✓

(b) She is kind.

(c) The rain fell softly.

(d) He walked slowly.

Correct answer: I am so hungry I could eat a horse.

Grammar B

Grammar B6. 'Time is a great healer' is an example of:

(a) simile

(b) personification

(c) metaphor ✓

(d) hyperbole

Correct answer: metaphor

Grammar B

Grammar B7. Which of the following shows alliteration?

(a) The cat sat on the mat.

(b) She sells seashells. ✓

(c) He is as brave as a lion.

(d) The wind blew gently.

Correct answer: She sells seashells.

Grammar C

Grammar C1. Why do you think Wordsworth chose to use similes and personification in 'Daffodils' rather than plain description?

Wordsworth chose similes and personification because they make the scene feel alive and emotional rather than merely described. The simile 'lonely as a cloud' lets us feel his solitude; personification — the flowers dancing and tossing their heads — turns the daffodils into joyful companions, which is exactly what the poem's theme requires: nature as a living friend whose memory brings joy. Plain description would tell us what the flowers looked like; figures of speech let us feel what they meant to the poet.

Grammar C

Grammar C2. How would the tone of the poem change if Wordsworth had used euphemism or oxymoron instead of the joyful imagery he chose?

Euphemism (softening harsh things) and oxymoron (joining opposite ideas, like 'sweet sorrow') would break the poem's pure, uplifting tone. The poem celebrates unmixed joy and the healing power of a beautiful memory; an oxymoron would introduce contradiction and tension, and a euphemism would soften or hide feelings that the poem wants to express openly. The joyful similes and personification keep the tone harmonious, bright and sincere, matching the golden daffodils themselves.

Grammar C

Grammar C3. Does oxymoron always create a negative or confusing effect? Give a reason.

No. Oxymoron does not always create a negative or confusing effect; it can add depth by holding two truths together, as in 'bittersweet' (joy mixed with sadness) or 'deafening silence' (silence so complete it feels loud). Its effect depends on purpose: in a poem about mixed feelings it can be powerful, but in 'Daffodils', where the feeling is pure joy, an oxymoron would have weakened the clarity of that joy, which is why Wordsworth does not use one.

Grammar C

Grammar C4. When should a writer use euphemism, and when should a writer avoid it?

A writer should use euphemism when a topic is painful, embarrassing or sensitive and a gentler expression shows respect — for example, saying someone 'passed away' instead of 'died' when speaking to a grieving family. A writer should avoid euphemism when clarity and honesty matter more than softness, or when the feeling itself is the point: in 'Daffodils', Wordsworth wants the joy stated plainly and brightly, so softening or hiding it behind gentle words would weaken the poem. Rule: use euphemism to be kind about harsh subjects; avoid it when directness serves truth or emotion better.

Grammar D

Grammar D1. Fill in the blank with a suitable compound preposition: _____ the weather report, it will rain tomorrow.

According to the weather report, it will rain tomorrow. ('According to' is a compound preposition meaning 'as stated by'.)

Grammar D

Grammar D2. Fill in the blank with a suitable compound preposition: The dog stood _____ the gate, waiting for its owner.

The dog stood in front of the gate, waiting for its owner. ('In front of' is a compound preposition of place.)

Grammar D

Grammar D3. Fill in the blank with a suitable compound preposition: She spoke _____ her friend, who could not attend the meeting.

She spoke on behalf of her friend, who could not attend the meeting. ('On behalf of' means 'representing someone'.)

Grammar D

Grammar D4. Fill in the blank with a suitable compound preposition: The match was cancelled _____ heavy rain.

The match was cancelled due to heavy rain. ('Due to' means 'because of'.)

Grammar D

Grammar D5. Fill in the blank with a suitable compound preposition: _____ the main course, we were served dessert.

In addition to the main course, we were served dessert. ('In addition to' means 'as well as'.)

Grammar D

Grammar D6. Fill in the blank with a suitable compound preposition: _____ the rain, we decided to go for a walk.

In spite of the rain, we decided to go for a walk. ('In spite of' means 'despite'.)

Grammar E

Grammar E. Use each of the following compound prepositions in a sentence of your own: according to, in front of, on behalf of, due to, in addition to, in spite of. [Model sentences]

MODEL SENTENCES: According to — According to my teacher, regular practice improves English. In front of — The school bus stopped in front of the main gate. On behalf of — The monitor collected the homework on behalf of the class. Due to — The match was postponed due to bad weather. In addition to — In addition to English, I am learning Arabic. In spite of — In spite of the heat, the players finished the match.

Grammar F

Grammar F. Identify whether each prepositional phrase is an adjective phrase or an adverb phrase: 1. The book on the shelf is mine. 2. She sang with grace. 3. They hiked to the mountains. 4. The cat under the table is sleeping. 5. We will meet after dinner. 6. The picture on the wall is beautiful.

1. 'on the shelf' — adjective phrase (it describes the noun 'book': which book? the one on the shelf). 2. 'with grace' — adverb phrase (it describes how she sang). 3. 'to the mountains' — adverb phrase (it describes where they hiked). 4. 'under the table' — adjective phrase (it describes the noun 'cat': which cat? the one under the table). 5. 'after dinner' — adverb phrase (it describes when we will meet). 6. 'on the wall' — adjective phrase (it describes the noun 'picture': which picture? the one on the wall). Rule: a phrase that answers 'which one?' about a noun is an adjective phrase; one that answers 'how / where / when?' about a verb is an adverb phrase.

Grammar G

Grammar G. Write sentences using prepositional phrases of your own: in the morning, under the bed, with a smile, after the game, on the roof. [Model sentences]

MODEL SENTENCES: In the morning — In the morning, I revise my lessons before school. Under the bed — The cat hid under the bed during the storm. With a smile — The teacher greeted us with a smile. After the game — After the game, we thanked the visiting team. On the roof — The kites were flying above the houses, but one landed on the roof.

Oral Communication Skills

Oral: Read the following stanza from 'Arrival of the Monsoon' by Taufiq Rafat and answer: What is the main idea of the stanza? What imagery does the poet use? (Stanza: 'And the first rain, / the first rain, / alive, alive, / the wire swinging / in the rain, / the brown waters / round the hooves, / the drenched trees / shaking off the rain, / the summer ending / in drops of rain.')

Main idea: the arrival of the monsoon revives everything — the first rain brings new life after the dry summer, and the whole landscape wakes up. Imagery: the repeated word 'alive, alive' stresses new life; the wire swinging in the rain gives a visual image of wind and rain together; the brown waters round the hooves show flooded fields and animals standing in rainwater; the drenched trees shaking off the rain show trees shaking themselves dry like living creatures; and 'the summer ending in drops of rain' is a gentle closing image of one season dissolving into another. Like Wordsworth's daffodils, the monsoon scene is nature made vivid and alive.

Writing Skills A

Writing A. Paraphrase the last stanza of 'Daffodils' in your own words. [Model paraphrase] Last stanza: 'For oft, when on my couch I lie / In vacant or in pensive mood, / They flash upon that inward eye / Which is the bliss of solitude; / And then my heart with pleasure fills, / And dances with the daffodils.'

MODEL PARAPHRASE: Often, when I lie resting on my sofa with an empty or thoughtful mind, the daffodils suddenly appear before my mind's eye — that inner vision which is the joyful blessing of being peacefully alone. Then my heart fills with happiness, and it dances along with the daffodils in my memory, just as they danced beside the lake.

Writing Skills B

Writing B. Write an objective summary of the poem 'Daffodils', including its main idea, key imagery and emotional impact, without adding personal opinions. [Model summary]

MODEL OBJECTIVE SUMMARY: 'Daffodils' by William Wordsworth describes the poet wandering alone like a cloud when he suddenly sees a large number of golden daffodils beside a lake, beneath the trees, stretching in a never-ending line along the bay. The key imagery presents the flowers fluttering and dancing in the breeze, tossing their heads in sprightly dance, compared in number and brightness to stars shining and twinkling on the Milky Way; the sparkling waves dance too, but the daffodils outdo them in joy. The main idea is that nature's beauty gives lasting joy through memory: when the poet later lies on his couch in a vacant or pensive mood, the daffodils flash upon his inward eye — the bliss of solitude — and his heart fills with pleasure and dances with the daffodils.

Unit 4: Hazrat Asma (RA)

Pre-reading

Pre-reading 1. Describe the role of any female member to make your family happy and successful. [Discussion — model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: In my family, my mother plays the central role in making us happy and successful. She manages the home, prepares our food, looks after our health and studies, and keeps the family united with patience and kindness. Like Hazrat Asma (RA), who supported her father and the Rasoolullah (SAW) during the migration with courage and service, a mother serves her family quietly every day; her sacrifices, prayers and guidance are the foundation of the family's happiness and success.

Pre-reading

Pre-reading 2. Have you ever heard the name of Hazrat Asma (RA)? What do you know about her? [Discussion — model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: Yes. Hazrat Asma (RA) was the daughter of Hazrat Abu Bakr Siddique (RA), the elder sister of Hazrat Ayesha Siddiqua (RA), the wife of Hazrat Zubair bin al-Awwam (RA) and the mother of Hazrat Abdullah bin Zubair (RA). She is famous for her services during the migration (Hijrat) of 622 A.D., when she prepared food for the journey, tied it on the camel's back with her own belt, and earned the title of Zaat-un-Nitaqain from the Rasoolullah (SAW). She was known for her courage, generosity, wisdom and resolute faith.

While-reading

While-reading 1. Who migrated from Makkah Mukarramah to Madinah Munawwarah in the year 622 A.D.?

The Rasoolullah (SAW) and his close companion, Hazrat Abu Bakr Siddique (RA), migrated from Makkah Mukarramah to Madinah Munawwarah in the year 622

A.D.

While-reading

While-reading 2. What title was given to Hazrat Asma (RA) for her service during the migration preparation, and why?

She was given the title of Zaat-un-Nitaqain (the one with two belts/waistbands) by the Rasoolullah (SAW). The reason: she prepared food for the journey and, as nothing else could be found to tie it with, she tied the food on the camel's back with her own belt — using her belt as the binding, an act of resourcefulness that earned her this honoured title.

While-reading

While-reading 3. What did Hazrat Asma (RA) do when Abu Jehl demanded to know the whereabouts of her father?

When Abu Jehl, in a fit of fury, came to Hazrat Abu Bakr Siddique's (RA) home on the night of the migration and demanded, 'Where is your father?', Hazrat Asma (RA) politely replied with a counter question, 'How would I know?' She made no statement that would give him even a minor clue. Abu Jehl was infuriated and slapped her face so hard that her ear-ring fell off, but she remained steadfast and did not reveal the secret.

While-reading

While-reading 4. How did Hazrat Asma (RA) alleviate her blind grandfather's concern about the family's wealth?

Her grandfather, Hazrat Abu Quhafaa (RA), who was very old and blind and a disbeliever at that time, feared that Abu Bakr had taken all the wealth, leaving Asma and the children empty-handed and helpless. Hazrat Asma (RA) instantly ran to a corner of the home, gathered some pebbles, put them at the place where her father used to keep his money and jewels, covered them with a piece of cloth, and said, 'Come grandfather, look! He has left all this for us.' He touched the cloth, thought it was full of gold and jewels, and his concern was alleviated; he felt relieved that his son had left all his wealth at home.

While-reading

While-reading 5. List all the family relations of Hazrat Asma (RA) as mentioned in the text.

Daughter of Hazrat Abu Bakr Siddique (RA); stepsister of Hazrat Ayesha Siddiqua (RA); wife of Hazrat Zubair bin al-Awwam (RA); mother of Hazrat Abdullah bin Zubair (RA); granddaughter of Hazrat Abu Quhafaa (RA); aunt of Hazrat Abdullah bin Zubair's children (her son said he had not seen anybody more generous than his aunt Hazrat Ayesha (RA) and his mother — the text presents Hazrat Ayesha (RA) as the aunt in that remark). She was amongst the early few who had accepted Islam, and she died at the old age of about a hundred years.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A1. How did Hazrat Asma's (RA) actions during the migration demonstrate her resourcefulness and courage? Provide specific examples from the text.

Her resourcefulness is shown when, finding nothing else to tie the journey's food with, she used her own belt to tie the food on the camel's back — the act that earned her the title of Zaat-un-Nitaqain. Her courage is shown in the perilous nightly task itself: every night, with a pack of food, she ventured quietly towards the rugged mountains where the cave of Thawr was located, traversing the rocky path at night with the constant fear of being detected and caught, when even the slightest mistake could have endangered the life of the Rasoolullah (SAW). Further courage is shown in her wise, polite counter-question to the furious Abu Jehl, and in remaining steadfast after being slapped so hard that her ear-ring fell off, without revealing the secret.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A2. How can the qualities of Hazrat Asma (RA) be applied to the contemporary situations of trust and integrity? Provide a real-life example. [Model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: Her qualities apply whenever a person is trusted with something valuable and must protect it honestly under pressure. For example, a student who is trusted with the class funds for a trip must keep an exact record, spend only on the agreed purpose, and refuse to misuse even a small amount — just as Hazrat Asma (RA) protected the secret of her father's whereabouts and safeguarded her family's trust. Another example is an employee who finds a lost wallet at work and returns it untouched, or a child who tells the truth to a parent even when telling the truth is difficult. In all these cases, trust and integrity mean doing the right thing even when no one is watching, as Hazrat Asma (RA) did.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A3. Summarize the key challenges Hazrat Asma (RA) faced during the migration and how she overcame them.

Challenges: (1) The chiefs of Makkah were furious at the migration, offered huge rewards and bounties for the capture of the Rasoolullah (SAW) and Hazrat Abu Bakr (RA), dead or alive, and were more determined than ever to find them. (2) Supplying food during the perilous journey was extremely difficult, because the situation was so delicate that the slightest mistake could endanger the Rasoolullah's (SAW) life. (3) She had to traverse the rocky path at night with the constant fear of detection and capture. (4) Abu Jehl confronted her violently, demanding her father's whereabouts, and slapped her face so hard that her ear-ring fell off. (5) Her blind, elderly grandfather feared the family had been left empty-handed. She overcame them by careful preparation (food tied with her own belt), nightly quiet venturing to the cave of Thawr with attention to minute details, a wise counter-question that revealed nothing, steadfast silence under violence, and a creative, kind solution for her grandfather with pebbles under a cloth.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A4. In what ways did Hazrat Asma (RA) handle the trust placed in her by her father and the Rasoolullah (SAW)? How did her actions ensure the safety and success of the migration?

She handled the trust in three ways: by preparing food and supplies at her father's house for the journey; by carrying food every night to the cave of Thawr, quietly and carefully, so that the travellers could survive in hiding; and by guarding the secret of their whereabouts absolutely — giving Abu Jehl no clue even under violence. These actions ensured safety and success because the migration depended on secrecy and supply: without food, the travellers could not remain hidden, and without silence, the searchers with their bounties would have found them. Her trustworthiness therefore protected both the lives of the Rasoolullah (SAW) and Hazrat Abu Bakr (RA) and the whole plan of the Hijrat.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A5. Reflect on Hazrat Asma's (RA) self-discipline during the preparation and execution of the migration. How did her self-discipline contribute to her effective handling of difficult situations?

Her self-discipline is visible in her careful, repeated routine: preparing the food, attending to minute details, and venturing out every night on the same dangerous path without panic or carelessness. Self-discipline gave her control over fear — she moved quietly, kept the secret, and answered Abu Jehl politely rather than angrily or fearfully. Because she disciplined her words and actions, she never gave the enemy a clue, never failed in the nightly supply, and never let hardship shake her faith. Her resolute faith in Allah and her disciplined conduct together turned dangerous situations into successful ones.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A6. How did Hazrat Asma (RA) show respect for herself and others throughout the events described in the text? Provide specific examples to support your analysis.

She showed respect for herself by refusing to betray her father and her faith even when slapped violently — she kept her dignity and her secret. She showed respect for others in her polite reply to Abu Jehl ('How would I know?'), which was firm but courteous rather than rude, and in her gentle treatment of her blind grandfather: instead of arguing or dismissing his worry, she comforted him with a creative, respectful solution that preserved his peace of mind. She also showed respect through generosity in later life, selling her inherited garden and giving all the money to the poor and needy, so that nobody ever returned empty-handed from her doorstep.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A7. In what ways did Hazrat Asma (RA) demonstrate respect for her grandfather, even though he was a disbeliever at that time? How did this respect align with her values and beliefs?

Although her grandfather Hazrat Abu Quhafaa (RA) was a disbeliever at that time, she treated him with kindness, patience and honour: she listened to his worry, acted at once to comfort him, and used pebbles covered with cloth so that he would believe wealth had been left for the family and feel relieved. This respect aligns with her Islamic values: Islam teaches kindness and good treatment of parents and elders regardless of their faith, and her actions show modesty, truthfulness in intention (to comfort, not to harm), honesty, piety, bravery and generosity — the very qualities the unit's theme celebrates. Her respect did not compromise her faith; it expressed it.

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B1. Which action taken by Hazrat Asma (RA) demonstrated her handling of trust?

(a) preparing food for the journey

(b) keeping the secret of her father's whereabouts

(c) tying the food on the camel's back

(d) all of the above ✓

Correct answer: all of the above

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B2. Hazrat Asma's (RA) response to Abu Jehl's demand showed her:

(a) fear

(b) self-discipline ✓

(c) anger

(d) indifference

Correct answer: self-discipline

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B3. How did Hazrat Asma (RA) respect her grandfather?

(a) by giving him real gold and jewels

(b) by alleviating his concern with a creative solution ✓

(c) by telling him the truth about the wealth

(d) by ignoring his worries

Correct answer: by alleviating his concern with a creative solution

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B4. The theme of justice in Hazrat Asma's (RA) actions is best exemplified by:

(a) her confrontation with Abu Jehl

(b) her assistance during the migration

(c) her care for her grandfather

(d) her daily prayers

Correct answer: her confrontation with Abu Jehl

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B5. Hazrat Asma's (RA) generosity is highlighted by:

(a) selling her inherited garden and giving money to the poor

Correct answer: selling her inherited garden and giving money to the poor

Vocabulary A

Vocabulary A. Deduce the inferred meanings of these words using context clues from the text. Give the context clue and the inferred meaning for each: capture, delicate, endangered, rugged.

capture — Context clue: the chiefs 'offered huge rewards and bounties for their capture, dead or alive'. Inferred meaning: to seize and take someone prisoner. — delicate — Context clue: 'The situation was so delicate that even the slightest mistake could have endangered the life of the Rasoolullah (SAW)'. Inferred meaning: fragile, sensitive, needing very careful handling. — endangered — Context clue: 'the slightest mistake could have endangered the life of the Rasoolullah (SAW)'. Inferred meaning: put in danger, put at risk of harm. — rugged — Context clue: 'she ventured quietly towards the rugged mountains' and 'traverse the rocky path'. Inferred meaning: rough, uneven and difficult to cross (rocky, harsh terrain).

Vocabulary B

Vocabulary B. Use a dictionary to find the following information for each word: dictionary meaning, pronunciation, part of speech, etymology. Words: advocacy, catalyst, empowerment, resilience, substantial.

advocacy — Meaning: public support for a cause or policy. Pronunciation: /AD-vuh-kuh-see/ (/ˈædvəkəsi/). Part of speech: noun. Etymology: from Latin 'advocare' (to call to one's aid) via 'advocate'. — catalyst — Meaning: a person or thing that causes change or speeds up an event; in chemistry, a substance that speeds up a reaction without being used up. Pronunciation: /KAT-uh-list/ (/ˈkætəlɪst/). Part of speech: noun. Etymology: from Greek 'katalusis' (dissolution), from 'kata-' (down) + 'luein' (to loosen). — empowerment — Meaning: the process of giving someone authority, power or confidence to do something. Pronunciation: /em-POW-er-ment/ (/ɪmˈpaʊərmənt/). Part of speech: noun. Etymology: from 'empower' (en- + power) + '-ment'. — resilience — Meaning: the ability to recover quickly from difficulties; toughness. Pronunciation: /ri-ZIL-ee-ens/ (/rɪˈzɪliəns/). Part of speech: noun. Etymology: from Latin 'resilire' (to leap back, rebound). — substantial — Meaning: large in amount or size; solid and strong; important. Pronunciation: /sub-STAN-shul/ (/səbˈstænʃl/). Part of speech: adjective. Etymology: from Latin 'substantia' (substance, essence).

Vocabulary C

Vocabulary C. Use a dictionary to find and write the different word patterns (noun, adjective, adverb forms) for the following words: bounty, determine, infuriate, prepare, reward.

bounty — Noun: bounty (a reward for capture; also generosity); bountifulness. Adjective: bountiful (generous, plentiful). Adverb: bountifully. — determine — Noun: determination. Adjective: determined. Adverb: determinedly. — infuriate — Noun: infuriation; fury. Adjective: infuriated / infuriating. Adverb: infuriatingly. — prepare — Noun: preparation. Adjective: prepared / preparatory. Adverb: preparedly (rare); the usual adverbial use is 'in preparation'. — reward — Noun: reward. Adjective: rewarding (giving satisfaction). Adverb: rewardingly.

Vocabulary D

Vocabulary D. Write sentences using each form of the word 'determine'. [Model sentences]

MODEL SENTENCES: Noun (determination): Her determination helped her cross the rocky path every night. Adjective (determined): The determined chiefs searched everywhere for the travellers. Adverb (determinedly): Hazrat Asma (RA) worked determinedly to prepare the food for the journey. Base verb (determine): The chiefs could not determine where the travellers were hiding.

Grammar A

Grammar A. Read the following passage carefully. Underline the verbs and identify their tenses. Passage: 'Hazrat Asma (RA) courageously faced many challenges during the migration. She had prepared food and supplies for the Rasoolullah (SAW) and her father, Hazrat Abu Bakr Siddique (RA), before they began their journey. While they were travelling through the desert, Hazrat Asma (RA) was continuously checking their provisions and ensuring their safety. She had already secured their food by tying it with her belt, earning her the title of Zaat-un-Nitaqain. Her steadfastness and bravery were evident as she faced each obstacle with unwavering faith.'

faced — Simple Past. had prepared — Past Perfect (completed before they began). began — Simple Past. were travelling — Past Continuous (action in progress in the past). was checking — Past Continuous. ensuring — Present Participle (part of the continuous construction 'was checking and ensuring'). had secured — Past Perfect. tying — Gerund (after 'by': 'by tying'). earning — Present Participle (result clause). were — Simple Past (linking verb). faced — Simple Past.

Grammar B

Grammar B. Rewrite the passage in Grammar A in the simple present tense. [Model rewrite]

MODEL REWRITE (simple present): Hazrat Asma (RA) courageously faces many challenges during the migration. She prepares food and supplies for the Rasoolullah (SAW) and her father, Hazrat Abu Bakr Siddique (RA), before they begin their journey. While they travel through the desert, Hazrat Asma (RA) continuously checks their provisions and ensures their safety. She secures their food by tying it with her belt, earning her the title of Zaat-un-Nitaqain. Her steadfastness and bravery are evident as she faces each obstacle with unwavering faith.

Grammar C

Grammar C. Write a short paragraph (5-6 sentences) about a challenging situation you have faced. Use at least three different tenses (Simple Past, Past Perfect, Past Continuous) in your paragraph. [Model paragraph]

MODEL PARAGRAPH: Last year, I faced a difficult examination week (Simple Past). I had prepared (Past Perfect) all my lessons before the week began, but on the first morning I was feeling (Past Continuous) very nervous. While I was revising (Past Continuous) my notes, my friend encouraged me and helped me stay calm. I had finished (Past Perfect) two papers before I realized that my fear was fading. In the end, I completed (Simple Past) all my papers with confidence, and I learned that steady preparation and calm effort overcome fear. (Tenses used: Simple Past — faced, completed; Past Perfect — had prepared, had finished; Past Continuous — was feeling, was revising.)

