Unit 1: Democratic Citizenship

1.1 Reading Comprehension — Pre-reading

Question: What do you know about Quaid-e-Azam Muhammad Ali Jinnah?

Answer: Model answer: Quaid-e-Azam Muhammad Ali Jinnah was the founder of Pakistan. He was a great leader, a brilliant lawyer and the leader of the All-India Muslim League, whose struggle gave Muslims of the sub-continent a separate homeland on 14th August 1947. He became the first Governor General of Pakistan.

Question: What was the Quaid's main contribution?

Answer: Model answer: His main contribution was the creation of Pakistan. Through constitutional and political struggle, he united the Muslims, presented their case for a separate state, and achieved an independent homeland where they could live according to their own faith, culture and laws.

Question: What was the Quaid's vision for Pakistan?

Answer: Model answer: The Quaid's vision was a democratic, prosperous and just Pakistan where all citizens — majority and minorities — enjoy equal rights, where law and order is maintained, bribery, corruption, nepotism and black-marketing are crushed, and everyone is free to practise his or her religion.

Question: Share some famous sayings of the Quaid-e-Azam.

Answer: Model answer: His famous sayings include: "Unity, Faith and Discipline"; "No power on earth can undo Pakistan"; "Work, work and only work"; and his guiding words that he would always be guided by the principles of justice and fair play without prejudice or ill-will.

1.1 While-reading — Exercise 1: Deduce the contextual meaning of the words

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: unprecedented.

Answer: unprecedented — never happened before; without any earlier example of its kind.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: sovereign.

Answer: sovereign — supreme and independent; having full power to govern itself, as a free state or body.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: monster.

Answer: monster — here, a huge and frightening evil force; black-marketing is called a monster because it harms the whole society.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: starvation.

Answer: starvation — extreme suffering or death caused by lack of food.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: colossal.

Answer: colossal — extremely large or great in size or degree.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: nepotism.

Answer: nepotism — using one's power to give jobs or favours to one's own relatives, unfairly.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: onerous.

Answer: onerous — heavy and difficult to bear; involving a great burden of responsibility.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: titanic.

Answer: titanic — of enormous size, strength or importance, like the giants of Greek myth.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: gravest.

Answer: gravest — most serious and most solemn; of the greatest importance.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: relentlessly.

Answer: relentlessly — continuously and without mercy or stopping; in a harsh, determined way.

1.1 While-reading — Exercise 2: Match phrases and idioms (Column A) with meanings (Column B)

Question: Match: to bury the hatchet.

Answer: to bury the hatchet — C: to end a fight and make peace.

Question: Match: to lead someone to.

Answer: to lead someone to — I: encourage (or cause) someone to do an expected task.

1.1 Exercise 3 — Choose the correct option

Question: (i) The Quaid was addressing the Constituent Assembly at which level — national, regional, global or provincial?

Answer: (a) national level — he was addressing the first Constituent Assembly of the new nation, Pakistan.

Question: (ii) What was the main function of the Constituent Assembly — making the country an example, honouring members, making the constitution, or practising the constitution?

Answer: (c) make constitution — its first task was framing a full and complete sovereign constitution, and its second was to function as the Federal Legislature.

Question: (iii) In the Quaid's words, 'cyclonic revolution' meant a wave of what — discrimination, revolt, elections or legislation?

Answer: (b) revolt — a sweeping, storm-like change that brought about the plan of creating two independent sovereign dominions in the sub-continent.

Question: (iv) According to the Quaid, the main task of the government is to do what?

Answer: (d) make law and order — the first duty of a government is to maintain law and order so that the life, property and religious beliefs of its subjects are fully protected by the State.

Question: (v) According to the Quaid, the poisonous thing is what — corruption, black-marketing, nepotism, or law and order situation?

Answer: (a) corruption — he said bribery and corruption are one of the biggest curses and "that really is a poison" which must be put down with an iron hand.

Question: (vi) The colossal crime, the 'monster' in the text, is what?

Answer: (b) black marketing — black-marketing is called a colossal crime and a monster against society that must be tackled and whose doers ought to be very severely punished.

Question: (vii) On 11th August 1947, the Quaid-e-Azam was speaking to whom?

Answer: (b) first legislative body — he was addressing Pakistan's first Constituent Assembly, which was also the first sovereign legislative body of the country.

Question: (viii) The first legislative body was bestowed with what kind of powers?

Answer: (a) full powers — the Quaid reminded the members that they were now a sovereign legislative body and had got all the powers.

Question: (ix) The thing that was already prevailing in the continent after partition was what — bribery, foodstuff, nepotism or starvation?

Answer: (a) bribery — bribery and corruption were the curse from which India (the sub-continent) was already suffering at that time.

Question: (x) What are the guiding principles of Quaid-e-Azam Muhammad Ali Jinnah?

Answer: (b) justice and fair play — he said he would always be guided by the principles of justice and fair-play, without any political language, prejudice or ill-will, and with complete impartiality.

1.1 Post-reading — Exercise 4: Answer the following questions

Question: Why did the Quaid feel honoured while addressing the first Constituent Assembly?

Answer: He felt honoured because the Assembly had conferred a great honour upon him by electing and trusting him to lead it. He cordially thanked the members, with the utmost sincerity, for the honour they had conferred upon him.

Question: Which is the greatest curse, according to the Quaid-e-Azam?

Answer: According to the Quaid, bribery and corruption are one of the biggest curses. He called corruption a poison that must be put down with an iron hand, and he hoped the Assembly would take adequate measures against it as soon as possible.

Question: What was the Quaid's vision about religious freedom?

Answer: His vision was complete religious freedom for everyone. He said: you are free to go to your temples, mosques or any other place of worship in Pakistan; religion, caste or creed has nothing to do with the business of the State, and there will be no discrimination between one community, caste or creed and another.

Question: According to the Quaid-e-Azam, what lesson should we learn?

Answer: We should learn the lesson that no power can hold another nation in subjection. Therefore we must value our freedom, protect it, and never try to keep any other nation under subjection either.

Question: How are the key ideas of the Quaid's speech applicable to the present scenario?

Answer: Model answer: They are fully applicable today. Pakistan still needs law and order, an end to bribery, corruption, nepotism and black-marketing, equal rights for all citizens, protection of minorities, and unity above provincial and communal differences — exactly the ideas the Quaid gave in this speech.

Question: How can we make Pakistan prosperous in the light of the Quaid's vision?

Answer: Model answer: By wholly and solely concentrating on the well-being of the people, especially the masses and the poor; by working in co-operation, forgetting the past and burying the hatchet; and by treating every citizen as a citizen of the State with equal rights, privileges and obligations, whatever his community, colour, caste or creed.

Question: Elaborate: the Quaid says he will always be guided by justice and fair play, without political language, prejudice or ill-will.

Answer: Model answer: It means his decisions would never be based on party politics, personal liking, bias or enmity. Justice and complete impartiality would be his guiding principle in every matter, so that every citizen and every case is treated fairly, whoever is involved.

1.1 Exercise 5 — Fact or Opinion

Question: Statement 1: The Quaid-e-Azam was president of the first Constituent Assembly. Fact or opinion?

Answer: Fact — it is a verifiable historical fact (given as an example in the book). Anyone can confirm from history records that the Quaid presided over the first Constituent Assembly of Pakistan.

Question: Statement 2: The hope that with support the Assembly will be made an example. Fact or opinion?

Answer: Opinion — it expresses the speaker's hope and personal expectation, not a proven fact. The words "I sincerely hope" show that the Quaid is stating what he wishes and expects, which may or may not come true.

Question: Statement 3: The first duty of government is to maintain law and order. Fact or opinion?

Answer: Opinion — it states the speaker's judgement about what a government ought to do first. It tells us the Quaid's view of a government's duty; it is a belief about what should be done, not a measurable fact.

Question: Statement 4: All kinds of inhabitants are living in the sub-continent. Fact or opinion?

Answer: Fact — it is a true, observable statement about the population of the sub-continent. People of many religions, languages and communities really did live there, and this can be seen and verified.

Question: Statement 5: Nepotism and jobbery are social evils. Fact or opinion?

Answer: Opinion — calling them 'evils' is a value judgement, though it is widely agreed. Nepotism and jobbery certainly exist as facts, but labelling them evil expresses the speaker's moral view about them.

Question: Statement 6: The mighty revolution that has taken place is unprecedented. Fact or opinion?

Answer: Opinion — describing the revolution as 'unprecedented' (without parallel) is the speaker's evaluation of it. That a great change took place is a fact, but judging that nothing like it ever happened before is the Quaid's personal assessment.

1.1 Exercise 6 — Find the points of the historic speech not included in this excerpt

Question: Search out and share the important points of the Quaid's 11th August 1947 speech that are not included in the given excerpt.

Answer: Model answer: The full speech also includes: (1) his remark that the Assembly's decision and the division of India were unavoidable and that partition was the only solution, though it caused pain; (2) his example of England and France, where centuries of religious conflict ended with time — showing that majority-minority bitterness also fades; (3) his praise of Emperor Akbar's tolerance and religious freedom as a model; (4) his clear statement that Pakistan would not be a theocratic state ruled by priests; and (5) his assurance that Hindus, Muslims and other minorities would all be equal citizens with full protection of life, property and faith.

Unit 2: Preservation of Nature

2.1 Reading Comprehension — Pre-reading

Question: Look at the two pictures (a clean, beautiful lake and a polluted, ruined water place) and compare and contrast them.

Answer: Model answer: The first picture shows pure nature — a calm, clear lake, green hills and clean water reflecting the sky. The second picture shows nature destroyed — dirty, dried and polluted land near a city, full of waste. One shows preservation of nature; the other shows its destruction by man.

Question: Guess the theme of the text you are going to study.

Answer: Model answer: The theme is likely the beauty of nature and man's deep memories connected with a natural place. It may also show how nature changes with the passage of time, and why such places should be preserved. The contrast between the clean lake and the ruined, polluted place in the pictures points to this theme of preservation of nature.

2.1 While-reading — Exercise 1: Deduce the contextual meaning of the words

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: marred.

Answer: marred — spoiled or damaged; made less beautiful or perfect.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: tarred.

Answer: tarred — covered with tar; here, a road surfaced with tar (a black sticky substance used on roads).

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: grooves.

Answer: grooves — here, familiar fixed tracks or paths; the mind returning into the old 'grooves' means falling back into old habits of memory.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: sneak.

Answer: sneak — to move quietly and secretly so that no one notices.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: illusion.

Answer: illusion — a false idea or belief; something that seems real but is not. The writer felt as if he was his father, which was an illusion.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: creepy.

Answer: creepy — strange and frightening; causing an uneasy feeling on the skin.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: moss.

Answer: moss — a small soft green plant that grows in thick layers on damp ground, rocks and cans.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: jollity.

Answer: jollity — cheerfulness and merriment; lively, happy enjoyment.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: sedative.

Answer: sedative — something that calms and makes one sleepy; here, the soft sound of the old motors acted like a sleeping, calming ingredient of summer sleep.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: petulant.

Answer: petulant — irritable and bad-tempered; here, the unpleasant, complaining whine of the new outboard motors.

2.1 Exercise 2 — Choose the correct option (Once More to the Lake)

Question: (1) In the essay, the writer is accompanied by his — brother, son, wife or pet?

Answer: (b) son — he took along his son, who had never had fresh water up his nose.

Question: (2) At the beginning, the writer characterises himself as which kind of man — lake-water, pond-water, salt-water or ordinary?

Answer: (c) salt-water man — as a grown man he had become a salt-water (sea) man, though his heart still belonged to the lake of his boyhood.

Question: (3) The word 'placidity' is used in the context of — peacefulness, calmness, loneliness or idleness?

Answer: (b) calmness — placidity means the calm, undisturbed stillness of the lake.

Question: (4) What was tapping on the roof of the writer's camp — mosquitoes, swan, squirrel or mouse?

Answer: (c) squirrel — in the morning the red squirrel would be on the roof, tapping out its happy routine.

Question: (5) At the end of the given essay the writer felt — fear of storm, danger of life, happy, or loneliness?

Answer: (c) happy — he had a good week at the camp, slept easily, and lay in bed happily remembering everything of the lake.

Question: (6) Who caught two fish before lunch — the son, the father, both, or the spinner?

Answer: (c) both son and father — the text says "We caught two fish" before they went back for a swim before lunch.

Question: (7) The writer revisited the lake with his son in which season?

Answer: (a) summer — they returned summer after summer, always for the month of August.

Question: (8) The writer's son had seen what, while travelling by train — weeds, lily pads, sheltered bay or wet woods?

Answer: (b) lily pads — the boy had seen lily pads only from the windows of a train.

Question: (9) The writer used to visit the lake situated where — in New York, in Maine, near his farmhouse, or in his school?

Answer: (b) in Maine — his father had rented a camp on a lake in Maine, and the family ate their meals at a nearby farmhouse.

Question: (10) For what purpose did the writer use to go to the lake — fishing, seeing waves, enjoying cool water, or swimming?

Answer: (a) fishing — he bought fish hooks and a spinner and returned to the lake for a week's fishing and to revisit the old place.

2.1 Exercise 3 — Past scene of the lake and later scene (five changes)

Question: Change 1: Write one thing of the past scene and its later scene.

Answer: Model answer: Past: there was no tarred road near the lake; the family reached it through woods and farms. Later: a tarred road now led to within half a mile of the shore.

Question: Change 2: Write one thing of the past scene and its later scene.

Answer: Model answer: Past: all boat motors were inboard, one-cylinder and two-cylinder, and made a sleepy, sedative sound. Later: campers all have outboard motors that make a petulant, irritable whining sound day and night.

Question: Change 3: Write one thing of the past scene and its later scene.

Answer: Model answer: Past: the writer went to the lake as a boy with his father and the whole family for the month of August. Later: he returns as a father himself, with his own son beside him.

Question: Change 4: Write one thing of the past scene and its later scene.

Answer: Model answer: Past: the boy rose first, dressed softly so as not to wake others, and sneaked out in the canoe along the shore. Later: the same routine is repeated, but now by his son's generation, while he himself feels the dual existence of father and son.

Question: Change 5: Write one thing of the past scene and its later scene.

Answer: Model answer: Past: the lake, the boat (same green colour, ribs broken in the same places), the dragonfly on the rod and the small waves were exactly the same. Later: almost everything is still the same — the writer concludes the years were a mirage; only the tar road and the outboard motors truly changed the place.

2.1 Exercise 4 — Similes and metaphors in the text

Question: Write five examples of similes from the text.

Answer: Model answer: (1) The sound of the new motors whined about one's ears 'like mosquitoes'. (2) The years 'were a mirage' is metaphoric comparison, while the lake is compared to 'an utterly enchanted sea'. Simile-style comparisons in the text include: the twin-cylinder motors 'purred' softly like a cat-like sound; the boat and lake being 'the same as it always had been'; and the writer feeling his identity shift 'as if' he were his father. Note: the text is richer in metaphors than in direct 'like/as' similes, so comparisons with 'like/as' above are the closest examples.

Question: Write five examples of metaphors from the text.

Answer: Model answer: (1) "The years were a mirage." (2) The lake as "this constant and trustworthy body of water" / "an utterly enchanted sea". (3) The sound of old motors as "a sedative, an ingredient of summer sleep". (4) The "grooves" of memory that lead the mind back. (5) The writer's "dual existence" — living as both father and son at the same time.

2.1 Post-reading — Exercise 5: Answer the following questions

Question: Why does the writer take a vacation at this particular lake?

Answer: Because this lake in Maine is the place of his boyhood holidays.

His father first rented a camp there in 1904, the family returned every August, and no place in the world seemed like it; the feeling to revisit the old place grew so strong that he bought fish hooks and a spinner and returned for a week's fishing.

Question: Which key concerns has the writer expressed in the text?

Answer: His key concerns are: how time may have spoiled (marred) this unique and beautiful spot; whether the tarred road and modern changes have desolated it; and the disturbing noise of the new outboard motors, which breaks the peace and the illusion that nothing has changed.

Question: How has the lake changed since the writer was a boy?

Answer: Very little, except two things: a tarred road now comes within half a mile of the shore, and the old quiet inboard motors have been replaced by noisy outboard motors. Everything else — the boat, the waves, the dragonfly, the water — remained exactly the same.

Question: What contrast does the writer make between the sea and the lake?

Answer: Model answer: The sea is vast, restless and ever-changing, while the lake is sheltered, constant and trustworthy — a body of water you can leave to its own devices for a few hours and come back to find it has not stirred; it gives peace, goodness and stillness which the noisy, shifting sea does not.

Question: Why does the writer repeatedly refer to the lake in relation to a 'wild lake'?

Answer: He clarifies that the lake had never been what you would call a wild lake: cottages were sprinkled around its shores and, although the shores were heavily wooded, it lay in farming country and some cottages were owned by nearby farmers. He repeats it to correct the reader's possible impression and to show the lake's gentle, settled character.

Question: Why is arriving at the lake less exciting now than in the past?

Answer: Model answer: Because he now arrives as a grown man with his son, not as an eager boy; the tarred road has taken away the sense of a remote, hidden place, and a strange dual existence — feeling himself both father and son — makes the arrival thoughtful and slightly creepy rather than purely exciting.

Question: How are the boat motors different in the present situation?

Answer: In the past all motors were inboard — one-cylinder 'one-lungers' that throbbed and fluttered and twin-cylinder ones that purred; their sound was a sedative, an ingredient of summer sleep. Now the campers all have outboard motors, which make a petulant, irritable sound in the daytime and whine about one's ears like mosquitoes at night.

Question: The writer treats the lake as a sacred, 'holy' spot. How does he develop this idea?

Answer: Model answer: He develops it by showing the lake as untouched by time — the same boat, the same waves chucking the rowboat under the chin, the dragonfly alighting on his rod exactly as before, the clear water, and the peace, goodness and jollity around it. The lake seems an 'utterly enchanted' and trustworthy place, a holy spot where the past is still alive.

Question: What kind of sensation persisted and grew in the mind of the writer?

Answer: The sensation of a dual existence persisted and grew stronger: while picking up a bait box, laying down a table fork or saying something, he felt that it was not he but his father who was doing or saying it — he sustained the illusion that he was his father and his son was himself as a boy. It gave him a creepy sensation.

Question: What is the central idea of the text?

Answer: The central idea is that beloved places of nature live unchanged in our memory and bind generations together: the writer, returning to his boyhood lake with his son, feels time disappear. It also gives the message that nature's peace should be preserved, because modern changes like tarred roads and noisy motors disturb it.

2.1 Exercise 6 — Recollect past impressions of nature in your city/village and the changes now

Question: Enlist your past impressions of natural things of your city or village, and the changes that have taken place now.

Answer: Model answer: Past impressions: green fields around our village, a clean canal with cool water, shady neem and mango trees, sparrows and doves in every courtyard, and fresh morning air. Changes now: many trees are cut, fields are replaced by houses, the canal water is polluted, birds are fewer, and the air carries smoke and dust. We must plant trees and keep water clean to preserve nature.

2.2 Writing — Exercise 1: Elements of the compare-contrast essay (Basketball and Football)

Question: Identify the similarities pointed out in the sample essay on Basketball and Football.

Answer: Similarities: both are played with a round ball; both offer many cardiovascular activities like running and keep a player in shape; in both, a referee judges the match; a player who breaks the rules commits a foul; and a score is kept in every game of both sports.

Question: Identify the differences pointed out in the sample essay on Basketball and Football.

Answer: Differences: a basketball player dribbles the ball with his hands while a footballer uses his feet; football is usually played outdoors on a large field while basketball is played indoors on a wooden field (court); basketball has 5 players and four quarters, while football has 11 players and two halves; also, a football player receives a red or yellow card for a foul while a basketball player is simply called upon to commit a foul.

Question: Identify the connectors (transition words) and the metaphor used in the sample essay.

Answer: Connectors: 'Both', 'So', 'After all', 'similarly', 'Although', 'yet', 'Usually' and in the conclusion 'To sum up' and 'both'. Metaphor: in the conclusion both games are called 'like heart of outdoor games' — the games are compared to a heart, the centre of outdoor sports.

2.2 Writing — Exercise 2: Identify elements of comparison and contrast in the essay on methods of communication

Question: Which similarity between current and previous methods of communication is given in the essay?

Answer: The similarity is in the forms of communication. In the past, written forms like letters were used frequently besides oral forms like telephone calls. Similarly, people nowadays also use both forms — written messages and emails alongside calls and face-to-face talk.

Question: Which differences between current and previous methods of communication are given in the essay?

Answer: Two differences: (1) Speed — in the past letters took days to arrive, while today's communication is instant. (2) Range of methods — in the past the tools were mainly the telephone and the letter, while today there is a vast array: email, text messages, video conferences, lectures and meetings via software like Skype, mobile phone apps, WeChat and social media platforms.

Question: Which comparison and contrast phrases are used in this essay?

Answer: Phrases used include: 'One similarity between...', 'Similarly', 'However, there are clearly many differences', 'Another significant difference', 'By comparison', 'In conclusion', 'While there are some similarities', 'such as' and 'besides'. These phrases signal where the writer compares and where he contrasts.

2.2 Writing — Exercise 3: Write a compare-contrast essay (one of the given topics)

Question: Write a compare-contrast essay on: School Life v/s College Life.

Answer: Model answer: School life and college life are two beautiful stages of a student's journey, with many similarities and differences. One similarity is that both are meant for learning: students attend classes, study books and appear in examinations in both. Another similarity is that both give us good friends and caring teachers. However, there are clearly many differences. In school, discipline is strict: uniform, fixed timetable and teachers watch every step, whereas in college students are free and responsible for themselves. Similarly, school students depend on teachers for every lesson, while college students study mostly on their own. In contrast, school life is carefree, but college life prepares a student for a practical career. In conclusion, both lives have their own charm; school builds our base and character, while college builds our future.

2.3 Oral Communication — Exercise 1: Identify the phrases of sharing information and ideas in the Aakash–Dharti conversation on Nature Question: In the conversation, which phrases are used to share bad news and to respond to disturbing information?

Answer: To share bad news, Aakash says: "I'm afraid I've got some bad news that air pollution could ruin our nature completely." Dharti responds to the disturbing information with phrases like "My goodness! Can you tell me in detail?" and "That's awful!" Later she responds positively with "Sounds great!" when Aakash suggests using paper bags instead of plastic bags.

2.3 Oral Communication — Exercise 2: Group discussion (share information and ideas, noting the points)

Question: Discuss in a group: Examination Results. Note the main points.

Answer: Model answer: Opening: "I have got some great news for you — our class result is out and most students have passed with good marks." Points noted: overall pass percentage is high; a few students failed in one subject and need support; toppers should be congratulated; weak students should be guided kindly, not discouraged; hard work before exams always brings success.

Question: Discuss in a group: A Sensational Cricket Match. Note the main points.

Answer: Model answer: Opening: "I have got some brilliant news to tell you — last night's cricket match was sensational!" Points noted: the match remained undecided till the last ball; our team needed ten runs in the final over; a young batsman hit a six and a four; the crowd celebrated wildly; it was a victory of teamwork and courage.

Question: Discuss in a group: Loss of Job During Pandemic. Note the main points.

Answer: Model answer: Opening: "I'm afraid I've got some bad news — many people lost their jobs during the pandemic." Response: "I'm sorry to hear such terrible news." Points noted: factories and shops were closed in lockdown; daily-wage workers suffered the most; families faced hunger and worry; governments and welfare organisations helped with food and money; online work grew afterwards.

Question: Discuss in a group: Electricity Shortage. Note the main points.

Answer: Model answer: Opening: "I regret to inform you that electricity shortage has increased again in our area." Points noted: load-shedding lasts many hours in summer; students and patients suffer the most; shortage is caused by less generation, line losses and wastage; solar energy and saving electricity are the solutions; everyone must switch off extra lights and fans.

2.3 Oral Communication — Exercise 3: Prepare and present orally in class using the sharing phrases (first line of this exercise is cut off in the printed book — see report note)

Question: Prepare an oral presentation in class on an assigned topic, using the phrases for sharing information and ideas given in this section.

Answer: Model answer: "Assalam-o-Alaikum, dear friends. I have got a bit of news to tell you about our college plantation drive. I'm glad to share that last week our class planted one hundred saplings around the college ground. Sounds great, doesn't it? But I'm afraid I've got some bad news too: some saplings dried up because they were not watered. That's awful, yet we can save the rest if every class adopts five trees and waters them daily. Let's protect nature together. Thank you."

2.4 Grammar — Exercise 1: Insert semicolons as needed

Question: (i) Insert a semicolon: a sentence saying all shops in our area used to be closed during the lockdown, now they are open all day.

Answer: All the shops in our area used to be closed during the lockdown; now they're open all day.

Question: (ii) Insert a semicolon: a sentence saying the government has wiped out all encroachments, consequently the roads outside the shopping malls have become wider.

Answer: The government has wiped out all encroachments; consequently, the roads outside the shopping malls have become wider.

Question: (iii) Insert a semicolon: a sentence saying because there was heavy fog in the morning, the services at the airport were closed.

Answer: Because there was heavy fog in the morning; the services at the airport were closed. (Better modern style: 'Because there was heavy fog in the morning, the services at the airport were closed.')

Question: (iv) Insert a semicolon: a sentence saying Babar was not excited about his seventeenth birthday, however his spirits improved when he opened his presents.

Answer: Babar was not excited about his seventeenth birthday; however, his spirits improved when he opened his presents.

2.4 Grammar — Exercise 2: Fix the errors in the use of semicolon in the paragraph (about a good student)

Question: Rewrite the given paragraph with correct semicolons (commas wrongly used before 'moreover' and 'therefore', and between independent clauses).

Answer: Corrected paragraph: "A good student is the one who is punctual, regular, and hard working; moreover, he has to be obedient to the teachers and respectful to class fellows. Teachers have to play a large part; the parents are equally responsible for developing such qualities. It goes beyond doubt that a nation's destiny is made in class rooms; therefore, the co-ordination between the teachers and the parents is a must so that the destiny makers should be led in right direction. The world is growing more competitive with the passage of time; and in this context, our present generation and the coming generations have to be jointly prepared by us."

2.4 Grammar — Exercise 3: Spot the errors of regular and irregular verbs in the Robert Goddard text

Question: Correct the verb error in: as a child, he 'become' interested in firecrackers.

Answer: became — correct sentence: When he was a child, he became interested in firecrackers. ('Become' is irregular: become–became–become.)

Question: Correct the verb error in: he 'thinked' about the possibility of space travel.

Answer: thought — correct sentence: He thought about the possibility of space travel. ('Think' is irregular: think–thought–thought; 'thinked' is wrong.)

Question: Correct the verb errors in: in his free time, he 'builded' rockets.

Answer: built — correct sentence: In his free time, he built rockets and took them to the field. ('Build' is irregular: build–built–built; 'builded' is wrong.)

Question: Correct the verb error in: the other professors 'laugh' at him (past context).

Answer: laughed — correct sentence: The other professors laughed at him. (Past tense is needed because the whole account is in the past.)

Question: Correct the verb error in: when the New York Times 'sawed' his article.

Answer: saw — correct sentence: When the New York Times saw his article, it reported that Goddard had less knowledge about science than a high school student. ('See' is irregular: see–saw–seen.)

Question: Correct the verb error in: Goddard 'want' to prove that the New York Times was wrong.

Answer: wanted — correct sentence: Goddard wanted to prove that the New York Times was wrong. (Past tense, agreeing with the narrative.)

Question: Correct the verb errors in: in 1926 he 'builded' a ten-foot rocket, 'putted' it into an open car, and 'drived' to his aunt's farm.

Answer: built, put, drove — correct sentence: In 1926, he built a ten-foot rocket, put it into an open car, and drove to his aunt's nearby farm. ('Put' keeps the same form in the past; 'drive' is irregular: drive–drove–driven.)

Question: Correct the verb error in: he put the rocket in a field and 'light' the fuse.

Answer: lit — correct sentence: He put the rocket in a field and lit the fuse. ('Light' here takes the past form 'lit'.)

Question: Correct the verb error in: then it 'felled' into the field.

Answer: fell — correct sentence: Then it fell into the field. ('Fall' is irregular: fall–fell–fallen; 'felled' means to cut down a tree.)

Question: Correct the verb errors in: no one 'maked' fun of him after he 'become' successful.

Answer: made, became — correct sentence: No one made fun of him after he became successful. ('Make' is irregular: make–made–made.)

Question: Correct the verb error in: the American rocket Apollo 11 'taked' the first men to the moon.

Answer: took — correct sentence: In 1969, the American rocket Apollo 11 took the first men to the moon. ('Take' is irregular: take–took–taken.)

2.4 Grammar — Exercise 4: Fill in the blanks with the appropriate verb form (Ajrak passage)

Question: Fill the blank (appreciate): Ajrak is ___ as such throughout Pakistan.

Answer: appreciated — "It is appreciated as such throughout Pakistan." (Passive form, because Ajrak receives the appreciation.)

Question: Fill the blanks (be, produce): The motifs and patterns on Ajrak ___ traditionally ___ by resist block printing.

Answer: are, produced — "The motif and patterns on Ajrak are traditionally produced by resist block printing." (Present passive with plural subject.)

Question: Fill the blank (manufacture): Ajrak is ___ in various blends of deep crimson and other diffused blue colours.

Answer: manufactured — "Ajrak is manufactured in various blends of deep crimson and other defused blue colours." (Present passive.)

Question: Fill the blank (complete): The production of traditional Ajrak is a complex process comprising twenty-one stages and ___ almost in thirty days.

Answer: completed — "...and completed almost in thirty days, by using only indigenous materials." (Passive participle form.)

Question: Fill the blanks (coil, wrap, soak): Cut-to-size cloth is ___ and ___ on a copper vat and then ___ in Eruca Sativa seed oil for fifteen days.

Answer: coiled, wrapped, soaked — "Cut to size cloth is coiled and wrapped on a copper vat and then soaked in Eruca Sativa seed oil for fifteen days." (All passive participles.)

Question: Fill the blank (do): First printing of the white outline of the pattern by paste of lime and Acacia gum is ___.

Answer: done — "First printing of the white outline of the pattern ... is done." (Irregular verb do–did–done, passive form.)

Question: Fill the blank (protect): This process ___ the part of cloth to get imprinted.

Answer: protects — "This process protects the part of cloth to get imprinted." (Active present form, singular subject 'process'.)

Question: Fill the blank (dip): ...and the rest of areas turn crimson when ___ in the alizarin dye.

Answer: dipped — "...when dipped in the alizarin dye." (Passive participle after 'when'.)

Question: Fill the blank (be): In the next stage, water-soaked fabric ___ dipped in alizarin in a copper vat.

Answer: is — "Water soaked fabric is dipped in alizarin in a copper vat to enrich the crimson." (Present passive.)

Question: Fill the blank (use): Camel dung is ___ to remove excess tanning and make the white clear and brilliant.

Answer: used — "Camel dung is used to remove excess tanning..." (Present passive of 'use'.)

Question: Fill the blank (facilitate): Alternate drenching and drying help to bleach the fabric and also ___ the maturing of the colours.

Answer: facilitate — "...and also facilitate the maturing of the colours." (Base form, parallel with 'help'.)

Unit 3: Managing Change

3.1 Reading Comprehension — Pre-reading

Question: What makes you a happy person?

Answer: Model answer: Love of family, good health, true friends, honest work and a contented heart make me a happy person. Real happiness comes from gratitude and simple living, not from show and wealth.

Question: Do you think money can make a person happy?

Answer: Model answer: Money can buy comforts and remove many hardships, but it cannot buy peace, love or health. A rich person may still be unhappy, as Mathilde's story shows: the desire for more wealth and show made her miserable for ten years.

Question: Have you ever borrowed anything precious and lost it?

Answer: Model answer: No, I have never lost a borrowed precious thing, because I return borrowed things quickly and keep them with great care. If I ever lost one, I would honestly tell the owner at once and replace it, instead of hiding the truth.

3.1 While-reading — Exercise 1: Deduce the contextual meaning of the words

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: elite.

Answer: elite — the richest, most powerful and most respected group of people in a society.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: fancy.

Answer: fancy — expensive, decorative and showy; not plain or simple (as fancy clothes).

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: thrilled.

Answer: thrilled — extremely pleased and excited.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: embarrassed.

Answer: embarrassed — feeling ashamed or uncomfortable in front of others; Mathilde felt embarrassed to have no jewellery.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: retrace.

Answer: retrace — to go back over the same route again in order to search; Loisel retraced their steps to find the necklace.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: horrified.

Answer: horrified — extremely shocked and frightened; Loisel was dejected and horrified at the loss of the necklace.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: scrub.

Answer: scrub — to rub hard with a brush and water in order to clean; after becoming poor, Mathilde scrubbed the laundry herself.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: shabby.

Answer: shabby — old, worn-out and of poor quality; they returned home in a shabby cab.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: strolling.

Answer: strolling — walking slowly in a relaxed way for pleasure; Mme. Forestier was strolling with a child.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of: clasp.

Answer: clasp — to hold tightly with the hands; Mme. Forestier clasped Mathilde's hands in sympathy.

3.1 Exercise 2 — Choose the correct option (The Necklace)

Question: (1) Who was working in education — Mathilde, Loisel, Mansion or Forestier?

Answer: (b) Loisel — he was a clerk who worked in the Ministry of Education.

Question: (2) Mathilde belonged to which kind of family — rich, poor, middle class or elite?

Answer: (c) middle class — she was a pretty, charming, middle-class girl, born and married in a modest family.

Question: (3) Loisel gave Mathilde four hundred francs to do what — buy outfits, go to the theatre, buy jewellery, or help her friend?

Answer: (a) buy outfits — he gave her the four hundred francs he had saved for a rifle, so that she could buy a proper party dress.

Question: (4) Mathilde seemed happiest when she did what — received the invitation, danced in the party, bought a new dress, or borrowed the necklace?

Answer: (b) danced in the party — at the party she was the centre of attention, the prettiest one there, stylish, smiling and very happy as she danced joyfully.

Question: (5) What is the main theme of 'The Necklace'?

Answer: (a) We suffer for our vanities — Mathilde's vanity and love of show cost her and her husband ten years of poverty and hard labour.

Question: (6) When she had borrowed the necklace, Mme. Loisel spent the whole evening doing what?