Grammar D (Gerunds, Infinitives and Participles)

Grammar D. Read the following sentences carefully. Identify whether the verbs in bold are gerunds, infinitives, or participles: 1. Preparing food for the journey was Hazrat Asma's (RA) responsibility. 2. Hazrat Asma (RA) decided to support her family during the migration. 3. She received the title of 'Zaat-un-Nitaqain' for tying the food with her belt. 4. Honoured by her resourcefulness, the Rasoolullah (SAW) praised her actions. 5. Hazrat Asma (RA) continued to help the needy throughout her life.

1. Preparing — gerund (the -ing form used as the subject, a noun). 2. to support — infinitive (to + base verb, after 'decided'). 3. tying — gerund (the -ing form after the preposition 'for'). 4. Honoured — past participle (used in the opening participial phrase describing the Rasoolullah (SAW) as honoured). 5. to help — infinitive (to + base verb, after 'continued').

Grammar E (Gerunds, Infinitives and Participles)

Grammar E. Complete the sentences with the correct forms (gerund, infinitive, or participle) of the verbs in parentheses: 1. Hazrat Asma (RA) was known for _____ (show) great courage. 2. She helped her father by _____ (prepare) supplies for the journey. 3. The Rasoolullah (SAW) praised her for _____ (be) resourceful. 4. _____ (face) many challenges, Hazrat Asma (RA) remained steadfast in her faith. 5. She chose _____ (give) away her inherited garden to the poor.

1. showing (gerund after 'for'). 2. preparing (gerund after 'by'). 3. being (gerund after 'for'). 4. Facing (present participle in the opening participial phrase; 'Having faced' is also acceptable). 5. to give (infinitive after 'chose'). Completed sentences: 1. Hazrat Asma (RA) was known for showing great courage. 2. She helped her father by preparing supplies for the journey. 3. The Rasoolullah (SAW) praised her for being resourceful. 4. Facing many challenges, Hazrat Asma (RA) remained steadfast in her faith. 5. She chose to give away her inherited garden to the poor.

Oral Communication Skills A

Oral A. Role-play: Conduct an interview where one student acts as a journalist interviewing another student who is portraying an Islamic scholar. The 'Islamic scholar' should explain Hazrat Asma's (RA) contributions and significance, drawing parallels to modern-day values. [Model interview]

MODEL INTERVIEW: Journalist: Who was Hazrat Asma (RA), and why is she important in Islamic history? Scholar: She was the daughter of Hazrat Abu Bakr Siddique (RA) and one of the earliest Muslims. During the Hijrat of 622 A.D., she prepared food for the Rasoolullah (SAW) and her father, tied it with her own belt, and carried it nightly to the cave of Thawr — earning the title Zaat-un-Nitaqain. Journalist: What modern values do her actions teach us? Scholar: Trust, courage, integrity and generosity. She kept a dangerous secret under violence, comforted her blind grandfather with kindness, and later sold her inherited garden for the poor. Today, the same values mean keeping promises, protecting confidences, caring for elders and giving generously — the mark of a trustworthy citizen in any age.

Oral Communication Skills B

Oral B. Discussion on Handling of Trust: Participate in a discussion on 'Handling of Trust', using Hazrat Asma (RA) as an example. Discuss how her actions during the migration exemplify the importance of trustworthiness and responsibility. Listen to others' viewpoints and respond appropriately, using correct pronunciation and intonation. [Model points for discussion]

MODEL POINTS: Trust means being relied upon and not failing that reliance. Hazrat Asma (RA) was trusted with the travellers' food, their hiding place and their secret — and she never failed in any of them, even when Abu Jehl struck her. Her example shows that trustworthiness is proved under pressure, not in easy times. Responsibility follows trust: she prepared, carried and guarded with minute care, because other people's lives depended on her. In modern life, the same standard applies to students trusted with class duties, employees trusted with money or information, and friends trusted with confidences: keep the trust, even when it costs you something.

Writing Skills A

Writing A. Write a narrative about a pivotal moment when Hazrat Asma (RA) displayed her courage and resourcefulness during the migration. Describe the challenges she faced, her interactions with other characters, and the significance of her actions. Use dialogue, pacing, and detailed descriptions. Conclude by reflecting on the impact of her bravery and how it resonates with the values of trust and responsibility. [Model narrative]

MODEL NARRATIVE: The night was dark over the rugged mountains of Makkah. Hazrat Asma (RA) tied the food for the journey with her own belt, because nothing else could be found, and set out quietly towards the cave of Thawr, her heart beating with the constant fear of being detected. Every step on the rocky path mattered: the slightest mistake could endanger the life of the Rasoolullah (SAW). Later, on the night of the migration, a furious knocking shook her father's door. Abu Jehl demanded, 'Where is your father?' She answered politely and firmly, 'How would I know?' His hand struck her face so hard that her ear-ring fell off — but she did not speak the secret. In that moment, her courage and resourcefulness became one act of trust: the food she carried kept the travellers alive, and the silence she kept kept them safe. Her bravery still resonates today, because trust and responsibility are proved exactly when keeping them is hardest — and Hazrat Asma (RA) kept them to the end.

Unit 5: Women Empowerment through Entrepreneurship

Pre-reading

Pre-reading 1. What do you understand by the term 'entrepreneurship'? How do you think it is important in today's world? [Discussion — model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: Entrepreneurship is the process of starting, managing and growing a business venture: entrepreneurs identify opportunities, take calculated risks and bring innovative ideas to life, creating products or services to meet market demands. It is important today because it creates jobs, drives economic growth, solves problems and gives people — including women — financial independence and control over their own futures.

Pre-reading

Pre-reading 2. Can you think of any women entrepreneurs you have heard of in your country or globally? What challenges do you think they might face? [Discussion — model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: In our country, women run boutiques, bakeries, catering services, schools and online stores; globally, famous women entrepreneurs lead fashion, technology and food businesses. The unit's own example is Hazrat Khadija (RA), a prominent businesswoman of Makkah. Challenges they may face, as the unit lists, include cultural expectations that women prioritise household duties, limited access to finance, education and networks, mobility restrictions, legal and institutional barriers in registering businesses, and a lack of support networks and mentors.

Pre-reading

Pre-reading 3. What role do you think women entrepreneurs can play in improving their communities? [Discussion — model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: Women entrepreneurs improve communities by creating jobs (especially for other women and youth), providing useful goods and services, and starting businesses that address local needs such as education, healthcare and access to resources. They also serve as role models who inspire younger generations, challenge gender stereotypes, promote gender equality, and bring innovation and problem-solving into community life.

While-reading

While-reading. What role are women entrepreneurs playing in modern-day Pakistan?

In modern-day Pakistan, women entrepreneurs are playing an increasingly important role in various sectors of the economy. From bustling urban centres like Karachi and Lahore to smaller towns and rural areas, women are making strides in fields such as fashion, technology, food, education and crafts. Women-led businesses have become more visible, with many female entrepreneurs finding success through determination and innovation.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A1. What qualities made Hazrat Khadija (RA) a successful entrepreneur in a male-dominated society, and how can these qualities be applied by modern women entrepreneurs?

Hazrat Khadija (RA) was one of the wealthiest individuals of her time and was known for her wisdom, integrity and leadership in managing a thriving trading business. She carefully expanded her trading ventures, conducting business across various regions, and her influence extended beyond her wealth — she became a symbol of empowerment for other women. Modern women entrepreneurs can apply the same qualities: wisdom in decision-making, integrity in dealings, leadership in managing a business, hard work, intelligence and strategic thinking, and the courage to expand carefully even when society expects otherwise. Her example shows that gender should not be a barrier to success.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A2. How does the growth of women-led businesses in Pakistan contribute to economic development and job creation, especially in rural areas?

Women-led businesses contribute to economic development by creating jobs, generating income and boosting productivity, which results in a more dynamic economy that benefits everyone. They often employ people from their own communities, providing job opportunities and reducing unemployment, especially for other women and youth. In rural areas this matters even more: women in handicrafts and artisanship create handmade products like jewellery, carpets and decorative items which they sell in local markets or export, and women in education and training centres run schools, training institutes and daycare centres that serve community needs — so business growth directly becomes local employment and development.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A3. Why is mentorship and networking critical for the success of women entrepreneurs, and how do support systems like women's chambers of commerce enhance their growth?

Mentorship and networking are critical because, unlike male entrepreneurs who have access to established business networks, women often struggle to find mentors or role models, and the absence of such support networks makes it harder to succeed in competitive markets. Mentorship programmes guide aspiring businesswomen in developing essential skills; microfinance institutions offer loans to start small businesses; and women's chambers of commerce provide platforms for female entrepreneurs to network and showcase their products. Together these systems give women finance, skills, contacts and confidence — the very resources the unit lists as often limited for women, particularly in rural areas.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A4. What role does e-commerce play in overcoming mobility and societal barriers for women entrepreneurs in Pakistan?

E-commerce plays a liberating role: with the rise of digital platforms, many women use technology to launch online businesses, sell products via social media or run tech startups. The growth of e-commerce and online platforms has given women more flexibility, allowing them to run businesses from their homes and bypass some of the mobility issues they face — restrictions on movement that limit their ability to meet clients, travel for business or access markets. Online selling thus lets a woman reach customers without facing the cultural and mobility barriers of physical travel.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A5. How does the success of women entrepreneurs serve as a catalyst for future generations to pursue their ambitions?

The success of women entrepreneurs serves as a catalyst because women entrepreneurs serve as role models for other women: by witnessing women succeed in business, younger generations are inspired to pursue their ambitions. Hazrat Khadija (RA) herself is presented as an example that has inspired generations of women to pursue their entrepreneurial dreams regardless of societal expectations. Each successful woman entrepreneur proves that barriers can be overcome, and thereby encourages the next generation to try.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A6. What impact does women's entrepreneurship have on community development, and how can it be leveraged to address local issues such as education and healthcare?

Women's entrepreneurship benefits the wider community, not only the women themselves: it creates jobs, fosters innovation and promotes gender equality. Many women entrepreneurs start businesses that address local issues such as education, healthcare or access to resources, creating a positive social impact and improving the quality of life in their communities. It can be leveraged by supporting such ventures — for example, encouraging women to open training centres and daycare centres for education, or health-related services — and by the Government and NGOs providing financial resources, training and market access, so that business success and community welfare grow together.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A7. How do financial barriers, such as limited access to loans, affect women entrepreneurs, and what can be done to provide more equitable financial opportunities?

Limited access to loans directly blocks women from starting or expanding businesses: many women, particularly in rural areas, have limited access to financial resources, education and networks, and banks may be hesitant to offer loans to women, while business training programmes are not always readily available. This keeps ventures small, informal or impossible. More equitable opportunities can be provided through microfinance institutions offering small loans, mentorship and training programmes, women's chambers of commerce for networking, and Government and NGO support with financial resources, training and market access — creating a more inclusive and supportive environment for female entrepreneurs.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A8. In what ways does the participation of women in entrepreneurship challenge gender stereotypes and promote gender equality in society?

When women participate in the economy as entrepreneurs, they challenge gender stereotypes and promote equality: their success encourages society to view women as capable leaders and decision-makers rather than only as homemakers. By taking control of their futures, challenging societal norms and becoming leaders in their communities, women entrepreneurs break traditional gender roles. The unit's benefits list makes the point explicitly: promoting gender equality happens when women's economic participation challenges stereotypes, and the role-model effect then inspires younger generations, gradually changing what society expects of women.

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B1. How does entrepreneurship help women challenge societal norms in Pakistan?

(a) by encouraging women to follow traditional roles

(b) by providing them with financial independence and leadership roles in their communities

(c) by discouraging them from starting their own businesses

(d) by limiting their access to education and resources

Correct answer: by providing them with financial independence and leadership roles in their communities

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B2. How do societal norms influence the success of women entrepreneurs in Pakistan?

(a) They create a supportive environment for women to grow their businesses.

(b) They impose limitations that often restrict women's ability to balance household duties with business aspirations.

(c) They encourage women to enter male-dominated industries.

(d) They provide equal opportunities for men and women in business.

Correct answer: They impose limitations that often restrict women's ability to balance household duties with business aspirations.

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B3. What can be inferred about the impact of women entrepreneurs on job creation in Pakistan?

(a) Women entrepreneurs benefit themselves only financially.

(b) Women entrepreneurs contribute to job creation, especially for other women and youth in their communities.

(c) Women entrepreneurs discourage community development.

(d) Women entrepreneurs have minimal impact on employment.

Correct answer: Women entrepreneurs contribute to job creation, especially for other women and youth in their communities.

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B4. How might women's entrepreneurship contribute to gender equality in society?

(a) by reinforcing traditional gender roles

(b) by challenging stereotypes and promoting women as capable leaders and decision-makers

(c) by reducing the participation of women in economic activities

(d) by limiting their opportunities for business growth

Correct answer: by challenging stereotypes and promoting women as capable leaders and decision-makers

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B5. What is the long-term benefit of women entrepreneurs acting as role models for future generations?

(a) It restricts younger generations from breaking traditional roles.

(b) It discourages other women from entering business.

(c) It empowers women to pursue their ambitions.

(d) It has no significant impact on younger generations.

Correct answer: It empowers women to pursue their ambitions.

Vocabulary A

Vocabulary A. Distinguish between the connotative and denotative meanings of the following words using context clues from the text. Give the context clue, denotative meaning and connotative meaning for each: entrepreneur, empowerment, independence, barrier, success.

entrepreneur — Context clue: 'Entrepreneurs are the individuals who identify opportunities, take calculated risks, and bring their innovative ideas to life.' Denotative: a person who starts and runs a business, taking financial risks. Connotative: bold, creative, self-reliant, a leader and problem-solver. — empowerment — Context clue: 'She became a symbol of empowerment for other women.' Denotative: the process of giving someone power, authority or confidence. Connotative: liberation, dignity, breaking free from limits imposed by society. — independence — Context clue: 'entrepreneurship offers more than just financial independence.' Denotative: the state of not depending on others; self-support. Connotative: freedom, control over one's own future, pride. — barrier — Context clue: 'gender should not be a barrier to success' and 'societal barriers'. Denotative: an obstacle that blocks progress. Connotative: unfair restriction, especially social or cultural rules that hold women back. — success — Context clue: 'many female entrepreneurs finding success through determination and innovation.' Denotative: achieving a desired aim. Connotative: recognition, respect, proof that hard work overcomes odds.

Vocabulary B

Vocabulary B. Fill in the blanks with the help of suitable proverbs given below: a. Actions speak louder than words. b. A stitch in time saves nine. c. The early bird catches the worm. d. Don't put all your eggs in one basket. e. You can't judge a book by its cover. 1. If you want to succeed, remember that _____. 2. Let's start our work now because _____. 3. To be successful, start your day early because _____. 4. To minimize risks, _____ when making important decisions. 5. When meeting someone new, remember that _____.

1. Actions speak louder than words (a) — success comes from what you do, not what you say. 2. A stitch in time saves nine (b) — starting now and fixing a small problem early saves much bigger trouble later. 3. The early bird catches the worm (c) — starting the day early brings the best opportunities. 4. Don't put all your eggs in one basket (d) — spread your risks instead of depending on a single venture or decision. 5. You can't judge a book by its cover (e) — do not judge a new person by appearance alone.

Vocabulary C

Vocabulary C. Match the idioms in column A with the correct meanings in column B. Column A: i. Break the ice; ii. Once in a blue moon; iii. A piece of cake; iv. Hit the nail on the head; v. Cost an arm and a leg. Column B: a. very rare; b. to do something exactly right; c. to be very expensive; d. something that is very easy; e. to make people feel more comfortable.

i. Break the ice — e. to make people feel more comfortable. ii. Once in a blue moon — a. very rare. iii. A piece of cake — d. something that is very easy. iv. Hit the nail on the head — b. to do something exactly right. v. Cost an arm and a leg — c. to be very expensive.

Vocabulary D

Vocabulary D. Identify the idioms and proverbs in the following sentences from the provided text and explain their literal and figurative meanings: 1. Women entrepreneurs in Pakistan are making strides in various fields, despite having the odds stacked against them. 2. She carefully expanded her trading ventures, proving that slow and steady wins the race. 3. By becoming entrepreneurs, women are breaking new ground and paving the way for future generations. 4. Women, who face criticism from society, often rise above it and prove that actions speak louder than words. 5. Despite limited access to resources, women are showing that where there's a will, there's a way.

1. 'the odds stacked against them' — Idiom. Literal: the chances in a game are piled up against someone. Figurative: facing strong disadvantages and unfair difficulties (here, societal and financial barriers) yet still progressing ('making strides'). 2. 'slow and steady wins the race' — Proverb (from the tortoise and hare story). Literal: a slow, steady runner wins a race. Figurative: careful, patient, persistent effort succeeds better than hasty action — as Hazrat Khadija (RA) carefully expanded her ventures. 3. 'breaking new ground' and 'paving the way' — Idioms. Literal: breaking untouched soil; laying a road surface. Figurative: doing something never done before (women entering business), and making future progress easier for others (future generations). 4. 'rise above it' and 'actions speak louder than words' — Idiom and proverb. Literal: to rise physically above something; spoken words making a louder sound than actions. Figurative: to overcome criticism without being dragged down by it; what a person does matters more than what they claim. 5. 'where there's a will, there's a way' — Proverb. Literal: wherever determination exists, a road exists. Figurative: strong determination finds a solution despite limited resources.

Grammar A

Grammar A. Read the passage carefully and insert the appropriate punctuation marks (full stop, comma, capitalisation, question mark, apostrophe and exclamation mark) where needed. Passage: 'fatima jinnah was a remarkable woman she was the younger sister of quaid-e-azam muhammad ali jinnah although she initially studied dentistry she later became a prominent figure in the struggle for independence fatima jinnah was not only known for her contributions to the cause but also for her efforts in advocating for womens rights what an inspiring legacy she left behind despite her achievements, she faced many challenges and opposition how did she manage to remain so dedicated and firm her influence on pakistans history is undeniable and continues to be remembered today'

PUNCTUATED PASSAGE: Fatima Jinnah was a remarkable woman. She was the younger sister of Quaid-e-Azam Muhammad Ali Jinnah. Although she initially studied dentistry, she later became a prominent figure in the struggle for independence. Fatima Jinnah was not only known for her contributions to the cause but also for her efforts in advocating for women's rights. What an inspiring legacy she left behind! Despite her achievements, she faced many challenges and opposition. How did she manage to remain so dedicated and firm? Her influence on Pakistan's history is undeniable and continues to be remembered today. (Marks used: full stops at sentence ends; capitals for Fatima Jinnah, Quaid-e-Azam, Muhammad Ali Jinnah, Pakistan and sentence beginnings; commas after 'Although... dentistry' and 'Despite her achievements'; apostrophes in 'women's' and 'Pakistan's'; exclamation mark after the exclamatory sentence; question mark after the direct question.)

Grammar B

Grammar B. Write a paragraph on 'The Role of Women Empowerment in the Society'. Ensure your paragraph includes: correct capitalisation (e.g., beginning of sentences, proper nouns); proper punctuation (e.g., periods, commas, question marks); accurate spelling; appropriate use of hyphenation where necessary. [Model paragraph]

MODEL PARAGRAPH: The role of women empowerment in society is vital for progress and justice. When women gain education, skills and financial independence, they contribute to the economy, create jobs and raise healthier, better-educated families. An empowered woman is not only a successful entrepreneur or professional; she is also a role model who inspires younger generations to break free from outdated stereotypes. Moreover, women-led initiatives in health-care, education and small-scale business address local needs directly and strengthen the whole community. In short, a society that empowers its women unlocks the potential of half its population and paves the way for a brighter, fairer future for everyone.

Oral Communication Skills A

Oral A. Respond to the text through oral discussion. In your small groups, choose a specific section of the text on women entrepreneurs and their role in society.

Discuss: What is the main idea? What supporting details have been provided? Present your group's findings and join a whole-class discussion on the challenges and successes of women entrepreneurs. [Model summary for discussion]

MODEL ANSWER (for a group discussing paragraphs 5-6 and 10): Main idea — Women entrepreneurs in Pakistan are increasingly important in the economy, and their work benefits the whole community. Supporting details — they are active from Karachi and Lahore to small towns and rural areas in fashion, technology, food, education and crafts; microfinance loans, mentorship programmes and women's chambers of commerce support them; their businesses create jobs, generate income, boost productivity, empower future generations as role models, develop communities and promote gender equality. Whole-class discussion point — the successes are real, but the challenges of paragraph 8 (cultural expectations, limited resources, mobility issues, legal barriers, lack of support networks) remain, and overcoming them needs the support systems of paragraphs 6 and 12 (Government and NGOs).

Oral Communication Skills B

Oral B. Respond to the text by telling short stories and role-play. Research successful women entrepreneurs such as Hazrat Khadija (RA) or modern-day examples of Pakistani women entrepreneurs in sectors like trade, food, and education, etc. Narrate key moments from their entrepreneurial journeys, such as overcoming challenges, achieving success, and their contributions to society. Reflect on how their stories serve as inspiration for future generations. [Model story]

MODEL STORY: Hazrat Khadija (RA) was a prominent businesswoman of Makkah who managed a thriving trading business with wisdom, integrity and leadership. In a male-dominated society, she carefully expanded her trading ventures across various regions, proving that hard work, intelligence and strategic thinking could overcome the barriers of her time. Her wealth never defined her alone: her influence extended beyond it, and she became a symbol of empowerment for other women. Her story inspires future generations because it shows that gender should not be a barrier to success, and that a woman's business can uplift her whole community — the same lesson modern Pakistani women repeat when they turn a home-based bakery, a boutique or an online store into jobs for others.

Oral Communication Skills C

Oral C. Role-play a Community Meeting. Characters: a prominent woman entrepreneur, community members, a local government official, an aspiring entrepreneur. Script outline: the entrepreneur explains how her work has empowered women and contributed to economic development; a community member shares how the entrepreneur's business has benefited the local economy by creating jobs and providing opportunities for women; the official discusses how the government can support women's entrepreneurship through initiatives like microfinance or skill development programs; the aspiring entrepreneur asks for advice on how to start a similar venture. [Model role-play dialogue]

MODEL DIALOGUE: Entrepreneur: 'Thank you for coming. My business has focused on creating opportunities for women and challenging societal norms.' Community Member 1: 'Your business has provided so many women with jobs, allowing them to support their families.' Local Government Official: 'We recognise the importance of women's entrepreneurship in economic growth. We are considering offering more resources to support ventures like yours.' Aspiring Entrepreneur: 'I admire your work. What advice would you give to someone like me who wants to start a business in a similar field?' Entrepreneur: 'Start small, learn your market, use microfinance and mentorship if you can, and never let cultural expectations decide your future — determination and innovation carry a business further than a large starting capital.'

Oral Communication Skills D

Oral D. Discussion on Handling the Challenges. Participate in a discussion on 'Handling the Challenges', focusing on real-life examples of women entrepreneurs. Explore how their actions demonstrate resilience, leadership, and responsibility in the face of adversity. Actively listen to peers' viewpoints and respond thoughtfully, using correct pronunciation and intonation. Discussion points: Resilience of Modern Women Entrepreneurs; Impact of Community-focused Entrepreneurship. [Model points for discussion]

MODEL POINTS: Resilience — Modern women entrepreneurs in Pakistan have faced and overcome cultural, financial and mobility barriers by building support networks, connecting with other female entrepreneurs to share advice, encouragement and opportunities, and by using e-commerce to run businesses from home and bypass mobility issues. Leadership and responsibility — They employ people from their communities, address local needs in education and healthcare, and act as role models, showing responsibility not only for their own success but for the community's welfare. Handling challenges therefore means combining personal resilience (determination, innovation) with collective support (networks, mentorship, microfinance, Government and NGO programmes).

Oral Communication Skills E

Oral E. Watch the video (on the given link) and fill in the missing information. Table: Name | Achievement. Rows given: Hazrat Khadija (RA) — The first Muslim female entrepreneur; (blank) — Founded world's first university; Maryam Al-Astrulabi — (blank); Sutayta Al-Mahamali — (blank); (blank) — Founded two Islamic schools; (blank) — The first female nurse and trainer. [Model completion — see note]

MODEL COMPLETION: Hazrat Khadija (RA) — the first Muslim female entrepreneur (given in the book). Fatima al-Fihri — founded the world's first university (the University of al-Qarawiyyin in Fez). Maryam al-Astrulabi — a famous astronomer and maker of astrolabes. Sutayta al-Mahamali — a noted mathematician and scholar of Baghdad. The first female nurse and trainer — Rufayda al-Aslamia, the first nurse in Islamic history. NOTE (honest flag): the row 'Founded two Islamic schools' cannot be identified from the book itself and must be completed from the linked video; it is left blank here rather than guessed. The other completions are standard historical identifications offered as a model answer, since the book's own source for this table is the video, not the printed text.

Oral Communication Skills F

Oral F. Discuss who is your favourite female entrepreneur and why? [Discussion — model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: My favourite female entrepreneur is Hazrat Khadija (RA), because she combined business success with character: she was among the wealthiest people of her time, yet she was known above all for wisdom, integrity and leadership, and she became a symbol of empowerment for other women. I admire her because she proved, in a male-dominated society, that hard work, intelligence and strategic thinking matter more than gender, and her example still inspires women entrepreneurs in Pakistan today to pursue their dreams regardless of societal expectations.

Writing Skills A

Writing A. Part 1: Writing the First Draft. Write a paragraph on the topic 'Impact of a woman entrepreneur on her community', ensuring you include specific details from the text. Be sure to include specific examples about her life, the challenges she faced, and her achievements. You can choose to write this as: a biography (third-person perspective) or an autobiography (first-person perspective). [Model paragraph — biography form]

MODEL PARAGRAPH (biography, third person): Hazrat Khadija (RA) was a prominent businesswoman of Makkah Mukarramah who managed a thriving trading business with wisdom, integrity and leadership. In a male-dominated society, she faced the challenge of proving that a woman could succeed in trade; she overcame it through hard work, intelligence and strategic thinking, carefully expanding her ventures across various regions. Her influence extended beyond her wealth: she became a symbol of empowerment for other women, showing that gender should not be a barrier to success. Her impact on her community was therefore twofold — economic, through trade and employment, and social, through the inspiration she gave to generations of women to pursue their entrepreneurial dreams regardless of societal expectations.

Writing Skills B

Writing B. Part 2: Editing the Draft. Edit your draft and focus on editing the content for clarity, coherence, and structure. Use the following questions to guide the editing process: Is the main idea about the entrepreneur's impact clear and supported with examples? Does the paragraph explain how women overcame challenges and contributed to their community? Is there a logical flow from one idea to the next? [Model edited paragraph]

MODEL EDITED PARAGRAPH: Hazrat Khadija (RA), a prominent businesswoman of Makkah Mukarramah, shows how one woman entrepreneur can transform her community. First, her business itself created economic activity: she managed a thriving trading business and carefully expanded it across regions. Second, she overcame the challenge of a male-dominated society through wisdom, integrity and strategic thinking — proof that gender need not limit success. Finally, her impact went beyond wealth: she became a symbol of empowerment, inspiring generations of women. The paragraph now flows logically from business, to challenge, to community impact, with each claim supported by a detail from the text.

Writing Skills C

Writing C. Part 3: Proofreading the Draft. Proofread the edited draft for grammar, spelling, punctuation, and formatting errors. Use the following checklist: Are all sentences complete and correctly structured? Is punctuation (e.g., commas, periods, quotation marks) used correctly? Are all words spelled correctly? Is capitalization used correctly (e.g., proper nouns, beginning of sentences)? [Model proofread version]

MODEL PROOFREAD VERSION: 'Hazrat Khadija (RA), a prominent businesswoman of Makkah Mukarramah, shows how one woman entrepreneur can transform her community. First, her business itself created economic activity: she managed a thriving trading business and carefully expanded it across regions. Second, she overcame the challenge of a male-dominated society through wisdom, integrity, and strategic thinking — proof that gender need not limit success. Finally, her impact went beyond wealth: she became a symbol of empowerment, inspiring generations of women.' Checklist check: all sentences are complete; commas, the colon and the final full stop are correctly placed; 'Makkah Mukarramah' and 'Hazrat Khadija (RA)' carry correct capitals; no spelling errors remain.

Writing Skills D

Writing D. Write an application to the head of a business organisation, requesting sponsorship or support for a women entrepreneurs' workshop you are organising. Include the purpose of the workshop and how it will benefit aspiring female entrepreneurs. [Model application]

MODEL APPLICATION: The Head, [Name of Business Organisation], [City]. Subject: Request for Sponsorship for a Women Entrepreneurs' Workshop. Respected Sir/Madam, I am writing to request sponsorship and support for a women entrepreneurs' workshop that our school is organising. The purpose of the workshop is to train aspiring female entrepreneurs in starting and managing small businesses — covering business planning, microfinance, marketing through e-commerce, and mentorship from successful businesswomen. It will benefit aspiring female entrepreneurs by giving them practical skills, access to finance and markets, and a support network of mentors and fellow entrepreneurs, helping them overcome the cultural, financial and mobility barriers described in our textbook. We would be grateful for financial support, resource persons, or venue assistance. Thanking you in anticipation. Yours faithfully, [Your Name], Class 9, [School Name]. Date: [date].

Unit 6: The Value of Time

Pre-reading

Pre-reading. Brainstorm and list your daily activities and estimate the time spent on each (morning routine, school, after school, evening routine). Then answer: Do you think you spend too much or too little time on any activities? Are there any activities you would like to spend more time on? What can you change in your daily routine to manage your time better? [Model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: Morning routine — waking up and getting ready: 30 minutes; eating breakfast: 20 minutes. School — attending classes, lunch break. After school — lunch, homework, extracurricular activities (e.g., sports practice), free time (e.g., watching TV, playing video games), dinner. Evening routine — family time, reading or activities before sleeping, getting ready for bed, sleeping time. Reflection: I spend too much time on video games and too little time on homework and reading. I would like to spend more time on sports and reading. To manage my time better, I will follow Taseer's lesson: put the 'big rocks' first — schoolwork, chores and family — and keep games and free time for afterwards, using a daily schedule.

While-reading

While-reading 1. What are Taseer's positive qualities?

Taseer was well known for his cheerful nature and kind-heartedness, and he was adored by all. These are his positive qualities — but despite them, he had one flaw: his time management. He was terribly weak in managing his time.

While-reading

While-reading 2. How did Taseer's teachers and parents feel about his time management issues?

His teachers were greatly concerned about him, and his parents were also perpetually worried — because he procrastinated, spent hours on video games, chatting and daydreaming while schoolwork and chores piled up, and always seemed to run out of time, leading to rushed assignments and incomplete tasks. Yet Taseer was not ready to change his ways at all.

While-reading

While-reading 3. What was the lesson that Taseer's grandfather taught him using the jar, rocks, pebbles, and sand?

The jar represents Taseer and his time. The big rocks are the significant things in life — schoolwork, family and health. The pebbles are other priorities, like hobbies and friendships. The sand represents the small, trivial things. If you fill your time with the small stuff first, you will never have room for the important things; but if you prioritise the big rocks first, everything else will find its proper place. The grandfather also helped Taseer make a schedule, setting aside time for schoolwork, chores and family activities, with hobbies and relaxation only after the big tasks were completed.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A1. How had Taseer wasted his time before he visited his grandfather?

Taseer wasted his time by procrastinating: he spent hours together engrossed in video games, chatting with friends and daydreaming, while his schoolwork and chores piled up. Despite his good intentions, he always seemed to run out of time, which led to rushed assignments and incomplete tasks.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A2. In what way did the poor time management affect Taseer's performance?

Poor time management made Taseer rush his assignments and leave tasks incomplete, so his schoolwork suffered. It also worried his teachers greatly and his parents perpetually, and it cost him control: he felt stressed about deadlines and had less time for family and friends. After he learned to manage time, the reverse happened — his grades improved and he felt more in control and less stressed.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A3. How did Taseer fill the jar?

Taseer eagerly began by pouring the sand into the jar first, followed by the pebbles. When he tried to fit the big rocks in, they did not fit, and he frowned, puzzled. His grandfather then emptied the jar and methodically placed the large rocks inside first, added the pebbles (which fit in the spaces between the rocks), and finally poured the sand, which filled the gaps left by the pebbles — and everything fitted perfectly.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A4. Why did his grandfather decide to help Taseer?

His grandfather, a wise old man, noticed Taseer's struggle: his teachers were greatly concerned and his parents perpetually worried, yet Taseer was not ready to change his ways. The grandfather decided to impart a valuable lesson, specially invited Taseer to his house, and taught him through the jar experiment rather than a lecture — so that Taseer could see for himself why prioritising matters.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A5. What is the impact of accurate time management on Taseer's performance?

Accurate time management transformed Taseer's performance: with practice and determination, he felt more in control of his time and less stressed about deadlines, his grades improved, and he had more time to spend with family and friends. His parents were proud of his progress, his friends appreciated that he was more reliable, and his teacher asked him to share his secret — which he did by telling the story of the jar, rocks, pebbles and sand, inspiring his classmates to try the same approach. He became a master of time management and grew up successful and happy, always making time for what truly mattered.

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B. Plot Development Review. Discuss how the plot elements contribute to the overall theme and message of the story. Exposition: What do we learn about Taseer's character and his struggle with time management at the beginning? Why is this important? Rising Action: How does the grandfather's jar lesson build tension and lead to a turning point? Climax: What is the most exciting or crucial moment in Taseer's journey? How does it change his perspective? Falling Action: What steps does Taseer take after learning from his grandfather? How does this affect his daily life? Resolution: How does the story conclude? What does Taseer learn, and how does it impact his relationships and responsibilities?

Exposition: We learn that Taseer is cheerful and kind-hearted and adored by all, but terribly weak at managing time — he procrastinates over games, chatting and daydreaming while work piles up. This matters because the whole plot is the curing of this one flaw; without it there would be no lesson and no growth. Rising Action: The grandfather's invitation, the jar, and Taseer's failed attempt (sand first, rocks do not fit) build tension — the reader shares Taseer's puzzlement — and the grandfather's methodical refilling (rocks, then pebbles, then sand) is the turning point, because the visual proof makes the abstract lesson unforgettable. Climax: The crucial moment is the grandfather's explanation — 'this jar represents you and your time' — when Taseer understands that big rocks must come first; his perspective changes from 'I never have time' to 'I must choose what fills my time first'. Falling Action: Taseer follows a schedule (schoolwork, chores, family first; hobbies and relaxation afterwards), practises with determination, feels more in control, less stressed, and improves his grades. Resolution: Taseer shares the jar story with his class, inspires classmates, wins his parents' pride and friends' trust, and becomes a master of time management for life. He learns that prioritising important things brings a balanced, fulfilling life — the story's theme of responsibility, growth and the value of time.

Reading and Critical Thinking C

C. Fill in the plot development diagram, based on the questions in B. Exposition — Beginning: Taseer, cheerful and kind-hearted, is introduced, along with his setting (home, school) and his problem: terrible time management (procrastination, rushed and incomplete work). Rising Action — The grandfather notices his struggle, invites him, and shows the jar experiment; Taseer's failed filling builds tension towards the lesson. Climax — The point of highest dramatic tension and the major turning point: the grandfather explains that the jar is Taseer's time and the big rocks must go in first; Taseer's perspective changes. Falling Action — The point at which the climax leads to resolution: Taseer practises the schedule, improves his grades, feels in control, and shares the story with his class. Resolution — The end of the story: Taseer becomes a master of time management, enjoys better relationships and a balanced, fulfilling life, and his story becomes a cherished reminder of managing time wisely.

Vocabulary A

Vocabulary A. Explain the meanings of the highlighted words given below: 1. Taseer often found himself procrastinating. 2. He decided to impart a valuable lesson. 3. Taseer eagerly began by pouring the sand into the jar, followed by the pebbles. 4. His classmates listened intently, and many of them decided to try the same approach themselves. 5. With practice and determination, he started to see improvements. 6. Taseer's newfound time management skills had a positive impact on his relationships also.

1. procrastinating — delaying or putting off work that should be done (Taseer put off schoolwork for games and daydreaming). 2. impart — to give or communicate something, especially knowledge or a lesson (the grandfather gave Taseer the jar lesson). 3. eagerly — with keen interest and enthusiasm (Taseer began the jar task keenly). 4. intently — with close, fixed attention (his classmates listened with full concentration); approach — a way or method of doing something (the jar method of prioritising). 5. determination — firmness of purpose, not giving up (Taseer kept practising the schedule). 6. impact — a strong effect or influence (better time management improved his relationships).

Vocabulary B

Vocabulary B. Consult a thesaurus and find the synonyms of these words. Use them in your own sentences. Words: engrossed, admirable, frowned, amazement, allocated, impact, cherished. [Model sentences]

MODEL SENTENCES: engrossed — synonym: absorbed. Sentence: He was so absorbed in his book that he did not hear the bell. admirable — synonym: commendable. Sentence: Her commendable honesty won everyone's respect. frowned — synonym: scowled. Sentence: The teacher scowled at the noise in the classroom. amazement — synonym: astonishment. Sentence: To everyone's astonishment, everything fitted perfectly in the jar. allocated — synonym: assigned. Sentence: The teacher assigned time for each activity in the schedule. impact — synonym: effect. Sentence: Good time management had a positive effect on his grades. cherished — synonym: treasured. Sentence: Taseer's story became a treasured tale in the school.

Vocabulary C

Vocabulary C. Use a dictionary to change the following nouns to adjectives. The first one has been done for you: nature — natural. Words: management, presence, gratification, expression, lesson, progress, reaction, struggle.

management — managerial (relating to management). presence — present (being in a place; also 'present' as an adjective of attendance). gratification — gratifying (giving pleasure or satisfaction). expression — expressive (showing feelings clearly). lesson — NOTE: 'lesson' has no standard adjective form of its own in English; it is used attributively instead, as in 'a lesson plan' or 'lesson time'. progress — progressive (moving forward, improving). reaction — reactive (responding to something; in chemistry, readily taking part in reactions). struggle — struggling (present-participle adjective, e.g. 'a struggling student'); the related adjective of effort is 'strenuous' (requiring great effort).

Grammar A

Grammar A. Fill in the blanks with appropriate co-ordinating conjunctions: 1. I wanted to go for a walk, _____ it started raining. 2. She likes both, burger _____ pizza. 3. You can have nihari _____ pasta, but not both. 4. He studied hard _____ he could pass the exam. 5. They were tired _____ kept working.

1. but (contrast: I wanted to go for a walk, but it started raining). 2. and (both burger and pizza). 3. or (a choice: nihari or pasta, but not both). 4. so (result: he studied hard so he could pass the exam). 5. yet (contrast: they were tired yet kept working). All five are co-ordinating conjunctions (FANBOYS: for, and, nor, but, or, yet, so).

Grammar B

Grammar B. Fill in the blanks with appropriate subordinating and correlative conjunctions: 1. He didn't submit the homework _____ he wasted time in playing games. 2. She likes _____ tea _____ juices in the morning. 3. Kiran didn't pass the exam _____ she had not studied well. 4. _____ he was tired, he stayed up late to finish his work. 5. _____ you work hard, you won't pass the test. 6. He is _____ intelligent _____ hardworking.

1. because (subordinating: reason). 2. both...and (correlative: She likes both tea and juices in the morning). 3. because (subordinating: reason). 4. Although (subordinating: contrast — Although he was tired, he stayed up late). 5. Unless (subordinating: condition — Unless you work hard, you won't pass). 6. both...and (correlative: He is both intelligent and hardworking).

Grammar C

Grammar C. Fill in the blanks with appropriate conjunctions 'and', 'but', 'or', 'so' to complete each sentence correctly: 1. She likes tea _____ coffee. 2. He went to the store _____ bought some milk. 3. They played outside _____ it started raining. 4. It was late, _____ they decided to leave early. 5. She enjoys reading novels _____ watching video lectures. 6. He is not tall _____ short. 7. They will visit the museum _____ the zoo.

1. and (She likes tea and coffee). 2. and (He went to the store and bought some milk). 3. but (They played outside but it started raining — contrast). 4. so (It was late, so they decided to leave early — result). 5. and (She enjoys reading novels and watching video lectures). 6. or (He is not tall or short — within this exercise's word bank; the more formal form is 'nor': 'He is neither tall nor short'). 7. and (They will visit the museum and the zoo; 'or' would mean a choice between the two).

Grammar D

Grammar D. Use these transition words in your own sentences: moreover, meanwhile, therefore, in addition, furthermore. [Model sentences]

MODEL SENTENCES: moreover — Taseer made a schedule; moreover, he followed it every day. meanwhile — While Taseer filled the jar with sand, his grandfather watched meanwhile with a smile. (Better: Meanwhile, his grandfather prepared to show him the correct method.) therefore — Taseer prioritised his big rocks; therefore, he finished his work on time. in addition — In addition to his schoolwork, Taseer set aside time for his family. furthermore — Time management reduced his stress; furthermore, it improved his grades and relationships.

Grammar E

Grammar E. Rewrite each sentence using a different conjunction to convey a similar meaning. Example given: He will go to the beach if the weather is nice. Rewrite: He will go to the beach provided that the weather is nice. Sentences: 1. She likes coffee, but she doesn't like tea. 2. They went for a walk because the weather was nice. 3. He, not only studies, but also, plays. 4. They went skiing since there was fresh snow on the slopes. 5. He is both a talented musician and skilled painter.

1. She likes coffee, whereas she doesn't like tea. (Or: She likes coffee; however, she doesn't like tea.) 2. They went for a walk as the weather was nice. (Or: They went for a walk since the weather was nice.) 3. He studies as well as plays. (Or: He plays in addition to studying.) 4. They went skiing because there was fresh snow on the slopes. (Or: They went skiing as there was fresh snow on the slopes.) 5. He is a talented musician as well as a skilled painter. (Or: He is not only a talented musician but also a skilled painter.)

Oral Communication Skills A

Oral A. Divide the students into groups and assign them questions from the ones given below. Prepare responses and share with the class: 1. How would Taseer's story have changed if his grandfather had not intervened with the lesson on time management? 2. In what ways does the analogy of the jar, rocks, pebbles, and sand reflect the broader concept of setting life priorities beyond time management? 3. Can the concept of prioritising 'big rocks' over 'pebbles' and 'sand' be limited or problematic in certain situations? If so, how? [Model answers]

MODEL ANSWERS: 1. Without his grandfather's intervention, Taseer would likely have continued procrastinating — rushed assignments, incomplete tasks, worried teachers and parents, and growing stress — and might never have discovered a practical method for change, since he 'wasn't ready to change his ways at all' on his own. 2. The jar analogy reflects life priorities generally: the 'big rocks' are not only schoolwork but health, family, faith and character; pebbles are hobbies and friendships; sand is trivial distraction. A life filled with sand first — endless scrolling, gossip, small pleasures — leaves no room for what gives life meaning, while a life ordered around big rocks stays balanced. 3. Yes, it can be limited: in an emergency, a 'pebble' (helping an injured friend) must come before a 'big rock' (homework); and what counts as a big rock changes with age and circumstance — rest and play are also genuine needs, not mere sand. The lesson is a guide to ordering, not a rule to ignore urgent human needs.

Writing Skills A

Writing A. Read and recall the elements of a story (setting, characters, plot — beginning, middle, end — conflict, resolution, theme). Then write your own story about an unexpected friendship between two characters from different backgrounds. Use vocabulary words such as 'diverse', 'bond', 'cohesion' and 'harmony' to illustrate how they overcome initial differences and form a meaningful connection. [Model story]

MODEL STORY: Setting — A small town school, during the spring term. Characters — Ahmed, a quiet boy from a farming family, and David, a lively newcomer from the city whose family spoke a different language at home. Beginning — At first the two boys misunderstood each other: Ahmed thought David was proud, and David thought Ahmed was unfriendly. Middle (conflict) — When the class was asked to build a model bridge together, their different ideas clashed and the project stalled; each blamed the other. End (resolution) — Forced to listen, they discovered that Ahmed's patience and David's bold ideas fitted together like Taseer's rocks and pebbles: the bridge they built won the class prize. Theme — Their diverse backgrounds, which had seemed a barrier, became the strength of their bond; true cohesion grows when different people respect each other, and harmony follows understanding. Review check: setting described clearly; characters introduced; conflict clear; resolution explained; theme stated.

Units Review 1 (Units 1-6)

Review 1 — Reading and Critical Thinking A

A1. How does the author view the pre-Islamic Arabs? Write down the examples and the evidence supporting your inferences.

The author views the pre-Islamic Arabs with admiration for their gifts, alongside sorrow for their age's decline. Evidence: the Arabs had wonderful memories and eloquence — at the yearly poetical fair at Ukaz, poets competed, and Hammad recited to Caliph Walid bin Yazid a hundred long poems for every letter of the alphabet; their poetry was so valued that the fair was a national event. At the same time, the author shows their age (the 5th-6th centuries) as one in which civilization was crumbling and society stood on the verge of chaos — which is why the coming of the Rasoolullah (SAW) and the revelation are presented as the end of that waiting and darkness.

Review 1 — Reading and Critical Thinking A

A2. How can patriotism help people work together during tough times, like during a natural disaster or a pandemic?

Patriotism helps people work together in tough times because it gives them a shared love for the motherland and a willingness to sacrifice for it. In a flood or a pandemic, patriotic citizens volunteer, donate, follow safety rules, help neighbours, and support health workers and soldiers — just as the soldiers of 1965, 1971 and Kargil sacrificed for the country, ordinary citizens sacrifice comfort and time for the nation. The spirit of patriotism, which the unit calls a living spirit that inspires and guides a nation, turns individual effort into united national action, and Quaid-e-Azam's call — to be galvanized into a united and strong nation — applies exactly to such crises.

A3. How does the sight of the daffodils affect the poet's mood initially and later when he recalls the scene?

Initially, the poet is wandering lonely as a cloud when he suddenly sees the golden daffodils; he gazes and gazes in wonder, and the dancing flowers fill him with joy he does not yet fully understand ('I gazed — and gazed — but little thought / What wealth the show to me had brought'). Later, when he lies on his couch in a vacant or in pensive mood, the daffodils flash upon his inward eye — the bliss of solitude — and his heart fills with pleasure and dances with the daffodils. So the sight first lifts him from loneliness to joyful wonder, and later, in memory, it turns solitude itself into bliss.

A4. Assess the impact of Hazrat Asma's (RA) contributions on the successful migration. What might have happened if she had not provided the support?

Her contributions were essential to the migration's success: she prepared the food at her father's house, tied it with her own belt (earning the title Zaat-un-Nitaqain), and carried it nightly to the cave of Thawr with minute care, while guarding the secret of the travellers' whereabouts absolutely — even under Abu Jehl's violence. Without her support, the travellers could have starved in hiding or been discovered: without food they could not remain in the cave, and without her silence the searchers, tempted by huge bounties, could have found them. The migration might then have failed, with the gravest consequences for the Rasoolullah (SAW) and Hazrat Abu Bakr (RA). Her courage, resourcefulness and trustworthiness therefore directly protected the Hijrat.

A5. How do you think entrepreneurship influences the society beyond economic growth?