Answer: (d) dancing with many men — she danced joyfully the whole evening and everybody, including the minister, noticed her.

Question: (7) In order to pay for the necklace, M. Loisel does all of the following EXCEPT what — contribute his entire inheritance, make deals with loan swindlers (moneylenders), borrow money from the bank, or ...?

Answer: (c) borrowing money from the bank — he did NOT borrow from a bank; he used his eighteen thousand francs of inheritance and borrowed the rest from individuals and moneylenders at very high interest.

Question: (8) Throughout the story, Mme. Loisel values what most — love, appearances, knowledge or wisdom?

Answer: (b) appearances — she always valued fine clothes, jewellery and being admired; her love of appearances is the root of her suffering.

Question: (9) After the loss and repayment, Mathilde was looking like what — rich, proud, peasant or miser?

Answer: (c) peasant — during the ten hard years she dressed like a peasant, did all the housework herself, and at the end looked like an old woman.

Question: (10) Mathilde bought another necklace for how many thousand francs — sixty, fifty, thirty-six or fifty-six?

Answer: (c) thirty six — they found a necklace exactly like the first; it cost forty thousand francs, but they could get it for thirty-six thousand.

3.1 Exercise 3 — Mark (✓) for true and (X) for false

Question: Statement 1: At first, Mathilde demanded a diamond necklace from her husband. True or false?

Answer: False (X) — she first demanded money for a party dress; the idea of borrowing jewellery came later, from her husband, and the necklace was borrowed from her friend, not demanded from her husband.

Question: Statement 2: Mathilde wept after returning from her friend's home. True or false?

Answer: False (X) — she burst into tears at home before the party because she had no party dress; after visiting her friend and borrowing the necklace, she was happy, not weeping.

Question: Statement 3: Poverty ruined Mathilde's life and looks. True or false?

Answer: True (✓) — ten years of debt, hard housework and worry made her look like an old woman and destroyed her beauty and comforts.

Question: Statement 4: The story of 'The Necklace' tells about greed and hope. True or false?

Answer: True (✓) — the story shows Mathilde's greed for luxury and show, and the couple's hope and hard struggle of ten years to repay the debt honestly.

Question: Statement 5: The idiom 'burst into tears' means to weep intensely. True or false?

Answer: True (✓) — 'burst into tears' means to suddenly start crying strongly; Mathilde burst into tears when she had no party dress.

Question: Statement 6: 'Sous' and 'francs' are words that indicate currency. True or false?

Answer: True (✓) — francs were the currency of France and sous were small coins; Loisel copied documents for five sous a page.

Question: Statement 7: After seven days, they decided to replace the diamond necklace. True or false?

Answer: True (✓) — by the end of the week they had given up all hope of finding it, and Loisel said, "We must replace the necklace."

Question: Statement 8: In the end of the story, the same diamond necklace was returned. True or false?

Answer: False (X) — the same necklace was never returned; they bought a new necklace exactly like it for thirty-six thousand francs, and the original had in fact been fake, worth at most five hundred francs.

3.1 Post-reading — Exercise 4: Answer the following questions

Question: Why did Mr. Loisel expect his wife to be pleased to receive the invitation?

Answer: Because it was an invitation to a grand party at the Ministerial Mansion, everybody wanted to go, but very few clerks could get it. Since Mathilde never had a chance to go out, he thought she would be thrilled to receive it.

Question: What was Mme. Loisel's reaction on reading the invitation?

Answer: Instead of being pleased, she tossed it aside angrily and said, "What good is that to me?" She gave her husband a sour look and complained that she had nothing suitable to wear to such a party.

Question: How was the life of Mme. Loisel before the loss of the necklace?

Answer: Before the loss, she lived a modest but comfortable middle-class life: she had a maid, a decent apartment, and a caring husband, yet she remained unhappy because she always daydreamed about being rich, owning fancy clothes and expensive jewellery and attending grand parties of the elite.

Question: What efforts were made to find Mme. Forestier's necklace?

Answer: They searched everywhere in the apartment but found nothing. Loisel retraced their steps, searching for hours along the route they had taken, and kept searching until about seven o'clock in the morning, but he had no luck finding the necklace; by the end of the week they had given up all hope.

Question: Describe in your own words how the Loisels' life changed after they had paid for the new necklace.

Answer: Model answer: Their life changed completely during the repayment years: they dismissed their maid, moved to a small cheap apartment, Mathilde cooked and did all the housework herself, scrubbed laundry, carried water and bargained over every coin, while Loisel worked evenings as a bookkeeper and copied documents at night. After ten years the debt was paid, but Mathilde had become an old-looking woman; their youth, beauty and comforts were gone.

Question: What was Mme. Forestier's reaction on seeing Mme. Loisel before she figured out who she was?

Answer: She was surprised to be spoken to so familiarly by an old-looking stranger; she did not recognize her and said in confusion, "But... madam... I don't recognize... You must be mistaken." Only when Mathilde gave her name did she cry out in shock at how much her friend had changed.

Question: How did Mr. and Mme. Loisel replace the necklace?

Answer: They found a necklace exactly like the first one. It cost forty thousand francs but they got it for thirty-six thousand. Loisel used the eighteen thousand francs he had inherited from his father and borrowed the rest from many people and from moneylenders at very high interest, and Mathilde returned the new necklace to her friend in its case.

Question: What was Mme. Forestier's reaction when the necklace was returned?

Answer: She received it coldly and said, "You should have returned it sooner. I might have needed it." She did not even open the case, so she never noticed that the necklace had been replaced by another one.

Question: How did Mr. Loisel contribute to the cost of the new necklace?

Answer: He contributed the whole eighteen thousand francs he had inherited from his father, borrowed the remaining amount from one person a thousand, from another four hundred, a hundred here and sixty there, and the rest from moneylenders at very high interest. Afterwards he also worked evenings as a bookkeeper and copied documents at night for five sous a page to help repay the loans.

Question: How had Mme. Loisel's sacrifices been in vain?

Answer: All her ten years of poverty, hard work and lost beauty were in vain because the necklace she had replaced at such a huge cost had never been real: at the end Mme. Forestier told her that the original necklace was fake and worth at most five hundred francs. One moment of vanity had cost her the best years of her life for nothing.

3.1 Exercise 5 — Describe the characters in your own words

Question: Describe the character of Mathilde.

Answer: Model answer: Mathilde is a pretty and charming middle-class woman who is dissatisfied with her modest life. She is vain, dreams of riches, fine clothes, jewellery and admiration, and is ungrateful for her husband's love and sacrifices. After losing the necklace she shows courage and honesty: she bravely faces poverty and works hard for ten years to repay the debt, but her vanity destroys her youth and beauty.

Question: Describe the character of Loisel.

Answer: Model answer: Loisel is a kind, simple and loving husband who works as a clerk in the Ministry of Education. He sacrifices his own wish (the rifle he had saved four hundred francs for) for his wife's happiness, and when the necklace is lost he honestly takes huge loans at high interest and works day and night for ten years without blaming his wife.

Question: Describe the character of Mme. Forestier.

Answer: Model answer: Mme. Forestier is Mathilde's rich friend. She is generous in lending her jewellery and lets Mathilde choose freely from her large jewellery box, but she is careless about the value of her things — she never tells Mathilde the necklace is fake, and she receives its return coldly without even opening the case. Her final revelation exposes the irony of the whole story.

3.1 Exercise 6 — Summarize the story 'The Necklace' in your own words

Question: Summarize the story 'The Necklace' in your own words.

Answer: Model answer: Mathilde, a pretty middle-class woman married to a clerk, always dreams of riches. Invited to a grand party, she takes four hundred francs from her husband for a dress and borrows a diamond necklace from her rich friend, Mme. Forestier. She shines at the party but loses the necklace on the way home. The couple buy an identical necklace for thirty-six thousand francs with inherited money and heavy loans, and spend ten years in poverty repaying the debt. Mathilde becomes old and worn. At last she meets her friend and learns the shocking truth: the original necklace was fake, worth only five hundred francs. Her vanity had ruined her life.

3.1 Exercise 7 — Imagine yourself in the same situation; mention only two strategies

Question: Imagine yourself in Mathilde's situation (a borrowed precious thing is lost). Which two strategies would you adopt to get out of it?

Answer: Model answer: (1) I would immediately and honestly tell the owner the truth about the loss and ask for time and guidance; honesty could have saved Mathilde, because the necklace was fake. (2) I would search thoroughly once more, report to the police, and if replacement became necessary, I would replace it gradually through honest earning and instalments instead of taking loans at very high interest.

3.1 Exercise 8 — Analyse 'The Necklace' according to the elements of story (diagram)

Question: Analyse 'The Necklace' according to Exposition, Rising Action, Climax, Falling Action and Resolution.

Answer: Model answer: Exposition: Mathilde, a pretty middle-class woman married to clerk Loisel, is introduced; she is unhappy and dreams of luxury. Rising Action: the invitation arrives, she buys a dress with her husband's savings, borrows the necklace, and shines at the party — then discovers the necklace is lost, and the couple struggle and take loans to replace it. Climax: after ten years of poverty the debt is paid and Mathilde meets Mme. Forestier and tells her the truth. Falling Action: Mathilde proudly explains how they bought a replacement for thirty-six thousand francs. Resolution: Mme. Forestier reveals the original necklace was fake, worth at most five hundred francs — the shocking end of the story.

3.2 Writing — Exercise 1 (sample 'Older Sister'): Locate the elements of the narrative incident in the sample Question: Identify the narrative elements (setting the scene, thoughts/feelings and observation, climax, actions, spoken words, impression) in the sample narrative 'Older Sister'.

Answer: Model answer: Setting the scene: a school-day morning — mother calls the children, breakfast, the elder sister (Hina) must take her little sister Sara to kindergarten on Sara's first day. Thoughts/feelings and observation: Hina feels proud to be the older sister yet annoyed at being treated like a little kid; she observes the garden, trees and then the big fierce dog. Climax: the dog growls and steps closer; Hina grabs Sara's hand and shouts "RUN!" Actions and spoken words: they run fast, see the school's bright red door, and Hina says, "We made it!" Impression of place and experience: they decide not to tell mother and to take a different way to school tomorrow — the experience made Hina brave and responsible.

3.2 Writing — Exercise 2: Narrate a happy / sad or surprising incident of your life

Question: Narrate a happy, sad or surprising incident of your life, using the elements given in the sample.

Answer: Model answer: "Hurry up, or the bus will leave!" called my father one cold winter morning. It was the day of my board examination result, and my hands were trembling as I opened the result card on my phone. For a moment I could not believe my eyes — I had stood first in my school. "Alhamdulillah!" I cried, and ran to my mother, who hugged me with tears of joy in her eyes. My father, who usually stays calm, smiled proudly and said, "Your hard work has paid off." That surprising moment taught me that sincere effort is never wasted, and it filled our small home with a happiness I will never forget.

3.2 Writing — Exercise 3: Analyse the sample story according to the story diagram (Unit 3.1)

Question: Analyse the sample story 'Older Sister' according to the story diagram — Exposition, Rising Action, Climax, Falling Action, Resolution.

Answer: Model answer: Exposition: Hina and her little sister Sara are introduced at home on Sara's first day of kindergarten; mother instructs Hina to take Sara safely to school. Rising Action: the sisters walk past the garden and leafy trees; Hina feels proud, but a big fierce dog appears and growls at them, and Sara gets frightened. Climax: the dog steps closer with sharp teeth; Hina grabs Sara's hand and shouts "RUN!" and they run for their lives. Falling Action: breathing hard, they see the bright red door of the school and reach it safely. Resolution: Hina says, "We made it!" gives Sara a high-five, and decides not to tell mother and to go by a different way tomorrow.

3.2 Writing — Exercise 4: Write an incident that changed you in a significant way (list incidents and how each changed you)

Question: Use pre-writing strategies, list an incident that changed you significantly, and write it, indicating how it changed you.

Answer: Model answer: Incident list (pre-writing): (1) I wasted a whole term and failed a test — changed me to value time. (2) I helped an injured stranger on the road — changed me to be kind without reward. Chosen incident: In Class IX I wasted my term in games and failed my monthly test. I felt ashamed before my parents and teacher. That failure changed me completely: I made a timetable, studied daily, and in the annual examination I passed with A grade. The incident changed me from a careless boy into a responsible and punctual student.

3.2 Writing — Exercise 5: Check your partner's story (Exercise 4) for all elements

Question: Check your partner's story written in Exercise 4 — make sure it has all the elements and follows the sample.

Answer: Model answer: Checklist applied to the partner's story: Hook — present, an opening line catches attention (✓). Scene set — characters, time and place are clear (✓). 'Show, don't tell' — feelings shown through actions and dialogue (✓). Supporting evidence — events prove the change claimed (✓). Passage of time — events are in order with transition words first, then, finally (✓). Transitions — paragraphs connect smoothly (✓). Moral/conclusion — the lesson learnt is stated at the end (✓). Corrections suggested: two spelling mistakes and one missing transition word were pointed out and corrected.

3.3 Oral Communication — Exercise 1: Acknowledge others' contribution orally (scenarios)

Question: Scenario 1: The forest officer of your area visits your college for a further plantation drive. Acknowledge his contribution orally.

Answer: Model answer: "Assalam-o-Alaikum, Sir. I would like to express my deepest appreciation to you for visiting our college and guiding our plantation drive. This green campus would not have been possible without your support and nurturing. The trees you helped us plant will give shade, clean air and beauty to generations of students. We are deeply indebted to you, Sir."

Question: Scenario 2: Your college principal has organised and managed an event to develop awareness about environmental cleanliness. Acknowledge his contribution orally.

Answer: Model answer: "Respected Principal Sahib, I also wish to thank you for organising and managing this wonderful awareness event about environmental cleanliness. You played a decisive role in making it a success and provided us with encouragement and patience throughout the programme. Special thanks to you, Sir, for teaching us that a clean environment is everyone's duty."

3.3 Oral Communication — Exercise 2: Acknowledge and appreciate a philanthropist

Question: Acknowledge and appreciate the contribution of Dr. Adeeb Rizvi.

Answer: Model answer: "I would like to express my deepest appreciation to Dr. Adeeb Rizvi, the founder of SIUT, who has given free treatment, including dialysis and transplants, to millions of poor patients. His service is instrumental in saving countless lives, and this noble work would not have been possible without his lifelong dedication. The whole nation is deeply indebted to him."

Question: Acknowledge and appreciate the contribution of Abdul Sattar Edhi.

Answer: Model answer: "Special thanks to Abdul Sattar Edhi, the richest poor man, whose Edhi Foundation runs the world's largest ambulance service, orphanages, shelter homes and free kitchens for the helpless. He was instrumental in serving humanity without any discrimination of religion or caste. I'm deeply grateful to him for teaching us that humanity is the greatest religion."

Question: Acknowledge and appreciate the contribution of any philanthropist of your community.

Answer: Model answer: "I'm also grateful to Haji Sahib of our town, who built a free dispensary and a water filtration plant for our neighbourhood. He provided poor families with free medicines and clean drinking water throughout the year. This would not have been possible without his generous support, and our whole community wishes to thank him from the core of our hearts."

3.4 Grammar — Exercise 1: Find and correct pronoun–antecedent agreement errors in the paragraph (dollhouses)

Question: Sentence (1): Kathy has always liked dollhouses, and she got an idea for a business from 'their' hobby. Is the pronoun correct?

Answer: Incorrect — 'their' should be 'her'. Kathy is singular and feminine, so the correct sentence is: "...she got an idea for a business from her hobby."

Question: Sentence (2): Now, she and her brothers make dollhouses for sale. Is there a pronoun error?

Answer: No error — there is no faulty pronoun in this sentence; 'she and her brothers' is a correct compound subject.

Question: Sentence (3): Neither she nor her brothers give all of 'her' time to the business. Is the pronoun correct?

Answer: Incorrect — with 'neither... nor', the pronoun agrees with the nearer antecedent, 'her brothers' (plural), so it should be 'their': "Neither she nor her brothers give all of their time to the business."

Question: Sentence (4): Still, the team makes all its spending money from 'their' sales. Is the pronoun correct?

Answer: Incorrect — 'team' is a collective noun acting as a single unit here, so the pronoun should be singular 'its': "...the team makes all its spending money from its sales."

Question: Sentence (5): Kathy's elder brother assembles the pieces. Is there a pronoun error?

Answer: No error — this sentence contains no pronoun at all, so there is nothing to correct.

Question: Sentence (6): He chooses the plywood, cuts it to scale, and assembles the pieces. Is there a pronoun error?

Answer: No error — 'He' correctly refers to Kathy's elder brother (singular, masculine) and 'it' to the plywood (singular, neuter).

Question: Sentence (7): Her younger brother, Max, paints the houses inside and out, giving it details like doors, windows, and shutters. Is there a pronoun error?

Answer: No error — 'Her' correctly refers to Kathy and 'it' to each house being painted; the pronouns agree with their antecedents.

Question: Sentence (8): While Murray and Max do 'his' jobs, Kathy buys miniature furniture. Is the pronoun correct?

Answer: Incorrect — 'Murray and Max' is a plural compound antecedent, so

'his' should be 'their': "While Murray and Max do their jobs, Kathy buys miniature furniture."

Question: Sentence (9): Then she sews curtains, rugs, tablecloths, and bedspreads to make each house special. Is there a pronoun error?

Answer: No error — 'she' correctly refers to Kathy, and no other pronoun is faulty.

Question: Sentence (10): From October until mid-December, the crew takes turns selling its products at craft sales. Is there a pronoun error?

Answer: No error — 'crew' acts as a single unit, so the singular pronoun 'its' is correct.

3.4 Grammar — Exercise 2: Encircle the pronoun that correctly completes each sentence (also underline the antecedent)

Question: (i) Each of the boys on the team is wearing (his, their) new uniform. Choose the correct pronoun and name the antecedent.

Answer: his — antecedent: 'Each' (singular indefinite pronoun), so a singular pronoun is used: "Each of the boys on the team is wearing his new uniform."

Question: (ii) Many have expressed (his or her, their) support for our plan. Choose the correct pronoun and name the antecedent.

Answer: their — antecedent: 'Many' (always plural), so: "Many have expressed their support for our plan."

Question: (iii) Neither of the women has told me (her, their) opinion. Choose the correct pronoun and name the antecedent.

Answer: her — antecedent: 'Neither' (singular), and the referents are women, so: "Neither of the women has told me her opinion."

Question: (iv) When the team scored a touchdown, the crowd threw (its, their) hats in the air. Choose the correct pronoun and name the antecedent.

Answer: their — antecedent: 'the crowd', whose members are acting individually (each throwing his own hat), so a plural pronoun is used: "...the crowd threw their hats in the air."

Question: (v) Neither Ali nor his sisters have bought a gift for (her, their) brother. Choose the correct pronoun and name the antecedent.

Answer: their — with 'neither... nor' the pronoun agrees with the nearer antecedent, 'his sisters' (plural): "Neither Ali nor his sisters have bought a gift for their brother."

Question: (vi) Scuba divers are taught that (you, they) should check (your, their) equipment. Choose the correct pronouns and name the antecedent.

Answer: they, their — antecedent: 'Scuba divers' (third person plural): "Scuba divers are taught that they should check their equipment."

Question: (vii) Samar and Qavi will present (his, their) routine before the other gymnasts do. Choose the correct pronoun and name the antecedent.

Answer: their — antecedent: 'Samar and Qavi', a compound subject joined by 'and' (plural): "Samar and Qavi will present their routine..."

Question: (viii) Not one hiker would set out without (his or her, their) compass. Choose the correct pronoun and name the antecedent.

Answer: his or her — antecedent: 'Not one' (singular indefinite): "Not one hiker would set out without his or her compass."

Question: (ix) Yasmeen and her sisters shop for clothes here because (you, they) can find good bargains. Choose the correct pronoun and name the antecedent.

Answer: they — antecedent: 'Yasmeen and her sisters' (third person plural): "...because they can find good bargains."

Question: (x) Anyone who wants a job should bring (his or her, their) application to me. Choose the correct pronoun and name the antecedent.

Answer: his or her — antecedent: 'Anyone' (singular indefinite pronoun), and 'his or her' is treated as its singular pronoun: "Anyone who wants a job should bring his or her application to me."

3.4 Grammar — Exercise 3: Spot the errors of pronoun–antecedent agreement in the Malakhro text

Question: Correct the pronoun error in: the renowned Malakhro players participate to showcase 'his' strength.

Answer: their — players is plural, so: "...players participate in this traditional event to showcase their strength to pull down their opponents." ('His' wrongly treats the plural players as one man.)

Question: Correct the pronoun error in: each one holds the opponent's waist cloth and tries to throw 'them' to the ground.

Answer: him — 'each one' and 'the opponent' are singular, so: "Each one then holds onto the opponent's waist cloth and tries to throw him to the ground."

Question: Correct the pronoun error in: many of the players are professionals who earn 'its' living by participating in this sport.

Answer: their — 'many of the players' is plural, so: "Many of the players are professionals who earn their living by participating in this sport."

Question: Correct the pronoun error in: almost everybody in Pakistan has heard of this sport, even if 'they' haven't seen it.

Answer: he or she hasn't — 'everybody' is a singular indefinite pronoun, so: "Almost everybody in Pakistan has heard of this popular and traditional sport, even if he or she hasn't seen it."

3.4 Grammar — Exercise 5 (Punctuation: Use of Comma): Insert commas wherever necessary

Question: (1) Insert commas: a sentence saying Siddiq Mirza, a lawyer, may be appointed for governor.

Answer: Siddiq Mirza, a lawyer, may be appointed for governor. ('A lawyer' is a non-restrictive appositive set off by commas.)

Question: (2) Insert commas: a sentence saying if you ever need a ride, a slower one, please let me know.

Answer: If you ever need a ride, a slower one, please let me know. ('A slower one' is an appositive phrase breaking the continuity of the sentence.)

Question: (3) Insert commas: a sentence saying the winner of the contest, who arrived from the US last week, will receive 1 million.

Answer: The winner of the contest, who arrived from the US last week, will receive 1 million. ('Who arrived from the US last week' is a non-restrictive clause set off by commas.)

Question: (4) Insert commas: a sentence saying Kabir, a writer and a poet, is very obedient to his parents.

Answer: Kabir, a writer and a poet, is very obedient to his parents. ('A writer and a poet' is an appositive set off by commas.)

Question: (5) Insert commas: a sentence saying the captain ordered the troops to assemble the navy boat, a large rowboat.

Answer: The captain ordered the troops to assemble the navy boat, a large rowboat. ('A large rowboat' is an appositive renaming 'the navy boat'.)

Question: (6) Insert commas: a sentence saying Oliver Twist, which was Dickens's second novel, is a classic.

Answer: Oliver Twist, which was Dickens's second novel, is a classic. ('Which was Dickens's second novel' is a non-restrictive clause set off by commas.)

Question: (7) Insert commas, if necessary: a sentence saying the lamp which my friend gave me is beside my bed.

Answer: No commas are needed: "The lamp which my friend gave me is beside my bed." The clause 'which my friend gave me' is restrictive — it is essential to identify which lamp is meant, so it is not set off by commas.

Question: (8) Insert commas: a sentence saying Mr. and Mrs. Kareem, our neighbours for the past eight years, are moving to Turkey.

Answer: Mr. and Mrs. Kareem, our neighbours for the past eight years, are moving to Turkey. ('Our neighbours for the past eight years' is a non-restrictive appositive set off by commas.)

3.4 Grammar — Exercise 6: Combine the sentences using a comma around a dependent word or group of words (Set 01 is the book's example)

Question: Set 02: Combine — Kobe makes millions of dollars a year; Kobe is a basketball player.

Answer: Kobe, a basketball player, makes millions of dollars a year.

Question: Set 03: Combine — a giant plane was launched in 1970; a Boeing 474 (as printed in the book) was launched in 1970.

Answer: A Boeing 474, a giant plane, was launched in 1970.

Question: Set 04: Combine — my brother's car is the envy of my friends; my brother's car is a sporty red convertible with bucket seats.

Answer: My brother's car, a sporty red convertible with bucket seats, is the envy of my friends.

Question: Set 05: Combine — the head surgeon took her nephew on a hospital tour; the head surgeon was an expert in organ transplant procedures.

Answer: The head surgeon, an expert in organ transplant procedures, took her nephew on a hospital tour.

Unit 4: Technology Smart & Tech-Savvy

4.1 Reading Comprehension — Pre-reading

Question: (1) What does the picture show? Think for a minute and write down the names of the devices.

Answer: Model answer: The picture shows modern smart devices, such as a smartphone, a smart watch, wireless earbuds, a smart speaker/display, a digital photo frame, a phone game controller, a selfie stick and other smart home gadgets. These devices show how technology has become a part of our daily life.

Question: (2) How has technology evolved over the period of time?

Answer: Model answer: Technology has evolved step by step, from simple tools and Gutenberg's movable type to the telephone and the mobile phone. Earlier, information was recorded and sent in analog form through physical things, but now it is processed in digital form through bits, which has made it easier, cheaper and faster to develop, store and transmit information.

Question: (3) List down technologies recently discovered/invented.

Answer: Model answer: Recently discovered or invented technologies include artificial intelligence (AI) assistants, 5G internet, foldable smartphones, smart watches and wearables, electric and self-driving cars, drones, 3D printing, telemedicine apps and cloud computing. These inventions are changing the way we live, work and learn.

4.1 While-reading — Exercise 1 (contextual meanings)

Question: (1) Give the contextual meaning of "innovation".

Answer: Innovation means the introduction of a new idea, method or invention. In the text it refers to the new advances in technology that are driving change in the world.

Question: (2) Give the contextual meaning of "optimists".

Answer: Optimists are people who always look at the bright side of things and expect good results. In the text, optimists welcomed the new technological breakthroughs as the beginning of a new era.

Question: (3) Give the contextual meaning of "manipulate".

Answer: Manipulate means to handle, control or use something skilfully. In the text it is used for handling information — to develop, organize and use data easily with the help of technology.

Question: (4) Give the contextual meaning of "heralded".

Answer: Heralded means announced or welcomed as the sign of something new that is coming. In the text, the breakthroughs in technology heralded, that is, announced the arrival of a new era.

Question: (5) Give the contextual meaning of "hazards".

Answer: Hazards means dangers or risks that can cause harm. In the text it refers to natural dangers of atmospheric, geological, hydrological and biological origin, such as floods, earthquakes and diseases.

Question: (6) Give the contextual meaning of "hurricanes".

Answer: Hurricanes are very violent tropical storms with strong winds and heavy rain. In the text they are mentioned among the natural phenomena that technology helps us to forecast, monitor and manage.

Question: (7) Give the contextual meaning of "proliferated".

Answer: Proliferated means increased rapidly in number or spread quickly. In the text it is used for learning games for children, which have spread and multiplied very fast.

Question: (8) Give the contextual meaning of "impending".

Answer: Impending means about to happen very soon, usually something unpleasant. In the text it describes problems, such as a fault in a vehicle, that are going to occur and about which technology warns the driver in real time.

Question: (9) Give the contextual meaning of "calamities".

Answer: Calamities means great disasters or misfortunes that cause serious damage and suffering. In the text it refers to epidemics, pandemics and other hazards that have threatened the human race again and again.

Question: (10) Give the contextual meaning of "lessen".

Answer: Lessen means to make something smaller in amount or effect, that is, to reduce. In the text, technology cannot prevent a pandemic, but it can lessen, or reduce, its bad impact.

4.1 While-reading — Exercise 2 (words with "Tele")

Question: (1) Find the "tele" word "telephone" in the text and describe it.

Answer: Telephone (tele + phone) is a device used for speaking to people at distant places by means of electrical signals. It changed voices into electric waves that could be played back on speakers.

Question: (2) Find the "tele" word "tele-pointers" in the text and describe it.

Answer: Tele-pointers are the new-generation pointing/writing devices mentioned in the text. They have taken the place of the pen, pencil and old writing models for recording information.

Question: (3) Find the "tele" word "television" in the text and describe it.

Answer: Television (tele + vision) is a system that sends moving pictures and sound over a distance. In the text, the existing analog television spectrum is mentioned as one of the networks used for public safety and emergency response.

Question: (4) Find the "tele" word "teleschool" in the text and describe it.

Answer: Teleschool means teaching and providing course material to students at a distance through telecommunication. In the text, students receive course materials online through teleschool without leaving their homes.

Question: (5) Find the "tele" word "telemedicine" in the text and describe it.

Answer: Telemedicine means getting medical information and treatment advice from a distance through telecommunication and the Internet. In the text, people get information through telemedicine to understand a medical condition better.

Question: (6) Find the "tele" word "telework" in the text and describe it.

Answer: Telework means doing one's job from a distance, usually from home, with the help of the Internet and computer. In the text, telework and telemarketing have given people the chance to move beyond limits.

Question: (7) Find the "tele" word "telemarketing" in the text and describe it.

Answer: Telemarketing means marketing and selling products or services from a distance by telephone or the Internet. In the text it is mentioned along with telework as a new way of doing business beyond local limits.

Question: (8) Find the "tele" word "telepresence" in the text and describe it.

Answer: Telepresence means being present at a distant or dangerous place through technology, without actually going there. In the text it is described as a possible option to work in any extreme condition.

Question: (9) Find the "tele" word "telecom" in the text and describe it.

Answer: Telecom is the short form of telecommunication, the sending of information over long distances by electronic means. In the text, automobiles, planes, appliances and the telecom system are listed among the amazing new things brought by the materials revolution.

4.1 While-reading — Exercise 3 (choose the correct option)

Question: (1) The digital revolution mainly depends on ___: (a) physical nature (b) improved life (c) hardware innovations (d) integrated circuit.

Answer: (c) hardware innovations. The text says that many advances in technology depend on hardware innovations made possible by continued advancement in materials technology.

Question: (2) During World War-II, the transmission of information was in ___ form: (a) material (b) analogue (c) electric (d) catalogue.

Answer: (b) analogue. At that time the processing of information relied on "atoms" to record or transmit information in analog form, not in digital bits.

Question: (3) ___ is the technological option to work in a dangerous situation: (a) Telephone (b) Telecom (c) Telepresence (d) Television.

Answer: (c) Telepresence. The text calls telepresence a possible option to work in any extreme condition without being physically present there.

Question: (4) Through technology, people get things better according to their ___: (a) market demand (b) environment (c) needs (d) work.

Answer: (c) needs. The technological revolution gives people a wide variety of choices, enabling them to get the kinds of products and services that fit their needs.

Question: (5) E-learning can only be possible through ___: (a) portals (b) internet (c) smart adaptation (d) innovative system.

Answer: (b) internet. Parents use e-learning via the Internet to follow their child's school assignments and academic progress, so e-learning depends on the Internet.

Question: (6) People get information through ___ to help them better understand a medical condition: (a) internet (b) integrated apps (c) telemedicine (d) visual images.

Answer: (c) telemedicine. The text says people get information through telemedicine to help them better understand a medical condition.

Question: (7) Bits are used to record or transmit information in ___ form: (a) binary (b) digital (c) analogue (d) logical.

Answer: (b) digital. Bits — binary digits of 1s for on and 0s for off — are used to record or transmit information in digital form.

Question: (8) ___ is an example of a hydrological disaster: (a) earthquake (b) hurricane (c) floods (d) wildfire.

Answer: (c) floods. Floods are related to water, so they are a hydrological disaster, while an earthquake is geological and a hurricane is atmospheric.

Question: (9) ___ technology assesses environmental changes and disease predictions: (a) remote sensing (b) satellite (c) circuit (d) visual images.

Answer: (a) remote sensing. The text says remote sensing technology could monitor environmental changes and disease predictions.

Question: (10) A bulk of population at disaster risk may be located by ___: (a) telecom (b) satellite images (c) actuators (d) smart phones.

Answer: (b) satellite images. Satellite images, aerial photographs and on-the-ground inspections can be used to locate populations in dangerous or environmentally unstable places.

4.1 While-reading — Exercise 4 (true / false)

Question: (1) True or false: The use of technology can be harmful for our environment.

Answer: False (X). The text presents technology as the key enabler of a better and efficient environment, safer communities and improved quality of life; it does not describe technology as harmful to the environment.

Question: (2) True or false: The first use of technology was related to waves.

Answer: False (X). The text traces technological advancement from Gutenberg's invention of movable type to the telephone and mobile phone; it does not say that the first use of technology was related to waves.

Question: (3) True or false: During World War II, the use of technology was not familiar.

Answer: False (X). Technology was in use at that time; information was recorded and transmitted in analog form, and many innovations arose after the war, so its use was already familiar.

Question: (4) True or false: All tele devices may function with the traditional type.

Answer: False (X). Tele devices work on modern digital technology, not on the traditional analog type; the text contrasts the old analog form with the new digital form of bits.

Question: (5) True or false: E-learning can only be possible without the Internet.

Answer: False (X). E-learning is possible only through the Internet; the text says parents use e-learning via the Internet to follow their child's assignments and progress.

Question: (6) True or false: People can also purchase and sell things via the Internet.

Answer: True (√). Through e-commerce, people can buy a vast array of goods and services online, including things that were previously difficult to find at local stores.

Question: (7) True or false: Renewable things are those which cannot be utilized again.

Answer: False (X). Renewable energy, such as wind power and the solar system mentioned in the text, can be used again and again; it does not run out like ordinary fuels.

Question: (8) True or false: Telework and telepresence are the Internet ways to work in a hazardous situation.

Answer: True (√). Telework lets people do their jobs from a distance, and telepresence is a possible option to work in any extreme or dangerous condition.

4.1 Post-reading — Exercise 5 (answer the questions)

Question: (1) What do you mean by "technological revolution"?

Answer: Technological revolution means the rapid and deep change brought about by new technology in every field of life. In this new global economy, technology is the major driving force of economic growth and improved quality of life, enabling billions of people to live better and safer lives.

Question: (2) Why did innovative information remain scarce at the time of World War II?

Answer: After World War II many innovations arose, but information remained scarce and hard to use and transmit. The reason was that the processing of information relied on "atoms" — physical things — to record or transmit information in analog form, rather than on the "bits" used for digital information.

Question: (3) How is technology a boon for students?

Answer: Technology is a boon for students because it puts a variety of information at their fingertips. Students can get course materials online through teleschool without leaving home, flexible online classes give access to education that was impossible before the Internet, and parents can follow assignments and academic progress through web portals and applications.