Beyond economic growth, entrepreneurship influences society by creating jobs (especially for other women and youth), empowering women with financial independence and leadership roles, challenging gender stereotypes and promoting gender equality, fostering innovation and problem-solving, developing communities (businesses addressing education, healthcare and access to resources), and inspiring future generations as role models. As the unit concludes, by supporting women's entrepreneurship and addressing the barriers they face, society can unlock the potential of half its population, paving the way for a brighter future — an influence far wider than income alone.

Review 1 — Vocabulary A

solitude — Pronunciation: /SOL-i-tood/ (/ˈsɒlɪtjuːd/). Meaning: the state of being alone, especially when this is peaceful and pleasant. Part of speech: noun. — devotion — Pronunciation: /di-VOH-shun/ (/dɪˈvəʊʃn/). Meaning: strong love, loyalty or enthusiasm for someone or something. Part of speech: noun. — jocund — Pronunciation: /JOK-und/ (/ˈdʒɒkənd/). Meaning: cheerful and light-hearted. Part of speech: adjective. — capture — Pronunciation: /KAP-cher/ (/ˈkæptʃər/). Meaning: to take someone prisoner or to seize something. Part of speech: verb (also noun). — innovative — Pronunciation: /IN-uh-vay-tiv/ (/ˈɪnəveɪtɪv/). Meaning: introducing or using new ideas, ways of doing something, etc. Part of speech: adjective.

Review 1 — Vocabulary B

Vocabulary B. Explain the meanings of the highlighted words given below: a. Taseer often found himself procrastinating. b. He decided to impart a valuable lesson. c. He eagerly began by pouring the sand into the jar, followed by the pebbles. d. His classmates listened intently, and many of them decided to try the same approach themselves.

a. procrastinating — delaying work that should be done; putting off schoolwork for games and daydreaming. b. impart — to give or pass on knowledge or a lesson (the grandfather gave Taseer the jar lesson). c. eagerly — with keen enthusiasm and interest (Taseer began the jar task keenly). d. intently — with close, concentrated attention; approach — a method or way of doing something (here, the jar method of prioritising big rocks first).

Review 1 — Grammar A

Grammar A. Fill in the blanks with the correct parts of speech indicated in the parentheses: 1. Zeeshaan was feeling very _____ (adj.) about the upcoming test. 2. She _____ (v.) the ball and it flew across the field. 3. They went _____ (adv.) to find their missing cat. 4. _____ (int.)! That's a huge fish! 5. The _____ (n.) was filled with books and magazines.

1. anxious (adjective: Zeeshaan was feeling very anxious about the upcoming test). 2. kicked (verb: She kicked the ball and it flew across the field; 'threw' also fits). 3. everywhere (adverb: They went everywhere to find their missing cat; 'outside' also fits). 4. Wow! (interjection: Wow! That's a huge fish!). 5. library (noun: The library was filled with books and magazines; 'bookshelf' also fits).

Review 1 — Grammar B

Grammar B. Read each sentence carefully and write down the tense used: 1. Zeeshaan will visit his grandmother next weekend. 2. Zaaraa was cooking dinner when her friends arrived. 3. They have completed their project successfully. 4. Zeeshaan had already left by the time I arrived. 5. She had already left before I arrived.

1. Simple Future (will visit — next weekend). 2. Past Continuous + Simple Past (was cooking — action in progress; arrived — completed past action interrupting it). 3. Present Perfect (have completed — past action with present relevance). 4. Past Perfect + Simple Past (had left — earlier past action; arrived — later past action). 5. Past Perfect + Simple Past (had left — earlier; arrived — later).

Review 1 — Grammar C

Grammar C. Read each sentence carefully and identify whether the underlined word/phrase is a gerund, an infinitive, or a participle: 1. He likes to swim in the ocean. 2. Walking in the park relaxes me. 3. The broken window needs to be fixed. 4. She heard the crying baby. 5. They want to visit the museum.

1. to swim — infinitive (to + base verb, object of 'likes'). 2. Walking — gerund (the -ing form used as the subject, a noun). 3. broken — past participle (used as an adjective describing 'window'). 4. crying — present participle (used as an adjective describing 'baby'). 5. to visit — infinitive (to + base verb, object of 'want').

Review 1 — Grammar D

Grammar D. Each sentence below has some missing or incorrect punctuation. Rewrite each sentence using the correct punctuation: 1. zeeshan and kiran went to the market they bought fruits vegetables and bread. 2. its raining outside dont forget your umbrella. 3. She said ill meet you at the café. 4. where is the library he asked. 5. the books cover was torn but the pages were intact.

1. Zeeshan and Kiran went to the market. They bought fruits, vegetables and bread. 2. It's raining outside. Don't forget your umbrella. 3. She said, 'I'll meet you at the café.' 4. 'Where is the library?' he asked. 5. The book's cover was torn, but the pages were intact.

Review 1 — Grammar E

Grammar E. Write a short paragraph (4-5 sentences) about any topic of your choice (e.g., a hobby, a recent experience, or a goal you have). Make sure to use at least three different transitional words or devices to connect your ideas. [Model paragraph]

MODEL PARAGRAPH (topic: my hobby, reading): Reading is my favourite hobby. First, it opens new worlds to me; moreover, it improves my vocabulary and imagination. In addition, reading about great people inspires me to work hard. Therefore, I read for half an hour every day, and I keep a notebook of new words. (Transitional words used: First, moreover, In addition, Therefore — four devices.)

Review 1 — Oral Communication Skills A

Oral A. Explore the theme of self-discipline through a role-play activity set in a school assembly. Steps: 1. Get Ready — imagine a school assembly where self-discipline is being discussed; roles: School Counsellor (explain the importance of self-discipline and give advice), Student (share a challenge, e.g. procrastination, and ask for guidance), School Principal (discuss school programmes supporting self-discipline and suggest solutions), Class Representative (express interest in promoting self-discipline among peers and ask for strategies). 2. Prepare Your Dialogue — think how your character would speak; use realistic school situations like managing time or avoiding distractions. 3. Perform — introduce the topic, share challenges and solutions, and offer ideas for working together to improve self-discipline in the school community. [Model dialogue]

MODEL DIALOGUE: Counsellor: 'Welcome to today's assembly. Self-discipline means doing what matters even when it is difficult — like Taseer learning to put his big rocks first.' Student: 'I keep procrastinating over games, and my homework piles up. How can I change?' Counsellor: 'Make a schedule: big rocks first, then pebbles, then sand — and start with just one small step each day.' Principal: 'Our school supports this with a homework club and a daily planner programme; we will also reward classes that show the best time management.' Class Representative: 'I will promote self-discipline among my peers by sharing the jar story and helping classmates make their own schedules, so we all improve together.'

Review 1 — Oral Communication Skills B

Oral B. Debate on Patriotism. Participate in a debate on 'The Role of Youth in the Nation-Building', where you listen to others' viewpoints and respond appropriately, using the correct pronunciation and intonation. [Model points for debate]

MODEL POINTS (for the motion): The youth are the future of the nation, so their role in nation-building is central. Young people bring energy, new ideas and digital skills; they can serve the country by studying sincerely, respecting the law, keeping society clean, helping in crises, and using social media responsibly to promote Pakistan's positive image. Against the objection that youth lack experience: experience is gained by participation, and guided youth — in student councils, volunteer work and community projects — learn responsibility early. Conclusion: a nation that invests in its youth and gives them real roles builds its own future. (Same debate as Unit 2, Oral B — repeated here as the Review's debate task.)

Review 1 — Writing Skills A

Writing A. Think of a situation where a person shows respect for someone very different from themselves (culturally, socially, or ideologically). How does this respect affect their relationship and understanding of each other? [Model paragraph]

MODEL PARAGRAPH: A student in our class, Bilal, comes from a farming village, while his classmate Sarah's family recently moved from another province and speaks a different language at home. At first they misunderstood each other, but Bilal showed respect by listening patiently when Sarah spoke, learning a few words of her language, and inviting her to join his study group. This respect changed their relationship: Sarah felt welcome instead of isolated, Bilal learned about a new culture, and both began to help each other — Bilal with mathematics, Sarah with English. Their respect built understanding, just as Hazrat Asma (RA) showed respect for her grandfather despite their differences of faith, and proved that respect for difference strengthens rather than weakens a relationship.

Review 1 — Writing Skills B

Writing B. How can justice sometimes be difficult to achieve? Write a narrative about a character's journey to fight for justice in their community, and how they manage the obstacles they encounter. [Model narrative]

MODEL NARRATIVE: In a small town, a schoolgirl named Ayesha noticed that the poorest children in her street were charged extra by a shopkeeper for the same notebooks. She decided to fight for justice, but the obstacles were real: the shopkeeper threatened to refuse her family service, and some neighbours told her to stay quiet. Ayesha managed them with the same qualities the unit celebrates — courage, patience and honesty: she gathered the price lists as evidence, spoke politely to the town committee, and asked her teacher to accompany her. The committee ordered fair prices, and the shopkeeper apologised. Justice was difficult because it required standing alone against a stronger person, but Ayesha learned, like Hazrat Asma (RA) facing Abu Jehl, that a firm, truthful stand — made respectfully and with evidence — can change a community.

Unit 7: If

Pre-reading

Pre-reading. Discuss with your peers the qualities you think are important for maintaining integrity and resilience in difficult situations. Predict the themes of the poem based on your discussion. [Model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: The qualities important for integrity and resilience are self-control (keeping your head when others lose theirs), honesty (not dealing in lies even when lied about), patience (waiting without being tired by waiting), humility (not looking too good or talking too wise), courage (risking and losing and starting again without complaint), and perseverance (holding on when there is nothing left except the Will). Predicted themes of 'If': patience, self-trust balanced with humility, balanced attitudes to dreams and thoughts, treating Triumph and Disaster alike, resilience after loss, integrity among crowds and kings, and filling each minute with purposeful effort — the poem's own portrait of becoming a Man.

While-reading

While-reading 1. How will you handle the situation if you face failure in your life?

I will handle failure as the poem teaches: meet Triumph and Disaster and treat those two impostors just the same — neither letting success make me proud nor letting failure break me. If I lose, I will start again at my beginnings and never breathe a word about my loss; if the things I gave my life to are broken, I will stoop and build them up again with worn-out tools. Failure, in the poem's view, is not an end but a test of whether I can hold on when there is nothing left except the Will that says, 'Hold on!'

While-reading

While-reading 2. How will you celebrate success in your life?

I will celebrate success with the same balance the poem demands: by not letting triumph become my master, by keeping my virtue when talking with crowds and keeping the common touch when walking with Kings, and by letting all men count with me but none too much. True celebration, in the poem's terms, is quiet and steady — filling the unforgiving minute with sixty seconds' worth of distance run — rather than boasting, because Triumph is an impostor just like Disaster, and both must be treated the same.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A1. According to the poet, how should one respond to criticism and blame?

One should keep one's head when all about are losing theirs and blaming it on you, and trust oneself when all men doubt you, but make allowance for their doubting too. That is, respond to criticism and blame with calm self-control and self-trust, without anger and without dismissing the critics entirely — allow that their doubt may have some ground, but do not lose your head because of it.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A2. What quality does the poem emphasize in handling doubt and self-trust?

The poem emphasizes balanced self-trust: trust yourself when all men doubt you, but make allowance for their doubting too. It is not stubborn pride — the same stanza warns against looking too good or talking too wise, and against giving way to hating when hated or dealing in lies when lied about. The quality is confident humility: firm in oneself, fair to others.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A3. What message does the poem give about dreams and aspirations?

Dream, but do not make dreams your master; think, but do not make thoughts your aim. Aspirations are vital, but they must stay under your control: a person should pursue goals while remaining grounded and realistic, not letting dreams rule his life or letting thought replace action. Dreams guide; they must not enslave.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A4. How should a person handle twisted truths and personal losses?

If you can bear to hear the truth you have spoken twisted by knaves to make a trap for fools, and watch the things you gave your life to, broken, and stoop and build them up with worn-out tools — that is the poem's answer: endure misrepresentation without bitterness, and rebuild patiently even with poor tools. Likewise, if you make one heap of all your winnings, risk it on one turn of pitch-and-toss, and lose, start again at your beginnings and never breathe a word about your loss — accept loss without complaint and begin again.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A5. What does the poem suggest about resilience and rebuilding after setbacks?

Resilience means rebuilding after ruin and starting again after total loss: stoop and build up with worn-out tools what was broken, and after losing everything on one turn, start again at your beginnings without a word about the loss. It also means forcing heart, nerve and sinew to serve your turn long after they are gone, and holding on when there is nothing left in you except the Will which says, 'Hold on!' Resilience, for Kipling, is not a single brave act but steady endurance powered by will.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A6. According to the poem, how should one persist in difficult times?

Persist by forcing your heart, nerve and sinew to serve your turn long after they are gone, and holding on when there is nothing in you except the Will which says to them: 'Hold on!' Persistence also means waiting without being tired by waiting, and filling the unforgiving minute with sixty seconds' worth of distance run — using every moment fully rather than surrendering to difficulty.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A7. What is the message of the poem regarding integrity and humility in life?

Integrity and humility mean: keep your virtue when talking with crowds, and keep the common touch when walking with Kings; let neither foes nor loving friends hurt you; let all men count with you, but none too much. Do not deal in lies when lied about, do not give way to hating when hated, and do not look too good or talk too wise. The reward of such a life, the poem says, is: 'Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it, and — which is more — you'll be a Man, my son!'

Vocabulary A

Vocabulary A. Identify the figure of speech and write its type against each sentence: 1. The water was as cold as ice. 2. The car was moving as slowly as a snail. 3. The leaves waved goodbye as they fell from the tree. 4. The alarm clock screamed at me. 5. His temper was a volcano, ready to erupt. 6. Her laughter was a sweet symphony.

1. Simile (comparison using 'as': water as cold as ice). 2. Simile (comparison using 'as': car as slowly as a snail). 3. Personification (leaves are given the human action of waving goodbye). 4. Personification (the alarm clock is given the human action of screaming). 5. Metaphor (direct comparison without 'as'/'like': temper is a volcano). 6. Metaphor (direct comparison: laughter is a sweet symphony).

Grammar A

Grammar A. Fill in the blanks with appropriate conjunctions or transitional devices: 1. We go to the garden _____ plant trees. 2. He studied hard _____ he failed in the exams. 3. It was hot outside _____ we went back to our homes. 4. She was tired _____ she did not give up the work. 5. She is _____ intelligent _____ hardworking. 6. _____ the manager _____ the employees knew about the change. 7. You can _____ read the book _____ watch the movie. 8. The dish was _____ delicious _____ it looked.

1. to (infinitive of purpose: We go to the garden to plant trees). 2. but (contrast: He studied hard but he failed in the exams). 3. so (result: It was hot outside, so we went back to our homes). 4. but (contrast: She was tired but she did not give up the work). 5. both...and (correlative: She is both intelligent and hardworking). 6. Neither...nor (correlative: Neither the manager nor the employees knew about the change). 7. either...or (correlative: You can either read the book or watch the movie). 8. more...than (comparison: The dish was more delicious than it looked).

Grammar B

Grammar B. Rewrite the given sentences by adding conjunctions to them: 1. You can have ice cream for dessert. You can have cake for dessert. 2. He was tired. He continued to work. 3. They didn't have enough money. They couldn't buy the tickets. 4. You should wear a coat. It is cold outside. 5. The restaurant serves delicious food. The restaurant has great service.

1. You can have either ice cream or cake for dessert. 2. He was tired, but he continued to work. 3. They didn't have enough money, so they couldn't buy the tickets. 4. You should wear a coat because it is cold outside. 5. The restaurant serves delicious food, and it has great service.

Grammar C

Grammar C. Write a story of your own choice by using transitional devices and conjunctions. [Model story]

MODEL STORY: Once, a boy named Ali wanted to build a treehouse, but he had no wood and no tools. First, he asked his neighbours for help; moreover, he saved his pocket money for nails. Although the work was hard, he did not give up, because his friends encouraged him. Meanwhile, his sister drew a plan, and Ali followed it carefully. Finally, the treehouse stood complete; therefore, the whole street celebrated, and Ali learned that patience and teamwork turn small beginnings into great results.

Oral Communication Skills A

Oral A. Divide the class into groups. Have a discussion with the classmates about 'The Impact of Excessive Screen Time on Mental Health'. Share your thoughts related to the topic with the class. [Model points for discussion]

MODEL POINTS: Excessive screen time affects mental health in several ways: it disturbs sleep (bright screens late at night), reduces physical activity and outdoor play, increases comparison and anxiety through social media, and shortens attention. However, screens are not purely harmful: used in limits, they support learning, connection and creativity. The balanced conclusion, echoing the poem 'If' (self-control, not being mastered by anything), is to set limits — fixed screen hours, no phones at meals or bedtime, and regular breaks for sports, reading and family time — so that technology serves us rather than ruling us.

Oral Communication Skills B

Oral B. Read the following dialogue and practise it with your friends by taking turns. (Dialogue between Kiran and Zaaraa about joining the gardening club.) Summarize the dialogue.

SUMMARY FOR PRACTICE: Kiran invites Zaaraa to join the gardening club; Zaaraa at first thinks gardening is boring and only about planting flowers and vegetables. Kiran explains that gardening improves air quality (plants absorb carbon dioxide and release oxygen), reduces stress and promotes relaxation by connecting us with nature away from screens, and lets us grow our own healthier food. Zaaraa is convinced, decides to try gardening at home, and agrees to join the club, noting that sharing produce is also a way to give back to the community. Practice note: read it in pairs, taking turns as Kiran and Zaaraa, with natural intonation for questions and exclamations.

Oral Communication Skills C

Oral C. Compose and recite your own poem. The rest of the class will listen attentively and provide feedback on quality of recitation. Discuss themes of recited poems. [Model poem]

MODEL POEM (theme: patience and effort): 'If the road is long and steep, / And the mountain seems too high, / Do not stop, do not sleep — / Keep your goal before your eye. / Step by step the climber goes, / Though the wind is cold and strong; / Every seed the gardener sows / Grows to flower before too long.' Theme: patience, steady effort and hope — the same spirit as Kipling's 'If'. Recitation feedback points: clear pronunciation, suitable pace, pauses at line ends, and feeling in the voice for the hopeful closing lines.

Writing Skills A

Writing A. Paraphrase the second and the third stanzas of the poem 'If' by using paraphrasing rules (read two or three times; use synonyms; change word forms; rearrange words). Second stanza: 'If you can dream — and not make dreams your master; / If you can think — and not make thoughts your aim; / If you can meet with Triumph and Disaster / And treat those two impostors just the same; / If you can bear to hear the truth you've spoken / Twisted by knaves to make a trap for fools, / Or watch the things you gave your life to, broken, / And stoop and build 'em up with worn-out tools.' Third stanza: 'If you can make one heap of all your winnings / And risk it on one turn of pitch-and-toss, / And lose, and start again at your beginnings / And never breathe a word about your loss; / If you can force your heart and nerve and sinew / To serve your turn long after they are gone, / And so hold on when there is nothing in you / Except the Will which says to them: Hold on!' [Model paraphrase]

MODEL PARAPHRASE — Second stanza: If you can dream without letting dreams control you, and think without letting thoughts become your only goal; if you can face both great success and terrible failure and treat both as deceivers, exactly alike; if you can endure hearing your own true words twisted by dishonest men into a trap for the foolish, or see the work of your lifetime destroyed, and yet bend down and rebuild it with poor, worn tools. — Third stanza: If you can gather all your gains into one pile and gamble them on a single throw, and lose everything, and begin again from the very start without ever mentioning your loss; if you can drive your heart, nerves and muscles to keep working for you long after their strength is gone, and simply hold on when nothing remains inside you except your willpower commanding you to hold on.

Writing Skills B

Writing B. Write the summary of the poem 'If'.

SUMMARY: Rudyard Kipling's poem 'If' is addressed by a father to his son as a guide to becoming a man. It lists the qualities of a mature, balanced character: keep your head when others lose theirs and blame you; trust yourself while allowing for others' doubts; wait patiently; do not answer lies with lies or hatred with hatred; dream and think without being ruled by dreams or thoughts; treat Triumph and Disaster as equal impostors; endure twisted truths and rebuild broken work with worn-out tools; risk all, lose, and start again without complaint; force heart, nerve and sinew to serve long after they are spent, holding on by pure will; keep virtue among crowds and the common touch among kings; let neither foes nor friends hurt you; and fill every minute with purposeful effort. The reward, the poem promises, is the Earth and everything in it — and, more importantly, manhood itself.

Unit 8: The Impact of Globalisation on Culture and Economy

Pre-reading

Pre-reading. 1. What do you understand by the term 'globalisation'? 2. What is globalisation and how does it influence the culture and economy of a country? 3. Can you give examples of how globalisation might affect our daily lives? [Model answers]

MODEL ANSWERS: 1. Globalisation is the process by which countries, economies and cultures become interconnected and interdependent through increased communication, trade and exchange of ideas — the integration of markets, technologies and policies into a more connected world. 2. It influences a country's economy through trade (new markets for exports like Pakistani textiles, rice and sports goods; access to imports) and investment (foreign companies and CPEC bringing capital, technology and jobs), and its culture through exchange of ideas, fashions, foods, media and languages. 3. Daily-life examples: wearing clothes and eating foods from other countries, watching foreign TV shows and games, using social media to talk to people abroad, learning a language through an app, and buying imported goods in local shops.

While-reading

While-reading 1. What does 'digital globalisation' refer to, based on the introduction?

Digital globalisation refers to the part of globalisation driven by the internet and digital tools: people can access information from around the world instantly, communicate across the globe through social media, messaging apps and video conferencing, collaborate internationally in education, business, science and arts, and create and share content reflecting their own cultures. It has expanded access to education through online courses, webinars and virtual classrooms, and transformed media and communication — while also posing challenges of cultural homogenisation, misinformation and inequality.

While-reading

While-reading 2. How does globalisation facilitate labour mobility?

Globalisation facilitates labour mobility by increasing the demand for skilled labour to manage and operate advanced technologies and systems, which can lead to higher wages and better job prospects for skilled workers. Advances in technology, transportation and communication make it easier for people and goods to move across borders, and multinational companies setting up operations in Pakistan create jobs in information technology, telecommunication and manufacturing — so workers can move, physically and professionally, towards better-paying, skilled work.

While-reading

While-reading 3. How does globalisation contribute to cultural exchange?

Globalisation contributes to cultural exchange by letting people from different cultures interact and share their daily lives: social media platforms (Instagram, Facebook, Twitter, TikTok) show how people in other countries live, celebrate holidays and face challenges, promoting empathy and understanding. TV shows, documentaries and video games from various countries are easily accessible; language apps and online dictionaries help students learn new languages and understand other literatures and values; and exposure to global fashion trends and international cuisines diversifies local tastes. Through this exchange, Pakistanis are exposed to different cultures, ideas and lifestyles, which can be enriching and teach appreciation of diversity.

While-reading

While-reading 4. What are some educational opportunities created by digital globalisation?

Digital globalisation has expanded access to education through online courses, webinars and virtual classrooms, so students can learn about different cultures and subjects from international educators. Students can learn about different cultures, traditions and histories through websites, videos and online articles, and digital tools like language learning apps and online dictionaries make it easier to learn new languages. Digital platforms also allow individuals and communities to create and share content reflecting their own cultures, traditions and stories, preserving and promoting local cultures globally.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A1. What is globalisation and how does it promote economic growth?

Globalisation is the process by which countries, economies and cultures become interconnected and interdependent through increased communication, trade and exchange of ideas, integrating markets, technologies and policies. It promotes economic growth by opening new markets for exports (Pakistan exports textiles, rice and sports goods worldwide, boosting the economy and creating jobs), by attracting foreign investment (foreign companies and CPEC bring capital and technology that improve industries), by expanding industries through access to larger markets, and by creating new jobs, especially in information technology, telecommunication and manufacturing, often with better pay and conditions.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A2. How has globalisation impacted Pakistan's economy in terms of trade and investment?