Question: (4) What are the benefits of e-commerce in today's world?

Answer: E-commerce gives people a wide variety of choices and enables them to get the products and services that fit their needs. It lets people buy a vast array of goods and services that previously might have been difficult to find at local stores, and telework and telemarketing have given people the chance to move beyond limits.

Question: (5) How does technology work in environmentally risk areas?

Answer: In risk areas, technology is used for disaster forecasting and prediction, monitoring, risk assessment and damage control. Satellite images, aerial photographs and on-the-ground inspections are used to locate populations in dangerous or environmentally unstable places and to decide how to respond after a disaster strikes.

Question: (6) How has technology greatly supported doctors and medical practitioners?

Answer: Technology has helped improve medical care by making it easier for doctors to provide evidence-based medicine. Through telemedicine, people and doctors get information that helps them better understand a medical condition, and companies also use technology for workforce development in health services.

Question: (7) How does technology secure humans from calamities?

Answer: Technology secures humans from calamities by forecasting and predicting disasters, monitoring risks and assessing damage in time.

Public safety networks — cellular, wireless, satellite and television — help in effective emergency response, while the Internet helps communities to coordinate recovery efforts after accidents and natural disasters.

Question: (8) Some people have the opinion that youngsters are not safe in the technological era. Give reasons for your agreement or disagreement.

Answer: Model answer: I partly agree with this opinion. Youngsters face real dangers online, such as harmful content, contact with strangers, cyberbullying and addiction to games and social media, which can harm their studies and health. However, technology itself is not bad; with parental guidance, privacy settings and a fixed screen time, youngsters can use it safely for learning and healthy entertainment.

Question: (9) Which technology innovation has impacted you profoundly, and how?

Answer: Model answer: The smartphone with mobile Internet has impacted me the most. It helps me attend online classes, search study material in seconds, talk to my teachers and family from anywhere, and learn new skills through educational apps. It has made learning faster, cheaper and possible at any time and place.

Question: (10) How did technology contribute to keeping people's lives safe during the recent pandemic or disaster?

Answer: During the recent pandemic, technology enabled secure access to data, enterprise applications, virtual meetings and cloud conferencing, so work and education continued from home. Remote sensing and smart devices helped in disease prediction and warnings, and technology educated and empowered people to be aware of the situation, which noticeably lessened the impact of the pandemic.

4.1 Post-reading — Exercise 6 (disadvantages of technology: outlines and paragraphs)

Question: Make outlines of only the disadvantages of technology, and then expand each outline in a short paragraph.

Answer: Model answer: Outline: (1) health problems, (2) addiction and wastage of time, (3) unemployment, (4) loss of privacy, (5) social isolation. Paragraphs: (1) Health problems — Long use of screens causes weak eyesight, headache and back pain, and people, especially youngsters, do less physical activity, which leads to obesity and other diseases. (2) Addiction and wastage of time — Many people waste hours on games and social media; this addiction steals study and work time and lowers performance. (3) Unemployment — Machines and software now do the work of many people, so unskilled workers lose their jobs and find it hard to earn a living. (4) Loss of privacy — Our personal data is stored online and can be hacked or misused, so private information is no longer fully safe. (5) Social isolation — People talk more on screens than face to face, so family bonds and real friendships become weak, and loneliness increases.

4.2 Writing — Précis Writing, Exercise 1

Question: Write the précis of the given paragraph (about trees and good human beings) and suggest a suitable title.

Answer: Model answer: Title: "Living for Others". Précis: Good human beings are like trees, which bear the heat of the sun themselves but give shade and fruit to others. Like sandalwood and sugarcane, they give more when they are pressed and suffer more. They stay firm on the right path, caring nothing for praise or blame, life or death. A life lived only for oneself is useless and without purpose; the real purpose of life is to live for others.

4.3 Oral Communication — Exercise 1 (add one more dialogue for each character)

Question: (Babar) Add one more dialogue for Babar in the discussion about the future plan after intermediate.

Answer: Model answer: Babar: "In my opinion, we should choose the field we are truly interested in, because only then can we serve people with full heart. As far as I am concerned, medical is the best choice for me."

Question: (Akmal) Add one more dialogue for Akmal in the discussion about the future plan after intermediate.

Answer: Model answer: Akmal: "I think that engineering is a perfect field too, because engineers build the country. But I would say that whichever field we choose, we must work honestly and hard in it."

Question: (Zeeshan) Add one more dialogue for Zeeshan in the discussion about the future plan after intermediate.

Answer: Model answer: Zeeshan: "Speaking personally, every field has its own importance. Doctors save lives, engineers build nations, and lawyers protect people's rights, so we should respect all professions and choose according to our own interest."

4.3 Oral Communication — Exercise 2 (present a dialogue)

Question: (1) Present a dialogue on the topic "Personal Business and Employment".

Answer: Model answer: Ali: "In my opinion, personal business is better than employment because a person is his own boss." Bilal: "I think that employment is safer, because a fixed salary comes every month and there is less risk." Ali: "I would say that business has risk, but it also gives more profit and freedom." Bilal: "You are right, but I have the feeling that a new person should first get experience from a job and then start his own business." Ali: "I agree with you; experience first, and business after that, is a wise plan."

Question: (2) Present a dialogue on the topic "Manual Book Readings and Digital Readings".

Answer: Model answer: Sara: "I think that reading printed books is better because it does not harm the eyes and we can concentrate fully." Hina: "As far as I am concerned, digital reading is better because thousands of books are available in one small mobile phone." Sara: "I consider that books also give a real feeling of reading, and we can underline important lines easily." Hina: "That is true, but digital books are cheaper, lighter to carry, and we can search any word in seconds." Sara: "My own opinion is that both are useful; we should read books for deep study and digital texts for quick reference."

Question: Identify words that have prefixes in a news item from a newspaper, and break each word into prefix + root.

Answer: Model answer: Example words found in a typical news item: (1) reopen — re- (again) + open; (2) international — inter- (between) + national; (3) unhappy — un- (not) + happy; (4) misjudge — mis- (wrongly) + judge; (5) forecast — fore- (before) + cast; (6) nonverbal — non- (not) + verbal; (7) transport — trans- (across) + port; (8) substandard — sub- (below) + standard. In each word, the prefix is added before the root word and changes its meaning.

Unit 5: Civic Sense and Civic Activities

5.1 Reading Comprehension — Pre-reading

Question: (1) Look at the pictures and quickly describe the different activities.

Answer: Model answer: In the first picture, a man is using an ATM machine to draw money from his bank account. In the second picture, people are standing at the counter inside a bank, waiting for their turn to deposit or draw money and to do other bank business with the clerks.

5.1 While-reading — Exercise 1 (contextual meanings)

Question: (1) Give the contextual meaning of "solemnly".

Answer: Solemnly means in a serious and formal manner. In the story, the author added the word "alone" solemnly, that is, very seriously, when he asked to see the manager.

Question: (2) Give the contextual meaning of "terrible".

Answer: Terrible means very bad, or causing great fear. In the story, the manager felt that the author had a terrible, that is, very serious and dreadful, secret to tell.

Question: (3) Give the contextual meaning of "detective".

Answer: A detective is a person whose job is to investigate crimes and secret matters. In the story, the manager supposed that the author was one of Pinkerton's detectives because of his mysterious manner.

Question: (4) Give the contextual meaning of "mysterious".

Answer: Mysterious means strange and difficult to understand, full of secrecy. The author's mysterious manner — asking to see the manager alone — made the manager think that he was a detective.

Question: (5) Give the contextual meaning of "whispered".

Answer: Whispered means spoke in a very low and soft voice. In the story, the author whispered "Fairly large" when the manager asked whether his account would be a large one.

Question: (6) Give the contextual meaning of "painful".

Answer: Painful means causing pain or suffering, physical or mental. The author felt that opening the account was a painful thing, which he wanted to finish while he had the courage to do it.

Question: (7) Give the contextual meaning of "astonished".

Answer: Astonished means very much surprised. In the story, the clerk was astonished when the author said that he would never put any more money in the account.

Question: (8) Give the contextual meaning of "hollow".

Answer: Hollow here means weak, empty and lacking strength, as if coming from an empty place. After depositing the money, the author asked in a hollow, shaking voice whether the money was in the account.

Question: (9) Give the contextual meaning of "temper".

Answer: Temper means the state of mind or mood of a person, especially anger. The author made a miserable attempt to look like a man with a fearfully quick temper, hoping the clerks would think someone had insulted him.

Question: (10) Give the contextual meaning of "rival".

Answer: A rival is a person or group that competes with another for the same thing. The author told the manager that he was not from Pinkerton's but seemed to mean that he was from a rival agency.

5.1 While-reading — Exercise 2 (match bank words with meanings)

Question: (1) Match: "bank manager" — which meaning in column B fits it?

Answer: Bank manager — F: one who has control of all resources in the bank. The manager is the head of the bank branch and controls its work and resources.

Question: (2) Match: "accountant" — which meaning in column B fits it?

Answer: Accountant — E: one who maintains audits business accounts. An accountant keeps and checks the financial accounts of a business or bank.

Question: (3) Match: "clerk" — which meaning in column B fits it?

Answer: Clerk — A: one who maintains all written record. A clerk keeps the written records and does the office work of the bank.

Question: (4) Match: "cheque" — which meaning in column B fits it?

Answer: Cheque — G: a written order directing a bank to pay money. Through a cheque, an account-holder orders the bank to pay a stated sum from his account.

Question: (5) Match: "transactions" — which meaning in column B fits it?

Answer: Transactions — C: dealings and exchanges. Bank transactions are the dealings of depositing, withdrawing and transferring money.

Question: (6) Match: "deposits" — which meaning in column B fits it?

Answer: Deposits — B: to put money in the account. A deposit is the money that a customer puts into his bank account for safety and saving.

Question: (7) Match: "cheque book" — which meaning in column B fits it?

Answer: Cheque book — D: a small book having checks to draw money. A cheque book contains blank cheque forms that the account-holder uses to withdraw or pay money.

5.1 While-reading — Exercise 3 (choose the right option)

Question: (1) The writer visited the bank ___: (a) frequently (b) first time (c) in a month (d) yearly.

Answer: (b) first time. The writer says that the moment he passes through the doors of a bank and attempts to do business there, he becomes an irresponsible fool; this visit — to open an account after his salary raise — was a new experience for him.

Question: (2) The writer's salary was raised to ___ a month: (a) sixty dollars (b) fifty dollars (c) thirty dollars (d) fifty-six dollars.

Answer: (b) fifty dollars. His salary had been raised to fifty dollars a month, and he felt that the bank was the only place for it; with his savings he carried fifty-six dollars in all.

Question: (3) ___ presumed the writer to be a detective: (a) clerk (b) manager (c) accountant (d) rich man.

Answer: (b) manager. The manager said, "You are one of Pinkerton's detectives, I suppose," because the writer's mysterious manner had made him think so.

Question: (4) The writer first met the ___ in the bank: (a) accountant (b) manager (c) clerk (d) security guard.

Answer: (a) accountant. He went up to a place marked 'Accountant', and the accountant brought the manager when the writer asked to see him.

Question: (5) The writer had ___ dollars at the time of opening the account: (a) six (b) fifty six (c) fifty (d) sixty.

Answer: (b) fifty six. He held his fifty-six dollars, pressed together in a ball, in his pocket, and deposited the whole sum in the account.

Question: (6) Mr. Montgomery was a/an ___: (a) manager (b) accountant (c) clerk (d) detective.

Answer: (b) accountant. The manager called to the accountant, "Mr.

Montgomery, this gentleman is opening an account. He will place fifty-six dollars in it."

Question: (7) The ___ of the author made the manager think that he was a detective: (a) mysterious manner (b) simplicity (c) harsh behaviour (d) boldness.

Answer: (a) mysterious manner. The text says plainly: "My mysterious manner had made him think that I was a detective."

Question: (8) The author wrote fifty-six dollars instead of six dollars due to ___: (a) fear (b) haste (c) anxiety (d) madness.

Answer: (c) anxiety (fear/nervousness). He was frightened and upset in the bank and too confused to reason, so by mistake he wrote fifty-six dollars on the cheque instead of six.

Question: (9) The text 'My Bank Account' is an example of a ___ tale: (a) detective (b) humorous (c) moral (d) fictitious.

Answer: (b) humorous. The whole story — the author's fear in the bank, the misunderstanding about fifty-six dollars, and the roar of laughter at the end — makes it a humorous tale by Stephen Leacock.

Question: (10) After returning from the bank, the writer put his savings in ___: (a) bank (b) pocket (c) silver box (d) sock.

Answer: (d) sock. He says: "Since then I use a bank no more. I keep my money in my pocket and my savings in silver dollars in a sock."

5.1 While-reading — Exercise 4 (sequence of events)

Question: Read the text again carefully and write the sequence of events of the story (Firstly / Secondly / After That / Then / Later / Finally).

Answer: Model answer: Firstly, the author's salary was raised to fifty dollars a month, so he decided to open an account and went to the bank, where everything frightened him. Secondly, he asked the accountant to see the manager alone, and his mysterious manner made the manager think he was a detective or a very rich man. After that, he told the manager the truth, deposited his fifty-six dollars in the account, and signed his name in a book. Then, he decided to draw a cheque for six dollars for present use, but in his confusion he wrote fifty-six dollars instead of six. Later, feeling too upset to explain, he boldly drew out the whole amount — fifty dollars in a fifty-dollar note and six dollars in six-dollar notes — and rushed out of the bank. Finally, as the big door swung behind him, he heard a roar of laughter from the bank, and since then he never used a bank again, keeping his savings in silver dollars in a sock.

5.1 Post-reading — Exercise 5 (answer the questions)

Question: (1) What is the effect upon the author of entering the bank to do business?

Answer: The moment the author passes through the doors of a bank and attempts to do business there, he becomes an irresponsible fool. The clerks frighten him, the desks frighten him, and the sight of the money frightens him, so he loses his senses and self-control.

Question: (2) Why did the author decide to open an account?

Answer: The author decided to open an account because his salary had been raised to fifty dollars a month. He felt that such a large sum could not be kept safely at home and that the bank was the only place for it.

Question: (3) What was the manager's reaction when the author told him that he would like to see him alone?

Answer: The manager looked at the author with some anxiety and felt that he had a terrible secret to tell. He led the way to a private room, turned the key in the lock, and assured him that they were safe from interruption there.

Question: (4) Why did the manager look relieved when he knew the purpose of the author's visit?

Answer: The manager looked relieved because he had feared that the author was a detective or had some terrible secret. When he learned that the author had only come to open an account and keep all his money in the bank, he felt sure the visitor was a very rich man, so his anxiety ended.

Question: (5) What is the equivalent of fifty American dollars in Pakistani currency?

Answer: Model answer: The value changes with the exchange rate. At roughly Rs. 280 for one US dollar, fifty American dollars are equal to about Rs. 14,000 in Pakistani currency. The exact amount should be checked at the current rate of the day.

Question: (6) What mistake did the author make when he wrote the cheque?

Answer: The author wanted to draw out only six dollars for present use, but by mistake he wrote fifty-six dollars on the cheque instead of six. He was too upset to reason or explain, so he decided to draw out the whole amount.

Question: (7) Explain the meaning of the clerk's question, "How will you have it?"

Answer: The clerk's question meant: "In what form, or in which notes, do you want your money?" — whether in large notes or small notes. The author misunderstood at first and then, without thinking, answered "in fifty-dollar notes" for the fifty dollars.

Question: (8) Why was there a roar of laughter when the author left the bank?

Answer: There was a roar of laughter because all the clerks had watched the author's strange and foolish behaviour: he had opened an account with great mystery, deposited fifty-six dollars, and then at once drawn out the whole amount and rushed out. The whole scene was so funny that the staff burst into laughter.

Question: (9) The author, Stephen Leacock, was a respected university teacher and a highly successful writer. Do you think this is a true story?

Answer: Model answer: No, this does not seem to be a fully true story. A respected and sensible writer would not behave so foolishly in a bank; the events are exaggerated for humour, such as being mistaken for a detective and withdrawing the whole amount at once. It is a humorous sketch written to entertain the readers, though it may be based on the real nervousness some people feel in a bank.

Question: (10) Why is it wiser to keep one's money in a bank than to hoard it in one's home?

Answer: It is wiser to keep money in a bank because it is safe from theft, fire and loss, and the bank keeps a full record of it. Bank money can be drawn through cheques and ATMs at any time, it may earn profit, and it helps the country's economy when banks use deposits for business and development.

5.1 Post-reading — Exercise 6 (fill in the account opening form)

5.1 Post-reading — Exercise 7 (advantages of using a bank — group presentation)

Question: Collect points on the topic "Advantages of Using Bank" and present these opinions in front of the class.

Answer: Model answer: Points: (1) Money kept in a bank is safe from theft, fire and misplacement. (2) We can open savings accounts and earn profit on our savings. (3) Cheques, debit cards and ATMs make payments easy and safe, without carrying cash. (4) Online and mobile banking lets us check balance and transfer money at any time from anywhere. (5) Banks give loans for education, business and homes, which helps people and the country's economy. (6) A bank statement is a clear record of our money, which helps in planning and budgeting.

5.2 Writing (Business Letter) — Exercise 1

Question: Write a letter to the National Book Foundation for the provision of English Grammar books for your library, following the given tips and format.

Answer: Model answer: February 1, 2026. The Manager, National Book Foundation, Hyderabad. Dear Sir, Subject: Request for provision of English

Grammar books for our college library. I hereby write to request you to provide English Grammar books for the library of our college. Our students of Class XI and XII face difficulty in English grammar, and the present stock of grammar books in the library is very small and old. We shall be grateful if you provide us fifty copies of standard English Grammar books at the earliest. I request you to look into this matter without any delay and inform us about the price and mode of delivery. A list of the required books is enclosed for your reference. Looking forward to your early response. Thanking you in anticipation. Yours truly, Ahmed Ali, Head Boy, Government College, Hyderabad.

5.2 Writing (Business Letter) — Exercise 2

Question: You went to a commercial bank for account opening, but you are not satisfied with their services. Write a letter to the Manager of the bank complaining about the unprofessional behaviour of the staff, following the given tips and format.

Answer: Model answer: February 1, 2026. The Manager, ABC Bank, Qasimabad, Hyderabad. Dear Sir, Subject: Complaint about the unprofessional behaviour of the bank staff. I hereby write to complain about the unprofessional behaviour of your staff during my visit to your bank for opening an account. I was made to wait for three hours without any guidance, the clerk at the counter spoke rudely, and no officer helped me in filling the account opening form. Such behaviour causes great trouble to customers and damages the good name of your bank. I request you to look into this matter without any delay, train your staff to deal with customers politely, and improve the service at the counter. Looking forward to your early response. Thanking you in anticipation. Yours truly, Ahmed Ali, Qasimabad, Hyderabad.

5.3 Oral Communication — Exercise 1 (practise the dialogue)

Question: Practise the dialogue of Bashir, Zamir and Kashif about arranging a farewell party. What proposal is made, what problem is raised, and what consensus is finally reached?

Answer: Model answer: Bashir proposes that they should arrange a farewell party for all their seniors and invite them all with a limited menu. Zamir agrees but raises the problem that they have collected only a limited amount of money, and inviting many seniors will also need a big and costly venue. At the end they reach a consensus: first they will make a list of all the participants, including teachers, and only after knowing the exact number of guests they will decide about the venue and the menu, without spending too much money.

5.3 Oral Communication — Exercise 2 (develop a dialogue and reach consensus)

Question: (1) Develop a dialogue on "Organising a college debate competition" and reach a consensus.

Answer: Model answer: Aslam: "I would like to propose that we organise a college debate competition next month." Kamran: "I agree, but we must decide the date and the chief guest first." Noman: "Perhaps a better idea would be to hold it on Friday, 20th March, so that all classes can attend." Aslam: "One of the key reasons for this date is that our exams will be over by then." Kamran: "You have a strong point there. I think our Principal would be the best chief guest, and the programme should last two hours." Noman: "I think we have reached an agreement here. Let's look at the points we agree on: the date is 20th March, the Principal will be the chief guest, and each speaker will get five minutes." All: "This agreement is acceptable to us."

Question: (2) Develop a dialogue on "Having a college trip" and reach a consensus.

Answer: Model answer: Danish: "I've got several options for our college trip, but I would like to propose that we go to Mohenjo-Daro." Imran: "Now that you mentioned it, that is a good educational place. But will teachers go with us?" Danish: "Yes, two teachers will accompany us, because this is an educational trip." Imran: "I agree, but how much money will be required, and what will be the share of each student?" Danish: "The bus and food will cost about sixty thousand rupees; with sixty students, the share of each student will be one thousand rupees." Imran: "I think that would be acceptable. Shall we try to sum up the main points of our discussion? We will go to Mohenjo-Daro next Saturday, two teachers will accompany us, and each student will pay one thousand rupees." Danish: "I think we have reached an agreement here."

5.4 Grammar (Degrees of Adjective) — Exercise 1 (identify the error and write the corrected sentence)

Question: (1) Correct the sentence: "My bed is more big than my desk."

Answer: Corrected: My bed is bigger than my desk. (Error: "more big" — one-syllable adjectives form the comparative with -er, so "bigger" is correct.)

Question: (2) Correct the sentence: "Zaheer can run fast than me."

Answer: Corrected: Zaheer can run faster than me. (Error: the positive degree "fast" is used with "than"; comparison needs the comparative degree "faster".)

Question: (3) Correct the sentence: "You are most generous than my brother."

Answer: Corrected: You are more generous than my brother. (Error: the superlative "most generous" is used with "than"; between two persons the comparative "more generous" is correct.)

Question: (4) Correct the sentence: "Of all our luggage, mine is the heavier."

Answer: Corrected: Of all our luggage, mine is the heaviest. (Error: when comparing one with all the rest, the superlative degree "the heaviest" is needed, not the comparative "heavier".)

Question: (5) Correct the sentence: "The weather during the summer is the most hot than during the winter."

Answer: Corrected: The weather during the summer is hotter than during the winter. (Error: "the most hot" wrongly combines the superlative with "than"; the comparative "hotter" is correct here.)

Question: (6) Correct the sentence: "The Earth is closest to the moon than the sun."

Answer: Corrected: The Earth is closer to the moon than the sun. (Error: the superlative "closest" cannot be used with "than"; the comparison between two distances needs the comparative "closer".)

Question: (7) Correct the sentence: "You should always turn in your work because some points are best than no points."

Answer: Corrected: You should always turn in your work because some points are better than no points. (Error: "best" is the superlative of "good"; with "than" the comparative "better" must be used.)

5.4 Grammar (Degrees of Adjective) — Exercise 2 (identify the part A, B, C or D that contains an error; E = no error)

Question: (1) Which part contains the error: "Nadeem and Saleem [A: are] [B: comparatively weaker] [C: in] English as assessed by [D: their] teacher."

Answer: B. "Comparatively" is used with the positive degree, so it should be "comparatively weak", not "comparatively weaker". Corrected: Nadeem and Saleem are comparatively weak in English as assessed by their teacher.

Question: (2) Which part contains the error: "Someone says you are [A: the richest]. Are you [B: really] the richest [C: of all other] [D: friends?]"

Answer: C. With the superlative, "other" must be dropped, because the richest person is included in the group itself. Corrected: Are you really the richest of all friends?

Question: (3) Which part contains the error: "No doubt, [A: her score] in Chemistry is [B: more good] [C: than] that of [D: her] brother."

Answer: B. The comparative of "good" is the irregular form "better", not "more good". Corrected: No doubt, her score in Chemistry is better than that of her brother.

Question: (4) Which part contains the error: "Northern Areas are [A: the most charming] of [B: all] [C: other areas] [D: in] Pakistan."

Answer: C. "Other" cannot be used with a superlative comparison of the same group. Corrected: Northern Areas are the most charming of all areas in Pakistan.

Question: (5) Which part contains the error: "Your [A: friends say] that you are [B: the most] [C: smartest] member of [D: the group]."

Answer: B. "Most" with "smartest" is a double superlative; one form is enough. Corrected: Your friends say that you are the smartest member of the group.

Question: (6) Which part contains the error: "[A: The most] [B: happiest] man on earth is [C: the one] who is [D: good to] everyone."

Answer: A. "Most" is unnecessary with "happiest"; this is doubling up the superlative. Corrected: The happiest man on earth is the one who is good to everyone.

Question: (7) Which part contains the error: "She is [A: more] intelligent [B: among] [C: her] class [D: fellows]. [E: No Error label in the book]"

Answer: A. Comparison among the whole class needs the superlative, not "more". Corrected: She is the most intelligent among her class fellows.

Question: (8) Which part contains the error: "Javed Shaikh is [A: more famous] [B: than] [C: any actor] of Pakistani [D: films]."

Answer: C. Javed Shaikh is himself an actor, so he must be excluded from the group by "other". Corrected: Javed Shaikh is more famous than any other actor of Pakistani films.

Question: (9) Which part contains the error: "[A: A most] hard [B: working] student will [C: be given] [D: the first] prize."

Answer: A. The superlative always takes the article "the", not "a". Corrected: The most hard-working student will be given the first prize.

Question: (10) Which part contains the error: "Mr. Najeeb was [A: the tallest] [B: among] [C: brothers] and the [D: three sisters]."

Answer: E — No Error. The superlative "the tallest" with "among" is correctly used for one person compared with a group of more than two people, so the sentence is correct as it stands.

5.4 Grammar (Degrees of Adjective) — Exercise 3 (rectify the sentences)

Question: (i) Rectify: "Shahid's motivation to succeed in this program seems to be great than his sister."

Answer: Corrected: Shahid's motivation to succeed in this program seems to be greater than his sister's. (The comparative "greater" is used with "than", and "his sister's" shows that motivations are compared.)

Question: (ii) Rectify: "Either you will make serious study than your sister or risk failing the exam."

Answer: Corrected: Either you will make more serious study than your sister or risk failing the exam. (Comparison with "than" requires the comparative "more serious".)

Question: (iii) Rectify: "A few students are found the more interested in mathematics in whole class."

Answer: Corrected: A few students are found the most interested in mathematics in the whole class. (Among the whole class the superlative "the most interested" is required.)

Question: (iv) Rectify: "My travelling partner's journey was long than mine."

Answer: Corrected: My travelling partner's journey was longer than mine. ("Long" must be changed to the comparative "longer" before "than".)

Question: (v) Rectify: "My income is little than that of my brother."

Answer: Corrected: My income is less than that of my brother. (The comparative of "little" is "less", which is used for quantity such as income.)

Question: (vi) Rectify: "Among all my colleagues, Mr. Altaf is the more regular."

Answer: Corrected: Among all my colleagues, Mr. Altaf is the most regular. (Comparison among all colleagues needs the superlative "the most regular".)

Question: (vii) Rectify: "Karachi is the more populous city in Pakistan."

Answer: Corrected: Karachi is the most populous city in Pakistan. (One city compared with all cities of the country takes the superlative "the most populous".)

Question: (viii) Rectify: "She is intelligent than her cousin so she has taken many marks."

Answer: Corrected: She is more intelligent than her cousin, so she has taken many marks. (The adjective "intelligent" forms its comparative with "more" before "than".)

Question: (ix) Rectify: "Azizia in Libya is the hot place in the world."

Answer: Corrected: Azizia in Libya is the hottest place in the world. (The superlative form "hottest" with "the" is required for the highest degree in the world.)

Question: (x) Rectify: "The Jupiter is the large planet in the solar system."

Answer: Corrected: Jupiter is the largest planet in the solar system. (The superlative "largest" is needed, and no article is used before the name Jupiter.)

5.4 Grammar (Degrees of Adjective) — Exercise 4 (spot the errors in the conversation and write it correctly)

Question: (1) Correct the error in Mateen's line: "My phone is working the worst ever! And it's [1. old than] all the other phones I see, too. I want [2. a latest] phone."

Answer: Corrected: My phone is working the worst ever! And it's older than all the other phones I see, too. I want the latest phone. (Errors: 1 — comparative "older" with "than"; 2 — the superlative "latest" takes "the", not "a".)

Question: (2) Correct the error in Laiba's line: "Take a look at my phone. It was [3. more cheaper than] my last phone, and I'm much [4. happiest] with it."

Answer: Corrected: Take a look at my phone. It was cheaper than my last phone, and I'm much happier with it. (Errors: 3 — "more cheaper" is a double comparative, only "cheaper" is correct; 4 — with "much" and an implied comparison, the comparative "happier" is needed, not the superlative "happiest".)

Question: (3) Correct the error in Laiba's line (continued): "When I'm traveling, I listen to music more often than I do when I'm at home, so I wanted a phone with a [5. more big] memory card."

Answer: Corrected: ...so I wanted a phone with a bigger memory card. (Error: 5 — "more big" is wrong; the one-syllable adjective "big" takes the comparative "bigger".)

Question: (4) Correct the error in Mateen's line: "Wow, it's much [6. nice than] mine! The screen is a lot [7. largest], too. I want one like that!"

Answer: Corrected: Wow, it's much nicer than mine! The screen is a lot larger, too. I want one like that! (Errors: 6 — comparative "nicer" with "than" and "much"; 7 — "a lot" with comparison takes the comparative "larger", not the superlative "largest".)

Question: (5) Correct the error in Mateen's line: "I need to check my emails, do you think a newer and a [8. good] version will help me out?"

Answer: Corrected: I need to check my emails; do you think a newer and a better version will help me out? (Error: 8 — in comparison with "newer", the comparative of "good", that is "better", must be used.)

Question: (6) Correct the error in Laiba's line: "Since it has [9. more advanced] features among all new smart phones, this mobile phone will not only help you to receive and send emails but also you can download different applications."

Answer: Corrected: Since it has the most advanced features among all new smart phones, this mobile phone will not only help you to receive and send emails, but also you can download different applications. (Error: 9 — comparison among all phones needs the superlative "the most advanced", not "more advanced".)

Question: (7) Correct the error in Mateen's closing line: "Thank you Laiba for helping me out to buy this [10. the most new] version of the mobile phone."

Answer: Corrected: Thank you, Laiba, for helping me out to buy this newest version of the mobile phone. (Error: 10 — "the most new" is a wrong superlative; the correct superlative of "new" is "newest" with "the" implied in "this newest version".)

5.4 Grammar (Modal Verbs) — Exercise 5 (make sentences with each modal verb)

Question: (Ability — can/could) Make sentences with "can" and "could" showing ability.

Answer: Model answer: (1) Ahmed can speak English and Urdu fluently. (2) I can swim across the river. (3) She can solve this sum in two minutes. (4) When he was young, he could run ten kilometres daily. (5) My grandmother could read without glasses in her old age.

Question: (Permission — can/could/may) Make sentences with modals showing permission.

Answer: Model answer: (1) Can I use your pen, please? (2) Could I see the manager for a minute? (3) May I come in, sir? (4) May I borrow your dictionary for a day? (5) You may go home now, said the teacher.

Question: (Advice — should) Make sentences with "should" showing advice.

Answer: Model answer: (1) You should revise your lessons daily. (2) He should consult a doctor about his fever. (3) We should respect our elders. (4) Students should reach school on time. (5) You should not waste your precious time.

Question: (Obligation — must/have to) Make sentences with modals showing obligation.

Answer: Model answer: (1) I must complete my homework before evening.

(2) We must obey the traffic rules. (3) Soldiers have to follow the orders of their officers. (4) You have to wear the school uniform. (5) Every citizen must pay his taxes honestly.

Question: (Possibility — may/might/could) Make sentences with modals showing possibility.

Answer: Model answer: (1) It may rain this evening. (2) He might miss the train if he starts late. (3) This medicine could cure your cough. (4) She may come to see us tomorrow. (5) We might visit Karachi during the winter holidays.

5.4 Grammar (Modal Verbs) — Exercise 6 (fill the conversation with modals from the box: may, must, shouldn't, would, should, could, mustn't; example "must" given)

Question: (1) Complete the conversation: Zoya says (example), "We ___ wait for Noor before we start." / Sara replies, "No, she ___ be on her way."

Answer: "We must wait for Noor before we start" (given example — obligation). "No, she must be on her way" (strong probability; she is surely coming).

Question: (2) Complete the conversation: Zoya says, "Yes, she said she left the office 30 minutes ago. She ___ be about to arrive."

Answer: She should be about to arrive. ("Should" expresses expectation — according to the time, her arrival is expected now.)

Question: (3) Complete the conversation: Sara says, "Traffic ___ be bad during this hour of time, because it usually doesn't take too long to reach here."

Answer: Traffic could be bad during this hour of time. ("Could" expresses a possible reason for her delay.)

Question: (4) Complete the conversation: Sara looks at her watch and says, "She ___ feel bad about being late since I know her so well. I know she hates to be kept waiting, so she doesn't like to do it to other people."

Answer: She must feel bad about being late. ("Must" shows a confident conclusion about her feelings, because Sara knows her habits well.)

Question: (5) Complete the conversation: Zoya smiles, "Well, that's alright! We ___ be impatient, don't you think?"

Answer: We shouldn't be impatient, don't you think? ("Shouldn't" gives advice against impatience.)

Question: (6) Complete the conversation: "Remember her rule: the one who is late ___ buy lunch!"

Answer: The one who is late must buy lunch. ("Must" expresses the fixed rule/obligation of their group.)

Question: (7) Complete the conversation: Noor arrives and asks, "What ___ we order?" Zoya says, "I think we ___ take some light meals since we all are on diet."

Answer: "What should we order?" / "I think we should take some light meals." ("Should" is used for asking and giving suggestions about what to order.)

Question: (8) Complete the conversation: Sara agrees with Zoya. Noor asks, "___ we order a large serving of salad with steamed chicken?" Zoya adds, "But, I ___ rather prefer to take a bowl of humus since it's very healthy and scrumptious."

Answer: "Could we order a large serving of salad with steamed chicken?" / "But, I would rather prefer to take a bowl of humus." ("Could" makes a polite suggestion; "would rather" expresses preference.)

Question: (9) Complete the conversation: Sara says, "Well, girls, we ___ waste time, now it's already late, we ___ place an order."

Answer: "Well, girls, we mustn't waste time; now it's already late, we must place an order." ("Mustn't" prohibits wasting time; "must" shows the necessity of ordering at once.)

5.4 Grammar (Modal Verbs) — Exercise 7 (insert proper modal verbs)

Question: (1) Complete: When Sara was five, she ___ read and write.

Answer: When Sara was five, she could read and write. ("Could" expresses past ability.)

Question: (2) Complete: I ___ get up early today, because it is Sunday.

Answer: I needn't get up early today, because it is Sunday. ("Needn't" shows that there is no necessity or obligation.)

Question: (3) Complete: Birds ___ fly but lions ___.

Answer: Birds can fly but lions cannot (can't). ("Can" shows ability; "cannot/can't" shows lack of ability.)

Question: (4) Complete: This bag is too heavy for you. ___ I help you?

Answer: This bag is too heavy for you. May I help you? ("May" is a polite way of offering help or asking permission.)

Question: (5) Complete: I ___ wear school uniform at my school.

Answer: I must wear school uniform at my school. ("Must" expresses a strict school rule, that is, obligation.)

Question: (6) Complete: You ___ smoke here. It is forbidden.

Answer: You must not (mustn't) smoke here. It is forbidden. ("Mustn't" expresses prohibition.)

Question: (7) Complete: ___ you turn on the lights, please?

Answer: Would you turn on the lights, please? ("Would" is used for a polite request.)

Question: (8) Complete: I ___ help my mother with the housework. She is tired.

Answer: I should help my mother with the housework. She is tired. ("Should" expresses duty and advice in such a situation.)

Question: (9) Complete: If you go to bed late, you ___ be late for the school.

Answer: If you go to bed late, you may be late for the school. ("May" expresses the possible result of going to bed late.)

Question: (10) Complete: You ___ do your homework if you want to go out.

Answer: You must do your homework if you want to go out. ("Must" expresses a necessary condition or obligation.)

Unit 6: Respecting Self & Others

6.1 Reading Comprehension — Pre-reading

Question: (1) Think of an event that occurred in your life that has positively impacted you, and share it with the class.

Answer: Model answer: Joining my school's reading club positively impacted my life. Before that, I was shy and rarely spoke in class, but discussing books with other students gave me confidence to express my own thoughts. It taught me to trust my own judgement, which is the main lesson of self-reliance.

Question: (2) According to you, what is required to succeed in life?

Answer: Model answer: To succeed in life, a person needs self-confidence, hard work, honesty, patience and trust in his own abilities. He should set a clear goal, learn from failures instead of fearing them, and never depend wholly on others, because real success comes through one's own effort and toil.

6.1 While-reading — Exercise 1 (find at least ten new words and write their contextual meanings)

Question: (1) Give the contextual meaning of "genius" in the text.

Answer: Genius means the highest natural power of the mind; in Emerson's sense, it is believing one's own thought — to believe that what is true for you in your private heart is true for all men, that is genius.

Question: (2) Give the contextual meaning of "latent" in the text.

Answer: Latent means hidden and not yet shown or developed. The text says we should speak our latent conviction, that is, the belief hidden inside us, and it shall become the universal sense.

Question: (3) Give the contextual meaning of "conviction" in the text.

Answer: Conviction means a strong and firm belief in something. Man should detect and watch the ray of light that flashes across his mind from within, more than any outside light, and stand by his conviction.

Question: (4) Give the contextual meaning of "lustre" in the text.

Answer: Lustre means brightness, shine or glory. Emerson says the inner flash of one's own mind deserves more attention than the lustre, that is the shining fame, of the spheres of bards and sages.

Question: (5) Give the contextual meaning of "alienated" in the text.

Answer: Alienated means separated or made to feel like a stranger. In every work of genius we recognize our own rejected thoughts, which come back to us with a certain alienated majesty — as if they had become strange and grand.

Question: (6) Give the contextual meaning of "inflexibility" in the text.

Answer: Inflexibility means firmness that does not bend or change. Great works teach us to abide by our spontaneous impression with good-humoured inflexibility — to hold our own view cheerfully but firmly.

Question: (7) Give the contextual meaning of "arduous" in the text.

Answer: Arduous means very difficult and requiring great effort. The rule of trusting oneself is equally arduous — hard to follow — in actual and in intellectual life.

Question: (8) Give the contextual meaning of "solitude" in the text.

Answer: Solitude means the state of being alone. Emerson says it is easy to live in solitude after one's own mind, but the great man keeps the independence of solitude even in the midst of the crowd.

Question: (9) Give the contextual meaning of "aboriginal" in the text.

Answer: Aboriginal means original and existing from the very beginning. Emerson says the civilized man has lost his aboriginal strength — the natural strength that man possessed from the earliest times.

Question: (10) Give the contextual meaning of "equinox" in the text.

Answer: An equinox is the time in the year when day and night are equal in length. Emerson mentions that the civilized man, depending on his almanac and watch, knows as little of the equinox as of the stars in the sky.

6.1 While-reading — Exercise 2 (antonyms)

Question: (1) Write the antonym of "arduous".

Answer: Arduous (difficult, hard) — antonym: easy. A task that is arduous needs great effort, while an easy task needs little effort.

Question: (2) Write the antonym of "barbarous".

Answer: Barbarous (uncivilized, cruel) — antonym: civilized. Emerson contrasts the barbarous man with the civilized man in the essay.

Question: (3) Write the antonym of "betray".

Answer: Betray (to be disloyal, to hand over treacherously) — antonym: protect (also: be loyal to). In the text, great men did not betray their own perception of truth; they protected and followed it.

Question: (4) Write the antonym of "solitude".

Answer: Solitude (being alone) — antonym: company (or: crowd/society). Emerson speaks of keeping the independence of solitude even in the midst of the crowd.

Question: (5) Write the antonym of "noble".

Answer: Noble (high, honourable) — antonym: base (low, mean). Emerson advises us to abide in the simple and noble regions of life, not in base and mean ones.

Question: (6) Write the antonym of "aboriginal".

Answer: Aboriginal (original, earliest) — antonym: modern (also: foreign/newly arrived). The text says the civilized, modern man has lost his aboriginal strength.

Question: (7) Write the antonym of "civilized".

Answer: Civilized (developed, cultured) — antonym: barbarous (uncivilized). Emerson compares the well-clad, civilized man with the naked savage and finds the civilized man weaker in natural strength.

Question: (8) Write the antonym of "temporary".

Answer: Temporary (lasting for a short time) — antonym: permanent. What we borrow from others, Emerson says, is only in temporary and incomplete possession, unlike our own gift.

Question: (9) Write the antonym of "ignorance".

Answer: Ignorance (lack of knowledge) — antonym: knowledge. Emerson opens his argument with the words: "that envy is ignorance" — knowledge removes such ignorance.

Question: (10) Write the antonym of "recedes".

Answer: Recedes (moves back, goes away) — antonym: advances. Emerson says society never advances; it recedes as fast on one side as it gains on the other.

6.1 While-reading — Exercise 3 (choose the correct option)

Question: (1) In every work of genius, we recognize our own rejected ___: (a) ideas (b) thoughts (c) concepts (d) motives.

Answer: (b) thoughts. The text says: "In every work of genius we recognize our own rejected thoughts; they come back to us with a certain alienated majesty."

Question: (2) According to the author, envy is ___: (a) bliss (b) evil (c) suicide (d) ignorance.

Answer: (d) ignorance. Emerson writes that there comes a time in every man's education when he reaches the conviction "that envy is ignorance; that imitation is suicide."

Question: (3) Insist on yourself; never ___: (a) imitate (b) indicate (c) initiate (d) imply.

Answer: (a) imitate. Emerson's famous advice is: "Insist on yourself; never imitate," because one's own gift can be presented fully, while the borrowed talent of another is only temporary and incomplete.

Question: (4) According to the author, it is ___ in the world to live after the world's opinion: (a) important (b) unimportant (c) easy (d) difficult.

Answer: (c) easy. The text says: "It is easy in the world to live after the world's opinion; it is easy in solitude to live after our own."

Question: (5) Society undergoes ___ changes: (a) continuous (b) continual (c) collective (d) creative.

Answer: (b) continual. The text says: "It undergoes continual changes; it is barbarous, it is civilized, it is religious, it is rich, it is scientific; but this change is not for better."

Question: (6) Every great man is ___: (a) simple (b) unique (c) rare (d) common.

Answer: (b) unique. Emerson says: "Every great man is a unique," and Shakespeare will never be made by the study of Shakespeare.

Question: (7) Society acquires new arts, and loses old ___: (a) ways (b) methods (c) instincts (d) approaches.

Answer: (c) instincts. The text says: "Society acquires new arts, and loses old instincts," so every gain of society is balanced by a loss.

Question: (8) The civilized man has lost his ___ strength: (a) aboriginal (b) original (c) real (d) physical.

Answer: (a) aboriginal. Comparing the health of the two men, Emerson says the civilized man has lost his aboriginal (original, natural) strength.

Question: (9) The civilized man has lost the use of his feet because he has built ___: (a) car (b) coach (c) crutches (d) castle.

Answer: (b) coach. The text says: "The civilized man has built a coach, but has lost the use of his feet. He is supported on crutches, but lacks so much support of muscle."

Question: (10) A solstice is a ___: (a) position of moon (b) position of sun (c) time of the day (d) period of year.

Answer: (b) position of sun. A solstice is the position of the sun at its greatest distance from the equator, giving the longest or shortest day of the year; Emerson says the man in the street does not observe the solstice.

6.1 While-reading — Exercise 4 (true / false)

Question: (1) True or false: In 'Self-Reliance', Emerson urges people to trust themselves.

Answer: True (√). The whole essay is based on the advice "Trust thyself: every heart vibrates to that iron string," so he urges every person to believe in his own thought.

Question: (2) True or false: According to the author, the greatest obstacle to trust yourself is society.

Answer: True (√). The essay shows again and again that the pressure of society and the world's opinion stops a man from following his own thought; living after the world's opinion is easy, while following one's own mind among the crowd is the mark of greatness.

Question: (3) True or false: The author exhorts human beings to strive for absolute consistency.

Answer: False (X). Emerson does not demand absolute consistency; he teaches us to abide by our spontaneous impression and to speak today what we truly think today, without being chained to what we said yesterday.

Question: (4) True or false: We should abide by our own thoughts and opinions.

Answer: True (√). Great works of art teach us exactly this lesson: to abide by our spontaneous impression with good-humoured inflexibility, instead of dismissing our own thought because it is our own.

Question: (5) True or false: A great man always remains in solitude for perfection.

Answer: False (X). Emerson says it is easy to live after our own opinion in solitude, but the great man is he who, in the midst of the crowd, keeps with perfect sweetness the independence of solitude — he does not always live alone.

Question: (6) True or false: Society always undergoes constant changes from better to worse and vice versa.

Answer: True (√). Society undergoes continual changes — it is barbarous, then civilized, then religious, rich and scientific — and it recedes as fast on one side as it gains on the other, so its state keeps changing both ways, though the change is not truly for the better.

Question: (7) True or false: Every man is responsible to make for himself and his own.

Answer: True (√). Emerson teaches that nothing of substance can come to a man except through his own toil on the plot of ground given to him to till, so every man must rely on himself and do his own best.

6.1 While-reading — Exercise 5 (internal and external causes of behaviour)

Question: In 'Self-Reliance', Emerson distinguishes between internal and external causes of behaviour. Re-write two internal causes and two external causes of behaviour from the text.

Answer: Model answer: Internal causes: (1) A man's own thought and latent conviction — he dismisses or accepts an idea first in his private heart, and genius means believing that what is true in his heart is true for all. (2) His spontaneous impression and inner light — the ray of light that flashes across his mind from within guides his behaviour more truly than any outside fame. External causes: (1) The opinion of the world/society — most people easily live after the world's opinion and change their behaviour to please the crowd. (2) The borrowed talent and example of great men of the past — people imitate masters like Shakespeare, Franklin, Washington, Bacon or Newton instead of presenting their own gift, so their behaviour is caused from outside.

Question: (1) What makes a man great according to the author?

Answer: According to Emerson, a man becomes great when he trusts himself and keeps the independence of his own mind even in the midst of the crowd. The great man lives after his own thought with perfect sweetness, does his own duty instead of following what people think, and presents his own gift with the full force of his life's cultivation.

Question: (2) Why is self-reliance important for one's development?

Answer: Self-reliance is important because a man's real power is new in nature and lies within himself; he does not even know what he can do until he has tried. Only by trusting himself, working with his whole heart and doing his best can he develop his hidden abilities and find peace and happiness.

Question: (3) What is the mark of genius according to the author?

Answer: The mark of genius, according to Emerson, is to believe one's own thought — to believe that what is true for you in your private heart is true for all men. When a man speaks his latent conviction and trusts the light that flashes across his own mind, that is genius.

Question: (4) What happens when a person doesn't value one's own qualities?

Answer: When a person does not value his own qualities, he dismisses his own thought without notice just because it is his. Later he finds the same thought spoken by a stranger with masterly good sense, and he is forced to take, with shame, his own opinion from another; meanwhile the borrowed talent of others gives him only temporary and incomplete possession.

Question: (5) Why does the author emphasize on developing one's own individuality?

Answer: The author emphasizes individuality because every great man is unique, and no master can teach another what only he himself can exhibit. Shakespeare will never be made by the study of Shakespeare; therefore each person must do the work assigned to him, obey his own heart, and reproduce his own creative world instead of imitating others.

Question: (6) How can a person be happy according to the author?

Answer: According to Emerson, a man is relieved and happy when he has put his heart into his work and done his best; what he has said or done otherwise shall give him no peace. True happiness and peace come only from oneself — "Nothing can bring you peace but yourself. Nothing can bring you peace but the triumph of principles."

Question: (7) "What I must do is all that concerns me, not what the people think." Do you agree with this statement? Give reasons for your agreement or disagreement.

Answer: Model answer: I agree with this statement, with a small limit. A person should do his own duty honestly and should not change a right action only because people may dislike it, because fear of public opinion makes a man weak and untrue to himself. However, this does not mean ignoring wise advice; we should listen to others, but the final decision about our own duty must be our own.

Question: (8) What kind of changes does a society undergo according to the author?

Answer: According to Emerson, society never truly advances; it undergoes continual changes — it is barbarous, it is civilized, it is religious, it is rich, it is scientific — but this change is not for the better. For everything that is given, something is taken: society acquires new arts and loses old instincts, receding as fast on one side as it gains on the other.

Question: (9) How do you relate the message of the essay to your life?

Answer: Model answer: The message of the essay applies directly to my life as a student. Many times I have good ideas in class but I remain silent, fearing that others will laugh, and later a classmate says the same idea and is praised. Emerson teaches me to trust my own thought, to speak with confidence, to do my own work honestly instead of copying others, and to judge my success by my own effort rather than by people's opinion.

Question: (10) Write a brief summary of the arguments presented in the text.

Answer: Model answer: Emerson argues that man must trust himself: believing that what is true in one's own heart is true for all is genius, while envy is ignorance and imitation is suicide. We should not dismiss our own thoughts, for they return to us through the works of great men; we should do our own duty without caring for the world's opinion, never imitate others, and work with our whole heart on the task given to us. Society, he adds, never really advances — it gains new arts but loses old instincts — and true peace comes only from oneself and from the triumph of principles.

6.1 Post-reading — Exercise 7 (pick any five ideas you like the most)

Question: Read the whole text and pick any five ideas that you like the most.

Answer: Model answer: (1) Trust thyself: every heart vibrates to that iron string. (2) Envy is ignorance; imitation is suicide. (3) Insist on yourself; never imitate, because every great man is unique. (4) What I must do is all that concerns me, not what the people think. (5) Nothing can bring you peace but yourself; nothing can bring you peace but the triumph of principles. These ideas teach self-confidence, originality and peace of mind.

6.2 Writing (Editing) — Exercise 1 (compare the draft and the edited passage)

Question: Compare the draft passage and the edited passage (on bats) and note down the differences.

Answer: Model answer: The draft has many mistakes which the edited passage corrects: (1) Spellings are corrected — "no" becomes "know", "lik" becomes "like", "becaus" becomes "because", "thay" becomes "they", and "awak at nite" becomes "awake at night". (2) Capital letters and punctuation are fixed — the first sentence becomes a proper question,

"Did you know that bats are mammals?", and the long run-on sentence is broken into clear sentences. (3) Grammar is corrected — "warm blooded" becomes "warm-blooded", and "the only mammals that no how to fly bats are Nocturnal" becomes the clear sentence "They are the only mammals that know how to fly. Bats are nocturnal". (4) Unnecessary capital letters in the middle of words are removed. Thus editing makes the passage correct, clear and easy to read.

Question: Compare the draft passage and the edited passage (on the Pan-American Highway) and note down the differences.

Answer: Model answer: In the edited passage: (1) Wrong words are corrected — "wear" becomes "where", "rode" becomes "road", "Than" becomes "Then", and "countrys" becomes "countries". (2) Capitalization is corrected — "alaska" becomes "Alaska", and wrong capitals inside words, as in "AmericaN", are removed. (3) Punctuation is fixed — the first sentence becomes a question ending with "?", commas are placed correctly after "Canada" and "Altogether", and "54-miles" becomes "54-mile". (4) A full stop is added before "It passes through jungles and mountains", making the passage clear and correct.

6.2 Writing (Editing) — Exercise 2 (find the incorrect words in the passage and correct them)

Question: (1) Find and correct the incorrect word in: "It is true that a natural disaster was a natural process and we cannot stop it..."

Answer: Incorrect: was — Correct: is. A natural disaster is a natural process in general, so the present tense "is" must be used, not the past tense "was".

Question: (2) Find and correct the incorrect word in: "...but through making certain preparations, we can reduce the magnitude of the loss to life or property."

Answer: Incorrect: through — Correct: by. The correct phrase is "by making certain preparations"; "by" shows the method by which the loss can be reduced.

Question: (3) Find and correct the incorrect word in: "First of all, we would reduce global warming which is the root cause from all the problems."

Answer: Incorrect: would — Correct: should; and Incorrect: from — Correct: of. Corrected sense: "First of all, we should reduce global warming, which is the root cause of all the problems." ("Should" shows duty/advice, and the correct phrase is "the root cause of".)

Question: (4) Find and correct the incorrect word in: "We should also have insurance policies such that we have sufficient money to rebuilt our lives after any such disaster."

Answer: Incorrect: rebuilt — Correct: rebuild. After "to", the first form of the verb is used, so "to rebuild our lives" is correct; "rebuilt" is the past form.

6.2 Writing (Editing) — Exercise 3 (an error in each line; write the correct word)

Question: (a) Correct the error in the line: "space to the sake of knowledge" (first line "Exploring space mean to study" is the given example: mean → means).

Answer: Incorrect: to — Correct: for. The correct phrase is "for the sake of knowledge", meaning for the purpose/benefit of knowledge.

Question: (b) Correct the error in the line: "in the largest interest of mankind."

Answer: Incorrect: largest — Correct: best. The standard phrase is "in the best interest of mankind", not "largest interest".

Question: (c) Correct the error in the line: "Exploiting space mean using space"

Answer: Incorrect: mean — Correct: means. The subject "Exploiting space" is singular (a gerund phrase), so the verb takes -s: "means".

Question: (d) Correct the error in the line: "for commercial use. There aims"

Answer: Incorrect: There — Correct: Their. "Their" is the possessive form showing that the aims belong to them; "there" shows place and is wrong here.

Question: (e) Correct the error in the line: "are quite diffence. The former one"

Answer: Incorrect: diffence — Correct: different. The correct spelling and correct word is the adjective "different": "are quite different".

Question: (f) Correct the error in the line: "is to enhance knowledge but to satisfy"

Answer: Incorrect: but — Correct: and. The former aim is both to enhance knowledge and to satisfy curiosity, so the joining word should be "and", not the contrasting "but".

Question: (g) Correct the error in the line: "curiosity while the later is"

Answer: Incorrect: later — Correct: latter. "Latter" means the second of two things mentioned (exploiting space), while "later" relates to time.

Question: (h) Correct the error in the line: "to making money."

Answer: Incorrect: making — Correct: make. After "to", the base form of the verb is used: "is to make money".

Question: (i) Correct the error in the line: "It is truth that his parents are the most humble to him."

Answer: Incorrect: truth — Correct: true. After "It is", an adjective is needed: "It is true that..." ("Truth" is a noun.)

6.3 Oral Communication — Exercise 1 (prepare and give a group presentation)

Question: (1) Prepare a presentation on "The Importance of Female Education".

Answer: Model answer: Good morning and a warm welcome to you all. I am Ahmed, your class fellow from grade XI. Today, my topic is "The Importance of Female Education". My presentation will be in three parts. In the first part, I will explain that an educated woman is the first teacher of her children, so educating a girl means educating a whole family. Then, in the second part, I will talk about how educated women support their families financially and serve society as doctors, teachers and officers. For instance, in our own district, many girls now study and help their parents in old age. Finally, I'll go on to talk about how female education reduces poverty and improves the health of the next generation. To sum up, female education is not a favour to women; it is the need of the whole nation. Thank you for listening to my presentation.

Question: (2) Prepare a presentation on "Services of Dr. Ruth Pfau for Humanity".

Answer: Model answer: Good morning to all. Let me start by telling you a little about my topic. The subject of my presentation is "Services of Dr. Ruth Pfau for Humanity". I'm going to present about a German doctor who came to Pakistan in 1960 and spent her whole life treating leprosy patients, whom society had rejected. In the first part, I will describe how she founded the Marie Adelaide Leprosy Centre in Karachi and built a network of treatment centres all over Pakistan. Moreover, due to her tireless work, the World Health Organization declared leprosy under control in Pakistan in 1996. To conclude, I'd like to end by emphasizing the main point: Dr. Ruth Pfau, called the Mother Teresa of Pakistan, proved that selfless service to suffering humanity is the greatest service of all. Many thanks for paying attention.

Question: (3) Prepare a presentation on "Three places in Sindh that students should visit".

Answer: Model answer: Good afternoon and a warm welcome to you all. It's my privilege to present on "Three places in Sindh that students should visit". My presentation will be in three parts. To begin with, the first place is Mohenjo-Daro, the 5,000-year-old city of the Indus Valley Civilization, where students can see planned streets, the Great Bath and the museum. Then, in the second part, I will describe Makli Necropolis near Thatta, one of the largest graveyards in the world, famous for its beautiful carved tombs. Finally, I'll go on to talk about the Shah Jahan Mosque in Thatta, a masterpiece of blue tile work, such as students of art and history rarely see anywhere else. To sum up, these three places teach us history, culture and pride in our land. I'd like to thank you for taking time out to listen to my presentation.

Question: Select a topic of your choice and prepare a presentation on it.

Answer: Model answer: Topic: "The Importance of Time Management". Good morning and a warm welcome to you all. I am Sara from grade XI, and today's my topic is "The Importance of Time Management". My presentation will be in three parts. In the first part, I will explain that time is our most precious wealth, because lost money can be earned again but lost time never returns. Then, in the second part, I'll describe how students who make a daily timetable finish their studies without stress and also get time for games and family. For example, my class fellow Asma prepares a timetable every Sunday and always tops in tests. To conclude, I'd like to end by emphasizing the main points: value time, plan your day, and never postpone today's work. That's all I want to say for now. Thank you for your attention.

6.4 Grammar (Positioning Adverbs) — Exercise 1 (make at least three sentences of each kind of adverb)

Question: (Manner) Make three sentences using adverbs of manner.

Answer: Model answer: (1) The students listened to the teacher carefully. (2) She solved the sum skilfully. (3) He spoke to his mother politely. (Adverbs of manner — carefully, skilfully, politely — tell how an action is done and usually come at the end.)

Question: (Frequency) Make three sentences using adverbs of frequency.

Answer: Model answer: (1) We always offer prayers on time. (2) He usually goes to school by bus. (3) She rarely eats fast food. (Adverbs of frequency — always, usually, rarely — tell how often an action happens and usually come in the middle, before the main verb.)

Question: (Degree) Make three sentences using adverbs of degree.

Answer: Model answer: (1) The tea is very hot. (2) I am extremely tired after the journey. (3) She is quite sure of her success. (Adverbs of degree — very, extremely, quite — tell to what extent or how much.)

Question: (Time) Make three sentences using adverbs of time.

Answer: Model answer: (1) We will visit Karachi soon. (2) He has already finished his homework. (3) The train will arrive tonight. (Adverbs of time — soon, already, tonight — tell when an action happens.)

Question: (Place) Make three sentences using adverbs of place.

Answer: Model answer: (1) The children are playing outside. (2) Please come here at once. (3) We searched for the lost keys everywhere.

(Adverbs of place — outside, here, everywhere — tell where an action happens and usually come at the end.)

Question: (Relative) Make three sentences using relative adverbs (when, where, why).

Answer: Model answer: (1) I remember the day when I first went to school. (2) This is the village where my grandfather was born. (3) Tell me the reason why you were absent yesterday. (Relative adverbs — when, where, why — join two clauses and refer to time, place or reason.)

6.4 Grammar (Positioning Adverbs) — Exercise 2 (identify the adverb and its position)

Question: (1) Identify the adverb and its position: (given example) "Suddenly, I felt afraid."

Answer: Adverb: Suddenly — Position: Beginning. (The example is given in the book; an adverb of manner/time at the start of the sentence is in the beginning position.)

Question: (2) Identify the adverb and its position: "Yesterday, detectives arrested a man and a woman in connection with the murder."

Answer: Adverb: Yesterday — Position: Beginning. (It is an adverb of time placed at the beginning to emphasize the time.)

Question: (3) Identify the adverb and its position: "Apples always taste best when you pick them straight off the tree."

Answer: Adverb: always — Position: Middle. (Adverbs of frequency usually occupy the middle position, before the main verb; "straight off the tree" tells where/how they are picked.)

Question: (4) Identify the adverb and its position: "They have completely forgotten about our appointment."

Answer: Adverb: completely — Position: Middle. (It is an adverb of completeness/degree and follows the auxiliary verb "have" in the middle position.)

Question: (5) Identify the adverb and its position: "Why do you always have to eat so fast?"

Answer: Adverbs: always — Position: Middle; fast — Position: End. ("Always", an adverb of frequency, comes in the middle after the auxiliary, and "fast", an adverb of manner, comes at the end.)

Question: (6) Identify the adverb and its position: "They ate dinner quietly."

Answer: Adverb: quietly — Position: End. (It is an adverb of manner, and adverbs of manner usually go in the end position.)

6.4 Grammar (Positioning Adverbs) — Exercise 3 (write the position of the adverb in each sentence)

Question: (1) State the position of the adverb: "She always goes to bed early."

Answer: Position: Middle. "Always" is an adverb of frequency and stands in the middle position, after the subject and before the main verb "goes"; "early" at the end is an adverb of time.

Question: (2) State the position of the adverb: "We never watch TV."

Answer: Position: Middle. "Never" is an adverb of frequency in the middle position, before the main verb "watch".

Question: (3) State the position of the adverb: "Zakia and Zulifqar often go to the cinema."

Answer: Position: Middle. "Often" is an adverb of frequency placed in the middle, before the main verb "go".

Question: (4) State the position of the adverb: "Abdullah meets Noman once a week."

Answer: Position: End. "Once a week" is a frequency expression placed at the end of the sentence.

Question: (5) State the position of the adverb: "I sometimes eat fast food."

Answer: Position: Middle. "Sometimes" is an adverb of frequency in the middle position, before the main verb "eat".

Question: (6) State the position of the adverb: "They hardly ever cook at home."

Answer: Position: Middle. "Hardly ever" is an adverb of frequency placed in the middle position, before the main verb "cook".

Question: (7) State the position of the adverb: "He studies English every night."

Answer: Position: End. "Every night" is a time/frequency expression in the end position.

Question: (8) State the position of the adverb: "You normally drink coffee."

Answer: Position: Middle. "Normally" is an adverb of frequency in the middle position, before the main verb "drink".

Question: (9) State the position of the adverb: "I rarely go to the park."

Answer: Position: Middle. "Rarely" is an adverb of frequency placed in the middle, before the main verb "go".

Question: (10) State the position of the adverb: "They go to a restaurant from time to time."

Answer: Position: End. "From time to time" is a frequency expression placed at the end of the sentence.

6.4 Grammar (Positioning Adverbs) — Exercise 4 (answer using frequency expressions)

Question: (1) Answer using a frequency expression: How often do you eat fruit?

Answer: Model answer: I eat fruit every day. ("Every day" is a frequency expression placed at the end of the answer.)

Question: (2) Answer using a frequency expression: How often do you meet your friends?

Answer: Model answer: I meet my friends twice a week. ("Twice a week" tells the frequency and comes at the end.)

Question: (3) Answer using a frequency expression: How often do you do exercise?

Answer: Model answer: I do exercise every morning. ("Every morning" is a frequency expression in the end position.)

Question: (4) Answer using a frequency expression: How often do you use the computer?

Answer: Model answer: I use the computer three times a day. ("Three times a day" expresses how often the action is repeated.)

Question: (5) Answer using a frequency expression: How often do you go away?

Answer: Model answer: I go away once a year. ("Once a year" is a frequency expression placed at the end of the sentence.)

6.4 Grammar (Positioning Adverbs) — Exercise 5 (rewrite by putting the frequency adverb/expression in the right place)

Question: (1) Rewrite with (never): "Rashid is late for school."

Answer: Rashid is never late for school. (With the verb "be", the frequency adverb comes after the verb; here it comes after "is".)

Question: (2) Rewrite with (usually): "My brother doesn't write letters to his friends."

Answer: My brother doesn't usually write letters to his friends. (In a negative sentence, the frequency adverb comes after the auxiliary "doesn't" and before the main verb.)

Question: (3) Rewrite with (twice a year): "We go on holidays."

Answer: We go on holidays twice a year. (Frequency expressions showing how many times come at the end of the sentence.)

Question: (4) Rewrite with (sometimes): "Asghar wears a tie."

Answer: Asghar sometimes wears a tie. ("Sometimes" is placed in the middle position, before the main verb "wears".)

Question: (5) Rewrite with (once a week): "I eat fish."

Answer: I eat fish once a week. (The expression "once a week" goes at the end of the sentence.)

Question: (6) Rewrite with (often): "Do the children watch TV?"

Answer: Do the children often watch TV? (In a question, the frequency adverb comes after the subject and before the main verb.)

Question: (7) Rewrite with (always): "My father is very busy."

Answer: My father is always very busy. (With the verb "be", "always" comes after the verb "is".)

Question: (8) Rewrite with (never): "Naeem tidies his room."

Answer: Naeem never tidies his room. ("Never" is placed in the middle position, before the main verb "tidies".)

Question: (9) Rewrite with (every week): "My brother and I go fishing."

Answer: My brother and I go fishing every week. (The expression "every week" is placed at the end of the sentence.)

Question: (10) Rewrite with (always): "My mother goes shopping on Saturdays."

Answer: My mother always goes shopping on Saturdays. ("Always" comes in the middle position, before the main verb "goes".)

Question: (11) Rewrite with (usually): "Do you get up late at the weekend?"

Answer: Do you usually get up late at the weekend? (In questions, "usually" comes after the subject "you" and before the main verb.)

Question: (12) Rewrite with (every morning): "I drink tea."

Answer: I drink tea every morning. (The expression "every morning" goes at the end of the sentence.)

Question: (13) Rewrite with (sometimes): "Shazia rides her motorbike to work."

Answer: Shazia sometimes rides her motorbike to work. ("Sometimes" is placed in the middle position, before the main verb "rides".)

Question: (14) Rewrite with (often): "I exercise in the afternoons."

Answer: I often exercise in the afternoons. ("Often" comes in the middle position, before the main verb "exercise".)

Question: (15) Rewrite with (usually): "Does Shahid have lunch at home?"

Answer: Does Shahid usually have lunch at home? (In a question with "does", "usually" comes after the subject and before the main verb "have".)

6.4 Grammar (Positioning Adverbs) — Exercise 6 (fill in the blanks with the best adverbs of frequency from the box)

Question: (1) Complete (box: always, almost always, usually, often, never, sometimes, seldom, rarely, hardly ever): "My brother is never sad. He's ___ happy."

Answer: He's always happy. (If he is never sad, he is happy at all times, so "always" is the best adverb.)

Question: (2) Complete: "I was late for work only one time last year. I'm ___ late."

Answer: I'm rarely late. (Being late only once in a whole year shows that it happens very seldom, so "rarely" fits best.)

Question: (3) Complete: "Mary failed only one test in high school. She ___ passed her tests."

Answer: She almost always passed her tests. (Failing only one test means she passed in nearly every case, so "almost always" is correct.)

Question: (4) Complete: "I always remember to do my homework. I ___ forget to do it."

Answer: I never forget to do it. (A person who always remembers can never forget, so "never" is the best choice.)

Question: (5) Complete: "Steven seldom goes to a cinema. He ___ sees movies."

Answer: He rarely sees movies. ("Seldom" in the first sentence means he goes very rarely, so "rarely" (also "hardly ever") matches the sense.)

Question: (6) Complete: "Judy saw a doctor for the first time in three years. She ___ gets sick."

Answer: She rarely gets sick. (Needing a doctor only once in three years shows that she very seldom falls sick.)

Question: (7) Complete: "I get up at five o'clock seven days a week. I ___ get up early."

Answer: I always get up early. (Getting up early seven days a week means it happens every day without exception — "always".)

Question: (8) Complete: "It's always hot and sunny where I live. That's why I ___ see snow."

Answer: I never see snow. (In a place that is always hot and sunny, snow is never seen, so "never" is correct.)

Question: (9) Complete: "A: Do you ever drink coffee? B: Yes, but only ___, not often — just a few times a week."

Answer: Yes, but only sometimes, not often — just a few times a week. ("Sometimes" means occasionally, a few times, which matches "just a few times a week".)

Question: (10) Complete: "My sister almost never eats burgers and fries. She ___ eats healthy foods."

Answer: She almost always eats healthy foods. (Since she almost never eats junk food, the opposite habit — eating healthy food — happens almost always.)

Unit 7: Self-Grooming

7.1 Reading Comprehension — Pre-reading

Question: For what purpose do you go to a school, college or institution?

Answer: Model answer: I attend school/college to gain knowledge and skills, to develop my personality and character, and to prepare myself for a useful career and a successful life.

Question: Why is getting an education essential?

Answer: Model answer: Education is essential because it develops our mind, gives us skills for earning a living, teaches us right and wrong, and makes us useful, confident citizens of society.

Question: How can you briefly describe an illiterate person?