On the trade front, globalisation opens international markets for Pakistani exports like textiles and agricultural products, while also providing access to a wide range of imported goods that benefit consumers and industries. On the investment side, foreign direct investment, especially through CPEC, brings crucial capital, technology and job opportunities, contributing to infrastructure development and economic growth. Foreign companies have also invested in Pakistan, bringing capital and technology that have improved our industries.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A3. What are some of the new job opportunities created in Pakistan as a result of globalisation?

Globalisation has created new job opportunities especially in information technology, telecommunication and manufacturing, as many multinational companies have set up operations in Pakistan. These jobs often offer better pay and working conditions than local companies. It also increases demand for skilled labour to manage advanced technologies and systems, leading to higher wages and better prospects for skilled workers, and it creates work in export industries (textiles, rice, sports goods) and in digital fields such as e-commerce and online content.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A4. What is cultural exchange, and how does it benefit people?

Cultural exchange is the sharing of ideas, lifestyles, traditions and daily life between people of different cultures — through social media, TV shows, games, language learning, fashion and food. It benefits people by broadening their understanding of the world, promoting cultural awareness, empathy and understanding, and helping them learn about and appreciate diversity. For students especially, it teaches different perspectives, traditions and histories, and deepens understanding of other literatures and values.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A5. What concerns are raised about the preservation of traditional Pakistani culture in the context of globalisation?

The concern is erosion: as people adopt global trends, some fear that Pakistan's unique cultural practices, languages and heritage might be overshadowed. Related concerns are cultural homogenisation (things becoming uniform or similar worldwide), misinformation, and inequality (the digital divide). The unit's answer is balance: embrace global influences while preserving our own cultural identity, by promoting digital literacy, supporting local content, ensuring ethical standards and bridging the digital divide.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A6. How has globalisation expanded access to information for students?

Digital globalisation has made it possible for people to access information from around the world instantly. Students can learn about different cultures, traditions and histories through websites, videos and online articles; digital tools like language learning apps and online dictionaries make learning new languages easier; and online courses, webinars and virtual classrooms let students learn subjects from international educators. This access broadens their understanding of the world and promotes cultural awareness.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A7. How does learning about diverse perspectives benefit students?

Learning about diverse perspectives broadens students' understanding of the world, promotes cultural awareness, empathy and understanding, and helps them appreciate diversity. It deepens their grasp of other literatures, values and cultural aspects, teaches them how people in other countries live, celebrate and face challenges, and — as the unit's conclusion stresses — helps young students think critically about how they can contribute to a global society while staying true to their roots.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A8. How can understanding globalisation help the young Pakistani students contributing to their country's future?

Understanding globalisation helps young students appreciate the complexities of the world and think critically about their own role: they can use its opportunities (trade, technology, education, cultural exchange) while guarding Pakistan's cultural identity and economic stability. By finding this balance — embracing global influences without losing their roots — they can contribute as skilled workers, entrepreneurs and informed citizens to a country that benefits from globalisation rather than being overwhelmed by it.

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B1. What is globalisation based on the text?

(a) increased isolation of countries

(b) enhanced connectivity and interdependence ✓

(c) strict regulations of international trade

(d) limited exchange of ideas and technologies

Correct answer: enhanced connectivity and interdependence

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B2. How does globalisation primarily impact Pakistan's economy, according to the text?

(a) by increasing barriers to international trade

(b) by reducing access to imported goods

(c) by opening up international markets for exports ✓

(d) by decreasing foreign direct investment

Correct answer: by opening up international markets for exports

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B3. How do digital tools primarily impact students, according to the text?

(a) by restricting access to language learning

(b) by promoting cultural isolation

(c) by facilitating easier language learning ✓

(d) by limiting exposure to global trends

Correct answer: by facilitating easier language learning

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B4. According to the text, what is a potential concern regarding impact of globalisation on the Pakistani culture?

(a) increased preservation of cultural practices

(b) enriching cultural exchange

(c) erosion of traditional Pakistani culture ✓

(d) limited exposure to global influences

Correct answer: erosion of traditional Pakistani culture

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B5. How have digital platforms primarily contributed to globalisation, according to the text?

(a) by limiting international communication

(b) by restricting access to education

(c) by enabling instant global communication ✓

(d) by reducing cultural exchange

Correct answer: by enabling instant global communication

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B6. What are the strategies to harness the positive aspects of digital globalisation while mitigating its negative effects?

(a) promoting digital literacy and supporting local content ✓

(b) encouraging cultural homogenisation and spreading misinformation

(c) ignoring ethical standards and widening the digital divide

(d) limiting opportunities for cultural exchange and understanding

Correct answer: promoting digital literacy and supporting local content

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B7. What is the key challenge for Pakistan in managing the effects of globalisation?

(a) ignoring new opportunities for trade and investment

(b) finding a balance between benefiting from globalisation and maintaining its unique cultural identity and economic stability ✓

(c) completely avoiding cultural exchange with other countries

(d) focusing solely on cultural changes while neglecting economic opportunities

Correct answer: finding a balance between benefiting from globalisation and maintaining its unique cultural identity and economic stability

Vocabulary A

Vocabulary A. Use the glossary words in sentences of your own. [Model sentences]

MODEL SENTENCES: appreciate — I appreciate my teacher's help with difficult lessons. communication — Good communication helps people from different cultures understand each other. complexities — Globalisation has many complexities that students must think about critically. crucial — Foreign investment brings crucial capital and technology to Pakistan. economy — Trade and investment strengthen the economy and create jobs. empathy — Social media can promote empathy by showing how people in other countries live. erosion — We must guard against the erosion of our traditional culture. globalisation — Globalisation connects markets, technologies and cultures worldwide. homogenisation — Cultural homogenisation makes different societies look uniform, which is a risk. integration — The integration of markets has made the world more interlinked. interconnected — Countries today are deeply interconnected through trade and the internet. misinformation — Misinformation spreads quickly online, so digital literacy is essential. opportunities — Digital globalisation creates new opportunities for education and jobs. preserve — We should preserve our languages and heritage while embracing global influences. technology — Technology, transport and communication have accelerated globalisation. trade — Pakistan's trade in textiles, rice and sports goods reaches countries all over the world. tradition — Our traditions are a precious part of our cultural identity. wages — Skilled workers can earn higher wages as demand for their skills grows.

Vocabulary B

Vocabulary B. Make as many words as possible by using the letters of the following words: globalisation, integration, information, homogenisation, communication. [Model word lists]

MODEL WORDS: globalisation — global, nation, signal, tailor, slogan, station, bastion, slogan, gabion, Latin, lions, bails, gains, sails, bolts. integration — nation, rating, giant, grain, train, grant, ratio, toast, groan, tiger, eating, ingot, agent. information — nation, format, motion, inform, minor, ratio, train, matin, fairs, foam, iron. homogenisation — nation, homogenise (base), gain, onion, singe, saint, stain, mansion, hinge, noise. communication — nation, common, motion, action, union, comic, music, manic, cocoa, ocean. (Rule: each new word uses only letters found in the base word; short words are easiest to form, and longer words must be checked letter by letter against the base.)

Grammar A

Grammar A. Read the given paragraph carefully and identify the subject, verb, and object in each sentence. Underline the subjects once, the verbs twice, and circle the objects. Paragraph: 'Yesterday, Zaaraa and her friends visited the new museum in town. They explored various exhibits and learned about ancient civilizations. The tour guide explained the history of each artifact in great detail. Afterward, Zaaraa bought a souvenir from the gift shop. Her friends admired the beautiful paintings and sculptures on display. Everyone enjoyed the visit and promised to return soon.'

1. Subject: Zaaraa and her friends. Verb: visited. Object: the new museum. 2. Subject: They. Verbs: explored, learned. Objects: various exhibits (of 'explored'); about ancient civilizations (prepositional phrase after 'learned' — no direct object). 3. Subject: The tour guide. Verb: explained. Object: the history of each artifact. 4. Subject: Zaaraa. Verb: bought. Object: a souvenir. 5. Subject: Her friends. Verb: admired. Object: the beautiful paintings and sculptures. 6. Subject: Everyone. Verbs: enjoyed, promised. Object: the visit (of 'enjoyed'); to return (infinitive object of 'promised').

Grammar B

Grammar B. Identify the complex sentences within the paragraph and underline the subordinate clauses. Paragraph: 'I woke up early this morning because the sunlight was streaming through my window. After rubbing the sleep from my eyes, I decided to go for a jogging in the park nearby. Despite the chilly breeze, I enjoyed the fresh air and the sound of birds chirping in the trees. While running, I saw my friend Zaaraa, who waved and joined me for a few laps around the park. Because we both love exercising outdoors, we often meet up for morning runs. After our jog, we sat on a bench and talked about our plans for the weekend. Although it was still early, the park was bustling with people, and children were playing on the playground equipments. Finally, we said goodbye, and promised to meet again.'

Complex sentences (one independent clause + at least one dependent clause): 1. 'I woke up early this morning because the sunlight was streaming through my window.' Subordinate clause: because the sunlight was streaming through my window. Independent: I woke up early this morning. 2. 'While running, I saw my friend Zaaraa, who waved and joined me for a few laps around the park.' Subordinate clause: who waved and joined me for a few laps (relative clause describing Zaaraa). ('While running' is a participial phrase, not a clause.) 3. 'Because we both love exercising outdoors, we often meet up for morning runs.' Subordinate clause: Because we both love exercising outdoors. Independent: we often meet up for morning runs. 4. 'Although it was still early, the park was bustling with people.' Subordinate clause: Although it was still early. Independent: the park was bustling with people. Notes: 'After rubbing the sleep from my eyes' and 'After our jog' are phrases, not clauses; 'Despite the chilly breeze' is a prepositional phrase; the remaining sentences are simple or compound, not complex.

Grammar C

Grammar C. Write at least five examples of complex sentences in your own notebook, underline the independent clauses and circle the dependent clauses (subordinate clauses). [Model sentences]

MODEL SENTENCES: 1. Because it was raining, we stayed indoors. (Dependent: Because it was raining. Independent: we stayed indoors.) 2. When the bell rang, the students left the classroom. (Dependent: When the bell rang. Independent:

the students left the classroom.) 3. I will visit my grandmother if I finish my homework early. (Independent: I will visit my grandmother. Dependent: if I finish my homework early.) 4. Although globalisation brings opportunities, it also poses challenges. (Dependent: Although globalisation brings opportunities. Independent: it also poses challenges.) 5. She bought the book that her teacher had recommended. (Independent: She bought the book. Dependent: that her teacher had recommended.)

Oral Communication Skills A

Oral A. Read the mind map carefully to answer the given questions on the specific topics (Myself, Favourite Game, School, Family, Hobby). Questions: What is your favourite hobby? Why? Is it good to have a hobby? How many members of the family do you have? How do you celebrate special occasions in your family? What is the name of your school? Who is your favourite teacher? Why? [Model answers]

MODEL ANSWERS: My favourite hobby is reading, because it opens new worlds, improves my vocabulary and relaxes my mind. Yes, it is good to have a hobby: it fills free time usefully, develops skills and reduces stress. My family has six members: my parents, my grandmother, my elder brother, my younger sister and me. We celebrate special occasions together — on Eid we wear new clothes, visit relatives, share sweets and give Eidi to the children. My school is [school name]. My favourite teacher is my English teacher, because she explains clearly, encourages every student, and makes lessons interesting with stories and discussions.

Oral Communication Skills B

Oral B. Ask each student to write a short reflection on how digital globalisation has personally affected their understanding of other cultures and share their reflections in pairs or small groups. [Model reflection]

MODEL REFLECTION: Digital globalisation has changed my understanding of other cultures completely. Before, other countries felt distant; now, through videos, social media and online articles, I see how people in other countries live, celebrate and face challenges, and I feel empathy for them. I have learned words of another language through an app, tasted international foods, and watched documentaries from other countries. At the same time, I have learned to be careful: not everything online is true, so I check information before believing it. Digital globalisation has made the world smaller, but it has also made me value my own Pakistani culture more, because I now understand both what we share with others and what makes us unique.

Writing Skills A

Writing A1. Read the passage carefully and write a precis, reducing it to one third with a suitable title. Passage 1: Renewable energy sources such as solar, wind, and hydroelectric power are becoming increasingly important in the fight against climate change. These energy sources are sustainable and have a lower environmental impact compared to fossil fuels. Governments and companies are investing heavily in renewable energy technologies to reduce carbon emissions and promote a cleaner, greener future. Despite these advancements, the transition to renewable energy faces challenges, including high initial costs and the need for improved energy storage solutions to ensure a reliable power supply. [Model precis]

MODEL PRECIS — Title: Renewable Energy: Promise and Problems. Renewable energy sources like solar, wind and hydroelectric power are increasingly vital against climate change, being sustainable and cleaner than fossil fuels. Governments and companies are investing heavily in them to cut carbon emissions, but high initial costs and the need for better energy storage still challenge a reliable transition.

Writing Skills A

Writing A2. Read the passage carefully and write a precis, reducing it to one third with a suitable title. Passage 2: Nature is a magnificent and essential part of our lives, offering beauty, inspiration, and resources that sustain us. The lush greenery of forests, the serene flow of rivers, the vast expanse of oceans, and the majestic heights of mountains all showcase the diversity and splendor of the natural world. Nature provides us with clean air, fresh water, and fertile soil, which are crucial for our survival. The changing seasons bring new life and vibrant colours, each with its own unique charm and significance. Spending time in nature can also have a calming and rejuvenating effect on our minds, reducing stress and promoting overall well-being. However, it is vital that we respect and protect nature to preserve its beauty and resources for future generations. This means reducing pollution, conserving habitats, and promoting sustainable practices to ensure that the wonders of nature remain for everyone to enjoy.

[Model precis]

MODEL PRECIS — Title: Nature: Our Life and Our Duty. Nature, in its forests, rivers, oceans and mountains, gives us beauty, inspiration and the essentials of life — clean air, fresh water and fertile soil — and spending time in it calms the mind and reduces stress. We must therefore protect it by reducing pollution, conserving habitats and practising sustainability, so its wonders remain for future generations.

Writing Skills A

Writing A3. Read the passage carefully and write a precis, reducing it to one third with a suitable title. Passage 3: Education is a cornerstone of societal development and progress. It equips individuals with the knowledge, skills, and critical thinking abilities necessary to navigate and contribute to the world. Through education, people gain the qualifications needed for employment, fostering economic growth and reducing poverty. Additionally, education promotes social cohesion by teaching values of tolerance, empathy, and cooperation, helping to build more inclusive and harmonious communities. Access to quality education empowers individuals to make informed decisions, pursue their goals, and improve their lives, ultimately driving innovation and cultural enrichment in society. [Model precis]

MODEL PRECIS — Title: Education: The Cornerstone of Progress. Education equips individuals with knowledge, skills and critical thinking, qualifies them for employment, and thereby fosters economic growth and reduces poverty. It also promotes tolerance, empathy and cooperation for inclusive communities, and empowers people to make informed decisions, pursue goals and drive innovation and cultural enrichment.

Writing Skills A

Writing A4. Read the passage carefully and write a precis, reducing it to one third with a suitable title. Passage 4: Healthy eating is crucial for maintaining overall well-being and preventing chronic diseases. A balanced diet, rich in fruits, vegetables, whole grains, and lean proteins, provides essential nutrients that support functions of the body and energy levels. Consuming a variety of foods ensures that the body gets vitamins, minerals, and antioxidants necessary for a strong immune system and healthy metabolism. Poor dietary choices, such as consuming excessive sugar, salt, and unhealthy fats, can lead to obesity, diabetes, heart disease, and other health issues. Therefore, adopting healthy eating habits not only enhances physical health but also contributes to mental and emotional stability, promoting a better quality of life. [Model precis]

MODEL PRECIS — Title: Healthy Eating for a Better Life. A balanced diet of fruits, vegetables, whole grains and lean proteins supplies the nutrients, vitamins and antioxidants needed for energy, immunity and a healthy metabolism. Poor choices — excess sugar, salt and unhealthy fats — cause obesity, diabetes, heart disease and other illnesses, so healthy eating improves both physical health and mental and emotional stability.

Unit 9: Quality Education: A Key to Success

Pre-reading

Pre-reading. 1. What do you understand by the term 'Quality Education'? 2. Why is it important for the development of a country? [Model answers]

MODEL ANSWERS: 1. Quality education is education that equips learners with the knowledge, skills, values and attitudes necessary to thrive in a rapidly changing world — a holistic approach that goes beyond enrolment to real learning, including literacy, numeracy, digital literacy and vocational skills, delivered by trained teachers through updated curricula. 2. It is important because it drives economic growth, reduces poverty, promotes gender equality and protects the environment; in Pakistan, where a large portion of the population is young, investing in education can unlock the potential of millions and drive the country towards a prosperous, sustainable future. It is also SDG 4 and a fundamental human right.

While-reading

While-reading 1. How does quality education empower individuals?

Quality education empowers individuals by enabling them to realize their full potential and participate actively in social, economic and political spheres. It equips them with essential skills such as literacy, numeracy and digital literacy, laying the foundation for lifelong learning and socio-economic advancement. Educated individuals are more likely to engage in community development, advocate for social justice and contribute to sustainable development; and education is crucial for advancing gender equality by empowering women with knowledge, confidence and opportunities for leadership and economic independence.

While-reading

While-reading 2. What specific skills does education provide that contribute to break the cycle of poverty?

Education provides literacy, numeracy, digital literacy and vocational skills, which are crucial for enhancing employability, securing better jobs and promoting economic independence, thereby reducing income inequality. Subjects like mathematics, science and technology develop critical thinking and problem-solving abilities in high demand in technology, healthcare and engineering, reducing unemployment and underemployment. By equipping marginalized populations, education acts as a leveller providing equal opportunities regardless of background, gender or ethnicity, and so breaks the cycle of poverty and fosters inclusive growth.

While-reading

While-reading 3. What does STEM stand for?

STEM stands for Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics. Emphasizing STEM in education equips students with the technical skills necessary for innovation, fosters curiosity and a problem-solving mindset, and drives technological advancements and scientific discoveries.

While-reading

While-reading 4. What issues undermine the effectiveness of education systems?

Outdated curricula and pedagogical approaches that fail to equip learners with the skills demanded by the rapidly changing global landscape; shortage of teachers, low salaries and inadequate training, which undermine learning outcomes; and disparities in access, including education in emergencies. The unit's remedy is investment in teachers' professional development and support — professional development programmes, fair salaries and supportive working environments to attract and retain qualified teachers — plus curriculum reform and equitable access.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A1. How has quality education been defined in the text?

Quality education is defined as essential for sustainable development: it helps individuals gain the knowledge, skills and values necessary for productive and fulfilling lives, through a holistic approach that equips learners with the knowledge, skills, values and attitudes necessary to thrive in a rapidly changing world. Sustainable development itself, as defined by the United Nations, aims to meet the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A2. Name three benefits of quality education mentioned in the essay.

Three benefits: (1) Economic growth — it equips individuals with workforce skills, reduces unemployment and underemployment, and drives innovation and productivity. (2) Reduction of poverty — it acts as a leveller, giving marginalized populations equal opportunities and breaking the cycle of poverty. (3) Gender equality — it empowers women with knowledge, confidence and opportunities for leadership and economic independence. (Other benefits named: environmental protection, social cohesion, better health outcomes, and innovation.)

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A3. Why is human capital development important for a country's economic growth and sustainable development?

Human capital is the knowledge, skills and health that individuals accumulate over their lives, which enables them to contribute effectively to economic growth and development. Quality education enhances human capital by ensuring individuals have the competencies to thrive in a rapidly evolving global economy. A well-educated population drives innovation and productivity, reduces unemployment, and — as an investment in human capital — becomes a pathway to sustainable development, social equity and a more prosperous future for all.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A4. Describe the role of education in reducing inequality and poverty.

Education serves as a leveller, providing equal opportunities for all regardless of socio-economic background, gender or ethnicity. By equipping marginalized populations with education, it helps break the cycle of poverty and fosters inclusive growth. Skills (literacy, numeracy, digital literacy, vocational skills) improve employability and economic independence, reducing income inequality; and investing in quality education is presented not just as investment in human capital but as a pathway to social equity and a more prosperous future.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A5. How does quality education promote understanding and tolerance?

Quality education teaches students about different cultures, religions and perspectives, fostering mutual respect and understanding. Providing equitable access for all, regardless of background, bridges social divides; inclusive education promotes equality and unity, reducing social tensions; schools serve as community hubs where diverse groups come together, fostering belonging and shared purpose. Education also encourages critical thinking about root causes of conflict, cultivates empathy, and enables individuals to engage constructively in democratic processes and resolve conflicts peacefully — promoting a culture of peace.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A6. How does teaching entrepreneurship in schools promote economic growth?

Quality education fuels innovation and creativity, driving technological advancements and fostering entrepreneurship. By fostering entrepreneurship and innovation, education creates economic opportunities and lifts individuals and communities out of poverty. Entrepreneurial skills — problem-solving, creativity, initiative — turn students into job creators rather than only job seekers, which increases employment, productivity and prosperity, just as the unit's earlier discussion of women's entrepreneurship showed businesses creating jobs for others.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A7. Why is STEM education important for driving innovation?

STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, Mathematics) education equips students with the technical skills necessary for innovation, fosters curiosity and a problem-solving mindset, and is crucial for technological advancements and scientific discoveries. Higher education institutions then play a pivotal role in research and development, providing resources and environment for students and faculty to conduct research leading to new inventions, technologies and methodologies. Together, STEM schooling and university research form the pipeline of innovation.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A8. Can you think of any ways to improve the quality of education in your own school or community? [Model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: In my school, quality could be improved by updating the library with new books and computers, arranging teacher training workshops in modern teaching techniques, and reducing overcrowded classes so teachers can help every student. In my community, we could start evening study circles and a book bank for children who cannot afford textbooks, and invite educated volunteers to tutor younger students. At home, parents can support learning by giving children a quiet study corner and regular reading time. These steps match the unit's remedies: teacher development, curriculum reform, resources and equitable access.

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B1. How does quality education contribute to sustainable development?

(a) by focusing economic growth, reducing poverty, and gender equality ✓

(b) by focusing solely on theoretical knowledge

(c) by neglecting environmental protection

(d) by limiting education to primary schools only

Correct answer: by focusing economic growth, reducing poverty, and gender equality

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B2. Which of the following is NOT mentioned as a benefit of quality education in the text?

(a) economic growth

(b) reduction of poverty

(c) promotion of gender equality

(d) focus on sports and entertainment ✓

Correct answer: focus on sports and entertainment

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B3. Which subjects are highlighted as important for developing critical thinking and problem-solving abilities?

(a) history, literature, and arts

(b) mathematics, science, and technology ✓

(c) physical education, music, and drama

(d) geography, sociology, and philosophy

Correct answer: mathematics, science, and technology

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B4. What essential skills does education provide that lay the foundation for lifelong learning and socio-economic advancement?

(a) physical strength and endurance

(b) literacy, numeracy, and digital literacy ✓

(c) artistic and musical talent

(d) traditional crafts and trades

Correct answer: literacy, numeracy, and digital literacy

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B5. How does education help in understanding conflicts?

(a) by encouraging obedience

(b) by promoting violent solutions

(c) by encouraging critical thinking ✓

(d) by ignoring some causes

Correct answer: by encouraging critical thinking

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B6. What broader impact does education have on society?

(a) benefits individuals only

(b) strengthens communities ✓

(c) weakens social bonds

(d) limits development

Correct answer: strengthens communities

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B7. What skills does emphasising STEM education aim to develop in students?

(a) artistic abilities

(b) technical skills for innovation

(c) sports proficiency

(d) linguistic aptitude

Correct answer: technical skills for innovation

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B8. What role do the higher education institutions play in research and development (R&D)?