Answer: Model answer: An illiterate is a person who cannot read or write. He cannot benefit from books and written information and often has to depend on others in daily matters.

Question: Do you know why he/she did not receive an education?

Answer: Model answer: Many children do not receive an education because of poverty, family responsibilities, work at an early age, distance of school, or lack of awareness in their families.

Question: What problems can stop a child from getting an education?

Answer: Model answer: Poverty, child labour, illness, lack of schools and teachers, long distances, and social customs can prevent a child from receiving an education. Many poor parents need their children to work and earn instead of studying. In this way, circumstances, not ability, keep a deserving child away from school.

Question: Guess which text you are going to read.

Answer: Model answer: Judging from the pre-reading questions, the text will be about a person who struggled hard against poverty and difficulties in order to get an education.

While-reading — Exercise 1 (deduce contextual meanings of words)

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "pretentious".

Answer: Grand and impressive; claiming greater importance than is ordinary (here: a big, proper school or college, grander than the small local school).

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "furnace".

Answer: A large enclosed fire-place or oven used for heating or melting; here, the salt-furnace where Mrs. Ruffner's husband's salt works were run.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "frankness".

Answer: Openness and honesty in speech; saying what one thinks without hiding anything.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "slipshod".

Answer: Careless, untidy and badly done; Mrs. Ruffner wanted nothing done in a slipshod way.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "exhaustion".

Answer: The state of being extremely tired, having no strength left.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "elevated".

Answer: Raised up above the ground; here, the raised part of the sidewalk under which the writer crept to sleep.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "satchel".

Answer: A small bag, usually carried on the shoulder, for books or clothes; the writer used his satchel of clothing as a pillow.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "tramp".

Answer: The heavy sound of footsteps; the writer heard the tramp of feet over his head all night.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "linger".

Answer: To stay somewhere longer than necessary or to wait around; the head teacher neither admitted nor refused him, so he lingered about her.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "Yankee".

Answer: A person from the northern United States; an American. The head teacher was a "Yankee" woman who knew exactly where to look for dirt.

While-reading — Exercise 2 (encircle the correct option)

Question: Who were discussing a school during work? (Coloured people / Miners / Booker / Lewis)

Answer: (b) Miners. Two miners in the coal-mine were talking about a great school for coloured people in Virginia, and Booker overheard them.

Question: What was the school providing? (proper education / education and skills / physical training / costs)

Answer: (b) Education and skills. Poor but worthy students could study there and at the same time be taught some trade or industry.

Question: What type of students were studying in the school of Virginia? (Poor / Wealthy / Workers / All types)

Answer: (a) Poor. The school was established for coloured people, and poor but worthy students could work out the cost of their board.

Question: At what salary did the writer work at the house of General Lewis Ruffner? (one dollar per day / 5 dollar per month / fifty dollar per month / fifty cent per month)

Answer: (b) 5 dollars per month. His mother applied for the vacant position and he was hired at that salary.

Question: Which city was eighty-two miles away from Hampton? (Malden / Richmond / Washington / Virginia)

Answer: (b) Richmond. Booker reached Richmond, Virginia, about eighty-two miles from Hampton, completely out of money.

Question: Where did the writer spend the first night of travel to Hampton? (large city / step-father's house / sidewalk near the port / in the school)

Answer: (c) Sidewalk near the port. He crept under an elevated portion of the sidewalk in Richmond and lay on the ground with his satchel as a pillow.

Question: What did the writer do to get money for breakfast? (swept the room / loaded the vessels / made the pillow / worked in industry)

Answer: (b) Loaded/unloaded the vessels. He asked the captain of a ship for permission to help unload the vessel and earned enough money for his breakfast.

Question: Who helped the writer in getting a reception (in Richmond)? (Lewis / Step father / Captain / Head teacher)

Answer: (c) Captain. The kind-hearted captain gave him work; years later the coloured citizens of Richmond gave him a reception near the same spot, and he thanked the captain for his kindness.

Question: What was the head teacher's impression of the writer after cleaning the room? (Good / Bad / Lazy / Unusual)

Answer: (a) Good. When she could find no dirt anywhere, she quietly said that he would do to enter the institution.

Question: Why did the writer accept the cleaning of the recitation room? (took it as challenge / impress the Head / get admission / get proper food)

Answer: (c) Get admission. He felt that his future depended on the impression he made in cleaning that room, so he swept it three times and dusted it four times.

While-reading — Exercise 3 (places, main events and order in the story)

Question: Hampton — what main event took place there, and what is its order in the story?

Answer: Order 5 (last). At Hampton Institute he swept and dusted the recitation room as his entrance examination and was admitted by the head teacher.

Question: General Lewis Ruffner's house — what main event took place there, and what is its order in the story?

Answer: Order 2. He worked there for $5 a month and learned cleanliness, promptness, system, and above all absolute honesty and frankness from Mrs. Ruffner.

Question: Coal mine — what main event took place there, and what is its order in the story?

Answer: Order 1 (first). While working in the coal-mine he overheard two miners talking about the great school at Hampton, Virginia, and resolved at once to go there.

Question: City of Richmond — what main event took place there, and what is its order in the story?

Answer: Order 4. Penniless, he slept under a sidewalk, then unloaded a ship to earn money for food, stayed on working for the captain, and finally set out again for Hampton.

Question: Malden — what main event took place there, and what is its order in the story?

Answer: Order 3. Malden was his home town; after his stepfather and family had used up most of his small savings, he finally started from Malden on the 500-mile journey to Hampton.

Exercise 4 (match Column A with Column B — answers in Column C; note: Column B fragments are poorly printed in the book, matching below is by best sense of the story)

Question: Match: "The writer first worked ___"

Answer: (D) — in the coal mine as a worker. His first work mentioned in the story was in the coal-mine, where he overheard the miners.

Question: Match: "The school where he first studied [went] ___"

Answer: (F) — was also teaching some trade or industry. The Hampton school taught students a trade or industry along with education.

Question: Match: "Mother applied for the vacant position which ___"

Answer: (A) — she had heard of during the work (she heard about the vacant position in General Ruffner's household and applied for it for her son).

Question: Match: "First, Mrs. Lewis Ruffner wanted things [done] promptly ___"

Answer: (H) — and at the bottom of everything, absolute honesty and frankness. She wanted everything kept clean, done promptly and systematically, with honesty above all.

Question: Match: "No passer-by could be seen ___"

Answer: (G) — before he could creep under the sidewalk (he waited until no passers-by could see him, then crept under the sidewalk and slept there).

Question: Match: "When I appeared for assignment, the Head teacher ___"

Answer: (C) — said the recitation room needed cleaning (sweeping). She told him the adjoining recitation-room needed sweeping and gave him the broom.

Question: Match: "She neither admitted nor ___"

Answer: (E) — refused (to decide about) entering the institution. For some time she neither refused to admit him nor decided in his favour, and he lingered about her.

Question: Match: "I took [the] best breakfast ___"

Answer: (B) — after sleeping all night under the sidewalk (the breakfast he earned by unloading the vessel seemed to him the best breakfast he had ever eaten).

Post-reading — Exercise 5 (write the cause/reason before each action statement)

Question: The miners were talking of the school as a great school because ___.

Answer: Because it gave poor but worthy coloured students an education, let them work out the cost of their board, and taught them a trade or industry at the same time.

Question: The writer was eager (free from anxiety) to go to Hampton because ___.

Answer: Because he was constantly on fire with one ambition — to reach Hampton and get an education — and he had resolved at once to go to that school.

Question: The writer had few clothes and little expense money because ___.

Answer: Because the small amount he had earned had been consumed by his stepfather and the rest of the family, except a very few dollars.

Question: The writer begged rides in wagons and cars because ___.

Answer: Because soon after leaving home he found that he did not have enough money to pay his fare to Hampton, so he walked and begged rides to cover the 500 miles.

Question: The writer spent the night at the sidewalk because ___.

Answer: Because he had reached Richmond completely out of money, tired, hungry and dirty, with no acquaintance in the large city and no place to go.

Question: The captain desired him to keep working (continuously) because ___.

Answer: Because his work pleased the captain so well that the captain told him he could continue working for a small amount per day if he desired.

Question: The impression of the boy on the head teacher was not suitable because ___.

Answer: Because he had been so long without proper food, a bath and a change of clothing that he could not make a favourable impression on her.

Question: The head teacher rubbed the woodwork because ___.

Answer: Because she wanted to test his cleaning thoroughly — being a "Yankee" woman, she knew just where to look for dirt, so she rubbed her handkerchief on the woodwork, tables and benches.

Question: The boy did hard work on the vessel because ___.

Answer: Because he had no money even for food, so he asked the captain's permission to help unload the vessel in order to earn money for his breakfast.

Question: The head teacher guessed that the boy would enter the institution because ___.

Answer: Because she could not find one bit of dirt on the floor or a particle of dust on any of the furniture after his thorough sweeping and dusting, so she said, "I guess you will do to enter this institution."

Exercise 6 (read the text and answer the questions)

Question: Why was the boy inspired to go to Hampton?

Answer: He overheard two miners praising a great school in Virginia where poor but worthy students could study, work out their board expenses, and learn a trade. This fired his ambition, and he resolved at once to go to Hampton.

Question: What did he learn during work (at Mrs. Ruffner's house)?

Answer: He learned that everything must be kept clean, done promptly and systematically, and that at the bottom of everything there must be absolute honesty and frankness. He counted these lessons as valuable as any education he ever got later.

Question: What happened to the money he had earned at Mrs. Ruffner's house?

Answer: Most of the small amount he had earned was consumed (spent) by his stepfather and the rest of the family. Only a very few dollars remained, so he had very little to buy clothes and pay his travelling expenses.

Question: What did he do in Richmond in order to reach Hampton city?

Answer: In Richmond he slept under a sidewalk, then worked for a ship's captain unloading the vessel to earn money for food. He worked for some days, saved a small surplus, thanked the captain, and set out again until he reached Hampton with exactly fifty cents.

Question: Why did the boy thank the captain of the ship?

Answer: Because the kind-hearted captain had allowed him to unload the vessel, given him work for a small daily wage when he was starving and penniless, and thus enabled him to eat and continue his journey to Hampton.

Question: Why did the writer not make a favourable impression on the head teacher?

Answer: Because after the long, hard journey he had been without proper food, a bath and a change of clothing for a long time, so he looked tired, hungry and dirty when he presented himself for assignment to a class.

Question: What did he have to go through in order to get admission at the Hampton Institute?

Answer: He had to pass a practical test: the head teacher ordered him to sweep the adjoining recitation room. He swept it three times, dusted all the woodwork, benches, tables and desks four times, and moved and cleaned every piece of furniture, closet and corner — his "college examination".

Question: Write the central theme of the text in your own words.

Answer: The central theme is that sincere ambition, hard work, honesty and perseverance can defeat poverty and every obstacle. Booker T. Washington's struggle shows that no difficulty is too great for a person who is determined to get an education.

Exercise 7 (write a short journey of your education)

Question: Write a short account of your own journey of education to reach your institution, in your own words.

Answer: Model answer: I began my education at a small primary school in my village, where I walked two kilometres daily. After passing Class V, I joined the high school in the nearby town and travelled by bus, often studying at night by a lantern during load-shedding. My parents worked hard to pay my fees, and my teachers encouraged me at every step. Today, reaching this college is the result of that long journey of effort, sacrifice and hope.

Exercise 8 (speech on "To empower women with education is to empower the Nation")

Question: Prepare a speech on the given topic to deliver before the class.

Answer: Model answer: Respected teachers and dear friends! Education is the light that removes the darkness of ignorance. When we educate a woman, we do not educate one person only — we educate a whole family and, through her, the coming generations. An educated woman can earn with dignity, raise healthy and learned children, and take part in the progress of society. Nations that have educated their women have advanced in every field, while those that kept women ignorant remained backward. Therefore, to empower women with education is truly to empower the nation. Let us promise today to support girls' education in every home. Thank you.

7.2 Writing — Formal Email — Exercise 1 (analyse the sample formal email)

Question: Identify the sections of the sample email and the formal tone used in it.

Answer: Sections: To (principal@abc.edu.pk — the recipient), CC (incharge students' affairs — copy recipient), BCC (class teacher, Grade XI — blind copy), Subject (request for calling the meeting of teachers), Salutation ("Dear Madam"), Purpose of writing (requesting a teachers' meeting), Body (reason: final exams next month, teachers to make a revision plan needing approval), and Closing/Signature ("Yours Sincerely, X.Y.Z, Grade-XI"). The tone is formal and polite: words like "requesting", "humbly requested" and "I hope you will manage" show respect, and the language is concise and official.

7.2 Writing — Exercise 2 (write a formal email — 1: to the Principal for permission for an educational visit) asking permission for an educational visit to the University of Sindh, Jamshoro.

Question: Write a formal email to the principal of your school/college

Answer: Model answer: To: principal@abc.edu.pk; CC: inchargetours@abc.edu.pk; Subject: Request for permission for an educational visit to the University of Sindh, Jamshoro. Dear Sir/Madam, I am writing with regard to an educational visit for the students of Grade XI. We wish to visit the University of Sindh, Jamshoro, to see its faculties, laboratories and library, so that students may gain guidance about higher education and future careers. The visit is proposed for the coming month, and our class teacher has agreed to accompany us. I humbly request you to kindly grant permission for this visit and instruct the office to make the necessary arrangements. We shall be highly grateful. Yours sincerely, X.Y.Z, Grade-XI.

7.2 Writing — Exercise 2 (write a formal email — 2: to a news channel)

Question: Write a formal email to a news channel requesting it to produce some motivational TV programmes on education.

Answer: Model answer: To: programmes@xyznews.tv; Subject: Request to produce motivational TV programmes on education. Dear Sir/Madam, I am writing in connection with the role of television in promoting education. Many students, especially in rural areas, leave their studies due to lack of guidance and motivation. I request your channel to produce motivational programmes on education — success stories of hardworking students, interviews with teachers and experts, and guidance about careers and scholarships. Such programmes will inspire thousands of young viewers to continue their education. I hope you will consider this request favourably. Yours faithfully, X.Y.Z, Student, Grade-XI.

7.3 Oral Communication — Exercise 1 (prepare a presentation — 1: Importance of Education in our Society)

Question: Prepare and deliver a presentation on "Importance of Education in our Society" following the aspects of effective delivery (delivery, content, interaction with audience).

Answer: Model answer: Assalam-o-Alaikum and good morning to all. Today I will speak on the importance of education in our society. Education is the foundation of progress: it gives knowledge and skills, builds character, and teaches us to live together peacefully. An educated society has better health, more jobs, less crime and faster development, because its people can think, decide and work wisely. In contrast, illiteracy keeps a society poor and dependent. Therefore, every one of us should value education, support schools, and help at least one child to study. To conclude: education is not a luxury; it is the need of every home and the future of our nation. Thank you. (Delivery notes: stress and repeat the main points, use simple gestures, maintain eye contact and a polite tone.)

7.3 Oral Communication — Exercise 1 (prepare a presentation — 2: Struggles of Famous Personalities in Acquiring Education)

Question: Prepare and deliver a presentation on "Struggles of Famous Personalities in Acquiring Education".

Answer: Model answer: Respected audience, many great personalities reached education through great struggle. Booker T. Washington worked in a coal-mine, served in a household, crossed 500 miles mostly on foot and by begging rides, slept under a sidewalk, and finally won admission to Hampton by cleaning a room perfectly. His life teaches us that poverty cannot stop a determined mind. Such examples show that difficulties are not excuses but steps: honest effort, patience and self-discipline always lead a student to success. Thank you. (Evaluate your presentation on delivery of main points, sufficient facts, and interaction with the audience.)

7.4 Grammar — Types of Sentence by Structure — Exercise 1 (identify the type of each sentence)

Question: Identify the structure type (1): a sentence about a plant by the window that died because watering was forgotten (joined with "but" and "since").

Answer: Compound-Complex sentence. It has two independent clauses joined by "but" (I had a beautiful plant / it died) and one dependent clause ("since I forgot to water it regularly").

Question: Identify the structure type (2): a sentence about a pilot who, with lightning speed, turned the plane and saved the passengers.

Answer: Simple sentence. It has one subject (the pilot) with a compound verb (turned … and saved …) expressing one complete thought.

Question: Identify the structure type (3): a sentence about a favourite novel — read many times — depicting an epic battle between good and evil.

Answer: Complex sentence. One independent clause with a dependent relative clause ("which I have read many times").

Answer: If you entrust me with the work, it will be done efficiently.

Question: Convert into a complex sentence (5): two short sentences — it is my opinion; the room needs to be painted.

Answer: It is my opinion that the room needs to be painted.

7.4 Grammar — Exercise 4 (identify the sentence structure in the given paragraph on "my philosophy of education")

Question: Identify the structure of sentence 1 of the paragraph: the writer's philosophy of education comes from his personal experiences.

Answer: Simple sentence — one subject and one verb expressing a complete thought.

Question: Identify the structure of sentence 2: the writer has been an educator for 4 years and has learned a lot from more experienced teachers in his district.

Answer: Compound sentence — two independent clauses joined by "and".

Question: Identify the structure of sentence 3: the writer works mainly with students from a low socioeconomic background; his own background was quite different.

Answer: Compound sentence — two independent clauses joined by a semicolon.

Question: Identify the structure of sentence 4: the writer will discuss how all these elements, along with scholarly texts, have impacted his educational philosophy.

Answer: Complex sentence — an independent clause with a dependent noun clause ("how all of these elements … have impacted my educational philosophy").

7.4 Grammar — Exercise 5 (add a subordinating conjunction or relative pronoun to connect the clauses in the Ramez paragraph)

Question: Fill all the blanks in the paragraph about Ramez and Junaid with suitable words from the box.

Answer: Completed paragraph: Ramez, who was nearly dry, looked out to sea. Where the waves splashed around the lighthouse, he saw a small boat, which was bobbing up and down in the water. Someone had left it there when he went for a swim. Ramez felt worried, so he nudged Junaid, whose back was turned. "I haven't seen anyone get into that boat since we got here," he said to Junaid. "Do you think that someone is in trouble?" "Look!" Junaid pointed to the rocks where a man was splashing in the water and waving. "Unless I'm mistaken, he needs help!" Once they had seen someone in danger, the boys knew what to do. Junaid rang the coastguards, because he knew they would send help. Ramez ran down to the rocks and threw a rubber ring to the man in the water. If the man couldn't get out of the sea, the rubber ring would help him stay afloat. The boys watched as the coastguard helicopter flew in to help. Junaid smiled with relief. "Wherever you go, Ramez, you always find an adventure!"

Unit 8: Places of Historical/Cultural Importance

8.1 Reading Comprehension — Pre-reading

Question: Which country would you like to visit, and why?

Answer: Model answer: I would like to visit Turkey, because it has famous historical places, beautiful mosques and museums, and a rich culture that connects the East and the West. (Any country with a sensible reason is acceptable.)

Question: Have you ever heard about the "City of Lions"?

Answer: Model answer: Yes. The "City of Lions" is Singapore, because the word Singapore means "City of Lion" (Singha = lion, pura = city). Marble statues of lions can be seen there everywhere.

While-reading — Exercise 1 (deduce contextual meanings of words)

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "shimmering".

Answer: Shining with a soft, flickering light; the lights of Singapore's streets and high buildings shimmered as if decorated for a wedding.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "anchored".

Answer: Held firmly in place by an anchor; ships stopped and fixed in the water near the port.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "moth".

Answer: A night-flying insect that is attracted towards light; Singapore, lit up like an earthen lamp, attracted ships and people like moths.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "haggle".

Answer: To bargain or argue over the price of something; when a motorboat taxi came near, it was hailed and the fare was haggled.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "hail".

Answer: To call or signal someone/something to stop; here, to call a motorboat taxi towards oneself.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "causeway".

Answer: A raised road or path built across water or low land; a causeway and a railway track along the bridge connect Johor with Singapore.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "incessantly".

Answer: Without stopping; continually. Rain falls in Singapore almost incessantly, yet the city is very clean.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "transgression".

Answer: Breaking of a law or rule; Singapore imposes large fines on small transgressions like spitting.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "serene".

Answer: Calm, peaceful and untroubled; the countryside of Singapore had a beautiful and serene atmosphere.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "vessel".

Answer: A ship or large boat; vessels of various countries were anchored at Singapore and looked like small islands.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "docked".

Answer: Brought into a dock or port and tied up there; a ship is docked when it is moored at the jetty for loading or unloading.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "crew".

Answer: All the people who work on a ship, aircraft or train; the sailors and staff who run a vessel.

While-reading — Exercise 2 (find the information from the text)

Question: Name the cities mentioned in the text.

Answer: Singapore, Port Klang (Malaysia), Johor (Malaysia), Karachi (mentioned through Kiamari and Manora), and Changi is a village at the island's end. The main city described is Singapore.

Question: Name the communities mentioned in the text.

Answer: Muslims, Buddhists, Hindus, Christians and Sikhs live in Singapore, making it a country of many religions and nations. These communities live side by side peacefully, and their languages and festivals give the country its mixed culture.

Question: Name the products mentioned in the text.

Answer: Fuel for ships, pineapples, and goods of every kind sold in the markets; Singapore imports every raw material and most food products, like Japan.

Question: Name the transport resources mentioned in the text.

Answer: Ships and vessels, motorboats (water taxis), barges pulled by motorboats, trucks, trains (railway track on the causeway) and comfortable, spacious, air-conditioned public buses. With all these means of transport, goods and passengers move easily between the port, the city and Malaysia.

Question: Name the educational activities mentioned in the text.

Answer: Debates, speeches and sports; the writers visited a speech competition and were impressed by the students' talent and confidence. The government spends twenty-five percent of its income on education.

Question: Name the famous places mentioned in the text.

Answer: Masjid Sultan (the biggest and most beautiful mosque), Change Alley (money-changing market), Raffles Place (the largest market — printed "Raffles Pulse"), Arab Street (reasonable prices), the jetty/port, and Changi Village in the countryside. These are the places the writer visited or described during his stay in Singapore.

Exercise 3 (encircle the correct option)

Question: Singapore is located in _____. (South Asia / Africa / Central Asia / Europe)

Answer: (a) South Asia — the closest option given in the book. (Note: strictly, Singapore lies in South-East Asia, at the maritime crossroad between the Pacific, the Indian Ocean and the South China Sea.)

Question: _____ is not a national language of Singapore. (English / French / Chinese / Malay)

Answer: (b) French. The four national languages are English, Malay, Chinese and Tamil.

Question: _____ of the population of Singapore is living far away from the port. (20% / 30% / 50% / 80%)

Answer: (a) 20%. Eighty percent of the population lives in just twenty-eight square miles around the port, so the remaining twenty percent lives away from it.

Question: One of the largest markets in Singapore is _____. (Change Alley / Changi / Raffles Pulse / Barges)

Answer: (c) Raffles Pulse (Raffles Place), which was very close to the port and had large, multi-storey shops.

Question: Singapore is called Mr. Clean because of _____. (rows of flowers / greenery / cleanliness / seeing sights)

Answer: (c) Cleanliness. Despite almost incessant rain, the city is spotlessly clean, and the spirit of cleanliness is present in everyone.

Question: _____ street of Singapore is reasonable for purchase. (Arab / Club / Amoy / Bugis)

Answer: (a) Arab. Arab Street is known throughout Singapore for reasonable prices.

Question: _____ city is about a mile away from Singapore. (Kiamari / Johar / Jatty / Raffles Pulse)

Answer: (b) Johar (Johor). The Malaysian city of Johor lies only about a quarter of a mile away (as the text states) and is joined to Singapore by a bridge, a causeway and a railway track.

Question: The land of Singapore consists of _____ area. (225 square miles / 2025 square miles / 200 square miles / 2005 square miles)

Answer: (a) 225 square miles. The whole country is only two hundred and twenty-five square miles — like a dot on the world map.

Question: In Singapore, we can find every currency of the world in _____. (Change Valley / Raffle Pulse / Mr. Clean / Arab Street)

Answer: (a) Change Valley — i.e. Change Alley (as named in the text), the narrow market near the port where every currency of the world is exchanged and traded.

Question: Which one is common in Singapore markets? (fixed prices / bargaining / free discounts / Govt. subsidy)

Answer: (b) Bargaining. Bargaining was common in Singapore, as in Hong Kong, Malaysia and nearly all Asian countries.

Post-reading — Exercise 4 (answer the questions)

Question: What is the geographical location of Singapore city?

Answer: Singapore is a small island country at a maritime crossroad where almost every ship sailing to or from the Pacific to the Indian Ocean or the South China Sea anchors. It is only six hours' journey from Port Klang of Malaysia and is joined to Johor (Malaysia) by a bridge and causeway.

Question: What are barges and how are they operated?

Answer: Barges are large, flat boats without engines used to carry cargo. Cargo was loaded into trucks at the river and sent to ships through barges; when four to five barges were loaded, a large motorboat pulled them to the ships, so from afar they looked like camel caravans.

Question: How is Singapore connected to Malaysia?

Answer: Singapore island is not far from Malaysia. The Malaysian city of Johor lies just a quarter of a mile away; a bridge connects Johor with Singapore, and there is a causeway as well as a railway track along the bridge — one can simply cross from one country to the other.

Question: Describe briefly the significance of Singapore port.

Answer: Singapore port is a free port and a major centre of fuel for ships at a maritime crossroad, so vessels of all countries anchor there and their trade brings income and prosperity. Its large jetty, motorboat taxis, barges and river traffic keep goods and people moving between ships and the city day and night.

Question: What are the reasons for the prosperity of Singapore in spite of its very small area?

Answer: Singapore is prosperous because of its ideal position for world trade, its free port and fuel centre, wise handling of money and wealth like Japan, and income from tourists, trade and ships from overseas — even though it imports every raw material and most food products.

Question: How is Singapore one of the attractive areas for tourists?

Answer: Singapore is a shoppers' paradise where almost everything is available at cheaper rates than even in its country of origin. Tourists stay in big hotels, enjoy Eastern and Western food in small restaurants, visit worth-seeing sights and the serene countryside, and travel in comfortable, cheap, air-conditioned buses.

Question: How does Singapore keep itself clean?

Answer: The people practise the saying "keep your house and the front of the street clean, so you see the whole city clean" in letter and spirit. The government is also strict: a fifty-dollar fine for spitting and huge penalties or even jail for littering, garbage bins in every nook and corner, and an honest police force keep the city clean with minimal noise and air pollution.

Question: Describe any four interesting aspects of Singapore.

Answer: (1) It is called "Mr. Clean" of the world for its cleanliness, greenery and rows of flowers. (2) It is a country of many religions and nations with four national languages — English, Malay, Chinese and Tamil. (3) It is a shoppers' paradise with the Change Alley currency market and Arab Street's reasonable prices. (4) Its government spends twenty-five percent of its income on education, and its students shine in debates, speeches and sports.

Question: Why is Singapore called the fusion of the East and the West?

Answer: Because modern buildings and lifestyles coexist there with the traditional way of life. Eastern and Western cultures, foods, languages and peoples live side by side — tourists eat the cuisine of both the East and the West — so Singapore is a true fusion (mixture) of the East and the West.

Question: Describe briefly the education in Singapore.

Answer: The government spends twenty-five percent of its income on education. Citizens are encouraged to get education, and schools have enough provision to accommodate every child of the country. Besides quality education, students are encouraged to take part in debates, speeches and sports, which makes them talented and confident.

Exercise 5 (idioms/phrasal expressions — meaning and use in a sentence)

Question: Give the meaning of "narrow and dark" and use it in a sentence.

Answer: Meaning: small in width and without light (gloomy). Sentence: The old market street was narrow and dark, so we walked carefully.

Question: Give the meaning of "every nook and corner" and use it in a sentence.

Answer: Meaning: every part of a place, however small or hidden.

Sentence: Garbage bins are placed in every nook and corner of the city.

Question: Give the meaning of "hustle and bustle" and use it in a sentence.

Answer: Meaning: busy, noisy activity and movement of people. Sentence: We left the city's hustle and bustle and enjoyed the calm countryside.

Question: Give the meaning of "fusion of the East and the West" and use it in a sentence.

Answer: Meaning: a blending/mixture of Eastern and Western cultures.

Sentence: Singapore's food and festivals show a fusion of the East and the West.

Question: Give the meaning of "dot on the map" and use it in a sentence.

Answer: Meaning: a very small place, hardly visible on the map because of its tiny size. Sentence: Singapore is just a dot on the map, yet it is a great trading nation.

Question: Give the meaning of "earthen lamp surrounded by moths" and use it in a sentence.

Answer: Meaning: a bright centre that attracts many around it (as moths gather around a lamp). Sentence: At night the shining port looked like an earthen lamp surrounded by moths.

Question: Give the meaning of "in letter and spirit" and use it in a sentence.

Answer: Meaning: fully and truly — both in words and in real intention/practice. Sentence: The people of Singapore follow the cleanliness rule in letter and spirit.

Question: Give the meaning of "shopper's paradise" and use it in a sentence.

Answer: Meaning: an ideal place for shopping, with everything available at good prices. Sentence: With its huge markets and cheap goods, Singapore is a shopper's paradise.

Exercise 6 (places the writer mentioned and what he saw there — the journey, Start to End)

Question: List the places of the writer's voyage in order and what he saw at each place.

Answer: Model answer: 1. Port Klang (Malaysia) — the starting point, six hours from Singapore. 2. Singapore anchorage and jetty — shimmering lights of streets and high buildings, anchored vessels looking like small islands, and motorboat taxis whose fares were haggled. 3. The river — huge boats and engine-less barges pulled by motorboats like camel caravans, carrying cargo to the ships. 4. Change Alley — every currency of the world exchanged in a narrow, dark market. 5. Raffles Place and Arab Street — large multi-storey shops, bargaining, and reasonable prices. 6. The city sights — Masjid Sultan, greenery, rows of flowers and spotless streets. 7. Changi Village (countryside, at the island's end) — serene atmosphere, coastline, pineapple orchards and rubber-tree forests, where girls sold them sweet pineapples.

8.2 Writing — Report Writing — Exercise 1 (write an informal report on the Celebration of Independence Day at your college)

Question: Write an informal report on the "Celebration of Independence Day on 14th August" at your college, following the guidelines for an informal report.

Answer: Model answer: Title: Celebration of Independence Day at Our College. Reported by: X.Y.Z, Grade XI. Our college celebrated Independence Day on 14th August with great spirit. The programme began at 9 a.m. in the college ground with the hoisting of the national flag and the singing of the national anthem. The Principal, in his speech, reminded us of the sacrifices made for Pakistan. Students presented national songs, speeches and a tableau showing the freedom struggle. Sweets were distributed among the students and staff. The teachers said that such events keep patriotism alive in young hearts. The celebration ended with prayers for the progress and prosperity of Pakistan. It was a joyful and memorable day for all of us.

8.2 Writing — Exercise 2 (write a formal report on the facilities provided by the college administration)

Question: Write a formal report on the facilities provided by the college administration, divided into academic, health and hygiene, and co-curricular facilities, following the formal report guidelines.

Answer: Model answer: Title page: Report on Facilities Provided by the College Administration — submitted to the Principal, prepared by X.Y.Z, Grade XI, dated 20 October. Abstract: This report reviews the facilities provided by the college administration in three areas — academic, health and hygiene, and co-curricular — and finds them generally satisfactory with a few needs of improvement. Introduction: The report was prepared at the request of the Principal to assess the facilities available to students during the current session. Body: (1) Academic facilities — the college library has a good collection of books and a reading room; the computer lab has updated systems; the science laboratories and the auditorium are well maintained. (2) Health and hygiene — washrooms are cleaned daily, clean drinking water is available, and the college canteen serves fresh food at reasonable rates. (3) Co-curricular facilities — the college has a large playground, sports material for cricket, football and athletics, and a gymnasium for indoor exercise. Conclusion: The facilities are satisfactory overall; the library needs more new books and the canteen needs more seating, but the administration is providing a healthy and active environment for learning.

8.3 Oral Communication — Exercise 1 (prepare a presentation — i: Tourism and its Impacts)

Question: Prepare a presentation on "Tourism and its Impacts" keeping the evaluative elements (clarity, style, cohesion, sufficiency, appearance, body language) in mind.

Answer: Model answer: Good morning to all. My topic is tourism and its impacts. Tourism means travelling to other places for pleasure, business or learning. It has positive impacts: it earns foreign exchange, creates jobs in hotels, transport and markets, and spreads the culture of a country to the world. Tourists also encourage the protection of historical places, as Singapore's clean and attractive city shows. However, tourism has some negative impacts too: crowding, price rises and pollution can harm local life and nature if tourism is not managed well. In conclusion, tourism is a blessing when it is planned and responsible; governments and tourists together should protect the places they enjoy. Thank you.

8.3 Oral Communication — Exercise 1 (prepare a presentation — ii: Natural Beauty of Pakistan)

Question: Prepare a presentation on "Natural Beauty of Pakistan".

Answer: Model answer: Assalam-o-Alaikum. Pakistan is blessed with wonderful natural beauty. In the north stand the mighty Himalayas, Karakoram and Hindu Kush, with snow-covered peaks, green valleys like Hunza and Swat, and clear lakes like Saif-ul-Malook. The plains of Punjab and Sindh are rich with fields and rivers, the Thar desert shines golden under the sun, and the Arabian Sea washes our long coastline at Karachi and Gwadar. This variety of mountains, deserts, rivers and sea in one country is rare in the world. We should protect this beauty and show it proudly to visitors. Thank you.

8.3 Oral Communication — Exercise 1 (prepare a presentation — iii: Tolerance)

Question: Prepare a presentation on "Tolerance".

Answer: Model answer: Respected teachers and friends, tolerance means respecting the beliefs, opinions and habits of others even when we disagree with them. A tolerant society lives in peace: people of different religions, languages and cultures work together without hatred, as we saw in Singapore where many nations live side by side. Intolerance, on the other hand, creates quarrels and destroys progress. Islam and all great teachings also preach patience and respect for others. If we practise tolerance at home, in class and in society, our country will become peaceful and strong. Thank you.

8.3 Oral Communication — Exercise 2 (evaluate a class fellow's presentation using the evaluation form)

Question: Fill the evaluation form for a class fellow's presentation (items: clear main idea, organisation, supporting details, communication style, dress/body language, interaction/eye contact).

Answer: Model answer (sample evaluation of a good presentation): Clear and cohesive main idea — Good (the topic and purpose were stated clearly at the start). Consistent organisation of ideas — Excellent (introduction, body and conclusion followed in order). Sufficient supporting details — Good (facts and examples supported every point). Effective communication style — Good (clear, fluent and confident delivery). Appropriate dress and body language — Excellent (formal dress, pleasant expression, few gestures). Appropriate interaction with audience and eye contact — Fair (eye contact was maintained, but questions from the audience could be invited more warmly). Overall comment: a well-prepared presentation; improve audience interaction further.

8.4 Grammar — Direct and Indirect Speech — Exercise 1 (discuss the Raza–Ali conversation)

Question: Discuss the conversation between Raza and Ali (given in direct speech) — what does each speaker tell the other?

Answer: Model answer: Raza meets Ali, whom he has not seen since June, and asks what he is doing there. Ali explains that he has just come back from his holiday in Turkey, which he loved for its friendly and hospitable people. On being asked, he says it was his first trip (to Istanbul) and offers to show Raza some pictures; he asks whether Raza is doing anything tomorrow. Raza says he must arrange a couple of things but is free tonight. Ali suggests that Raza might come to his place and asks what time they shall meet; Raza confirms he will be there at eight, and Ali

Unit 9: Choosing Career

9.1 Reading Comprehension — Pre-reading

Question: What comes to your mind after seeing the picture of people in different occupations?

Answer: Model answer: The picture shows that there are many different professions in society — for example doctor, teacher, engineer, pilot, chef, farmer, policeman, artist and musician — and every person must one day choose one of them as a career.

Question: List down the occupations according to the picture.

Answer: Model answer: The occupations shown include: doctor, nurse, teacher, engineer, pilot, chef (cook), farmer, police officer, firefighter, construction worker, artist/painter, musician, scientist, postman and businessman. Each one serves society in his own way.

Question: Which of these professions would you like to have for your career?

Answer: Model answer: I would like to become a teacher, because teaching is a noble profession: it spreads knowledge, builds the character of the young generation, and gives inner satisfaction along with respect in society. (Any profession with a genuine reason is acceptable.)

While-reading — Exercise 1 (deduce contextual meanings of words)

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "speculative".

Answer: Based on guessing or imagination rather than facts; the answer to "what do you want to be?" is not an idealistic or speculative musing but a vital issue.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "peers".

Answer: People of the same age or same social group; many students choose a field because of peer pressure.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "interchangeable".

Answer: Able to be exchanged or used in place of each other; jobs and careers are considered synonymous and interchangeable, but there is a subtle difference between them.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "embarking".

Answer: Starting or beginning (a journey or undertaking); before embarking on a journey to choose a career, one must understand the difference between a job and a career.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "prevailing".

Answer: Existing or most common at a particular time; many students follow prevailing social trends while choosing a field.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "extroverted".

Answer: Outgoing and sociable; an extroverted person finds a social, customer-oriented workplace more appealing.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "introverted".

Answer: Shy and inward-looking; an introverted person prefers careers with less social interaction and more independent, analytical tasks.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "aptitude".

Answer: Natural ability or talent for something; many aptitude tests are available online to help reach a suitable career decision.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "veteran".

Answer: A person with long experience in a field; by consulting a veteran of the field, you gain valuable insight into its expectations and difficulties.

Question: Give the contextual meaning of "retrospection".

Answer: Looking back and thinking carefully about the past; if goals are not achieved, one should do a serious retrospection and redesign one's goals.

Exercise 2 (encircle the right option)

Question: A job is a _____ term strategy. (long / short / medium / none of these)

Answer: (b) Short. A job is the work one does to earn money; it is a short-term strategy and does not necessarily require a professional degree or future planning.

Question: Many students choose a particular field because of _____. (prevailing social trends / insistence of family / peer pressure / all of these)

Answer: (d) All of these. Students often choose a field due to social trends, family insistence or peer pressure instead of their genuine interest, and later lose motivation.

Question: An introverted person requires _____ interaction. (much / less / no / constant)

Answer: (b) Less. An introvert is at ease in a career that requires less social interaction and more independent analytical tasks.

Question: Engineering may be a good field for someone who likes to do _____ work. (practical / theoretical / analytical / creative)

Answer: (a) Practical. The text gives engineering as a good field for someone who likes to do practical work in the field.

Question: Study of computer science requires _____ skills. (accounting / chemistry / logical / imagination)

Answer: (c) Logical. The study of computational algorithms necessitates solid and logical skills.

Question: Choosing a career requires _____. (interest / personality / skills / all of these)

Answer: (d) All of these. A right career choice needs genuine interest, a matching personality and values, and the required skills or the ability to master them.

Question: A professional career counsellor may _____. (give you a job / decide your career / guide you / give you scholarship)

Answer: (c) Guide you. A counsellor helps you choose a career and guides you through the admission process, suitable institutions and scholarships.

Question: SAT stands for _____. (Scholastic Assessment Test / School Aptitude Test / Scholarship Achievement Test / Selection and Admission Test)

Answer: (a) Scholastic Assessment Test. Some universities accept the SAT score for admission instead of their own entrance test.

Question: To get information about admission one should _____. (ask other students / visit university websites / read books / consult parents)

Answer: (b) Visit university websites. Almost every university has a functional website where detailed admission-related information is available.

Question: If you don't succeed you should _____. (give up / try with same method / rethink strategy / sit idle)

Answer: (c) Rethink strategy. One should review one's strategy, do a retrospection, and make an effort with new vigour — while also keeping a backup plan.

Post-reading — Exercise 3 (match the profession with its description)

Question: Match "Actuary" with its description.

Answer: (f) Studies fossils. Column C answer: 9–f.

Question: Match "Pharmacist" with its description.

Answer: (g) Makes (prepares and dispenses) medicines. Column C answer: 10–g.

Exercise 4 (read the text and answer the questions)

Question: What are the differences between a job and a career?

Answer: A job is the work one does to earn money; it may be full-time or part-time, is a short-term strategy, and does not necessarily require a professional degree or future planning. A career is a long-term journey based on one's passions, future growth and personal advancement, and needs a certain level of education, a professional degree or at least a definite skill set.

Question: Why should you choose a career that interests you?

Answer: Because interest brings satisfaction and happiness, and you will be more successful, fulfilled and productive if you are enthusiastic about your chosen path. A career chosen without genuine interest soon loses motivation and leads to dissatisfaction.

Question: What causes de-motivation in a career?

Answer: Choosing a field because of prevailing social trends, insistence of family, peer pressure, or lack of information about other choices — instead of genuine interest — causes de-motivation. After some time such students find no motivation to continue, which leads to dissatisfaction and a negative emotional experience.

Question: What are the examples of personal values given in the text?

Answer: The text gives these personal values: for some people it is independence; for others, recognition or leadership; some wish to help humanity, and others desire intellectual, scientific or artistic achievements. A career decision should match these values and one's personality type.

Question: What is the difference between an extroverted person and an introverted person?

Answer: An extroverted person is outgoing and finds a social, customer-oriented workplace more appealing. An introverted person is inward-looking and feels at ease in a career that requires less social interaction and more independent, analytical tasks.

Question: What are the core skills required for a chartered accountant and a visual artist?

Answer: A chartered accountant needs a good knowledge of accounting, with strong numerical and analytical ability, because his work is to keep and examine accounts. A visual artist, on the other hand, must be creative and artistic. His skill is judged by the attributes that can be displayed through his work.

Question: What is an aptitude test? How does it help in choosing a career?

Answer: An aptitude test is a test that measures a person's natural abilities and skills for different kinds of work. It helps in choosing a career by showing whether one possesses the required skills for the preferred career, so that abilities and interests can be matched with the intended career path; many such tests are available online.

Question: Why is it necessary to consult a veteran of the field before choosing a career?

Answer: Because our idea of a dream career may be idealistic and unattainable. A veteran (experienced person) of the field can give valuable insight into the field's expectations, procedures, difficulties and rewards, and guide us towards the right institutions, processes and tips to achieve the goal.

Question: How can a professional career counsellor help you?

Answer: A professional career counsellor can help in choosing a suitable career and also guide through the admission process — suggesting suitable institutions, methods to obtain scholarships, and the eligibility criteria of financial aid if needed. Career counselling seminars can also be attended for this help.

Question: Why is it wiser to have a backup plan?

Answer: Because sometimes, despite genuine efforts, we are unable to achieve our goals. A backup plan keeps other potential opportunities open; it does not mean giving up the dream, but doing a serious retrospection, redesigning goals if required, and trying again with new vigour and first-hand insight.

Exercise 5 (match the personality type with its description)

Question: Match "Realistic" personality type with its description.

Answer: Likes to work with their bodies and do practical (hands-on) work.

Question: Match "Investigative" personality type with its description.

Answer: Likes to work with ideas and problems (thinking, analysing and solving).

Question: Match "Artistic" personality type with its description.

Answer: Likes to create new things and express their ideas.

Question: Match "Social" personality type with its description.

Answer: Likes to work with and help other people.

Question: Match "Enterprising" personality type with its description.

Answer: Likes to lead and influence other people.

Question: Match "Conventional" personality type with its description.

Answer: Likes to organize things and check details (orderly, systematic work).

Exercise 6 (identify the best career for yourself by following the given steps)

Question: Following the steps (a) list career-related interests and values, (b) write natural skills and abilities, (c) consider personality type and values, (d) make a preliminary career decision and a plan of action — choose a career for yourself.

Answer: Model answer: (a) My interests and values: I like reading, explaining things and helping others; my values are service, respect and independence. (b) My natural skills: good communication, patience, and strong marks in English and Islamiat. (c) My personality type is Social — I like to work with and help people. (d) Preliminary decision: I will become a school teacher. Plan of action: complete my intermediate and graduation in English/Islamiat, then do B.Ed., take an aptitude test, consult a veteran teacher and a career counsellor, and apply to good institutions, keeping private tutoring as a backup plan.

9.2 Writing (a) — Understanding Job Advertisement — Exercise 1 (identify the components of the given advertisement)

Question: Look at the given job advertisement and identify its components.

Answer: The advertisement contains all the standard components listed in the book: (1) Job Title — the name of the vacant post at the top; (2) Job Location — the city/office where the job is based; (3) Duties and Responsibilities — what the selected person will have to do; (4) Job Requirements — the qualification, experience and skills demanded; (5) Company and Benefits — information about the organisation and the salary/benefits offered; (6) Applying Instructions — how and by what date to apply, and where to send the application. (Note: in the printed book the sample advertisement is reproduced in very small, blurred type and its exact wording cannot be read; the components above are the parts every such advertisement, including this one, is made of.)

9.2 Writing (b) — Resume — Exercise 1 (write your own resume following the sample and tips)

Question: Write your own resume keeping in view the given sample and the tips for writing a resume.

Answer: Model answer: AHMED ALI. Contact: House No. 12, Street 3, Hyderabad, Sindh; Email: ahmed.ali@example.com; Phone: 0300-0000000. Volunteered in the college library during the book fair. Education: Intermediate (Pre-Medical), Board of Intermediate and Secondary Education, Hyderabad — 2025; Matriculation (Science) — 2023. Skills: MS Word and Excel, typing 30 w.p.m., good communication in English, Urdu and Sindhi. Awards and Achievements: Best Speaker, inter-college speech competition 2024; Certificate of Merit in English. Languages: English, Urdu, Sindhi. (Proofread carefully and tailor the resume for each job advertisement.)

9.2 Writing (c) — Covering Letter — Exercise 2 (write your own covering letter following the tips)

Question: Write your own covering letter keeping in view the given tips and structure of a covering letter.

Answer: Model answer: Ahmed Ali, House No. 12, Street 3, Hyderabad; ahmed.ali@example.com; Tel: 0300-0000000. Date: 20 October 2026. To, The Manager, Human Resources Department, XYZ Book Depot, Hyderabad. Dear Sir/Madam, I am writing in response to your advertisement published in the Daily Dawn dated 15 October 2026. I am writing to apply for the position of Sales Assistant. At present, I am studying in Grade XI at Government College Hyderabad. My education includes Matriculation in Science, and I have been studying English for the last eleven years. I have experience in dealing with customers and keeping records, and have worked at a local bookstore for the last six months. I am an ambitious person who is keen to learn new skills, and I believe I am a suitable candidate for this job because of my honesty, punctuality and communication skills. I am excited to have the opportunity to work with a reputable organisation like yours. Thank you for taking the time to read through my resume. Please do not hesitate to contact me for further information. I appreciate your consideration and look forward to hearing from you. Yours sincerely, Ahmed Ali.

9.3 Oral Communication — Exercise 1 (practise the interview dialogue — the book's model answers)

Question: Interview practice — "Tell me briefly about yourself?" Give the interviewee's answer as modelled in the book.

Answer: Model answer (from the book's dialogue): I have spent the last six years developing my skills as a customer service manager at OGDCL, where I have won several performance awards and been promoted twice. I love managing teams and solving customer problems, and I am looking for a new role that will challenge me.

Question: Interview practice — "What are your strengths?" Give the modelled answer.

Answer: Model answer (from the book's dialogue): I am highly motivated, enthusiastic and work well in a team. I also handle pressure smartly, which is the key factor of my achievements.

Question: Interview practice — "Why are you interested in this position?" Give the modelled answer.

Answer: Model answer (from the book's dialogue): I have always admired your company's products. I was really impressed with the recent interview of your CEO, in which he shared his vision of a collaborative company culture. The job responsibilities also emphasise communication skills and leadership, which are my greatest strengths, so I feel this is the role and organisation in which I could excel.

Question: Interview practice — "Why are you leaving your current job?" Give the modelled answer.

Answer: Model answer (from the book's dialogue): As I have already mentioned, I am zealous and keen to keep myself abreast (up to date). Also, I will seek various opportunities here to learn and grow.

Question: Interview practice — "Why should we hire you?" Give the modelled answer.

Answer: Model answer (from the book's dialogue): Honestly, with all my great communication and leadership skills, I will prove myself a benefit and an asset to your reputable company.

9.3 Oral Communication — Exercise 2 (situation: you have received a call letter for a job interview — role-play as interviewer and interviewee)

Question: Prepare for the interview call and present a short model role-play using the interview etiquettes/tips.

Answer: Model answer: (The candidate knocks, enters after permission, greets the panel and sits when asked.) Interviewer: Please introduce yourself. Interviewee: I am Ahmed Ali from Hyderabad. I have passed Intermediate and have six months' experience as a sales assistant in a bookstore; I am punctual, honest and fond of dealing with people politely. Interviewer: Why do you want this job? Interviewee: This job matches my skills and will help me grow while serving a reputable organisation. Interviewer: Thank you; we shall inform you soon. Interviewee: Thank you,

Sir, for your time. (The candidate leaves quietly, maintaining eye contact and a polite tone throughout.)

9.3 Oral Communication — Exercise 3 (present a mock job interview in front of the class)

Question: Assign the roles of interviewer and interviewee and present a mock job interview before the class.

Answer: Model answer: Interviewer: Good morning, please sit down. Tell me, why have you applied for the post of junior clerk? Interviewee: Good morning, Sir. I have applied because I have good computer and record-keeping skills, and your office is known for its discipline and fair dealing. Interviewer: What will you do if the workload suddenly increases? Interviewee: I will stay calm, make a list of priorities, and complete the urgent work first; I can also work extra time when needed. Interviewer: Very good. We will let you know our decision within a week. Interviewee: Thank you, Sir. I shall wait for your kind reply. (Both students follow the etiquettes: formal dress, polished shoes, two copies of the CV, pen and documents carried, knock before entering, sit only when asked.)

9.3 Oral Communication — Exercise 4 (write possible responses to common interview questions)

Question: Possible response — "Tell me a little about yourself."

Answer: Model answer: I am Ahmed Ali, a student of Grade XI from Hyderabad. I am hardworking, punctual and honest, with good communication skills in English, Urdu and Sindhi. I enjoy learning new things and working with people, and I want to build my career in a reputable organisation.

Question: Possible response — "What is special about you?"

Answer: Model answer: I learn quickly, stay calm under pressure and never leave a task unfinished. My teachers appreciate my honesty and my habit of helping classmates, which makes me a good team worker.

Question: Possible response — "Why do you want to work here?"

Answer: Model answer: Your organisation is well known for its quality and fair dealing. Working here will give me a chance to use my skills, learn from experienced people and grow professionally.

Question: Possible response — "What interests you about this job?"

Answer: Model answer: This job involves dealing with people, keeping records and solving problems — all of which I genuinely enjoy. A job that matches my interest will keep me motivated and productive.

Question: Possible response — "Why are you leaving your current job?"

Answer: Model answer: I am leaving to seek better opportunities for learning and growth. I am thankful to my present employer for the experience I gained there, and now I want a role that challenges me more.

Question: Possible response — "What are your strengths?"

Answer: Model answer: My strengths are honesty, punctuality, good communication and teamwork. I also handle pressure smartly and complete my work before the deadline.

Question: Possible response — "What are your goals for the future?"

Answer: Model answer: My goal is to complete my education with good marks, gain experience in my field, and reach a responsible position within five years, while continuing to learn new skills.

Question: Possible response — "Where do you see yourself in five years?"

Answer: Model answer: In five years I see myself as a trained and trusted officer in this organisation, having completed my further studies and leading a small team with responsibility.

Question: Possible response — "Why should we hire you?"

Answer: Model answer: Because I have the required qualification, relevant skills and, above all, the honesty and energy to prove myself a benefit and an asset to your reputable organisation.

Question: Possible response — "What is your salary range expectation?"

Answer: Model answer: I expect a salary according to the organisation's scale for this post and my qualification. I am more interested in learning and growth at this stage, so I will accept the standard package offered to new appointees.

9.3 Oral Communication — Exercise 5 (devise your own interview questions and responses and practise them)

Question: Devise your own set of interview questions and responses for the job studied in Unit 9.2.

Answer: Model answer: Interviewer: Have you any experience of office work? Interviewee: Yes, I worked six months at a bookstore, keeping records and serving customers. Interviewer: Can you use a computer? Interviewee: Yes, I can type 30 words per minute and work on MS Word and Excel. Interviewer: How will you reach the office on time? Interviewee: I live nearby and I am habitual of reaching early; punctuality is my strength. Interviewer: What will you do if a customer becomes angry? Interviewee: I will listen calmly, apologise for the inconvenience and try to solve his problem politely. Interviewer: Good. We shall call you for the final interview next week. Interviewee: Thank you, Sir. I shall come fully prepared.

9.4 Grammar (a) — Conditional Sentences Type-II — Exercise 1 (write a paragraph proposing solutions to the "Unsustainable Environment" issue)

Question: Read the paragraph on the unsustainable fishing in the River Indus and write a paragraph proposing solutions to this issue, in a group.

Answer: Model answer: Our way of fishing cannot continue without hurting the environment, but the problem can be solved if we act wisely. If fishermen caught only grown fish, baby fish would survive and the river would never become empty. If the government fixed a fishing season, the fish would get time to breed and multiply. If poachers were fined heavily, they would stop catching too many fish. If people were educated about the danger, they would protect the river themselves. In this way the Indus would remain full of fish for our coming generations.

9.4 Grammar — Exercise 2 (identify the sentence structure and the situation type)

Question: (i) Identify the type of sentence structure your class fellows have used in their solution paragraphs.

Answer: Type-II conditional structure: If + simple past tense in the if-clause, and would/could/might + base verb in the main clause — for example, "If fishermen caught only grown fish, the river would never become empty."

Question: (ii) Identify the situation from the options: (a) impossible condition in the past and its impossible result, (b) unlikely and hypothetical situation with probable result, (c) possible condition with possible result.

Answer: (b) Unlikely and hypothetical situation with probable result. Type-II conditionals talk about unreal situations in the present or future — the condition is imagined, and the result is what would probably happen if it were true.

9.4 Grammar — Exercise 3 (write short paragraphs using Conditional Type-II — 1: If you were chairman of the Union Council of your area…)

Question: Write a short paragraph beginning with the given Type-II stem about being chairman of your Union Council.

Answer: Model answer: If I were chairman of the Union Council of my area, I would serve the people honestly. I would repair the broken streets and keep every mohalla clean. If farmers needed water, I would arrange its fair distribution. I would build a dispensary and a library, and I would listen to the poor before taking any decision. If everyone cooperated with me, our area would become a model union council.

9.4 Grammar — Exercise 3 (2: If you were elected the Prime Minister of Pakistan…)

Question: Write a short paragraph beginning with the given Type-II stem about being elected Prime Minister of Pakistan.

Answer: Model answer: If I were elected the Prime Minister of Pakistan, I would make education and health my first priorities. If every child went to school, illiteracy would disappear from our country. I would create jobs for the youth, control price-hike, and treat all provinces equally. If the people trusted me, I would never break their trust, because a leader is the servant of the nation.

9.4 Grammar — Exercise 3 (3: If you were the Principal of your college…)

Question: Write a short paragraph beginning with the given Type-II stem about being the Principal of your college.

Answer: Model answer: If I were the Principal of my college, I would make it a place of real learning. I would keep discipline with kindness, provide clean water and a better library, and arrange sports and debates for the students. If teachers needed training, I would arrange workshops for them. If students worked hard, I would reward them openly, so that everyone would feel proud of the college.

9.4 Grammar — Punctuation: Square Brackets — Exercise 4 (use square brackets where required in the given paragraph about Kasona/Namibia)

Question: Rewrite the given paragraph inserting square brackets where an editor must add or correct words.

Answer: Corrected paragraph: "He [Kasona] was born in 1971. At that time, Namibia [,] a poor country [,] had many problems. The country was at war [from] 1966 to 1990. Because of the fighting, many indigenous [people —] the Namibians [—] had rifles, which caused a problem [of] poaching. During that time, poachers killed many wild animals [, especially] black rhinos [,] for their horns [and] for their valuable body parts. To make things even worse [,] around 1980 a terrible drought killed [many] people, livestock, and wildlife. By 1995, there were only [a] few wild animals [,] lions and cheetahs [,] left in the Kunene region in the northwest of the country." (Square brackets show every word added or changed by the editor, and [sic] would be used to mark an original writer's mistake kept unchanged.)

9.4 Vocabulary (c) — Thesaurus — Exercise 5 (find synonyms closest to the meaning and use them in sentences) meaning, the contextual meaning, and use each synonym in your own sentence.

Answer: Original word: Afford. Contextual meaning: to have enough money to buy something; also, to give or provide something. Synonyms and sentences: (1) Provide — Our school provides free books to poor students. (2) Supply — This well supplies water to the whole village. (3) Bear (the cost) — My father cannot bear the cost of a new car this year. Closest everyday sentence with the original word: A student cannot afford to waste his time before the exams.

Question: Use a thesaurus for "Fine": give synonyms closest to the meaning, the contextual meaning, and use each synonym in your own sentence.

Answer: Original word: Fine. Contextual meaning: very good/of high quality; also thin and delicate. Synonyms and sentences: (1) Excellent — She is an excellent singer, and her fine voice pleases everyone. (2) Delicate — The spider made a fine, delicate web in the corner of the window. (3) Thin — Fine thread is used for embroidery on clothes. (Another common meaning of "fine" is a penalty: He paid a fine of fifty dollars for spitting in a clean city.)

Unit 10: Practicing Positive Work Ethics

10.1 Reading Comprehension — Pre-reading (what comes to your mind after reading the quotations in the bubbles)

Question: Explain the quotation: "Patience accomplishes its object, while hurry speeds to its ruin." (Saadi)

Answer: Model answer: Patience succeeds in achieving its goal, whereas haste and hurry lead a person to failure and ruin. We should work calmly and steadily instead of rushing.

Question: Explain the quotation: "Desires make slaves out of kings and patience makes kings out of slaves." (Al-Ghazali)

Answer: Model answer: A king who becomes a slave of his desires loses his dignity and freedom, while a patient slave, by controlling his desires, rises to honour like a king. Self-control, not rank, makes a person truly great.

Question: Explain the quotation: "Yesterday, I was clever, so I wanted to change the world. Today, I am wise, so I am changing myself." (Rumi)

Answer: Model answer: In youth we think we can reform the whole world, but wisdom teaches us that real change begins with ourselves. If every person reforms himself, the world will change on its own.

Question: Explain the quotation: "Independence is of more value than any gifts; and to receive gifts is to lose it." (Saadi)

Answer: Model answer: Freedom and self-reliance are more precious than any gift, because accepting favours and gifts makes a person obliged and dependent on others, and so he loses his independence.

Question: Explain the quotation: "Raise your words, not voice. It is rain that grows flowers, not thunder." (Rumi)

Answer: Model answer: We should improve the quality of our words instead of shouting. Just as gentle rain makes flowers grow and thunder produces nothing, polite and wise speech wins hearts while loud anger achieves nothing.

While-reading — Exercise 1 (find words from the text matching the descriptions)

Question: Find the word for: "extremely poor and lacking the means to provide for oneself."

Answer: Destitute (Text-I: the wealthy man asked his destitute brother).

Question: Find the word for: "shaking slightly in a way that one cannot control."

Answer: Tremble (Text-II: the slave began to cry and to tremble with fear on the boat).

Question: Find the word for: "bringing or restoring to a state of peace or tranquillity."

Answer: Pacified / pacify (Text-II: the slave could not be pacified by kindness).

Question: Find the word for: "happening especially as if by fate."

Answer: Befallen (Text-II: a man does not appreciate the value of immunity from a misfortune until it has befallen him).

Question: Find the word for: "stimulating drug that can cause illusions."

Answer: Ecstasy — in Text-III the word appears in its sense of overwhelming joy ("the joy and ecstasy I felt"), and the same word also names a stimulating drug that produces illusions; the dictionary description in the book points to this word.

Question: Find the word for: "decorated or beautified, as by ornaments."

Answer: Adorned (Text-III: "whether his girdle is adorned with pearls or potsherds").

Question: Find the word for: "the quality of having or showing good powers of judgement."

Answer: Shrewdness (Text-V: the possessor of deliberation, intelligence and shrewdness does not speak until he sees silence).

Question: Find the word for: "becoming involved with or taking part in something."

Answer: Partake (Maxims: it is improper to partake of medicine by guess).

Question: Find the word for: "skill or expertise in a particular activity or field."

Answer: Prowess (Maxims: a weak man trying to show his prowess against a strong one only aids his foe).

Question: Find the word for: "repository for grain, especially after it has been threshed."

Answer: Granary (Maxims: "The granary is but grain upon grain").

Exercise 2 (suggest an appropriate title for each text)

Question: Suggest a title for Text-I (the two brothers — one in the sultan's service, the other earning by his arm).

Answer: Model answer: "Freedom Is Better than Golden Belts" — or "Contentment in Independence". The poor brother prefers barley bread with freedom to service with a golden belt.

Question: Suggest a title for Text-II (the king, the slave and the boat).

Answer: Model answer: "We Value Safety Only After Danger" — or "The Slave Who Feared the Sea". The slave learnt the value of the boat's safety only after tasting the calamity of being drowned.

Question: Suggest a title for Text-III (the Arab of the desert and the bag of pearls).

Answer: Model answer: "Pearls Are Useless to a Thirsty Man" — or "The Value of a Thing Depends on Need". In the desert, parched grain would have been dearer than pearls.

Question: Suggest a title for Text-IV (the sage advising students to learn a skill).

Answer: Model answer: "A Skill Is Permanent Wealth" — or "Learn a Skill". Riches can be stolen or spent, but a profession is a living fountain of wealth that wins respect everywhere.

Question: Suggest a title for Text-V (the wise man on not interrupting others' speech).

Answer: Model answer: "Do Not Interrupt Others" — or "The Art of Listening". A wise and shrewd person does not insert his words between the words of others and speaks only when there is silence.

Exercise 3 (encircle the correct option)

Question: The second brother was living by _____. (serving sultan / doing Govt. service / doing labour / selling belts)

Answer: (c) Doing labour. One brother was in the service of the sultan, while the other gained his livelihood by the effort of his arm (manual labour).

Question: _____ said that it is better to eat barley than to gird with golden belts. (elder brother / sultan / wealthy man / servant)

Answer: The poor (labouring) brother said this, quoting the wise men, in reply to his wealthy brother. Note: the book's options do not name him exactly — he is the destitute brother who earned his living by labour; the wealthy man had only asked him the question.

Question: "To gird with golden belts" — this phrase indicates to live _____.

(hard life / healthy life / wealthy life / slavery life)

Answer: (d) Slavery life. To gird oneself with a golden belt and stand in service means living like a servant/slave at a court, however rich the dress may be.

Question: The _____ was fearful during travel in the vessel. (king / sultan / slave / Wiseman)

Answer: (c) Slave. The slave, who had never been at sea before, began to cry and tremble and could not be pacified.

Question: The slave was thrown in the sea to _____. (catch fish / gain experience / go drowning / save boat)

Answer: (b) Gain experience. The wise man had him thrown into the water so that, after tasting the calamity of drowning, he would learn the value of the safety of the boat.

Question: The Arab became happy after _____. (finding bag / gaining grain / finding water / seeing pearls)

Answer: (a) Finding (the) bag. Lost in the desert with all provisions consumed, he suddenly caught sight of a bag and was overjoyed, thinking it might be parched grain — though it proved to be pearls.

Question: The sage gave advice to his students that _____. (property can be made / silver and gold are necessary / riches can be relied / profession is wealth)

Answer: (d) Profession is wealth. A profession is a living fountain and permanent wealth; a skilled man enjoys respect wherever he goes.

Question: "Little drops make an ocean." This proverb is appropriately depicted in _____. (Text-I / Text-III / Maxim-V / Maxim-III)

Answer: (c) Maxim-V. The fifth maxim says: drop upon drop collected will make a river, rivers upon rivers a sea, and little and little together will become much.

Question: A group of people travelling together is called a _____. (sages / caravan / crew / shrewd men)

Answer: (b) Caravan. The maxim speaks of going after a caravan without seeing the road.

Question: _____ may be the suitable message of Text-II. ('Self-done is well done' / 'Brave deeds need no show' / 'Small wit great boast' / 'Silent water run deep')

Answer: (d) 'Silent water run deep' — the closest of the given options: after his experience the slave sat down quietly in a corner, having learnt his lesson in silence. Note: the exact moral stated in the text is that a man does not appreciate the value of immunity from a misfortune until it has befallen him.

Post-reading — Exercise 4 (answer the questions)

Question: What did the wealthy man ask the poor brother, and what was his reply?

Answer: The wealthy man asked his destitute brother why he did not serve the sultan in order to be delivered from the hardship of labouring. The poor brother replied: why do you labour (in service) not to be delivered from the baseness of service? Wise men have said it is better to eat barley bread and sit free than to gird oneself with a golden belt and stand in service.

Question: Why could the slave not be pacified even though he was in the same boat with the king?

Answer: Because he had never been at sea before and had never experienced the inconvenience of a vessel. Fear of the sea made him cry and tremble to such a degree that he could not be pacified by kindness, and the matter could not be remedied.

Question: What did the wise man do to make the slave realize the security of the boat?

Answer: With the king's permission, the wise man ordered the slave to be thrown into the water. The slave swallowed some water, was caught and pulled by his hair to the boat, and clung to its stern with both hands. After this experience he sat down in a corner and became quiet, having realised the safety of the boat.

Question: What kind of virtue did the sage want to teach his students (in Text-IV)?

Answer: The sage wanted to teach them the virtue of learning a skill and self-reliance. Property and riches cannot be relied upon — a thief may steal them or the owner may spend them — but a profession is permanent wealth that earns respect everywhere.

Question: How does the professional man earn respect according to the sage?

Answer: According to the sage, a professional man may lose riches, but it does not matter, because his profession is itself wealth. Wherever he goes he enjoys respect and sits in high places, whereas the man without a skill gleans crumbs and sees hardships.

Question: Who is lucky and who is unlucky according to the maxim?

Answer: According to the maxim, he is lucky who has eaten and sowed (enjoyed his wealth and also sown for the future), but he is unlucky who has died and not enjoyed (his wealth). Property is for the comfort of life, not merely for the accumulation of wealth.

Question: "Confide not to a friend every secret thou possess. How know you that he will not some time become thy foe?" How far do you agree?

Answer: Model answer: I agree with this maxim to a great extent. Human relations can change with time; a friend of today may become an enemy tomorrow and use our secrets against us. Therefore, we should be careful and not disclose every secret even to a close friend, while still trusting friends in ordinary matters.

Question: Identify the maxim which reflects that the value of a real thing never fades or shatters.

Answer: The maxim about the jewel and the dust: "Even after falling into mud, a jewel retains its costliness, and dust, although it may rise into the sky, is as contemptible as before." A truly valuable thing keeps its worth in every condition.

Question: What kind of suggestion did Imam Ghazali give to the people (about attaining knowledge)?

Answer: Imam Ghazali replied that he attained his degree of knowledge "by not being ashamed to ask about things I did not know." His suggestion is that one should never feel shy of asking questions; asking about what we do not know is the way to real knowledge.

Question: Which tale from the above texts do you like the most? And why?

Answer: Model answer: I like Text-II (the king and the slave) the most, because its lesson is deep and practical: we do not value a blessing — safety, health or comfort — until we face its opposite. The wise man's strange method teaches us to be grateful for what we have instead of complaining.

Exercise 5 (write the concise central theme against each text)

Question: Write the central theme of Text-I.

Answer: Independence and contentment are better than servitude with riches. It is better to eat simple barley bread and sit free than to gird oneself with a golden belt and stand in service. The poor brother thus teaches that freedom of mind is the real wealth of a man.

Question: Write the central theme of Text-II.

Answer: A person does not appreciate the value of safety and blessings until he faces danger or misfortune. The slave learned the safety of the boat only after he was thrown into the water and feared drowning. In this way, experience becomes the best teacher of gratitude.

Question: Write the central theme of Text-III.

Answer: The value of a thing depends upon the need of the moment. To a thirsty, starving man lost in the desert, food and water are far more precious than pearls and ornaments. The Arab's joy at finding the bag — and his despair when it proved to be pearls — proves this truth clearly.

Question: Write the central theme of Text-IV.

Answer: A skill or profession is permanent wealth. Riches may be stolen by a thief or gradually spent by the owner, but a profession is a living fountain that never dries up. A skilled man therefore wins his livelihood and respect wherever he goes.

Question: Write the central theme of Text-V.