(a) They discourage research initiatives.

(b) They provide resources and environment for research.

(c) They restrict access to technology.

(d) They focus solely on theoretical learning.

Correct answer: They provide resources and environment for research.

Reading and Critical Thinking C

C. Examine the SDG icons in the image. Identify two goals, in addition to 'Quality Education' (Goal 4), that can contribute to improving education quality globally. How can progress in these two goals support the achievement of quality education? Provide examples to explain the relationship between these goals and education.

Two supporting goals: Goal 1 — No Poverty, and Goal 3 — Good Health and Well-being (Goal 5 — Gender Equality is another strong choice). How they support Goal 4: (1) No Poverty — when families escape poverty, children are not forced to work instead of attending school, and families can afford books, uniforms and fees; poverty reduction therefore raises enrolment and attendance, the first condition of quality education. (2) Good Health and Well-being — healthy children learn better: nutrition, clean water and healthcare reduce absenteeism and improve concentration, while school health programmes (meals, hygiene awareness) directly raise learning outcomes. Example: a village where a poverty-alleviation programme and a school meals programme run together sees both higher attendance and better results — proving that progress on Goals 1 and 3 makes Goal 4 achievable.

Reading and Critical Thinking D

D. Read the provided eyewitness account about the recent education reforms (12th March 2024, Government Primary School, Lahore). How does the writer present the facts and details of the reforms? What tone does the writer use, and how does their personal perspective influence the account? Provide specific examples from the text to support your analysis.

Facts and details: The writer presents the reforms through direct observation and quoted voices — newly renovated classrooms with colourful posters and modern learning tools; teacher Ms. Kiran saying the training workshops empowered teachers to use modern techniques after relying on outdated methods; student Zaaraa loving the new books with pictures and activities; and senior teacher Mr. Zeeshaan warning that rural schools still struggle with overcrowded classrooms and limited technology. Tone: hopeful but balanced — warm and optimistic about urban improvements ('excited chatter', 'positive impact'), yet honest about remaining gaps ('not everything was perfect', 'there's still a long way to go'). Personal perspective: as an on-the-spot eyewitness, the writer's first-person account ('As I stood at the school gate...', 'I walked through...', 'I also spoke with...') makes the reforms feel real and human rather than abstract; but the perspective is limited to one urban school on one day, so the account cannot prove that rural schools have improved — a limit the writer himself acknowledges through Mr. Zeeshaan's voice.

Reading and Critical Thinking E

E. Read paragraphs 1, 2, 3 and 10 of the unit carefully. Highlight the impactful words and phrases.

Paragraph 1 — impactful words/phrases: 'essential for the sustainable development', 'knowledge, skills, and values', 'holistic approach', 'rapidly changing world', 'meet the needs of the present without compromising... future generations', 'unlock the potential of millions'. Paragraph 2 — 'essential for economic growth', 'critical thinking and problem-solving', 'high demand', 'reduce unemployment and underemployment', 'drive innovation and productivity'. Paragraph 3 — 'powerful tool for empowerment', 'realize their full potential', 'literacy, numeracy, and digital literacy', 'lifelong learning', 'advocate for social justice', 'gender equality', 'leadership and economic independence'. Paragraph 10 — 'fuels innovation and creativity', 'driving technological advancements', 'lift individuals and communities out of poverty', 'informed decisions about their health', 'strengthens communities and societies'.

Vocabulary A

Vocabulary A. Write the contextual meanings of the highlighted words in the passage (Karachi evening passage). Then consult a dictionary/thesaurus to find out their synonyms. Words: bustling, aromatic, vibrant, resilience, serene, energy, hustle.

bustling — Contextual meaning: busy, full of activity and movement (the bustling streets of Karachi came alive with vendors). Synonyms: busy, lively, buzzing. — aromatic — Contextual meaning: having a strong, pleasant smell (the aroma of spicy aromatic food filled the air). Synonyms: fragrant, sweet-smelling, perfumed. — vibrant — Contextual meaning: bright, lively and full of colour (colourful vibrant stalls). Synonyms: vivid, bright, lively. — resilience — Contextual meaning: the ability to recover and keep going despite difficulty (faces showing resilience and determination despite the heat). Synonyms: toughness, endurance, strength. — serene — Contextual meaning: calm and peaceful (the old man's serene expression). Synonyms: peaceful, tranquil, calm. — energy — Contextual meaning: liveliness and vigour (people moved with energy). Synonyms: vigour, liveliness, vitality. — hustle — Contextual meaning: busy, hurried activity and noise (the city's hustle contrasted with the old man's calm). Synonyms: bustle, hurly-burly, commotion.

Vocabulary B

Vocabulary B. Fill in the blanks using the words from the passage. Use the context clues to help you choose the correct word: 1. The _____ city of Lahore is known for its rich culture and lively streets. (bustling, serene, aromatic) 2. The chef prepared a/an _____ dish that filled the kitchen with a delightful smell. (bustling, aromatic, resilient) 3. The market was full of _____ colours, with stalls selling everything from clothes to jewelry. (vibrant, serene, bustling) 4. Despite the challenges, the people of the village showed great _____ and continued to work hard. (energy, resilience, hustle) 5. After a long day, he found a _____ spot by the lake to relax. (vibrant, serene, aromatic) 6. The students showed a lot of _____ during the sports day, participating in all events with enthusiasm. (resilience, energy, aromatic)

1. bustling (a city known for lively streets). 2. aromatic (a dish with a delightful smell). 3. vibrant (bright colours). 4. resilience (kept working despite challenges). 5. serene (a calm spot to relax). 6. energy (enthusiasm in all events).

Grammar A

Grammar A. Read the following passage carefully. Identify and underline the adjectival, prepositional and adverbial phrases. Then, label each type of phrase. Passage: 'In the quiet village of Greenfield, a decent girl with bright blue eyes lived with her grandmother. Every morning, she walked to the nearby forest in search of flowers. Her favourite place to find daisies was under the old oak tree near the stream. Despite the early hour, the girl was always full of energy and enthusiasm to do her daily household work.'

Adjectival phrases (describe a noun): 'with bright blue eyes' (describes the girl — what kind of girl?); 'of Greenfield' (in 'the quiet village of Greenfield' — which village?); 'near the stream' (describes the old oak tree — which tree?). Prepositional phrases (preposition + complement): 'In the quiet village of Greenfield', 'with her grandmother', 'to the nearby forest', 'in search of flowers', 'under the old oak tree', 'near the stream', 'Despite the early hour', 'of energy and enthusiasm'. Adverbial phrases (describe a verb — how/when/where): 'Every morning' (when she walked); 'to the nearby forest' (where she walked — also prepositional in form); 'in search of flowers' (why she walked); 'always' is a single adverb, while 'full of energy and enthusiasm' describes the girl (adjectival). Note: several phrases do double duty — 'in search of flowers' is prepositional in form and adverbial in function (purpose).

Grammar B

Grammar B. Expand the following sentences by adding adjectival, prepositional and adverbial phrases. For example: She read the book _____. (e.g., 'in the cozy armchair', or 'with great interest') Sentences: 1. The children played _____. 2. He completed the task _____. 3. They went on vacation _____. 4. The teacher explained the math problem _____. 5. They attended the wedding _____. 6. The family celebrated Eid _____. 7. He completed his homework _____. 8. The students presented their projects _____. [Model expansions]

MODEL EXPANSIONS: 1. The children played happily in the school playground in the evening. (adverbial: happily, in the school playground, in the evening) 2. He completed the task with great care before the deadline. (adverbial: with great care, before the deadline) 3. They went on vacation to the northern mountains during the summer holidays. (adverbial/prepositional: to the northern mountains, during the summer holidays) 4. The teacher explained the math problem with simple examples on the whiteboard. (adverbial: with simple examples, on the whiteboard) 5. They attended the wedding in their new clothes at the community hall. (adjectival: in their new clothes; adverbial: at the community hall) 6. The family celebrated Eid with great joy at their grandmother's house. (adverbial: with great joy, at their grandmother's house) 7. He completed his homework quietly in his study room after dinner. (adverbial: quietly, in his study room, after dinner) 8. The students presented their projects confidently in front of the whole class. (adverbial: confidently, in front of the whole class)

Oral Communication Skills

Oral: Work together to perform the role-play titled 'The Power of Education'. Scenes: 1. The Struggle to Learn (small school, few resources); 2. The Call for Change (community meeting); 3. The Impact of Quality Education (school after improvements). Conclusion: All together: 'Quality education is the key to success!' [Model performance summary]

MODEL PERFORMANCE SUMMARY: Scene 1 — Student A (holding a torn book): 'How can we learn when we don't even have proper textbooks?' Student B: 'And our classroom is so crowded. It's hard for the teacher to help everyone.' Teacher: 'It's tough for me too. Without enough resources and training, it's hard to teach properly.' Scene 2 — Community Leader: 'We need better schools, more teachers, and updated resources for our children.' Government Official: 'We're building more schools and providing teacher training to improve education for all.' Scene 3 — Student A: 'Now, we have proper books and even computers to help us learn.' Teacher: 'With the new training, I can teach better, and every student is improving.' Community Leader: 'This is the power of quality education — it changes lives!' All together: 'Quality education is the key to success!' Performance tips: speak clearly and loudly, face the audience, use gestures for the torn book and the new computers, and pause before the final line so it lands with force.

Writing Skills A

Writing A. Write a detailed book review of 'Little Women' by Louisa May Alcott, retold by John Escott. Your review should be 200-300 words and include examples from the book to support your views. Cover: 1. Introduction (title, author, genre; setting and main characters Meg, Jo, Beth, Amy). 2. Plot Summary (key events; how the March sisters grow and change). 3. Character Analysis (one or two characters, e.g. Jo or Amy; personality, challenges, growth). 4. Themes and Messages (family, independence, personal growth). 5. Writing Style (descriptive, emotional, easy to read; how it brings the story to life). 6. Personal Opinion. 7. Conclusion & Recommendation. [Model review]

MODEL REVIEW (about 250 words): 'Little Women' by Louisa May Alcott (retold by John Escott) is a classic family novel set in America during the Civil War, following the four March sisters — responsible Meg, spirited Jo, gentle Beth and artistic Amy — and their mother Marmee while their father is away at war. The plot follows the sisters through everyday trials and joys: their poverty at Christmas, Jo's struggle with her temper, Amy's longing for pretty things, Beth's quiet kindness, and their gradual growth into young women who learn responsibility, generosity and independence. Jo stands out: hot-tempered and ambitious, she dreams of becoming a writer, sacrifices her beautiful hair to help the family, and slowly learns patience and self-control; Amy, once vain and childish, matures into a graceful, thoughtful young woman. The themes are family love, personal growth and independence — the sisters learn that true wealth is love and character, not money. Alcott's style is warm, descriptive and easy to read, with dialogue that makes each sister feel real and scenes (the Christmas morning without presents, the sisters' plays and picnics) that bring the home to life. I enjoyed the book most for Jo's spirit and the family's kindness, though the pace is slow in places. I recommend 'Little Women' to readers aged 11 and above, especially anyone who loves family stories and strong, growing characters.

Writing Skills B

Writing B. Write a book review of any book of your choice, keeping in mind the above guidelines to ensure that the review is comprehensive, insightful and well-structured. [Model review — 'The Jungle Book' by Rudyard Kipling]

MODEL REVIEW: 'The Jungle Book' by Rudyard Kipling is a collection of adventure stories set in the jungles of India, centred on Mowgli, a boy raised by wolves. The plot follows Mowgli's life among the animals — his teachers Baloo the bear and Bagheera the panther, his enemy the tiger Shere Khan, and his eventual return to the world of men — as he learns the Law of the Jungle and grows from a helpless child into a brave young man. Mowgli's character shows courage, loyalty and curiosity, but also the challenge of belonging to two worlds. The themes are belonging, the laws of nature, friendship and growing up. Kipling's style is vivid and musical, with songs and rhythmic prose that make the jungle feel alive, though some passages use old-fashioned language. I enjoyed the animal characters most, especially Baloo's wisdom and humour. I recommend 'The Jungle Book' to young readers who love adventure, animals and stories about finding one's place in the world.

Unit 10: The Silent Predator and the Majestic Prey - Snow Leopard and Markhor

Pre-reading

Pre-reading: K-W-L Chart. Before reading, make predictions about the text's content: K (Know) — write down everything you know about the snow leopard and the markhor (habitats, characteristics, interesting facts); W (Want to Know) — list questions or things you want to learn about them from the text. After reading, complete the L (Learned) column to compare predictions with the actual content. [Model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: K (Know) — The snow leopard is a rare, spotted mountain cat; the markhor is Pakistan's national animal with twisted horns. W (Want to Know) — Where exactly do they live? Why is the snow leopard called the 'Ghost of the Mountains'? What do markhors eat? How are they being protected? L (Learned) — The snow leopard lives up to 5,500 metres in the Himalayas, Karakoram and Hindu Kush, is shy and solitary, and hunts markhor, ibex and wild sheep; the markhor lives up to 3,600 metres in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, Gilgit-Baltistan, Balochistan and Azad Jammu and Kashmir, eats grasses, shrubs and leaves, has corkscrew horns up to 1.5 metres, and its name means 'snake-eater' in Persian. Both are threatened by poaching, habitat destruction and climate change, but trophy hunting programmes, herder compensation and the work of the Snow Leopard Foundation and WWF-Pakistan are helping their numbers recover.

While-reading

While-reading 1. Why are snow leopards rarely seen by humans?

Snow leopards are rarely seen because they are shy and solitary, avoiding human contact whenever possible, and because they live in some of the most remote, high-altitude areas of the world — roaming at altitudes as high as 5,500 metres — where their thick, spotted coat blends perfectly with the rocky mountains. Their elusiveness is why they are called the 'Ghost of the Mountains'.

While-reading

While-reading 2. What do mark Hors eat?

The markhor is a herbivore, feeding on grasses, shrubs and leaves. Living at altitudes of up to 3,600 metres, mark Hors are often seen perched on narrow ledges, grazing on vegetation.

While-reading

While-reading 3. How have conservation efforts helped increase snow leopard numbers?

Conservation efforts have reduced human-leopard conflict: by compensating herders who lose livestock due to snow leopard attacks and raising awareness of the species' importance, conservationists have reduced the killings of these endangered cats, and an improvement in snow leopard numbers has been seen. Community trophy hunting programmes and the work of the Snow Leopard Foundation and WWF-Pakistan also protect habitats and give local people financial incentives to protect the animals.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A1. Why is the predator-prey relationship between the snow leopard and the markhor important for the ecosystem?

The snow leopard, as a top predator, plays a crucial role in maintaining the natural balance: it keeps the populations of herbivores like the markhor in check, ensuring that plant life in these areas remains balanced. Mark Hors, in turn, are critical for maintaining the vegetation of the mountain slopes, preventing overgrazing and soil erosion. The predator-prey relationship is therefore a classic, delicate balance: each species regulates the other, and the health of the whole mountain ecosystem depends on both.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A2. How do the snow leopard and the markhor's adaptations help them survive in the mountains?

Snow leopard adaptations: thick, spotted coat and dense fur for cold and camouflage; piercing blue eyes; wide, fur-covered paws to walk on snow without sinking; long tail for balance on narrow ledges; muscular build and agility for hunting in steep terrain. Markhor adaptations: wide hooves to climb cliffs with ease; coat that changes with the seasons (warmth in winter, shedding in summer); living in steep, rocky areas where they can quickly flee predators; and long, corkscrew horns (up to 1.5 metres in males). Both are perfectly fitted to high altitudes — the snow leopard to 5,500 metres, the markhor to 3,600 metres.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A3. What are the benefits and potential concerns of community-led conservation programmes like trophy hunting?

Benefits: in Chitral National Park and the Toshi Game Reserve, trophy hunting programmes allow foreign hunters to hunt a limited number of mark Hors under strict regulations; the revenue is used for wildlife conservation and to provide financial incentives for local people to protect the animals, so communities gain income and a reason to guard wildlife rather than poach it. Concerns: even regulated hunting kills animals of an endangered species, and there is a risk that financial gain is prioritised over animal welfare, or that quotas are misused; critics also argue that conservation should not depend on killing. The unit presents the programmes as successful overall, but the ethical tension remains a genuine concern.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A4. What might happen to the mountain ecosystem if either the snow leopard or the markhor disappeared?

If the snow leopard disappeared, herbivore populations like the markhor would increase, causing overgrazing that damages vegetation and the environment — a ripple effect disturbing other animals and the overall health of the mountain environment. If the markhor disappeared, the snow leopard would lose its primary prey and decline, and the vegetation balance the markhor maintains (preventing overgrazing and soil erosion) would also be disturbed. Without either species, the entire ecosystem would be at risk; protecting them preserves the environment they inhabit.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A5. How do human activities like poaching and habitat destruction threaten the balance between the snow leopard and the markhor?

Poaching, habitat destruction and climate change have reduced populations of both species: mark Hors have been hunted for their valuable horns, while snow leopards have been killed by herders trying to protect their livestock. These activities upset the delicate predator-prey balance — fewer prey weakens predators, fewer predators lets herbivores overgraze — and shrink the habitats both need, pushing both species towards vulnerability despite their adaptations.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A6. How is the markhor adapted to living in mountainous regions?

The markhor is perfectly adapted to steep, rocky terrain: its wide hooves help it climb cliffs with ease; its coat changes with the seasons, providing warmth in winter and shedding in summer; it lives at altitudes of up to 3,600 metres, often perched on narrow ledges grazing on vegetation, where it can quickly flee predators; and males carry long, twisted, corkscrew-shaped horns up to 1.5 metres. It is found in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, Gilgit-Baltistan, Balochistan and parts of Azad Jammu and Kashmir.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A7. What more can be done to raise awareness about protecting endangered species like the snow leopard and the markhor? [Model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: More can be done through school programmes and documentaries about the 'Ghost of the Mountains' and Pakistan's national animal; through community meetings in mountain areas explaining the compensation schemes for herders; through social media campaigns by the Snow Leopard Foundation and WWF-Pakistan showing the animals' beauty and their ecosystem role; through eco-tourism that lets people see the animals without disturbing them; and through stricter enforcement against poaching and habitat destruction, with rewards for communities that protect wildlife. Awareness works best when it combines knowledge (why the balance matters) with incentives (why protecting pays).

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A8. How did the description of the snow leopard and the markhor impact your understanding of these animals and their environment? [Model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: The description changed my understanding from 'two rare animals' to 'two partners in a fragile system'. The vivid details — the snow leopard's spotted coat blending with rock, its fur-covered paws on snow, the markhor's corkscrew horns like coiled snakes — made the animals feel real and magnificent, while the account of threats and conservation showed that their survival depends on human choices. I now understand that saving a predator and its prey is not about choosing one animal, but about preserving the whole mountain ecosystem and Pakistan's natural heritage.

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B1. What might be the long-term impact on the ecosystem if the snow leopard were to become extinct?

(a) The population of herbivores like markhor would increase, leading to overgrazing. ✓

(b) The markhor population would decrease due to a lack of protection.

(c) The ecosystem would become healthier without predators.

(d) The environment would remain unchanged.

Correct answer: The population of herbivores like markhor would increase, leading to overgrazing.

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B2. How do community-based conservation efforts, such as trophy hunting, benefit both wildlife and local people?

(a) They reduce human-wildlife conflict by eliminating predators.

(b) They generate income for locals and fund wildlife protection efforts. ✓

(c) They help introduce foreign species into local ecosystems.

(d) They allow uncontrolled hunting, reducing animal populations.

Correct answer: They generate income for locals and fund wildlife protection efforts.

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B3. What lesson can be learned from the successful conservation efforts of the snow leopard and the markhor?

(a) Conservation only works if predators are removed from the ecosystem.

(b) Animals can survive without human intervention.

(c) Involving local communities in conservation efforts leads to better outcomes.

(d) Conservation is not necessary for naturally strong species.

Correct answer: Involving local communities in conservation efforts leads to better outcomes.

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B4. Why is it important to maintain the balance between predator and prey in ecosystems like those of the snow leopard and the markhor?

(a) to increase tourism in mountain regions

(b) to ensure that predators do not starve

(c) to keep herbivore populations in check and protect vegetation

(d) to help predators dominate the ecosystem

Correct answer: to keep herbivore populations in check and protect vegetation

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B5. What is one potential drawback of trophy hunting programmes, even when they help conservation efforts?

(a) They may lead to uncontrolled hunting of species.

(b) They only focus on predators like the snow leopard.

(c) They may prioritise financial gain over the welfare of animals.

(d) They do not involve local communities in any way.

Correct answer: They may prioritise financial gain over the welfare of animals.

Reading and Critical Thinking C

C. Read the following text and put relevant information into the graphic organiser (Cause / Problem / Effect / Solution). Text: There is a serious threat to the snow leopard and the markhor in Pakistan's mountains. Poaching and habitat loss have decreased their numbers. Snow leopards are also killed by herders protecting their livestock. These problems lead to an imbalance in the ecosystem. Without snow leopards, the markhor population can increase, causing overgrazing and damaging the environment. Conservation efforts include trophy hunting programmes that help protect wildlife. Compensation for herders also reduces the killing of snow leopards. These actions aim to save both species and protect the ecosystem.

Cause — Poaching, habitat loss, and herders killing snow leopards to protect livestock. Problem — The numbers of snow leopards and mark Hors in Pakistan's mountains have seriously decreased; both species are threatened. Effect — Imbalance in the ecosystem: without snow leopards, the markhor population can increase, causing overgrazing and damaging the environment. Solution — Trophy hunting programmes that fund wildlife protection and give locals incentives to protect animals; compensation for herders who lose livestock, reducing the killing of snow leopards; together these actions aim to save both species and protect the ecosystem.

Vocabulary A

Vocabulary A. Distinguish between the connotative and denotative meanings of the following words using context clues from the text: balance, elusive, heritage, predator, vulnerable.

balance — Context clue: 'the delicate balance of nature', 'maintaining the natural balance'. Denotative: a state in which different things exist in equal or correct amounts. Connotative: harmony, fragility — something precious and easily upset. — elusive — Context clue: 'one of the most elusive animals on the planet', 'rarely seen by humans'. Denotative: difficult to find, catch or achieve. Connotative: mysterious, ghost-like, almost magical (the 'Ghost of the Mountains'). — heritage — Context clue: 'Pakistan's cultural and environmental heritage', 'preserving its natural heritage'. Denotative: the history, traditions and natural features passed down from the past. Connotative: pride, identity, a treasure belonging to the whole nation. — predator — Context clue: 'The Silent Predator', 'a top predator in the ecosystem'. Denotative: an animal that kills and eats other animals. Connotative: powerful and silent, but also essential — not a villain, but a guardian of balance. — vulnerable — Context clue: 'both the species remain vulnerable', 'weak and easily hurt'. Denotative: weak and easily hurt physically or emotionally. Connotative: in need of protection, at risk of disappearing forever.

Grammar A

Grammar A. Add hyphens to the following compound nouns and adjectives where needed: 1. The editor in chief made several changes to the manuscript. 2. The student gave a well written essay. 3. The city is famous for its state of the art infrastructure. 4. He works as a part time teacher. 5. My brother in law is visiting this weekend.

1. The editor-in-chief made several changes to the manuscript. 2. The student gave a well-written essay. 3. The city is famous for its state-of-the-art infrastructure. 4. He works as a part-time teacher. 5. My brother-in-law is visiting this weekend. (Rule: compound nouns like editor-in-chief and brother-in-law take hyphens; compound adjectives before a noun — well-written, state-of-the-art, part-time — are hyphenated.)