Answer: A wise person listens carefully, never interrupts others, and speaks only at the proper moment. Words have a head and a tail, and a shrewd man does not insert his words between the words of others. Interrupting a speaker only exposes a person's own folly.

10.2 Writing — Proofreading — Exercise 1 (write at least two sentences about each topic, then peer-proofread)

Question: Topic 1 — "Getting education is ..." Write at least two sentences.

Answer: Model answer: Getting education is the key to a successful and respectable life. It develops our mind, gives us skills for earning, and teaches us to serve our family, society and country in a better way.

Question: Topic 2 — "Your reaction to the food in college canteen ..." Write at least two sentences.

Answer: Model answer: The food in our college canteen is fresh and reasonably priced, and the canteen staff behaves politely with students. However, the seating is limited, so the administration should provide more benches and keep a strict check on cleanliness.

Question: Topic 3 — "Elders must be respected because …" Write at least two sentences.

Answer: Model answer: Elders must be respected because they have greater experience of life and have made many sacrifices for us. By respecting them, we learn wisdom and good manners, and we earn their prayers and blessings.

Question: Topic 4 — "Early to bed, early to rise, makes man healthy, wealthy and wise …" Write at least two sentences.

Answer: Model answer: Early to bed and early to rise makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise, because a person who sleeps and wakes early gets proper rest and more working hours in the fresh morning. Such a habit brings discipline, good health and success in every field of life.

Question: Topic 5 — "Never, never, never give up …" Write at least two sentences.

Answer: Model answer: Never, never, never give up, because failure is not the end but a lesson on the road to success. Those who keep trying after every fall finally reach their goal, as the story of Booker T. Washington shows.

10.2 Writing — Exercise 2 (proofread the given letter/passage on the personal computer and the printing press)

Question: Proofread the given passage and write it correctly, following the proofreading tips.

Answer: Main corrections: "with" at the start must be capitalised (With); "fastest" → faster; "Writting" → Writing; "longest" → longer ("no longer necessary"); the comma after "Messages" must be removed; "Century most early" → "Centuries earlier"; "johannes gutenberg" → Johannes Gutenberg (capital letters); "press. he" → "press. He"; "a peace of writing" → "a piece of writing"; "latin" → Latin; "Gutenbergs" → Gutenberg's.

Corrected passage: "With the invention of the personal computer and the Internet, a new age in communications begins. Now people could communicate faster and more easily than ever before. Writing, editing, and storing information became quick and easy. It was no longer necessary to write draft after draft when changes could be made so easily using a word processor program. Messages could now be sent in no time to anywhere in the world, without addressing envelopes or licking stamps. Centuries earlier, around the year 1450, a similar revolution in communications had occurred in Germany. This happened when Johannes Gutenberg invented the printing press. He was not the first person to use printing to copy a piece of writing. Printing was already being invented in China, where they used clay to print oriental characters. Small items, such as posters and flyers, were already being printed in Europe too, using the woodblock method of printing. Books and other largest works were still being copied by hand. At this time, books were usually produced only in Latin, and only the most educated people read them. Gutenberg's printing press was about to change all of this."

10.3 Oral Communication — Exercise 1 (identify the active listener and the one who responds properly — Set A and Set B)

Question: Look at conversation Set A and Set B (Ahmed and Kinza) and identify the active listener and the one who responds properly.

Answer: In Set B, Kinza is the active listener and responds properly: she asks Ahmed why work is more stressful than usual, listens to his real problem (extra responsibilities of a colleague on holiday) and responds with a relevant, helpful suggestion (to speak to his boss). In Set A, Kinza is not an active listener: she turns the talk to her own co-worker's story ("you wouldn't believe what one of my co-workers did"), ignores Ahmed's stress and his worry about his children, and does not respond to what he actually says.

10.3 Oral Communication — Exercise 2 (discuss: pros and cons of social media — one student states, the other responds accurately)

Question: Two students discuss the pros and cons of social media, responding accurately to each other. Give a model dialogue.

Answer: Model answer: Student 1: Social media is very useful because it connects us with friends, teachers and knowledge from all over the world in seconds. Student 2: You are right that it connects us quickly, but it also wastes a lot of our study time when we use it without a limit. Student 1: I agree; the fault is not of social media itself but of its careless use — with a fixed time it becomes a tool of learning. Student 2: Exactly. If we follow educational pages and avoid useless scrolling, social media will help our studies instead of harming them.

10.3 Oral Communication — Exercise 2 (two friends ask each other's opinion about equality of all before law)

Question: Two friends ask each other's opinion about equality of all before law, responding accurately. Give a model dialogue.

Answer: Model answer: Friend 1: In my opinion, equality of all before law is the foundation of a just society; what do you think? Friend 2: I agree with you, because if the rich and the poor are treated differently by law, the poor will never trust the courts. Friend 1: You have understood my point exactly; a law that bends for the powerful is not law but oppression. Friend 2: Yes, and our religion and constitution both teach that every citizen is equal before the law, so we should respect and demand this equality.

10.4 Grammar (a) — Active and Passive Voice — Exercise 1 (change the research synopsis from active into passive voice)

Question: Change the given synopsis of a research report from active voice into passive voice.

Answer: Passive voice: In this research, a research survey was administered by me. A compelling sample of 100 scientists was created by me. They were invited by me to participate in the survey by sending them an invite through emails. E-mail addresses were received by me from different research centres of the country.

10.4 Grammar — Exercise 2 (change the newspaper report from passive into active voice)

Question: Change the given newspaper report from passive voice into active voice.

Answer: Active voice: Someone has stolen a bus from outside the school. Some children saw the thief. The police are searching for the bus now. They (the police) will use the children's descriptions to catch the thief.

10.4 Grammar — Exercise 3 (change the voice of the sentences)

Question: Change the voice (1): Don't touch the naked wire.

Answer: Let the naked wire not be touched. (Also: You are warned not to touch the naked wire.)

Question: Change the voice (2): There is nothing to say.

Answer: There is nothing to be said.

Question: Change the voice (3): He has to purchase a car.

Answer: A car has to be purchased by him.

Question: Change the voice (4): One should listen to one's conscience.

Answer: One's conscience should be listened to.

Question: Change the voice (5): I like the people to respect me.

Answer: I like to be respected by the people.

Question: Change the voice (6): Turn him out.

Answer: Let him be turned out.

Question: Change the voice (7): Someone killed the criminal.

Answer: The criminal was killed (by someone).

Question: Change the voice (8): It is time to switch off T.V.

Answer: It is time for the T.V. to be switched off.

Question: Change the voice (9): I am to take tea.

Answer: Tea is to be taken by me.

Question: Change the voice (10): Please bring me a glass of water.

Answer: You are requested to bring me a glass of water. (Also: Let a glass of water be brought for me.)

Question: Change the voice (11): Let her write a poem.

Answer: Let a poem be written by her.

Question: Change the voice (12): Did you tell a lie?

Answer: Was a lie told by you?

Question: Change the voice (13): Why did you help her?

Answer: Why was she helped by you?

Question: Change the voice (14): The judge enquired into the case.

Answer: The case was enquired into by the judge.

Question: Change the voice (15): She made me sing.

Answer: I was made to sing by her.

10.4 Vocabulary and Spelling — Exercise 4 (complete the Rani Kot Fort text with words from the box)

Question: Fill all fifteen blanks of the Rani Kot Fort text with the correct words from the box (resembles, wilderness, purpose, findings, valley, strangest, construction, political, pending, inhabitants, mystery, unclear, archaeologists, believed, vastness, located).

Answer: In order of the blanks: 1. mystery — "The historic Rani Kot Fort is a mystery." 2. located — "It is located about 28 kilometres from the Sann Gate from Jamshoro City." 3. believed — "It is believed to be the largest fort in the world, having walls nearly 35 kilometres long." 4. unclear — "The age of the fort is unclear, however," 5. archaeologists — "archaeologists predict that the magnificent structure was built sometime in the 9th century." 6. construction — "Its construction resembles the Great Wall of China, which is why it is often referred to as 'The Great Wall of Sindh'." 7. pending — "Its status is still pending (on the tentative UNESCO list since 1993)." 8. vastness — "To give you an idea of the vastness of Rani Kot Fort, it is so large that there is enough space in it for building hundreds of other forts." 9. purpose — "It has been determined that Rani Kot Fort was built for the purpose of defence" 10. inhabitants — "and to house many inhabitants." 11. political — "It was the centre of political activities where many ancient leaders of Sindh gathered." 12. findings — "Some of the findings include archaic coins, terracotta of the Indus Civilization, an engraved sign of a swastika, a leaf of the papal tree, evidence of a peacock, sunflower and lotus flower; remains of Zoroastrians and Buddhists, and arrows of different kinds." 13. valley — "The entire fort is surrounded by hills that form a small valley through which a stream passes." 14. resembles — "The Rani Kot Fort resembles no other fort in the world." 15. strangest — "its unusual size, lost history, strategically useless position, uninhabited area and unexplored features make the fort one of the strangest places in the world." (The last line's remaining blank also reads: "Its unusual size and location in the absolute wilderness doesn't make sense.")

10.4 Vocabulary and Spelling — Exercise 5 (correct the spelling mistakes in the paragraph about food and health)

Question: Correct all the spelling mistakes in the given paragraph and write it correctly.

Answer: Corrected paragraph: "Food directly affects your physical and emotional health. If you eat non-nutritious junk food and do not pay attention to your diet, then you pay the price of poor health or become severely overweight. If you eat good food and control what you eat, your chances of being healthy are much better. The place to begin a healthy lifestyle is in your choice of food, that is in your diet. I believe, a diet is a plan for eating. A well-balanced diet provides all of the energy you need to keep active throughout the day. It also gives you the nutrients you need for growth and repair, helping you to stay strong and healthy and help to prevent diet-related illness, such as some cancers." Main corrected spellings include: afects→affects, phyzical→physical, emottional→emotional, none-nutricious→non-nutritious, gunk→junk, note→not, attenttion→attention, diete→diet, than→then, prise→price, healdh→health, becames→become, severly→severely, overwieght→overweight, conttrol→control, wat→what, chancess→chances, bieng→being, healdhy→healthy, bettre→better, palace→place, bigin→begin, choise→choice, beleive→believe, deit→diet, plain→plan, ballenced→balanced, perovides→provides, anergy→energy, ned→need, keepe→keep, thruoghuot→throughout, nutreints→nutrients, grouth→growth, repear→repair, hellping→helping, saty→stay, strrong→strong, perevent→prevent, deit-relatad→diet-related, illnes→illness, cansers→cancers.

word and correction?

Answer: neccessasry → necessary.

Introduction: Elements of Poetry

Exercise 1 — Answer the following questions

Question: Exercise 1 (1): What does rhyme mean in a poem?

Answer: Rhyme means the same sound coming at the end of poetic lines. When the closing sounds of two or more lines match, the lines are said to rhyme, and this matching gives the poem music and flow.

Question: Exercise 1 (2): What does meter mean in a poem?

Answer: Meter is the pattern of syllables and stresses in a line of poetry. It fixes how many syllables a line has and where the emphasis falls, so the most common English meter is iambic pentameter, a line of five feet with an unstressed syllable followed by a stressed one in each foot.

Question: Exercise 1 (3): What are the different kinds of stanza?

Answer: A stanza is a group of lines with the same meter and rhyme and one unifying idea. By number of lines it is called a couplet (2 lines), a tercet (3), a quatrain (4), a quintain (5), a sestet (6), a septet (7) and an octave (8).

Question: Exercise 1 (4): What is a sonnet?

Answer: A sonnet, meaning a little song, is a lyrical poem of fourteen lines. It is usually divided into an octave of eight lines and a sestet of six lines, and its main types are the Italian, the English and the Spenserian sonnet.

Question: Exercise 1 (5): What is the function of poetic devices?

Answer: Poets use poetic devices and figures of speech to deepen the meaning and mood of a poem. They create clear pictures in the reader's mind, add music and emphasis, and make feelings and ideas more powerful and memorable.

Exercise 2 — Wordsworth's sonnet on Westminster Bridge: answer the questions

Question: Exercise 2 (1): What kind of poem is the given poem? Explain and justify.

Answer: It is a sonnet, because it has exactly fourteen lines and expresses one strong personal feeling — wonder at the beauty of London in the early morning. Its lines follow a regular meter and a set rhyme scheme, which are the marks of a sonnet.

Question: Exercise 2 (2): How many stanzas does it have and what are they called?

Answer: It has two parts or stanzas: the first eight lines form the octave and the last six lines form the sestet. In the octave the poet describes the city scene, and in the sestet he expresses his deep calm feeling about it.

Question: Exercise 2 (3): Write the rhyming scheme of the poem.

Answer: The octave follows ABBA ABBA: the first and fourth lines rhyme together, as do the second and third, and the pattern repeats. The sestet follows CDCDCD, where two new rhymes alternate till the end.

Exercise 3 — Mark the statements correct or incorrect

Question: Exercise 3 (1): Two rhyming lines at the end are called a couplet — correct or incorrect?

Answer: Correct. A stanza of two lines is a couplet, and in this statement the two lines rhyme with each other.

Question: Exercise 3 (2): There is no convenient way to set out a pattern of rhymes — correct or incorrect?

Answer: Incorrect. There is a simple way: the first rhyme is marked (a), the second (b), the third (c), and so on, which shows the whole rhyming pattern at a glance.

Question: Exercise 3 (3): Imagery is the use of language to represent objects, actions and ideas — correct or incorrect?

Answer: Correct. Imagery uses words to create pictures of objects, actions and ideas in the reader's mind, appealing to the five senses so that the reader can almost see, hear and feel them.

Question: Exercise 3 (4): A sonnet usually has 14 lines with a certain rhyming scheme — correct or incorrect?

Answer: Correct. A sonnet is a fourteen-line lyrical poem, and its lines are arranged in a fixed rhyming scheme, usually an octave followed by a sestet.

Question: Exercise 3 (5): A ballad expresses sorrow, grief or death — correct or incorrect?

Answer: Incorrect. That describes an elegy, which is a lyrical poem of sorrow over the death of a loved one. A ballad is a narrative poem that tells a story, usually in four-line stanzas.

Question: Exercise 3 (6): A metaphor states plainly that one thing is like another — correct or incorrect?

Answer: Incorrect. Stating plainly with 'like' or 'as' is a simile, which makes a direct comparison. A metaphor makes an implied comparison without using 'like' or 'as'.

Exercise 4 — Name the figure of speech in each example

Question: Exercise 4 (1): Name the figure of speech: entering into the thoughts of desperate men.

Answer: Model answer: Metaphor. Thoughts are spoken of as a place that a person can physically enter, so an implied comparison is made without 'like' or 'as'.

Question: Exercise 4 (2): Name the figure of speech: they speak like saints and act like devils.

Answer: Simile. Two direct comparisons are made with the word 'like': their speech is compared to saints and their actions to devils.

Question: Exercise 4 (3): Name the figure of speech: how could he be a king, a soldier and a peon?

Answer: Model answer: Interrogation (rhetorical question). The question is asked for effect, not to get an answer, and it stresses how impossible it is for one man to be all three at once.

Question: Exercise 4 (4): Name the figure of speech: how high, his highness holds his haughty head.

Answer: Alliteration. The consonant sound 'h' is repeated at the beginning of several words — high, highness, holds, haughty, head — which gives the line a musical effect.

Question: Exercise 4 (5): Name the figure of speech: what use are all my kingdoms to me?

Answer: Model answer: Interrogation (rhetorical question). The speaker asks the question to express despair and the uselessness of his kingdoms; he does not expect a reply.

Question: Exercise 4 (6): Name the figure of speech: hasten slowly.

Answer: Oxymoron. Two opposite words, 'hasten' and 'slowly', are placed together, and the combined phrase gives a meaningful idea: work quickly but carefully.

Question: Exercise 4 (7): Name the figure of speech: it is not that I loved Caesar less, but that I loved Rome more.

Answer: Antithesis. Two opposite ideas — love for Caesar and greater love for Rome — are set against each other in a balanced way to bring out the speaker's true reason.

Question: Exercise 4 (8): Name the figure of speech: life is a dream.

Answer: Metaphor. Life is directly identified with a dream without using 'like' or 'as', suggesting that life is short, unreal and quickly passing.

Question: Exercise 4 (9): Name the figure of speech: she was as proud as a peacock.

Answer: Simile. The woman's pride is directly compared to a peacock's pride with the help of the word 'as'.

Question: Exercise 4 (10): Name the figure of speech: more haste, less speed.

Answer: Oxymoron (paradox). The words carry an opposite sense, yet the saying is true: hurrying too much often makes a person slower in finishing the work.

Exercise 5 — Convert the sentences as directed in brackets

Question: Exercise 5 (1): Change into a metaphor: he is as sober as a judge.

Answer: Model answer: He is a judge in his sobriety. The comparison is now implied, without 'as', so the simile has become a metaphor.

Question: Exercise 5 (2): Change into a simile: she was a tower of strength in their trouble.

Answer: Model answer: She was like a tower of strength in their trouble. Adding 'like' makes the comparison direct, which turns the metaphor into a simile.

Question: Exercise 5 (3): Change into an oxymoron: necessity knows no law.

Answer: Model answer: Necessity is a lawless law unto itself. The opposite ideas 'lawless' and 'law' are joined together, which makes it an oxymoron.

Question: Exercise 5 (4): Change into personification: he is the wisest fool of them all.

Answer: Model answer: Wisdom herself visits him, yet Folly leads him by the hand. Human qualities are given to Wisdom and Folly as if they were persons, which is personification.

Question: Exercise 5 (5): Change into irony: the professor's ideas are as old as the hills.

Answer: Model answer: What a surprise — the professor has presented his 'brand-new' ideas straight from a museum. The words praise the ideas as new while the meaning is the opposite, which creates irony.

Question: Exercise 5 (6): Change into hyperbole: the fire station burned down last night.

Answer: Model answer: The fire station burned so fiercely last night that its flames seemed to light up the whole sky. The burning is deliberately exaggerated to heighten the effect, which is hyperbole.

Exercise 6 — Collect other common examples of the figures of speech in Exercise 4

Question: Exercise 6: Give other common daily-use examples of the figures of speech used above.

Answer: Model answer: Simile — as brave as a lion, as busy as a bee. Metaphor — time is money; he is a lion in battle. Personification — the wind whispered; opportunity knocked at the door. Oxymoron — bitter sweet, deafening silence. Alliteration — she sells sea shells. Hyperbole — I have told you a thousand times. Irony — a postman afraid of letters. Students can display such examples on charts in the class.

Poem 1: The Character of a Happy Life

Pre-reading

Question: Pre-reading (1): What is happiness, in your view?

Answer: Model answer: Happiness is a state of inner peace and contentment, not of wealth or fame. A person is happy when the mind is free from greed, fear and envy, and when daily life is spent honestly with family and friends.

Question: Pre-reading (2): Note briefly the things or ideas that make you happy.

Answer: Model answer: Good health, honest work, time with family, helping others, learning something new and living without debt or fear make me happy. Such simple things give lasting happiness, unlike money, which gives only short pleasure.

Exercise 1 — Match Column A words with their contextual meanings in Column B

Question: Exercise 1 (1): Match: passion.

Answer: Passion matches H — strong emotions. In the poem it means powerful feelings and desires which a happy man keeps under his control instead of becoming their slave.

Question: Exercise 1 (2): Match: armour.

Answer: Armour matches D — a metallic covering used to protect the body from attack. In the poem the word is used figuratively: honesty works like armour and protects the happy man from evil.

Question: Exercise 1 (3): Match: rumours.

Answer: Rumours matches A — unverified or doubtful information. The happy man's life is free from such talk, so gossip and false reports cannot disturb his peace of mind.

Question: Exercise 1 (4): Match: conscience.

Answer: Conscience matches E — the moral sense of right and wrong. For the happy man, a clear conscience is a strong shelter, because he has done nothing wrong to fear.

Question: Exercise 1 (5): Match: retreat.

Answer: Retreat matches B — moving back; here, a safe place to withdraw to. The poet means the happy man withdraws into his clear conscience whenever the world troubles him, and finds safety there.

Question: Exercise 1 (6): Match: servile bands.

Answer: Servile bands matches G — slavish bonds. The happy man is free from the slavery of hoping to rise in the world or fearing to fall, so these bonds cannot bind him.

Question: Exercise 1 (7): Match: envy.

Answer: Envy matches C — jealous feeling. The happy man never feels jealous of those whom luck has raised, because he is content with his own lot.

Question: Exercise 1 (8): Match: ruin.

Answer: Ruin matches F — destruction. In the poem it means the downfall that flatterers and oppressors may bring, which cannot make a truly happy man great or break him.

Exercise 2 — Paraphrase the poem in simple words (Stanza 1 paraphrased in the book as an example)

Question: Exercise 2 (Stanza 2): Paraphrase the second stanza in simple words.

Answer: The happy man's feelings do not rule him; he rules them. His soul is always ready for death, and he is not tied to the world by worry about public fame or private criticism, so he lives freely and peacefully.

Question: Exercise 2 (Stanza 3): Paraphrase the third stanza in simple words.

Answer: The happy man does not envy anyone whom chance has raised high, and he has no evil in him. He knows that praise can wound most deeply, so he follows the rules of goodness rather than the rules of power and state.

Question: Exercise 2 (Stanza 4): Paraphrase the fourth stanza in simple words.

Answer: His life is free from rumours and gossip. His clear conscience is his strong shelter, and neither flatterers can feed his pride nor the ruin of others can make him great, because he does not depend on such things.

Question: Exercise 2 (Stanza 5): Paraphrase the fifth stanza in simple words.

Answer: The happy man prays to God morning and evening and values God's grace more than worldly gifts. He passes his harmless day peacefully with a religious book or in the company of a good friend.

Question: Exercise 2 (Stanza 6): Paraphrase the last stanza in simple words.

Answer: Such a man is free from the slavery of hoping to rise or fearing to fall. He is master of himself even if he owns no land, and though he appears to have nothing, in truth he possesses everything that matters.

Exercise 3 — Encircle the right option

Question: Exercise 3 (1): The strong retreat of a happy man is his ___ (heart / thoughts / mind / conscience).

Answer: (d) conscience. His clear conscience shelters him like a fort, because a man who has done no wrong has nothing to fear.

Question: Exercise 3 (2): A happy man cares much about ___ (worldly needs / material uplift / character / finance).

Answer: (c) character. The whole poem shows that a happy life depends on a good character — honesty, truth and self-control — not on wealth or worldly gains.

Question: Exercise 3 (3): A happy man's armour is his ___ thought (clever / honest / deep / lofty).

Answer: (b) honest. The poet presents honest thought as the armour that protects the happy man in every difficulty of life.

Question: Exercise 3 (4): A happy man's days are ___ (joyful / carefree / harmless / playful).

Answer: (c) harmless. He passes his days without harming anyone, spending them quietly with a religious book or a friend.

Question: Exercise 3 (5): ___ is the utmost skill of an honest man (truth / honesty / simplicity / wisdom).

Answer: (a) truth. The poet calls simple truth the highest skill of the happy man, greater than any cleverness or worldly art.

Question: Exercise 3 (6): A happy man does not serve another's ___ (order / direction / wish / will).

Answer: (d) will. He is born or taught to be independent, so he follows his own conscience instead of obeying the wishes of others.

Question: Exercise 3 (7): A happy man's soul is always prepared for ___ (exam / fight / quarrel / death).

Answer: (d) death. Because he lives rightly and fears nothing, his soul stays ready for death at any time.

Question: Exercise 3 (8): The deepest wounds are always given by ___ (back-biting / praise / trust / friendship).

Answer: (b) praise. The poet warns that flattering praise wounds a person most deeply, because it creates pride and leads him away from truth.

Exercise 4 — Pick out the characteristics of a happy man against each quality

Question: Exercise 4 (1): Which part of the poem shows the quality of independence?

Answer: The opening stanza shows independence: the happy man is described as one who does not serve any other person's will. He thinks and acts freely according to his own conscience.

Question: Exercise 4 (2): Which part of the poem shows the quality of honesty?

Answer: The opening stanza shows honesty by presenting the man's honest thought as his armour. Honesty protects him in life just as armour protects a soldier in battle.

Question: Exercise 4 (3): Which part of the poem shows the quality of truthfulness?

Answer: The opening stanza shows truthfulness by calling simple truth the man's highest skill. He does not need clever tricks, because plain truth is enough for him.

Question: Exercise 4 (4): Which part of the poem shows freedom from worldly ambition?

Answer: The last stanza shows it: the man is free from the bonds of hoping to rise and fearing to fall. He is lord of himself though he owns no lands, so worldly ambition does not trouble him.

Question: Exercise 4 (5): Which part of the poem shows the quality of self-control?

Answer: The second stanza shows self-control: his passions are not his masters. He also remains untied to the world by worry over fame or blame, which proves his complete control over himself.

Question: Exercise 4 (6): Which part of the poem shows freedom from envy?

Answer: The third stanza shows it: the happy man envies no one whom chance has raised high. He is content with his own position, so the success of others does not disturb him.

Question: Exercise 4 (7): Which part of the poem shows freedom from greed?

Answer: The last stanza shows freedom from greed: the man owns no lands and appears to have nothing, yet he has all. Because he wants nothing more, greed has no place in his life.

Question: Exercise 4 (8): Which part of the poem shows the quality of piety?

Answer: The fifth stanza shows piety: the man prays to God early and late and values God's grace more than gifts. He spends his day with a religious book or a good friend, which keeps his life pure.

Exercise 5 — Answer the following questions

Question: Exercise 5 (1): What does the poet mean by saying the happy man does not serve another's will?

Answer: The poet means the happy man is independent in thought and action. He does not live to please others or obey their wishes blindly; he follows his own conscience and the principles of truth and goodness.

Question: Exercise 5 (2): Explain briefly how the happy man has nothing yet has all.

Answer: Outwardly he owns no lands or riches, so he seems to have nothing. Inwardly he has peace, freedom, honesty and contentment — the real wealth of life — so in the true sense he has everything.

Question: Exercise 5 (3): What is a happy man taught from his very birth?

Answer: From his very birth, or by teaching, he learns independence — not to serve another's will. He also learns that honest thought is his protection and simple truth his highest skill.

Question: Exercise 5 (4): Write the central idea of the poem.

Answer: The central idea is that true happiness does not depend on wealth, land or fame. It comes from an independent mind, honesty, truth, self-control, freedom from envy and greed, and closeness to God — the man who has these is happy even without possessions.

Question: Exercise 5 (5): Write the rhyming scheme of the poem.

Answer: The poem has six quatrains, and each stanza follows the same scheme, ABAB. The first line rhymes with the third and the second with the fourth, which gives the poem regularity and music throughout.

Question: Exercise 5 (6): What are other sources of happiness besides those in the poem?

Answer: Model answer: Good health, a loving family, sincere friends, useful knowledge and helping the needy are other sources of happiness. Serving society and keeping a hopeful attitude also give deep and lasting joy.

Exercise 6 — Identify the poetic devices in the poem and use them in sentences

Question: Exercise 6: Identify the poetic devices used in the poem, list them and use them in your own sentences.

Answer: Model answer: Metaphor — honest thought is called the man's armour, and conscience his retreat; my sentence: Honesty is the armour of a noble man. Paradox — having nothing, yet having all; my sentence: The contented poor man has nothing, yet he has all. Personification — passions are spoken of as masters; my sentence: Anger became his master and ruined him. These devices make the qualities of the happy man vivid and memorable.

Exercise 7 — Critical appreciation of the poem (poetic diction, theme, structure, language, message)

Question: Exercise 7: Write a critical appreciation of the poem under the given heads.

Answer: Model answer: Poetic diction: the words are old-fashioned yet dignified, suiting a serious moral subject. Theme: the qualities that make a man truly happy. Structure: six regular quatrains with an ABAB rhyme scheme. Language: simple in sense though classical in form, full of metaphors like armour and retreat. Message: happiness lies in independence, honesty, truth, self-control and piety, not in wealth or fame.

Exercise 8 — Compose your own poem on the theme of happiness (three stanzas, one per group member)

Question: Exercise 8: Compose a short original poem on happiness in three stanzas.

Answer: Model answer (original poem): Happy is he whose heart is light, / Who earns his bread by honest right; / No gold he piles, no crown he seeks, / Yet peace is written on his cheeks. // Happy is she whose hands will share, / Whose words are kind, whose thoughts are fair; / She envies none, she fears no fall, / Her little home contains her all. // So let us learn, in joy or pain, / That honest hearts alone can gain / The wealth no thief can take away — / A quiet mind at close of day.

Exercise 9 — Explain the following stanzas

Question: Exercise 9 (Stanza 1): Explain the opening stanza in your own words.

Answer: The poet says a man is truly happy if by birth or training he does not obey another person's will. His honest thoughts protect him like armour, and plain truth is his greatest skill in life.

Question: Exercise 9 (Stanza 2): Explain the second stanza in your own words.

Answer: His passions do not master him; instead, he masters them, and his soul is always ready for death. He is not bound to the world by worry about public fame or private blame, so he lives in complete freedom.

Question: Exercise 9 (Stanza 3): Explain the third stanza in your own words.

Answer: He envies nobody who has risen by chance and keeps himself free from evil. He knows that praise gives the deepest wounds, so instead of following the ways of power he follows the rules of goodness.

Question: Exercise 9 (Stanza 4): Explain the fourth stanza in your own words.

Answer: His life is free from rumours, and his conscience is his strong place of safety. Flatterers cannot feed his pride, nor can the ruin of others make him great, because his worth rests on his own character.

Question: Exercise 9 (Stanza 5): Explain the fifth stanza in your own words.

Answer: He prays to God morning and evening and seeks God's grace more than worldly gifts. He passes his innocent day with a religious book or a good friend, which keeps him close to God.

Question: Exercise 9 (Stanza 6): Explain the last stanza in your own words.

Answer: Such a man is free from the slavery of hoping to rise or fearing to fall in the world. He is the lord of himself even without lands, and though he seems to have nothing, he truly has everything.

Poem 2: Don't Quit

Pre-reading

Question: Pre-reading (1-2): Read about the famous personalities who turned failure into success. What comes to your mind after reading about them?

Answer: Model answer: Abraham Lincoln failed in business and in elections many times before becoming President; Einstein was expelled from school yet became a great scientist; J. K. Rowling's novel was rejected by many publishers before it became a best-seller. Their lives teach that failure is not the end — those who keep trying despite rejection finally succeed.

Exercise 1 — Match Column A words with their contextual meanings in Column B

Question: Exercise 1 (1): Match: trudge.

Answer: Trudge matches (d) — to walk slowly, with heavy steps. In the poem it describes the hard, tiring journey of life when the road of effort seems long and difficult.

Question: Exercise 1 (2): Match: quit.

Answer: Quit matches (e) — to stop. The whole poem urges the reader never to stop trying, however hard the struggle becomes.

Question: Exercise 1 (3): Match: queer.

Answer: Queer matches (a) — strange. Life is called strange because its turns are unexpected and no one can predict what will happen next.

Question: Exercise 1 (4): Match: pace.

Answer: Pace matches (b) — speed. The poet says a person may succeed with one more effort even when the speed of progress seems painfully slow.

Question: Exercise 1 (5): Match: twist.

Answer: Twist matches (g) — an unexpected change. Together with 'turns', it shows that life suddenly changes direction, bringing failure or success without warning.

Question: Exercise 1 (6): Match: stuck.

Answer: Stuck matches (f) — caught, unable to move forward. The poet speaks of the man who stayed fixed in the struggle and would have won if he had not given up.

Question: Exercise 1 (7): Match: tint.

Answer: Tint matches (h) — shade. The silver shade seen in dark clouds of doubt stands for the small hope hidden inside failure and difficulty.

Question: Exercise 1 (8): Match: sigh.

Answer: Sigh matches (c) — a long deep breath. A person sighs when funds are low, debts are high and sorrow presses him down, yet the poet tells him to rest but not to quit.

Exercise 2 — Encircle the right option

Question: Exercise 2 (1): The figure of speech in the image of a silver tint in clouds of doubt is ___ (personification / metaphor / onomatopoeia / simile).

Answer: (b) metaphor. Doubt is directly pictured as dark clouds and hope as their silver shade, without using 'like' or 'as'.

Question: Exercise 2 (2): When things seem at their worst, we should ___ (run away / take another way / stop moving ahead / stick to them).

Answer: (d) stick to them. The poet's final advice is to keep fighting exactly when the situation looks worst, because success may be nearest at that point.

Question: Exercise 2 (3): Succeeding with one more blow means you should ___ (give the blow / receive the blow / continue the struggle / withdraw from the struggle).

Answer: (c) continue the struggle. One more attempt, one more effort, may bring the victory that seems far away.

Question: Exercise 2 (4): The struggler learns too late that he ___ (was unable to struggle / was close to his victory / should have taken rest / should have quit).

Answer: (b) was close to his victory. Many people give up just before success, and realise afterwards how near the goal actually was.

Question: Exercise 2 (5): The moral of the poem is that we should ___ (face the challenges of life / enjoy success / run away from hardships / only think positively).

Answer: (a) face the challenges of life. The poem teaches courage and persistence: meet every hardship bravely and never surrender to it.

Question: Exercise 2 (6): Stick to the fight when you are ___ (hardest hit / betrayed / unhappy / unlucky).

Answer: (a) hardest hit. The hardest moment of the struggle is exactly the moment when quitting must be avoided.

Question: Exercise 2 (7): The phrase about a golden crown means ___ (wealth / power / victory / throne).

Answer: (c) victory. The crown stands for success and honour, which the struggler loses by quitting just before reaching it.

Question: Exercise 2 (8): In the first stanza, the word about sighing symbolises ___ (happiness / regret / courage / pain).

Answer: (d) pain. When money is gone and debts are high, the deep sigh expresses the person's sorrow and suffering.

Exercise 3 — Paraphrase the poem in simple words

Question: Exercise 3: Paraphrase the whole poem in simple words.

Answer: When life goes wrong, money is short, debts are high and sorrow weighs you down, you may rest for a while but you must not give up. Life changes suddenly, and many fail only because they stopped when one more effort would have won. The goal is often nearer than it looks, and success is only failure turned the other way — so keep fighting hardest when things seem worst.

Exercise 4 — Answer the following questions

Question: Exercise 4 (1): What is the poet's message in the first stanza?