Grammar B

Grammar B. Identify the correct pronunciation of the -ough words and fill in the blanks with the appropriate word: 1. The river runs _____ the city. (Pronounced /throo/) 2. She had a difficult day, but she smiled, as if she hadn't gone _____ so much. (Pronounced /thō/) 3. The fabric of the sweater felt very _____ against my skin. (Pronounced /ruff/) 4. He hadn't _____ much about the topic before the presentation. (Pronounced /thawt/) 5. We don't have _____ money to buy that car. (Pronounced /enuff/)

1. through (The river runs through the city — /throo/). 2. through (She smiled as if she hadn't gone through so much — /throo/). NOTE: the book prints the hint /thō/ for this sentence, but /thō/ is the pronunciation of 'though', which does not fit 'gone ___ so much'; the correct English fill is 'through', so the printed hint appears mismatched and is flagged here rather than followed blindly. 3. rough (The fabric felt very rough — /ruff/). 4. thought (He hadn't thought much — /thawt/). 5. enough (We don't have enough money — /enuff/).

Grammar C

Grammar C. Make three hyphenated nouns or adjectives using the prefixes provided below: self, ex, co, non. (Examples: anti-corruption, anti-riot, anti-inflammatory) self — self-control, self-respect, self-discipline. (Example sentences: Self-control helped Taseer manage his time. Self-respect means valuing yourself. Self-discipline is the key to success.) ex — ex-teacher, ex-president, ex-student. co — co-operation, co-author, co-worker. non — non-violent, non-stop, non-fiction. (Note: some modern spellings drop the hyphen — cooperation, nonviolent — but the hyphenated forms are correct and are what this exercise asks for.)

Grammar D

Grammar D. Fill in the blanks with the correct words ending in -ough from the options provided: 1. We played outside _____ it was drizzling. (though, through, thought) 2. There wasn't _____ sugar left for tea. (although, enough, brought) 3. Salma kneaded the _____ to make bread. (cough, dough, bough) 4. The storm blew the leaves off the _____. (bough, through, though) 5. He had a severe _____ throughout the day. (rough, cough, thought)

1. though (We played outside though it was drizzling — concession). 2. enough (There wasn't enough sugar left for tea). 3. dough (Salma kneaded the dough to make bread). 4. bough (The storm blew the leaves off the bough — a large branch). 5. cough (He had a severe cough throughout the day).

Oral Communication Skills A

Oral A. Respond to the text through oral discussion. In small groups, each group discusses a specific section of the text, with roles: discussion leader (guides the conversation), note-taker (summarizes key points), presenter (shares findings with the class). Discuss the assigned section and answer: What is the main idea? What supporting details are provided? Present findings and join a whole-class discussion. [Model summary for discussion]

MODEL ANSWER (for a group discussing 'Conservation Success and Future Challenges'): Main idea — Despite threats, conservation efforts in Pakistan are working, but both species remain vulnerable and continued effort is needed. Supporting details — the Snow Leopard Foundation and WWF-Pakistan work tirelessly; in Chitral National Park and Toshi Game Reserve, communities with the government run trophy hunting programmes whose revenue funds conservation and incentivises locals; compensating herders and raising awareness have reduced snow leopard killings and improved numbers. Whole-class point — success came from involving local people, not excluding them.

Oral Communication Skills B

Oral B. Respond to the text by telling short stories and role-play. Research one of the conservation efforts mentioned in the text (such as the Snow Leopard Foundation or WWF-Pakistan). Find out how the organization is helping to protect the snow leopard and the markhor, focusing on successes, challenges, and impact on the community. Prepare a short story to tell your classmates: What the organization does; How it is helping to protect wildlife; Why their work matters. Then share in pairs and reflect: How do these efforts help create a balance in nature? [Model story]

MODEL STORY: The Snow Leopard Foundation works in Pakistan's high mountains to protect the ghost of the mountains and its prey. It studies snow leopards, trains local people as trackers and guards, and runs the compensation scheme that pays herders for livestock lost to leopards — so herders no longer need to kill the cats in revenge. Its successes include rising snow leopard numbers in project valleys; its challenges include vast, rugged terrain and the poverty that drives poaching. Its work matters because it restores the balance: with leopards present, markhor numbers stay in check, vegetation recovers, and the whole mountain ecosystem — and the communities that depend on it — stays healthy. WWF-Pakistan plays a similar role, combining science, community programmes and policy advocacy for the same goal.

Oral Communication Skills C

Oral C. Role-play a Community Conservation Meeting. Characters: Wildlife Conservationists, Community Members, Government Officials, Local Entrepreneurs. Script outline: Conservationist discusses preserving the ecosystem; Community Member shares how conservation impacts daily life; Government Official talks about support for conservation programmes; Local Entrepreneur explores how eco-friendly businesses could support conservation. Act out the meeting, discussing conservation strategies and how to overcome challenges faced by the snow leopard and the markhor. [Model dialogue]

MODEL DIALOGUE: Conservationist: 'The snow leopard and the markhor keep our mountains in balance — lose one, and the whole ecosystem suffers.' Community Member: 'Since the trophy programme began, our village earns money for protecting animals instead of poaching them, and our children see the markhor as a treasure.' Government Official: 'We will expand the compensation scheme for herders and fund more guards for Chitral National Park and Toshi Game Reserve.' Local Entrepreneur: 'Eco-tourism can help too: visitors who come to see the markhor and, with luck, the snow leopard, bring income that depends on the animals staying alive.' Together: 'Protecting predator and prey protects us all.'

Oral Communication Skills D

Oral D. Discussion on Handling of Challenges. After the role-play, discuss as a class: How does community involvement help wildlife conservation? What were some of the challenges your characters faced, and how were they addressed? Discussion Point: Can Both Predator and Prey Be Saved? Half the class argues saving the snow leopard is more important for maintaining balance; the other half argues saving the markhor is equally important due to its role in preventing overgrazing and its cultural significance. [Model points for both sides]

MODEL POINTS — For the snow leopard side: As top predator, the leopard regulates the whole system; without it, markhor overgraze and vegetation collapses, harming every species including the markhor. For the markhor side: Without prey, the leopard starves; the markhor also maintains vegetation directly (preventing overgrazing and soil erosion) and is Pakistan's national animal, a cultural symbol whose loss would be a national loss. Synthesis: both sides actually prove the same point — predator and prey can only be saved together, because the balance needs both; conservation must protect habitats, compensate herders and involve communities for both species at once.

Oral Communication Skills E

Oral E. Demonstrate attentive listening skills to respond orally with standard pronunciation and intonation. (The teacher will read aloud the text in the unit emphasizing accurate pronunciation and intonation. Listen with full attention while looking at the text. Speak different words or sentences with the correct pronunciation and intonation.) [Model practice notes]

MODEL PRACTICE NOTES: Words to practise: elusive (ee-LOO-siv), herbivore (HER-bi-vor), conservation (kon-ser-VAY-shun), ecosystem (EE-koh-sis-tem), vulnerable (VUL-ner-uh-bul), magnificent (mag-NIF-i-sent), rugged (RUG-id), predator (PRED-uh-ter). Sentences to practise with rising/falling intonation: 'Often referred to as the Ghost of the Mountains, the snow leopard roams at altitudes as high as 5,500 metres.' (falling, statement) 'Why are snow leopards rarely seen by humans?' (falling, wh-question) 'The markhor, with its impressive corkscrew-shaped horns, is Pakistan's national animal.' (falling, statement). Listening rule: eyes on the text, ears on the teacher's stress and pauses; repeat each sentence aloud after the teacher.

Writing Skills A

Writing A. Write a descriptive composition about the snow leopard or the markhor, moving from general to specific. Use brainstorming, mind mapping, and writing a first draft while paying attention to correct punctuation and spelling. Structure: Introduction (general information: where they live, why important); Body Paragraph 1 (appearance); Body Paragraph 2 (adaptations); Body Paragraph 3 (behaviour and importance). [Model composition — the snow leopard]

MODEL COMPOSITION: The Ghost of the Mountains. In the high-altitude regions of Pakistan, where the peaks of the Himalayas, Karakoram and Hindu Kush touch the sky, lives one of the most elusive animals on the planet: the snow leopard. It is important because, as a top predator, it keeps the mountain ecosystem in balance, and because its beauty makes it a symbol of Pakistan's wild heritage. In appearance, the snow leopard is magnificent: a thick, spotted coat that blends perfectly with rocky mountains, piercing blue eyes, a muscular build, wide fur-covered paws and a long tail. Its adaptations fit its home exactly: the dense fur survives bitter cold, the wide paws walk on snow without sinking, and the long tail balances it on narrow ledges at altitudes up to 5,500 metres. In behaviour, it is shy and solitary, avoiding humans, and it hunts markhor, ibex and wild sheep. Its importance is beyond its beauty: without it, herbivores would overgraze and damage the mountains. Protecting the snow leopard therefore means protecting the whole mountain world it rules so silently.

Unit 11: The Dear Departed (one-act play)

Pre-reading

Pre-reading. 1. What feelings or situations come to mind when you hear the title 'The Dear Departed'? 2. Do you think the tone will be serious or humorous? Why? [Model answers]

MODEL ANSWERS: 1. The title 'The Dear Departed' suggests death and mourning — a beloved family member who has died, a funeral, grief, and the settling of the dead person's affairs. 2. The tone turns out to be humorous rather than purely serious, despite the death: the play is a satire in which the 'departed' grandfather is not dead at all, and the comedy comes from the daughters' greed, their mourning clothes, and their panic when he walks in alive. The title itself is ironic — the 'dear departed' is neither dear (his daughters quarrel over his things) nor departed.

While-reading

While-reading 1. What do you think the room looks like?

The living room of the Slater family's house is modest and functional, in the style of an early 20th-century Edwardian home, reflecting the family's middle-class status. It is the play's sole location, creating an intimate, focused environment. The decor is simple and functional, the furniture practical and slightly worn, the lighting soft (lamps or candles) with a warm but slightly dim glow, and the colour palette muted — brown, cream and grey — giving a conservative, somewhat sombre tone, calm with an air of formality typical of the period.

While-reading

While-reading 2. How do you think the room is arranged?

A large central dining table covered with a white cloth stands in the middle, surrounded by chairs. To one side there is a sofa for seating, with other simple chairs and a small side table. At the back of the room a staircase leads upstairs; a mantelpiece displays a clock, and there may be a sideboard or cabinet against one wall, with framed photographs hanging on the walls. There is also a door leading outside, positioned to one side.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A1. What do the actions and words of Mrs. Slater and Mrs. Jordan reveal about their true motivations? How do these motivations influence their behaviour throughout the play?

Their true motivation is material gain, not grief. Mrs. Slater, before the Jordans arrive, hurries Victoria out of coloured clothes into half-mourning so the Slaters 'outshine' the Jordans; she takes her dead father's new slippers for Henry, moves the bureau and the clock downstairs before Elizabeth can claim them, and calls the chest of drawers 'shabby' to justify the swap. Mrs. Jordan arrives in complete new mourning with plumes, boasts about ready-made versus ordered mourning, claims the gold watch was promised to her Jimmy, and later accuses Amelia of robbery only to secure her own share. Both sisters compete over the bureau, the clock, the watch and the insurance money, and both suddenly want Abel to live with them only when he announces a new will leaving everything to whomever he lives with at his death. Their greed drives every action: the mourning is a costume, the tears are performance, and sisterly affection collapses into quarrelling the moment possessions are at stake.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A2. How does the conflict over Mr. Merryweather's possessions drive the plot of the play? What does this conflict reveal about the characters' values and priorities?

The conflict over possessions is the engine of the whole plot: it opens with Amelia's plan to move the bureau and clock, continues through the sisters' rivalry over the gold watch and the insurance premium, peaks when Abel discovers his bureau and clock downstairs, and resolves with his new-will announcement and marriage plan. It reveals that the characters value things over people: Abel's 'death' is treated as an opportunity to divide 'his bits of things', the announcement in the papers is debated for 'the look of the thing', and both daughters measure love by what they receive. Only Victoria, and finally Abel himself, see the truth — that the family prized the inheritance above the man.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A3. In what ways does Stanley Houghton use satire to criticize family dynamics and social values in the play? How effective is this approach in conveying his message?

Houghton satirizes through irony and exaggeration: the daughters wear elaborate mourning for a man who is not dead; they debate poetic epitaphs ('Never Forgotten', 'sacred to we') while having just stolen his clock and bureau; Ben jokes that Abel 'couldn't bear water' while the family weeps; and the sisters invent a dead brother (Frederick? Albert? Isaac in Australia?) to explain their mourning to Abel. The approach is highly effective because comedy makes the criticism sting without preaching: the audience laughs at the sisters and then recognizes the same materialism in real families. The final twist — Abel marrying Mrs. John Shorrocks and taking his bureau to the Ring-o'-Bells — is the satirist's perfect revenge on greed.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A4. How does the play challenge the traditional idea of family unity and affection? What does The Dear Departed suggest about the nature of family ties when material wealth is involved?

The play demolishes the idea of automatic family unity: the two sisters, who have quarrelled for two years (Elizabeth once said she would not take Abel 'at any price' and had 'enough of you to last a lifetime'), unite only to divide his property, and turn on each other the moment Abel's will is mentioned. It suggests that when material wealth is involved, family ties can become transactional: affection is performed (kisses, tears, mourning clothes) while the real currency is the bureau, the clock, the watch and the insurance money. Abel's verdict — 'neither of you cared to put up with me' — states the play's message: where inheritance rules, love is conditional and unity is a show.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A5. What role does the clock on the mantelpiece play in the story? How might it symbolize the characters' attitude towards time, routine, or even inheritance?

The clock is Abel's handsome clock, which Amelia fetches downstairs because 'our clock's worth nothing and this always appealed to me'. It betrays the theft: when it strikes six, Abel recognizes it — 'Drat me if that isn't my clock too' — and demands to know what has been going on. Symbolically, the clock marks the family's attitude to time: they treat Abel's life as finished (his time is up) and rush to divide his things before the 'proper' mourning period, while the striking clock announces that his time is not over at all. It also symbolizes routine and respectability — the mantelpiece clock as a household prize — and inheritance itself: a valuable, visible object that both sisters covet and that exposes their greed.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A6. How does Victoria's character differ from the adults' around her? What does her perspective tell us about the younger generation's view of the family's behaviour?

Victoria is precocious, outspoken and innocent: she asks plainly, 'Are we pinching it before Aunt Elizabeth comes?', notes that grandpa 'was drunk this morning', and says to herself, 'I thought we'd pinched them.' Unlike the adults, she does not dress her actions in excuses — she sees the bureau and clock removal for what it is (taking things before the rightful heirs arrive) and she is genuinely glad Abel is alive ('Oh, Grandpa, I'm so glad you're not dead'), while her mother hisses, 'Hold your tongue, Victoria.' Her perspective tells us that the younger generation sees through adult hypocrisy: children notice greed and dishonesty even when adults disguise them as propriety, and Victoria's honesty functions as the play's moral voice.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A7. How do the characters display hypocrisy throughout the play? What are some examples where their words contradict their actions?

Hypocrisy is everywhere: Amelia weeps over 'the little trifles that belonged to grandfather' while stealing his bureau and clock; she claims grandpa 'gave it to your mother before he died' when Victoria asks if they are pinching it. Elizabeth arrives in full mourning and kisses Amelia solemnly, then accuses her of robbery ('They sneaked into your room like a thief in the night') while herself claiming the gold watch for Jimmy. Henry wears Abel's slippers and helps move the bureau, then moralizes about delicacy. Both sisters insist they loved their father, yet neither wants him alive: when Abel announces his new will, both suddenly compete to house him — not from love, but for the inheritance. Words say grief and family; actions say greed.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A8. How does the setting of the play — a single, confined living room — affect the way the characters interact with each other? What might this confined space suggest about the nature of their relationships?

The single living room forces all the characters into one space with no escape: the sisters must perform grief face to face, the bureau swap must be hidden in the same room where the Jordans will sit, and Abel's entrance traps everyone together for the confrontation. The confinement heightens tension and comedy — whispered prompts ('Frederick' / 'Albert'), the bumping of the bureau against the wall, the clock striking six in front of everyone. It suggests that these relationships are themselves confined and airless: the family is locked together by blood and property, unable to be honest or to leave, so politeness and greed collide in a small room that mirrors their narrow, materialistic world.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A9. How does Stanley Houghton organise the sequence of events in The Dear Departed to build tension and reveal the characters' true motives?

Houghton builds tension in stages: exposition — Amelia's mourning preparations and the secret plan for the bureau; rising action — the bureau and clock are moved downstairs just before the Jordans knock; complication — the sisters' rivalry over the watch and the possibly unpaid insurance premium raises the stakes; climax — Victoria announces 'Grandpa's getting up', and Abel enters alive in his dressing-gown; revelation — Abel notices his slippers on Henry, his bureau and his clock, and Elizabeth exposes the theft; resolution — Abel's new will and his marriage announcement turn the tables, leaving the sisters with nothing and the bureau itself carried off to the Ring-o'-Bells. Each step peels away another layer of pretence until the true motives — greed on both sides — stand exposed.

Reading and Critical Thinking A

A10. How do the themes of The Dear Departed remain relevant in modern society? Can you think of contemporary examples where materialism impacts family relationships in a similar way? [Model answer]

MODEL ANSWER: The themes remain fully relevant: families today still quarrel over inheritance — houses, jewellery, land, bank accounts — and siblings still compete over a parent's will, sometimes breaking relations for years. Contemporary examples include disputes over a family home after a parent's death, arguments about who keeps a parent's car or ornaments, and even public rows over a celebrity's estate. Social media adds a modern layer: performative grief online (mourning posts) alongside private disputes over property, exactly like the Slaters' mourning clothes versus their bureau theft. The play's warning — that valuing things above people destroys family bonds — applies whenever money enters family love.

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B1. What does the behaviour of Mrs. Slater and Mrs. Jordan primarily reveal about their characters?

(a) They are affectionate and caring daughters.

(b) They value material wealth over family bonds. ✓

(c) They respect their father's memory and legacy.

(d) They are indifferent to their father's possessions.

Correct answer: They value material wealth over family bonds.

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B2. Why is the setting of a single room (the living room) significant in the play?

(a) It highlights the family's financial struggles.

(b) It creates an intimate space where the characters' true natures are revealed. ✓

(c) It allows for more dramatic costume changes.

(d) It serves as a symbol of the family's closeness and unity.

Correct answer: It creates an intimate space where the characters' true natures are revealed.

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B3. How does Victoria's reaction differ from the adults when discussing Mr. Merryweather's possessions?

(a) She is indifferent and doesn't care about the inheritance.

(b) She criticizes the adults for their materialism.

(c) She shows confusion, hinting at her innocence compared to the adults' greed.

(d) She eagerly participates in claiming possessions.

Correct answer: She shows confusion, hinting at her innocence compared to the adults' greed.

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B4. How does Stanley Houghton use satire in The Dear Departed?

(a) to exaggerate the family's love for each other

(b) to humorously criticize the characters' hypocrisy and greed

(c) to create tension and suspense among the characters

(d) to present a tragic view of death and mourning

Correct answer: to humorously criticize the characters' hypocrisy and greed

Reading and Critical Thinking B

B5. The clock on the mantelpiece can be interpreted as a symbol of:

(a) The passing of time and routine in the family's life.

(b) The wealth and prosperity of Mr. Merryweather.

(c) The bond between the Slater sisters.

(d) The memories that the family cherishes.

Correct answer: The passing of time and routine in the family's life.

Reading and Critical Thinking C

C. Discuss the plot of the play. Use the 'Plot Diagram' given in Unit 6 to discuss the one-act play.

Exposition — The Slater living room; Mrs. Slater prepares mourning, scolds Victoria for wearing colours, and reveals the plan: Abel Merryweather, 72, is thought dead upstairs, and the Jordans are coming to talk over his affairs. Rising Action — Amelia and Henry move Abel's bureau and clock downstairs, replacing the bureau with the shabby chest of drawers; the Jordans arrive in full new mourning; the sisters quarrel over the gold watch (promised to Jimmy?) and fear the insurance premium was never paid. Climax — Victoria announces 'Grandpa's getting up', and Abel enters alive in his dressing-gown and stockinged feet, to general consternation. Falling Action — Abel notices his slippers on Henry, his bureau and his clock; Elizabeth exposes the theft ('They stole your clock and bureau'); Abel announces he will destroy his old will and make a new one leaving everything to whomever he lives with at his death. Resolution — Both daughters compete to house him, Abel exposes their quarrel (Elizabeth once refused him 'at any price'), and announces his three Monday tasks: alter his will, pay his insurance premium, and marry Mrs. John Shorrocks at St. Philip's Church — taking his bureau to the Ring-o'-Bells. Theme: materialism and hypocrisy in family relationships.

Vocabulary A

precocious — Denotative: having developed particular abilities and ways of behaving at a much younger age than usual (Victoria is a precocious girl).

Connotative: cheeky, too knowing for a child — Victoria's bluntness embarrasses the adults. — gallivanting — Denotative: to go from place to place enjoying yourself. Connotative: irresponsible wandering, especially improper at a time of mourning (Amelia scolds Victoria for 'gallivanting about in the street' with her grandfather dead upstairs). — speck — Denotative: a very small spot; a small piece of dirt. Connotative: the tiniest fault that a prying eye (Elizabeth's) would notice — fussiness about appearances. — bureau — Denotative: a desk with drawers, usually with a top that opens down to make a writing table. Connotative: the prize of the play — status, inheritance, and the sisters' greed made furniture. — impassive — Denotative: not showing any feeling or emotion (Mrs. Jordan's impassive air of being always right). Connotative: cold self-satisfaction, superiority. — hearth — Denotative: the floor at the bottom of a fireplace. Connotative: home, family warmth — ironically, the hearth in this play warms a family that has none.

Vocabulary B

Vocabulary B1. The antonym of 'shabby':

(a) cooperative

(b) elegant ✓

(c) jolly

Correct answer: indifference

Vocabulary C

Vocabulary C. Make as many words as you can from these root words. Example: Aud (hear): audio, audible, audition, audience, auditorium. Roots: colour, count, play, work, faith.

colour — colourful, colourless, coloured, colouring, discolour, colour-blind, multicolour. count — countable, countless, countdown, discount, recount, accountant, counter, country (note: 'country' shares the root historically but is a different word family in modern use). play — playful, player, playground, replay, playback, playmate, playhouse. work — worker, workshop, workman, homework, artwork, workable, overwork. faith — faithful, faithless, faithfully, unfaithful. (Rule: add prefixes and suffixes to the root; each new word must keep the root's spelling and sense.)

Grammar A

Grammar A. Change the narration of the following sentences (direct to indirect, except 14-16 which are already indirect — see note): 1. My father said to me, 'My son, never cheat anyone.' 2. My friend said to me, 'Let us watch a documentary.' 3. The captain said to the soldier angrily, 'Always obey your seniors.' 4. My mother said, 'May you prosper!' 5. He said, 'I did not go to school yesterday.' 6. The officer said, 'Call the next visitor.' 7. The teacher said, 'Whose pen is it?' 8. She said to me, 'What are you looking for?' 9. Zeeshaan said, 'Alas! I have failed the examination.' 10. He said, 'Where are you going?' 11. He said to me, 'Please excuse me as I am too tired to go to market.' 12. She said, 'Listen! Can you hear someone coming?' 13. Our teacher said, 'The sun rises in the east.' 14. He requested his teacher to explain that theory again. 15. He applauded them that they had played well. 16. He bade me good morning. 17. He said to me, 'When will you have completed your work?'

1. My father advised me never to cheat anyone. 2. My friend suggested that we should watch a documentary. 3. The captain ordered the soldier angrily to always obey his seniors. 4. My mother prayed that I might prosper. 5. He said that he had not gone to school the previous day. 6. The officer ordered to call the next visitor. 7. The teacher asked whose pen it was. 8. She asked me what I was looking for. 9. Zeeshaan exclaimed with sorrow that he had failed the examination. 10. He asked where I was going. 11. He requested me to excuse him as he was too tired to go to market. 12. She drew my attention and asked if I could hear someone coming. 13. Our teacher said that the sun rises in the east. (Universal truth — tense does not change.) 14-16 NOTE: these three are already in indirect speech, so the reverse change is given: 14. Direct: He said to his teacher, 'Please explain this theory again.' 15. Direct: He said to them, 'You have played very well!' 16. Direct: He said to me, 'Good morning.' 17. He asked me when I would have completed my work.

Grammar B

Grammar B. Change the following passage into direct speech. Passage: The father explained to his daughter that the internet had many useful applications. He mentioned that it could be used for educational purposes, such as researching information for school projects and accessing online courses. He also told her that the internet was a valuable tool for communication, allowing people to stay in touch with friends and family through emails and social media. However, he warned her that it was important to use the internet responsibly. He emphasized the need to be cautious about sharing personal information. He suggested that she should balance her internet use with other activities, such as reading books, playing outside, and spending time with family. [Model direct speech]

MODEL DIRECT SPEECH: Father: 'My dear daughter, the internet has many useful applications. It can be used for educational purposes, such as researching information for school projects and accessing online courses. It is also a valuable tool for communication, allowing people to stay in touch with friends and family through emails and social media. However, you must use the internet responsibly. Be cautious about sharing personal information. You should balance your internet use with other activities, such as reading books, playing outside, and spending time with family.' (Changes applied: 'that'-clauses removed, past tenses restored to present — had → has, could → can, was → is — and pronouns adjusted to direct address.)

Oral Communication Skills A

Oral A. Respond to the play through oral discussion. In small groups, each group takes up a specific part of the play. Discuss the assigned part and answer: What is the main idea or conflict in this section? What details or dialogues reveal the characters' true motivations or attitudes? Present findings and join a whole-class discussion. [Model summary for discussion]

MODEL ANSWER (for a group discussing the bureau-moving scene): Main idea/conflict — Amelia's greed versus propriety: she wants the bureau before Elizabeth arrives, and Henry's unease ('It doesn't seem delicate, somehow') voices the moral objection she overrides. Revealing details/dialogues — Amelia: 'If it was only down here instead of in his room, she'd never guess it wasn't our own'; Henry: 'I wouldn't care to' (stupefied); Victoria: 'Are we pinching it before Aunt Elizabeth comes?' — the child's plain word 'pinching' names the act the adults dress up as arrangement. Whole-class point — every section of the play works the same way: a respectable surface (mourning, tea, announcements) over a scramble for property.

Oral Communication Skills B

Oral B. Respond to the text by telling short stories and role-play. Research Stanley Houghton, the playwright: Who was he, and what are some key facts about his life? What inspired him to write The Dear Departed? How did the society of his time influence the themes and characters? Narrate a short story or scene based on the play: a moment where a character shows true intentions; how the living-room setting influences interactions; what a character feels at a key moment (e.g., when Mr. Merryweather unexpectedly reappears). Perform a scene or role-play: Mrs. Slater and Mrs. Jordan discussing possessions (tone and body language); Victoria questioning the adults; the moment of Mr. Merryweather's return. [Model research summary and scene]

MODEL RESEARCH SUMMARY: Stanley Houghton (1881-1913) was an English playwright of the 'Manchester School', known for realistic, socially conscious drama and sharp wit; his most famous play is Hindle Wakes (1912), which challenged traditional gender roles and morality, and The Dear Departed (1908) satirizes greed and materialism in family dynamics. He died at only 32, yet made a significant impact on British theatre. He was inspired by the middle-class Edwardian society around him — its obsession with respectability, mourning customs and inheritance — and wrote the play to expose how possessions corrupt family feeling. MODEL SCENE (Victoria questions the adults): Victoria: 'Mother, are we pinching grandpa's bureau before Aunt Elizabeth comes?' Mrs. Slater (sharply, glancing at the door): 'Hush, child! Grandpa gave it to me before he died.' Victoria (plainly): 'This morning? But he was drunk this morning.' Henry (shocked, to Victoria): 'Hush; you mustn't ever say he was drunk, now.' The adults' panic against Victoria's plain truth shows the play's central contrast: innocence versus respectable greed.

Oral Communication Skills C

Oral C. Enact this one-act play in the class. [Performance notes]

PERFORMANCE NOTES: Cast — Mrs. Amelia Slater, Henry Slater, Victoria Slater, Mrs. Elizabeth Jordan, Ben Jordan, Mr. Abel Merryweather. Single set — the Slater living room (table with white cloth, chairs, sofa, mantelpiece with clock, staircase door, front door). Key moments to stage: the bureau move (bumping, whispers, Victoria's questions); the Jordans' entrance in full new mourning (solemn kisses, silent inspection of mourning); the tea-table debate over the newspaper announcement; Victoria's terrified entrance ('Grandpa's getting up'); Abel's entrance in dressing-gown and stockinged feet; the clock striking six; Abel's final announcement at the door. Tone: comic but pointed — play the mourning solemnly and the greed briskly, so the audience laughs and then feels the sting.

Oral Communication Skills D

Oral D. What role does humour play in 'The Dear Departed'?

Humour is the play's weapon: it makes the criticism of greed enjoyable and therefore sharper. Comic devices include irony (mourning a living man), exaggeration (complete new mourning with plumes, the invented dead brother Isaac/Frederick/Albert), incongruity (Ben's chirpy jokes at a 'funeral', the poetic epitaph 'sacred to we'), and the final comic reversal (Abel alive, marrying the pub landlady, and carrying off his own bureau). Without humour, the play would be a grim accusation; with it, the audience laughs at the sisters, recognizes its own materialism, and remembers the moral — that is why satire, not tragedy, is Houghton's chosen form.

Oral Communication Skills E

Oral E. Can you relate any part of this one-act play to your own experiences with regard to family relationships or societal expectations? [Model reflection]

MODEL REFLECTION: I can relate to the pressure to 'look right' in front of relatives — like Amelia wanting to outshine Elizabeth in mourning, families sometimes care more about what guests think than about what is true or kind. I have also seen relatives compete over small things after a grandparent's death, such as who keeps a watch or a piece of furniture, and felt, like Victoria, that the quarrel was unworthy of the person who had died. The play taught me that real respect for elders means caring for them while they live — as Abel wished — not performing grief or dividing their things after they are gone.

Writing Skills A

Writing A. Practise identifying and using the mechanics of play writing — structure, dialogue, punctuation, and stage directions — in a play format. Read the excerpt from The Dear Departed in the book (Mrs. Slater, Mrs. Jordan, Henry scene about mourning dresses and the will), identify the mechanics (dialogue conveying emotion; punctuation for pacing; stage directions in italics/brackets guiding actions, movements and tone; character names in bold/capitals before lines), discuss with a partner how these elements work together, then write your own short scene using the mechanics identified (natural, expressive dialogue; punctuation for pauses, emphasis and tone; stage directions for actions and emotions; correct name formatting), and perform/share and reflect. [Model scene]

MODEL SCENE: [The classroom. Morning. A table with books; two students stand arguing in whispers.] ALI: (impatiently) You promised to bring the chart today! The teacher will ask for it first thing. SARA: (defensively, clutching her bag) I did bring it — look! But the colours smudged in the rain... ALI: (sighing, then softening) Oh. Well — we can fix it together before assembly. SARA: (relieved, smiling) Really? Thank you! [They spread the chart on the table and work together.] Mechanics used: names in capitals before lines; stage directions in brackets for tone and action; punctuation (exclamation for impatience, ellipsis for hesitation, dash for interruption) controlling pace; dialogue revealing character (Ali's impatience softening into kindness).

Writing Skills B

Writing B. Practise writing a dialogue between multiple characters using narration and the conventions of director's notes. Steps: choose a scenario (e.g., a disagreement between family members over a decision; friends planning a surprise party; classmates debating a school project idea); create at least three characters with distinct personalities; set the scene in brackets; write 15-20 lines of dialogue with names in capitals, punctuation for pauses/emphasis, director's notes in brackets, and background narration in brackets; peer-review against the conventions checklist. [Model dialogue — friends planning a surprise party] MODEL DIALOGUE: [The school library. Afternoon. Three friends sit around a table, whispering over a notebook.] SANA: (crossing her arms) I told you we should have called earlier. Now it's too late. AMIR: (leaning back, looking at Sana) We didn't know it would end like this. How could we? HINA: (nervously tapping her fingers on the table) But now what? Do we just wait? [The door creaks open, and ASLAM enters, looking exhausted.] ASLAM: (sighing) I spoke to her. She's not happy about any of it. SANA: (standing up quickly) See? I knew this would happen! AMIR: (calmly) Wait — we can still plan the surprise for Friday. HINA: (brightening) Yes! We can decorate the classroom after school. ASLAM: (nodding) And I will bring the cake. SANA: (smiling at last) Good. Then it's settled — Friday, after school, and not a word to her! [They shake hands, laughing quietly.] Conventions used: capitals for names, bracketed director's notes and narration, punctuation for emphasis and pauses, and natural turn-taking across 15+ lines.

Units Review 2 (Units 7-11)

Review 2 — Reading and Critical Thinking A

A1. Do you think the advice given in 'If' is relevant in today's world? Why or why not?

Yes, the advice in 'If' is deeply relevant today. Self-control when others lose their heads is needed in an age of social-media anger and blame; trusting yourself while allowing for others' doubts is the balance behind critical thinking; not making dreams your master warns against letting ambition or online fame rule your life; treating Triumph and Disaster alike guards against both arrogance in success and despair in failure; and holding on when nothing is left except the Will speaks directly to students facing exams, competition and pressure. The poem's world (Edwardian, 1910) differs from ours, but its virtues — patience, integrity, humility, resilience — are timeless, which is why the poem is still quoted in classrooms and sports teams today.

Review 2 — Reading and Critical Thinking A

A2. How has globalisation influenced the spread of cultural practices and traditions across the world? Can you provide examples of this cultural exchange?

Globalisation spreads cultural practices through trade, media, migration and digital platforms: social media shows how people in other countries live, celebrate holidays and face challenges; TV shows, documentaries and video games from various countries are easily accessible; language apps and online dictionaries spread languages and literatures; and global fashion trends and international cuisines diversify local tastes. Examples: Pakistani students wearing international fashion brands and eating Chinese, Turkish or Italian food; Eid and Christmas greetings shared worldwide on social media; K-pop, Hollywood films and cricket reaching audiences far beyond their home countries; and Pakistani textiles, music and food becoming known abroad. The exchange enriches, but — as Unit 8 warns — it also risks eroding local traditions unless balance is kept.

Review 2 — Reading and Critical Thinking A

A3. Identify the main problems faced by the snow leopard and the markhor populations. What solutions have been implemented to address these problems, and how effective do you think they are?

Main problems: poaching (mark Hors hunted for valuable horns), habitat destruction, climate change, and snow leopards killed by herders protecting livestock — all reducing both populations and upsetting the predator-prey balance. Solutions implemented: the Snow Leopard Foundation and WWF-Pakistan protection programmes; trophy hunting programmes in Chitral National Park and Toshi Game Reserve (limited hunting under strict regulations, revenue funding conservation and local incentives); and compensation for herders who lose livestock, plus awareness-raising. Effectiveness: the unit reports real improvement in snow leopard numbers and community support, so the solutions are substantially effective; but both species remain vulnerable, so continued habitat protection and anti-poaching enforcement are still needed — the solutions work, but they are not yet complete.

Review 2 — Reading and Critical Thinking A

A4. What does the title 'The Dear Departed' suggest about the play's theme, and how is it ironic in the context of the story?

The title suggests a beloved person who has died and is mourned — 'dear' for loved, 'departed' for dead — and points to the play's theme of how families behave around death and inheritance. It is ironic twice over: Abel Merryweather is not departed at all — he is alive upstairs, merely dazed — and he is not truly 'dear' to his daughters, who quarrel over his bureau, clock, watch and insurance money rather than grieving for him. The 'dear departed' of the title is thus a polite fiction the characters perform, while the play exposes the greed beneath the mourning.

Review 2 — Reading and Critical Thinking A

A5. What role does humour play in 'The Dear Departed'? How does Houghton use humour to convey serious themes like family conflict and hypocrisy?

Humour is the play's vehicle for serious themes: irony (mourning a living man), exaggeration (full new mourning with plumes; the invented dead brother Isaac/Frederick/Albert), incongruity (Ben's chirpy jokes at a 'funeral'; the epitaph 'sacred to we'), and the final reversal (Abel alive, marrying the pub landlady, carrying off his own bureau). Through laughter, Houghton exposes family conflict (the sisters' quarrel over the will) and hypocrisy (tears performed while property is stolen) without preaching: the audience laughs at the Slaters and Jordans and then recognizes the same materialism in real families. Humour makes the moral memorable — greed looks ridiculous before it looks shameful.

Review 2 — Vocabulary A

globalisation — Pronunciation: /GLOH-buh-ly-ZAY-shun/ (/ˌgləʊbəlaɪˈzeɪʃn/). Meaning: the process by which countries, economies and cultures become interconnected and interdependent. Part of speech: noun. — crucial — Pronunciation: /KROO-shul/ (/ˈkruːʃl/). Meaning: extremely important, because it will affect other things. Part of speech: adjective. — population — Pronunciation: /pop-yuh-LAY-shun/ (/ˌpɒpjəˈleɪʃn/). Meaning: all the people or animals living in a particular area or country. Part of speech: noun. — sustainable — Pronunciation:

/suh-STAY-nuh-bul/ (/sə'steɪnəbl/). Meaning: able to continue over a long time without damaging the environment or using up resources; meeting present needs without compromising future generations. Part of speech: adjective. — departed — Pronunciation: /di-PAR-tid/ (/dɪ'pɑːtɪd/). Meaning: dead; having left this life (a polite word for 'dead'). Part of speech: adjective (also verb form of 'depart').

Review 2 — Vocabulary B

Vocabulary B. Use the following pairs of words in your own sentences: compliment, complement; eligible, illegible; foul, fowl; gentle, genteel; respectable, respectful; wander, wonder; yoke, yolk. [Model sentences]

MODEL SENTENCES: compliment — The teacher paid me a compliment on my neat handwriting. complement — The blue scarf complements her white dress perfectly. eligible — Students with 80% attendance are eligible for the prize. illegible — His handwriting was illegible, so the teacher could not read it. foul — The foul smell from the drain made everyone cover their noses. fowl — The farmer keeps fowl such as hens and ducks. gentle — Be gentle with the kitten; it is very small. genteel — She spoke in a genteel, refined manner at the formal dinner. respectable — He comes from a respectable family known for honesty. respectful — The students were respectful towards their teacher. wander — We like to wander through the old bazaar on Sundays. wonder — I wonder why the stars shine only at night. yoke — The farmer put the yoke on the oxen before ploughing. yolk — The yolk of the egg is yellow and rich.

Review 2 — Vocabulary C

Vocabulary C. Make as many words as you can from these root words. Example: Aud (hear): audio, audible, audition, audience, auditorium. Roots: colour, count, play, work, faith. (Note: these are the same roots as in Unit 11, Vocabulary C —

colour — colourful, colourless, coloured, colouring, discolour, colour-blind, multicolour. count — countable, countless, countdown, discount, recount, accountant, counter. play — playful, player, playground, replay, playback, playmate, playhouse. work — worker, workshop, workman, homework, artwork, workable, overwork. faith — faithful, faithless, faithfully, unfaithful.

Review 2 — Grammar A

Grammar A. Fill in the blanks using the appropriate conjunctions from the given options: 1. We can go to the beach _____ we can visit the museum. (and / or / but) 2. He missed the bus _____ he woke up late. (because / so / although) 3. _____ you finish your homework; you cannot go outside. (If / So / Until) 4. Neither Ali _____ his sister wanted to join the game. (and / nor / or) 5. She is tired _____ she kept working until midnight. (because / although / but)

1. or (a choice: the beach or the museum). 2. because (reason: he missed the bus because he woke up late). 3. Until (condition of time: Until you finish your homework, you cannot go outside). 4. nor (correlative: Neither Ali nor his sister wanted to join). 5. but (contrast: She is tired but she kept working until midnight).

Review 2 — Grammar B

Grammar B. Read each sentence carefully and determine whether it is a simple sentence or a complex sentence. Write your answer and explain why it fits that category: 1. The cat sat on the windowsill and watched the birds. 2. Even though it was raining, the children continued to play outside. 3. He finished his homework before dinner. 4. Because she studied hard, Maria passed the exam with flying colours. 5. The sun set behind the mountains.

1. Simple sentence — one independent clause (one subject, 'the cat', with a compound predicate 'sat... and watched...'); no subordinate clause. 2. Complex sentence — independent clause 'the children continued to play outside' + dependent clause 'Even though it was raining'. 3. Simple sentence — one independent clause; 'before dinner' is a prepositional phrase, not a clause. 4. Complex sentence — independent clause 'Maria passed the exam with flying colours' + dependent clause 'Because she studied hard'. 5. Simple sentence — one independent clause, subject 'the sun', verb 'set'.

Review 2 — Grammar C

Grammar C. Read each sentence carefully and change it from direct speech to indirect speech: 1. Sarah said, 'I am going to the market.' 2. The teacher said, 'Have you completed your homework?' 3. Tahir said, 'I will finish my project by tomorrow.' 4. She said, 'What a beautiful painting!' 5. Javed said, 'When are we leaving for the trip?'

1. Sarah said that she was going to the market. 2. The teacher asked if/whether I had completed my homework. (Question → asked + if/whether; present perfect → past perfect.) 3. Tahir said that he would finish his project by the next day. (will → would; tomorrow → the next day.) 4. She exclaimed with joy that it was a very beautiful painting. 5. Javed asked when they were leaving for the trip. (Question word 'when' kept as the connector; present continuous → past continuous.)

Review 2 — Oral Communication Skills A

Oral A. Practise converting direct speech to indirect speech and vice versa through a realistic teacher-student interaction. Pair up: one plays teacher, one plays student. Teacher asks in direct speech: 'Did you complete your homework?' 'What was the most challenging part?' 'When are you planning to submit your project?' 'Have you studied for the upcoming test?' Student answers in direct speech (e.g., 'Yes, I finished it last night.' 'I found the math problems difficult.' 'I will submit it by the end of the week.' 'I am planning to study tonight.'). After the student responds, the teacher converts the response from direct to indirect speech. Then switch roles. [Model conversions]

MODEL CONVERSIONS: Teacher: 'Did you complete your homework?' Student: 'Yes, I finished it last night.' Indirect: The student said that he had finished it the previous night. — Teacher: 'What was the most challenging part?' Student: 'I found the math problems difficult.' Indirect: The student said that he had found the math problems difficult. — Teacher: 'When are you planning to submit your project?' Student: 'I will submit it by the end of the week.' Indirect: The student said that he would submit it by the end of the week. — Teacher: 'Have you studied for the upcoming test?' Student: 'I am planning to study tonight.' Indirect: The student said that he was planning to study that night. (Rules applied: tense backshift, 'last night' → 'the previous night', 'tonight' → 'that night', 'will' → 'would'.)

Review 2 — Oral Communication Skills B

Oral B. Divide the seventeen (17) Sustainable Development Goals (SDG) among the students to present ONE minute speech on the given SDG. [Model one-minute speech — SDG 4, Quality Education]

MODEL ONE-MINUTE SPEECH (SDG 4 — Quality Education): 'Good morning! My SDG is Goal 4: Quality Education. Quality education means every child gets a good education — trained teachers, updated books, safe classrooms and equal chances for girls and boys. It matters because education reduces poverty, creates jobs, promotes equality and helps the environment — it is the key to all the other goals. In Pakistan, millions of children still lack quality schooling, so we must invest in teachers, curricula and access. Let us remember: when we educate one child, we change one future; when we educate all children, we change the world. Thank you!' (Other SDGs can follow the same pattern: name, meaning, why it matters, a Pakistan example, a closing line.)

Review 2 — Oral Communication Skills C

Oral C. The teacher will divide the students into groups. Each group will share their personal experiences related to Wildlife Vignette. Each group will share a short story. [Model wildlife vignette]

MODEL WILDLIFE VIGNETTE: Last summer, on a school trip to the Margalla Hills, our group spotted a family of monkeys on the trail. At first we were excited and moved closer, but our teacher stopped us: wild animals need space, and feeding them harms them. We watched quietly from a distance as the monkeys groomed each other and the babies played — a small, perfect scene of nature undisturbed. That experience taught me what Unit 10 teaches about the snow leopard and the markhor: wildlife survives only when humans respect its space, protect its habitat, and choose observation over interference.

Review 2 — Oral Communication Skills D

Oral D. Work in groups. Each group will discuss the theme/message in the one-act play 'The Dear Departed' with regard to human relationships in a society. [Model discussion points]

MODEL DISCUSSION POINTS: Theme — materialism and hypocrisy in family relationships. Message for society — when inheritance and possessions become more important than people, family bonds break: the Slaters and Jordans perform grief while stealing the dead man's bureau and clock, and both daughters refuse to house their father until his new will makes him profitable. For human relationships generally, the play warns that love must be proved while people are alive (Abel: 'neither of you cared to put up with me'), not performed after they are gone; and that respectability — mourning clothes, polite tears, newspaper announcements — can hide selfishness. A healthy society, the play suggests, values people above property.

Review 2 — Writing Skills A

Writing A. Paraphrase the opening lines of the poem 'If': 'If you can keep your head when all about you / Are losing theirs and blaming it on you,' [Model paraphrase]

MODEL PARAPHRASE: If you can remain calm and in control of yourself at a time when everyone around you is losing their temper and self-control and blaming you for the trouble, then you have the first quality of a mature person. (Paraphrase rules applied: synonyms — 'keep your head' → 'remain calm and in control'; 'losing theirs' → 'losing their temper and self-control'; rearrangement into a single clear sentence.)

Review 2 — Writing Skills B

Writing B. Write a descriptive composition about the importance and characteristics of quality education, using brainstorming, mind mapping, and drafting techniques. Structure: Introduction (general statement; what makes education 'quality'); Body Paragraph 1 (Key Elements: trained teachers, engaging curriculum, safe learning environment, access to technology and resources); Body Paragraph 2 (Benefits: empowers individuals, creates opportunities, positively impacts communities); Body Paragraph 3 (Challenges: lack of resources, overcrowded classrooms, inequality, inadequate teacher training; how obstacles can be overcome); Conclusion (summary + call to action). [Model composition]

MODEL COMPOSITION: Quality education is the key to success — for individuals and for nations. It is not merely enrolment in a school, but learning that truly equips a person: trained teachers who explain clearly, an engaging curriculum that builds critical thinking, a safe learning environment, and access to technology and resources. Its benefits are wide: it empowers individuals with literacy, numeracy and digital skills; it creates better jobs and reduces poverty; it promotes gender equality and social cohesion; and it strengthens whole communities. Yet challenges remain: lack of resources, overcrowded classrooms, inequality of access, and inadequate teacher training. These can be overcome by investing in teacher development, updating curricula, and ensuring equitable access for every child. In conclusion, improving education improves everything else — if we want a brighter future, we must begin in the classroom.

Review 2 — Writing Skills C

Writing C. Write a well-structured paragraph on 'My Service to Society'. [Model paragraph]

MODEL PARAGRAPH: My service to society begins with small, sincere actions in my own surroundings. I keep my street clean, help elderly neighbours with their work, and tutor younger children in my neighbourhood who struggle with their lessons. At school, I take part in cleanliness drives and plantation campaigns, because a green, clean environment benefits everyone. I also obey the law, speak politely to all, and use social media to spread useful information rather than rumours. I believe that serving society does not require wealth or power; it requires a willing heart, honest conduct and regular small deeds, and if every citizen serves in this way, the whole society becomes stronger, kinder and more prosperous.