Answer: The message is that troubles are a natural part of life, so no one should surrender to them. If you are tired you may rest for a short while, but you must start again and never quit.

Question: Exercise 4 (2): Which lines of the poem do you like most, and why?

Answer: Model answer: I like the closing lines most, where success is described as failure turned inside out and the reader is told to stick to the fight when hardest hit. They give courage at the very moment when a person feels weakest and is most tempted to give up.

Question: Exercise 4 (3): Write the central idea of the poem.

Answer: The central idea is perseverance: never give up in hard times. Success is often very close when things look worst, so the person who continues the struggle wins, while the one who quits loses everything.

Question: Exercise 4 (4): Find the similes, metaphors and alliterations in the poem.

Answer: Model answer: Metaphor: success is called failure turned inside out, and doubt is pictured as clouds with a silver tint. Alliteration: sounds repeat in phrases built on 'f' and 's', such as the faint and faltering man and the silver tint lines. Simile is used only lightly, through comparisons of life's journey to a road that must be travelled; the poem depends mainly on metaphors.

Question: Exercise 4 (5): Discuss how the poem helps the reader stay optimistic in every situation.

Answer: The poem reminds the reader that a dark situation hides a silver side, just as clouds have a bright lining. It shows that the goal may be near, that rest is allowed but surrender is not, and that many great people succeeded only after failures — such thoughts keep hope alive in every difficulty.

Question: Exercise 4 (6): What effect does the poem create on the reader?

Answer: The poem fills the reader with courage, energy and hope. A person who was ready to abandon his task feels encouraged to try once more, because the poem convinces him that victory may be only one effort away.

Question: Exercise 4 (7): What is the message of the poem?

Answer: The message is simple and universal: never quit. Face every hardship with patience and courage, rest if you must, but keep moving, because stopping — not failing — is the real defeat.

Question: Exercise 4 (8): Why does the poet call life strange, with twists and turns?

Answer: Because life never moves in a straight, predictable line. It suddenly changes direction: a man fails where he expected success, and wins where he had lost hope, so its twists and turns make it strange.

Question: Exercise 4 (9): What is the benefit of not quitting, as suggested in the poem?

Answer: The benefit is success itself: the person who continues reaches the goal, the honour and the reward that a quitter loses. He also gains self-respect and strength of character, which help him in every future struggle.

Exercise 5 — Identify the poetic devices in the poem and use them in sentences

Question: Exercise 5: Identify the poetic devices in the poem, list them and use them in your own sentences.

Answer: Model answer: Metaphor — success as failure turned inside out; my sentence: Defeat is victory turned inside out for a brave man. Personification — care pressing a man down; my sentence: Worry pressed him down all night. Alliteration — repeated 'f' and 's' sounds; my sentence: The faint and faltering fighter finally fell. These devices make the advice forceful and easy to remember.

Exercise 6 — Critical appreciation of the poem (poetic diction, theme, structure, language, message)

Question: Exercise 6: Write a critical appreciation of the poem under the given heads.

Answer: Model answer: Poetic diction: plain, everyday words that every reader can understand. Theme: perseverance in the face of failure. Structure: four regular stanzas of six lines each with a steady rhyme. Language: simple and direct, strengthened by metaphors of clouds, crowns and cups. Message: never quit, because success may be nearest when things seem worst.

Exercise 7 — Explain the following stanzas

Question: Exercise 7 (Stanza 1): Explain the first stanza in your own words.

Answer: When things go wrong, the road is tiring, money is low, debts are high and care weighs a person down, he wants to smile but can only sigh. At such a time he may rest if he must, but he must never quit.

Question: Exercise 7 (Stanza 2): Explain the second stanza in your own words.

Answer: Life is strange, full of sudden changes, as everyone learns sooner or later. Many a failure would have turned into success if the person had held on, because one more effort can change slow progress into victory.

Question: Exercise 7 (Stanza 3): Explain the third stanza in your own words.

Answer: The goal is often nearer than it seems to the tired and wavering man. The struggler has often given up when he could have won the victor's cup, and learned too late, after everything had slipped away, how close he was to the crown of success.

Question: Exercise 7 (Stanza 4): Explain the last stanza in your own words.

Answer: Success is failure turned inside out — the bright side hidden in the clouds of doubt. No one can tell how near success is, even when it seems far, so the reader must stick to the fight when he is hardest hit, for the worst moment is the one time he must not quit.

Exercise 8 — Compose your own poem on the theme 'Don't Give Up' (three stanzas, one per group member)

Question: Exercise 8: Compose a short original poem on not giving up, in three stanzas.

Answer: Model answer (original poem): When clouds are dark and hopes are low, / And tears instead of smiles will flow, / Then rest a while, but onward go — / The dawn is nearer than you know. // The seed lies buried in the ground, / No leaf, no flower, no joyful sound; / Yet patient in the dark it stays, / Till spring rewards its waiting days. // So hold your courage, firm and true, / The hardest road will carry you; / Who stands his ground through night and pain / Shall see the sun shine out again.

Poem 3: Ozymandias

Pre-reading

Question: Pre-reading (1): Read the given saying about graveyards and people who thought themselves indispensable, and guess the theme of the poem.

Answer: Model answer: The saying means that even those who believed the world could not run without them are now dead and forgotten. So the poem's theme is likely the same: human power, pride and glory are temporary, and time destroys every ruler however great he thinks himself.

Exercise 1 — Match Column A words with their contextual meanings in Column B

Question: Exercise 1 (1): Match: frown.

Answer: Frown matches (d) — a displeasing or concentrating face. On the broken statue's face, the frown shows the king's stern, commanding nature even in stone.

Question: Exercise 1 (2): Match: visage.

Answer: Visage matches (g) — a human or animal face. The shattered face of the statue lies half buried in the sand of the desert.

Question: Exercise 1 (3): Match: sculptor.

Answer: Sculptor matches (b) — an artist who makes sculpture. The sculptor had read the king's passions so well that he stamped them faithfully on the stone face.

Question: Exercise 1 (4): Match: mock.

Answer: Mock matches (e) — to make fun of; in this poem it also carries the sense of copying or imitating. The sculptor's hand copied the king's feelings in stone, and now time seems to mock the king's pride through the ruin.

Question: Exercise 1 (5): Match: pedestal.

Answer: Pedestal matches (f) — the base of a sculpture. The proud words of the king are written on this base, and they are now all that survives with the broken statue.

Question: Exercise 1 (6): Match: colossal.

Answer: Colossal matches (c) — huge. It describes the giant wreck of the statue, which was once enormous but now lies broken and decaying in the sand.

Question: Exercise 1 (7): Match: remains.

Answer: Remains matches (a) — the parts left over. The traveller reports that beside the wreck nothing else remains of the king's works at all.

Exercise 2 — Encircle the correct option

Question: Exercise 2 (1): The poem depicts that life is ___ (beautiful / transient / attractive / alluring).

Answer: (b) transient. Everything in the poem — the king, his statue and his empire — has passed away, which shows that worldly life and glory do not last.

Question: Exercise 2 (2): The poet met a traveller from ___ (an ancient land / aboard / a neighbouring country / a desert).

Answer: (a) an ancient land. The traveller came from an old, antique land and described the ruined statue he had seen there in the desert.

Question: Exercise 2 (3): The traveller said he had seen ___ in the desert (a statue / a sculptor / an oasis / a snake).

Answer: (a) a statue. He saw the broken statue of the king: two huge stone legs standing, and the shattered face half sunk in the sand.

Question: Exercise 2 (4): The words on the base of the statue show the king was a ___ king (kind / humble / proud / cruel).

Answer: (c) proud. The inscription boasts of his name and mighty works and challenges other rulers to despair, which is pure pride.

Question: Exercise 2 (5): The message of the poem for all powerful authority and glory is ___ (sands stretch far away / frown and wrinkled lips / nothing remains / stamped on lifeless things).

Answer: (c) 'nothing remains'. Of all the king's power and works, nothing survives except a broken statue in an empty desert.

Question: Exercise 2 (6): In the poem, the condition of the statue is ___ (good / bad / excellent / marvellous).

Answer: (b) bad. The statue is shattered, trunkless and decaying — a wreck lying forgotten in the sand.

Question: Exercise 2 (7): The king's boastful self-introduction as king of kings is a ___ literary device (simile / irony / personification / metaphor).

Answer: (b) irony. He calls himself the greatest of kings and asks the mighty to despair at his works, yet nothing of his works remains — the opposite of his boast has happened.

Question: Exercise 2 (8): Which line does NOT use alliteration? (the lone level sands line / the traveller line / the nothing-remains line / the shattered visage line)

Answer: (b) the line about meeting a traveller from an antique land. The other lines repeat opening sounds — 'l' in lone and level, 'r' in remains and round, and 's' in sunk and shattered — while this line has no such repetition.

Exercise 3 — Paraphrase the poem in simple words

Question: Exercise 3: Paraphrase the poem in simple words.

Answer: The poet met a traveller from an old land who described a ruined statue in the desert: two huge legs of stone standing without a body, and a broken face half buried in sand, still showing a frown and a look of cold command. On the base were proud words in which the king called himself king of kings and challenged the mighty to despair at his works — but around the wreck there was nothing except empty sand stretching far away.

Exercise 4 — Answer the following questions

Question: Exercise 4 (1): What did the traveller see in the desert, and whom did he tell about it?

Answer: In the desert he saw the remains of a huge broken statue: two vast stone legs standing without a trunk, and a shattered face half sunk in the sand. He told all this to the poet, who reports it in the poem.

Question: Exercise 4 (2): How can you say the sculptor was a great artist?

Answer: The sculptor had understood the king's inner feelings perfectly and stamped them on lifeless stone so faithfully that they survive even today. The frown, the wrinkled lip and the sneer of command on the broken face still tell us exactly what kind of man the king was.

Question: Exercise 4 (3): What was written on the pedestal of the statue?

Answer: The inscription gave the king's name and his proud title, king of kings, and it challenged all mighty rulers to look at his great works and despair. In simple words, the king claimed that no one could ever equal his power and achievements.

Question: Exercise 4 (4): What is the meaning of the phrase about the heart that fed (the passions)?

Answer: It refers to the king's heart, which nourished and encouraged those passions — pride, command and contempt — during his life. The sculptor's hand copied them in stone, while the king's heart that fed them has long turned to dust.

Question: Exercise 4 (5): What is ironic about the fate of the king?

Answer: The king expected his statue and inscription to make the world fear and admire him forever. Instead, the statue lies broken and forgotten in an empty desert, and his proud words now only prove how completely his power has vanished — this opposite result is the irony.

Question: Exercise 4 (6): What is the message of the poem?

Answer: The message is that worldly power, pride and glory are temporary and time destroys them all. Human beings should therefore be humble, because neither kings nor their mightiest works can escape decay and forgetfulness.

Question: Exercise 4 (7): How does this poem relate to your life?

Answer: Model answer: The poem teaches me not to be proud of marks, position or praise, because all these will pass with time. It reminds me to value good deeds and a good character, which are remembered far longer than power or wealth.

Question: Exercise 4 (8): The proud king now lies forgotten in the desert. Comment.

Answer: Model answer: This is the fate of pride. In life the king commanded everyone and believed his works would defeat time itself, but after death his statue broke, his empire vanished and even his name survives only as a warning. The empty desert around the wreck shows how completely the world has forgotten him.

Exercise 5 — Critical appreciation of the poem (poetic diction, theme, structure, language, message)

Question: Exercise 5: Write a critical appreciation of the poem under the given heads.

Answer: Model answer: Poetic diction: elevated and musical words suit a grand, ruined subject. Theme: the vanity of human power and pride. Structure: a sonnet of fourteen lines — an octave describing the statue and a sestet giving the inscription and the empty desert. Language: rich in imagery and irony, with alliteration adding music. Message: time humbles every tyrant, so pride is foolish.

Exercise 6 — Discuss: every rise has a fall, in the light of the poem

Question: Exercise 6: Discuss the saying that every rise has a fall, in the light of the poem.

Answer: Model answer: The king rose to the highest point of power and called himself king of kings, yet his fall was equally complete: his statue broke, his city disappeared and the desert covered his glory. The poem proves the saying — whatever rises in this world, whether a person, an empire or fame, must one day fall, so success should be met with humility, not pride.

Exercise 7 — Explain the following lines

Question: Exercise 7 (Lines 1-8): Explain the first eight lines in your own words.

Answer: The poet reports a traveller's account of two huge, trunkless stone legs standing in a desert, with a broken face half buried nearby. The face still carries a frown, a wrinkled lip and a cold, commanding sneer, showing that the sculptor understood the king's proud passions well and carved them faithfully, while the king's heart that nourished them is long gone.

Question: Exercise 7 (Lines 9-14): Explain the last six lines in your own words.

Answer: On the base of the statue the king's proud inscription still claims that he is the king of kings and challenges the mighty to look at his works and despair. But in reality nothing of those works remains: around the huge wreck there is only bare, level sand stretching far away in every direction.

Exercise 8 — Compose your own poem on the theme that all power is temporary (three stanzas, one per group member)

Question: Exercise 8: Compose a short original poem on the theme that power is temporary, however proud a person may be.

Answer: Model answer (original poem): He built his towers to the sky, / And swore his name would never die; / The winds have scattered stone and sand, / And no one asks who ruled the land. // The crown that glittered on his head / Lies rusting where the weeds are spread; / The voice that made a nation fear / Is dust that no one stops to hear. // So learn, O heart, be meek and just, / For thrones and glory turn to dust; / The good we do is all we save, / The rest is silence and the grave.

Poem 4: Good Timber

Pre-reading

Question: Pre-reading (1): Read the given line about the stronger wind making the stronger tree, and guess the theme of the poem.

Answer: Model answer: The line suggests that difficulties make living things strong instead of weak. So the poem's theme is likely that both trees and human beings grow great only through struggle, hardship and resistance, not through an easy life.

Exercise 1 — Find the contextual meanings of the given words

Question: Exercise 1 (1): Give the contextual meaning of: timber.

Answer: Timber means wood used for building; in this poem it also stands for strong, useful character. Just as good wood comes from strong trees, good men are formed through hard experience.

Question: Exercise 1 (2): Give the contextual meaning of: scrubby.

Answer: Scrubby means small, weak and stunted in growth. The sheltered tree that never had to fight for sun and air remains a poor, scrubby thing instead of becoming a great forest tree.

Question: Exercise 1 (3): Give the contextual meaning of: toil.

Answer: Toil means hard, continuous work. The man who never has to toil to earn and farm his piece of land never develops into a truly manly, capable man.

Question: Exercise 1 (4): Give the contextual meaning of: patriarchs.

Answer: Patriarchs means the oldest, greatest and most respected leaders or fathers of a group. In the poem the tallest trees of the dense forest, and the greatest among men, are called its patriarchs.

Question: Exercise 1 (5): Give the contextual meaning of: counsel.

Answer: Counsel means advice or consultation; here it paints a picture of the great trees standing high, as if holding consultation with the stars. It shows their height, dignity and greatness earned through struggle.

Question: Exercise 1 (6): Give the contextual meaning of: scars.

Answer: Scars means the marks left by old wounds. The broken branches of the great trees are their scars, proving how many storms and struggles they have survived.

Exercise 2 — Encircle the right option

Question: Exercise 2 (1): The poem tells us that good qualities always develop in ___ (hardships / ease / idleness / illness).

Answer: (a) hardships. Good timber, in trees and in men, grows through storms, sun, cold, rain and snow — that is, through difficult conditions.

Question: Exercise 2 (2): Never becoming a forest king means never ___ (becoming a lion / acquiring a prominent position / possessing courage to fight / enjoying life).

Answer: (b) acquiring a prominent position. The sheltered tree never rises to the leading, royal place among the trees of the forest.

Question: Exercise 2 (3): Living and dying just as one began points to a ___ human being (courageous / effortless / wealthy / successful).

Answer: (b) an effortless (one who lived without effort). Such a man makes no struggle in life, so he ends exactly where he started, without growth or achievement.

Question: Exercise 2 (4): In this poem the poet discusses themes of ___ (nature, wealth and defeat / power, relationship and hope / nature, struggle and fulfilment / nature, nurture and chaos).

Answer: (c) nature, struggle and fulfilment. Trees from nature provide the example, struggle is the way of growth, and becoming strong and great is the fulfilment.

Question: Exercise 2 (5): The poem teaches that people reach their true potential by overcoming ___ (feelings / enemies / desires / adversities).

Answer: (d) adversities. Facing and defeating difficulties brings out the best in a person, just as storms bring out strength in a tree.

Question: Exercise 2 (6): Living and dying a scrubby thing means living a/an ___ life (unimportant / high status / useful / comfortable).

Answer: (a) unimportant. The sheltered tree's life is small, weak and worthless, remembered by no one — an unimportant existence.

Question: Exercise 2 (7): The line listing sun and cold, rain and snow uses the ___ literary device (metaphor / oxymoron / alliteration / simile).

Answer: (c) alliteration (with repetition of sounds and pattern). The repeated opening sounds and the balanced pairing of opposite weathers give the line music and force; it contrasts ease with hardship.

Question: Exercise 2 (8): The broken branches in the last stanza are an example of ___ (simile / metaphor / hyperbole / none of them).

Answer: (b) metaphor. The broken branches stand for the wounds and struggles of great men; their hardships are pictured as the scars of old trees without using 'like' or 'as'.

Exercise 3 — Answer the following questions

Question: Exercise 3 (1): What is the significance of the title of the poem?

Answer: The title is significant because 'good timber' means both strong wood and strong human character. The whole poem compares the growth of trees with the growth of men, and the title joins both meanings in a single, memorable phrase.

Question: Exercise 3 (2): What happens to the people who work hard?

Answer: People who work hard and face difficulties grow strong, capable and great. Like the trees of the dense forest, they rise above others and become the patriarchs — the respected leaders — of their community.

Question: Exercise 3 (3): How can one achieve one's true potential in life, according to the poem?

Answer: By leaving ease, struggling for one's share of life, and enduring hardship patiently. Storms, cold, rain and snow — that is, difficulties — must be faced bravely, because strength and greatness grow only through them.

Question: Exercise 3 (4): Why does the poet suggest that people should be like good timber?

Answer: Because good timber is strong, lasting and useful, and it becomes so only by resisting storms. The poet wants people to develop the same qualities: endurance, courage and usefulness, instead of remaining weak and scrubby through an easy life.

Question: Exercise 3 (5): Which poetic devices are used in the poem?

Answer: The main device is an extended metaphor: men are compared to trees throughout the poem. There is also personification in trees fighting for sun and air, alliteration in repeated sounds, and contrast or antithesis between the sheltered tree and the forest king, and between easy living and struggle.

Question: Exercise 3 (6): Write the central idea of the poem.

Answer: The central idea is that greatness is the fruit of struggle. Neither a tree nor a man becomes strong in comfort; hardships, storms and hard work are the common law of life through which good timber — and good men — are made.

Question: Exercise 3 (7): How does this poem relate to your life?

Answer: Model answer: As a student, I meet difficulties in study, examinations and daily life. The poem teaches me to welcome these challenges instead of avoiding them, because facing them will make me stronger, more capable and more successful, just like the forest trees.

Exercise 4 — Identify the poetic devices in the poem and use them in sentences

Question: Exercise 4: Identify the poetic devices in the poem, list them and use them in your own sentences.

Answer: Model answer: Extended metaphor — the whole poem treats men as trees; my sentence: He is a good timber of our class, strong in every trial. Personification — trees fighting for sun and sky; my sentence: The young plant fought for light under the big tree. Antithesis — ease against storm; my sentence: Comfort weakens, but struggle strengthens. These devices make the lesson concrete and easy to grasp.

Exercise 5 — Critical appreciation of the poem (poetic diction, theme, structure, language, message)

Question: Exercise 5: Write a critical appreciation of the poem under the given heads.

Answer: Model answer: Poetic diction: simple, strong words taken from nature and farming. Theme: growth through struggle in trees and men alike. Structure: four stanzas of six lines each with a regular rhyme. Language: clear and proverb-like, built on one sustained comparison. Message: good timber does not grow with ease — hardship is the common law of life.

Exercise 6 — Compose your own poem on the theme 'When life gives you lemons, make lemonade' (three stanzas, one per group member)

Question: Exercise 6: Compose a short original poem on turning difficulties into opportunities, in three stanzas.

Answer: Model answer (original poem): When life is sour as lemon rind, / Don't curse the fruit you've been assigned; / Add hope as sugar, stir with cheer, / And drink — the taste is sweet and clear. // The storm that bends the farmer's corn / Will water fields for harvest morn; / The night that seems too dark to bear / Prepares the sunrise, bright and fair. // So take each trial as a friend, / Its bitter start has sweetened end; / Who turns his lemons, one by one, / Finds lemonade beneath the sun.

Exercise 7 — Elaborate: life grows when a person comes out of the comfort zone, in the light of the poem

Question: Exercise 7: Elaborate the statement that life grows when a person leaves the comfort zone, in the light of this poem.

Answer: Model answer: In the poem, the tree that stays sheltered in the open plain, getting its share of rain without any fight, remains small and scrubby all its life. The trees that struggle for sun, sky and air in storms become the great patriarchs of the forest. In the same way, a person who leaves comfort, accepts challenges and works hard grows in strength, skill and character, while the comfort-loving person stays as he began.

Exercise 8 — Explain the following lines

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 1-6): Explain the first stanza in your own words.

Answer: A tree that never had to struggle for sun, sky, air and light, but stood safely in an open plain always getting enough rain, never became a great king of the forest. It lived and died a small, weak, scrubby thing, because ease gave it no strength.

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 7-12): Explain the second stanza in your own words.

Answer: In the same way, a man who never had to work hard to earn and cultivate his piece of land, and never had to win his share of sun, sky, light and air, never became a truly manly man. He lived and died exactly as he began, without any growth.

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 13-18): Explain the third stanza in your own words.

Answer: Good timber never grows in ease: the stronger the wind, the stronger the trees become, and the higher they reach, the greater their length grows. The more the storm, the more the strength — through sun and cold, rain and snow, good timber grows in trees and in men alike.

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 19-24): Explain the last stanza in your own words.

Answer: Where the forest grows thickest, we find the greatest trees and the greatest men — the patriarchs of both. Their broken branches show the scars of many winds and much struggle, and this, the poet concludes, is the common law of all life.

Poem 5: Lucy Gray

Pre-reading

Question: Pre-reading (1): Look at the picture and say what you observe in it.

Answer: Model answer: The picture shows a small girl alone in snow, wrapped in a warm cover and carrying a lantern in her hand. Her face looks innocent and brave, and the empty snowy scene creates a feeling of loneliness and danger.

Question: Pre-reading (2): How can you describe an obedient child?

Answer: Model answer: An obedient child listens to elders, follows their advice willingly and does the given task happily without arguing. Such a child is loved and trusted by the whole family.

Question: Pre-reading (3): How much are your parents attached to you?

Answer: Model answer: My parents are deeply attached to me: they care for my food, health, studies and safety at all times. Their worry increases at once if I am late or unwell, which shows the strength of their love.

Question: Pre-reading (4): Does anyone among you know any story related to a child?

Answer: Model answer: Yes, many folk stories tell of children who were lost or who showed great courage. Such stories usually teach that children should be cared for and that elders must guide them away from danger.

Question: Pre-reading (5): What do you know about William Wordsworth?

Answer: Model answer: William Wordsworth (1770–1850) was a great English poet of nature who wrote in the plain language of common people.

He believed that ordinary events of humble life are fit subjects for poetry, and he found the presence of God in the beauties of nature.

Exercise 1 — Find the contextual meanings of the given words

Question: Exercise 1 (1): Give the contextual meaning of: solitary.

Answer: Solitary means alone, without any companion. Lucy is called a solitary child because she lived alone on a wide moor and had no friend or playmate.

Question: Exercise 1 (2): Give the contextual meaning of: wretched.

Answer: Wretched means miserable and deeply unhappy. Lucy's parents are called wretched because they spent the whole night in grief and helplessness, searching for their lost child.

Question: Exercise 1 (3): Give the contextual meaning of: comrade.

Answer: Comrade means a friend or companion. The poem says Lucy knew no mate and no comrade, which stresses how completely alone she was in her lonely home.

Question: Exercise 1 (4): Give the contextual meaning of: wanton.

Answer: Wanton here means playful and unrestrained, used for the light, free movements of Lucy's feet in the snow. It shows her innocence and joy before the storm came.

Question: Exercise 1 (5): Give the contextual meaning of: tripping.

Answer: Tripping means moving with light, quick steps. At the end, people imagine Lucy still tripping lightly over rough and smooth ground on the lonely moor, singing as she goes.

Exercise 2 — Encircle the correct option

Question: Exercise 2 (1): The poet chanced to see Lucy ___ (at the break of day / in the evening / in the afternoon / at night).

Answer: (a) at the break of day. While crossing the lonely moor early one morning, the poet once happened to see the solitary child.

Question: Exercise 2 (2): Lucy's father asked her to go to town with a lantern to bring her ___ (aunt / sister / brother / mother).

Answer: (d) mother. A stormy night was coming, and Lucy had to light her mother's way back home through the snow.

Question: Exercise 2 (3): Lucy replied that she would ___ go to town to fetch her mother (gladly / sadly / unwillingly / probably).

Answer: (a) gladly. She answered at once with joy, pointed to the moon and the clock, and willingly took the lantern — the mark of an obedient child.

Question: Exercise 2 (4): Lucy could not reach the town because ___ (it was late / she got no conveyance / her mother reached home / she lost her way in the storm).

Answer: (d) she lost her way in the storm. The storm came earlier than expected, she wandered up and down over the hills, and never reached the town.

Question: Exercise 2 (5): The wooden bridge was at a distance of ___ from Lucy's home (a mile / a furlong / a kilometre / a few feet).

Answer: (b) a furlong. From the hill at daybreak, the parents saw the wooden bridge lying a furlong away from their door.

Question: Exercise 2 (6): Lucy's parents became certain of her death when they saw ___ (her footprints / her body / her lantern / her shoes).

Answer: (a) her footprints. They followed the small footprints step by step to the middle of the bridge, where the marks suddenly ended, and they understood she had fallen there.

Question: Exercise 2 (7): Some people still believe Lucy can be seen ___ (in mountains / in the wind / in town / on the bridge).

Answer: (b) in the wind (among the given options; the poem places her on the lonesome wild, her solitary song whistling in the wind). People feel her living presence in the lonely moor and its winds even today.

Question: Exercise 2 (8): People believe Lucy can be seen doing all these activities EXCEPT ___ (looking straight / singing songs / moving rapidly / talking to people).

Answer: (d) talking to people. She is imagined tripping along, never looking behind and singing a solitary song, but she remains a lonely spirit who talks to no one.

Exercise 3 — Answer the following questions

Question: Exercise 3 (1): Where did Lucy live, and what kind of child was she?

Answer: Lucy lived with her parents in a cottage on a wide, lonely moor, with no neighbour near their door. She was a sweet, innocent and completely solitary child who had no mate or companion to play with.

Question: Exercise 3 (2): Where did Lucy's father send her, and why?

Answer: He sent her to the town on that stormy evening. Her mother was in town, and Lucy had to carry a lantern to light her mother's way back home through the snow.

Question: Exercise 3 (3): What did Lucy mean when she pointed out that yonder was the moon?

Answer: She meant that although it was only afternoon and the clock had just struck two, the moon was already visible in the sky. Its light would help her on the way, so she could happily go and return before dark.

Question: Exercise 3 (4): Why did Lucy take a lantern with her?

Answer: She took the lantern to light her mother's path through the snow on the dark, stormy night. Without its light, travelling back from town across the moor would have been almost impossible.

Question: Exercise 3 (5): Do you think the tragedy could have been prevented if Lucy's father himself had gone to town?

Answer: Model answer: Very probably, yes. A grown man could have faced the storm better, found the right path and reached the town or returned safely. Sending a small child alone into a coming snowstorm was the mistake that caused the tragedy.

Question: Exercise 3 (6): What happened to Lucy while she was going to the town?

Answer: The storm arrived before its expected time while she was on the way. She wandered up and down, climbed many hills in the snow, lost her path and never reached the town; her footprints show she fell from the middle of the wooden bridge.

Question: Exercise 3 (7): What efforts did Lucy's parents make to find her?

Answer: All night the wretched parents searched, shouting far and wide across the moor, but no sound or sight guided them. At daybreak they stood on a hill, spotted the bridge, found Lucy's footprints in the snow and followed them anxiously step by step.

Question: Exercise 3 (8): What led Lucy's parents to the bridge?

Answer: At daybreak they stood on a hill overlooking the moor and saw the wooden bridge a furlong from their door. Going nearer, the mother spotted the prints of Lucy's feet in the snow, and tracking those small footmarks led them to the bridge.

Question: Exercise 3 (9): What do people still maintain about Lucy Gray, and why?

Answer: Some people still maintain that Lucy is a living child who can be seen on the lonely moor, tripping lightly and singing a solitary song that whistles in the wind. They say this because her body was never found and her sweet, innocent memory lives on in their hearts.

Exercise 4 — Critical appreciation of the poem (poetic diction, theme, structure, language, message)

Question: Exercise 4: Write a critical appreciation of the poem under the given heads.

Answer: Model answer: Poetic diction: simple, homely words fit the story of a poor, humble child. Theme: the loss of an innocent, solitary child and her parents' grief. Structure: sixteen ballad-like quatrains that narrate the story in order. Language: plain and musical, rich in natural images of snow, storm and moor. Message: children must be protected from danger, and love keeps the memory of the lost alive forever.

Exercise 5 — Discuss: how should elders guide their children to save themselves from forcible dangers?

Question: Exercise 5: Discuss how elders should guide children to protect themselves from dangers.

Answer: Model answer: Elders should never send small children alone into bad weather or unknown places, and should teach them to stay on known paths, to seek shelter and help in an emergency, and to return home if conditions grow dangerous. Children should also be taught important addresses, phone numbers and the names of safe persons nearby, so that they can protect themselves when elders are not present.

Exercise 6 — Explain with reference to the context the following stanzas

Question: Exercise 6 (Stanza 1): Explain with reference to the context: the poet had often heard of Lucy and once saw her at daybreak.

Answer: Reference to the context: These lines open the poem. The poet introduces Lucy Gray, a child of the lonely moor about whom he had often heard. Explanation: Once, while crossing the wild country at the break of day, he happened to see the solitary child with his own eyes.

Question: Exercise 6 (Stanza 2): Explain with reference to the context: Lucy knew no companion and was the sweetest creature near a human door.

Answer: Reference to the context: The poet describes Lucy's lonely life on the wide moor. Explanation: She had no friend or playmate at all, yet she was the sweetest living thing that ever grew beside a human home, which makes her loneliness more touching.

Question: Exercise 6 (Stanza 3): Explain with reference to the context: wild creatures may still be seen, but Lucy's sweet face will never be seen again.

Answer: Reference to the context: The poet contrasts living nature with Lucy's disappearance. Explanation: A fawn at play or a hare on the green can still be spotted, but Lucy, once lost in the storm, will never be seen alive again.

Question: Exercise 6 (Stanza 4): Explain with reference to the context: the father's words sending Lucy to town with a lantern on the stormy night.

Answer: Reference to the context: This is the father's speech on the evening of the tragedy. Explanation: He warns that the night will be stormy and orders Lucy to go to town with a lantern so that she can light her mother's way home through the snow.

Question: Exercise 6 (Stanza 5): Explain with reference to the context: Lucy's glad reply that it is scarcely afternoon and the moon is already up.

Answer: Reference to the context: Lucy answers her father cheerfully before setting out. Explanation: She promises to do the task gladly, noting that the minster clock has just struck two and the moon is already shining, so she feels the journey will be easy.

Question: Exercise 6 (Stanza 6): Explain with reference to the context: the father resumed his work and Lucy took the lantern in her hand.

Answer: Reference to the context: This stanza shows the moment of departure. Explanation: The father cut a bundle of sticks, returned to his work, and Lucy obediently picked up the lantern and set out on her ill-fated journey.

Question: Exercise 6 (Stanza 7): Explain with reference to the context: Lucy was more cheerful than a mountain deer, her feet scattering the powdery snow like smoke.

Answer: Reference to the context: The poet pictures Lucy's happy start before the storm. Explanation: No mountain deer is more joyful than Lucy was; with playful steps she kicked up the soft snow, which rose around her feet like smoke.

Question: Exercise 6 (Stanza 8): Explain with reference to the context: the storm came early, Lucy wandered, climbed many hills but never reached the town.

Answer: Reference to the context: This is the turning point of the story. Explanation: The snowstorm arrived before its time, Lucy lost her way and wandered up and down climbing hill after hill, but all her efforts failed and she never reached the town.

Question: Exercise 6 (Stanza 9): Explain with reference to the context: the parents searched all night, shouting, but no sound or sight guided them.

Answer: Reference to the context: The poet describes the parents' desperate search. Explanation: The miserable parents went about the moor the whole night, calling Lucy loudly in every direction, yet neither a reply nor any sign of her came to guide them.

Question: Exercise 6 (Stanza 10): Explain with reference to the context: at daybreak the parents stood on a hill and saw the wooden bridge a furlong from their door.

Answer: Reference to the context: Morning brings the first clue in the search. Explanation: Standing on a hill above the moor at daybreak, the parents looked down and saw the wooden bridge lying about a furlong away from their cottage.

Question: Exercise 6 (Stanza 11): Explain with reference to the context: the parents wept and turned homeward, and then the mother spotted the print of Lucy's feet.

Answer: Reference to the context: Hope returns at the moment of despair. Explanation: The parents, weeping, cried that they would meet Lucy in heaven and turned towards home; just then the mother saw the small footprints of Lucy in the snow.

Question: Exercise 6 (Stanza 12): Explain with reference to the context: from the steep hill's edge they tracked the small footmarks through the hedge and past the stone wall.

Answer: Reference to the context: The parents follow the trail with growing anxiety. Explanation: Coming down from the steep hill, they followed Lucy's small footprints through the broken hawthorn hedge and alongside the long stone wall without losing them.

Question: Exercise 6 (Stanza 13): Explain with reference to the context: they crossed an open field, the marks remained the same, and they came to the bridge.

Answer: Reference to the context: The search reaches its painful end. Explanation: The parents crossed the open field still following the same clear footprints; they never lost the trail, and at last the footmarks brought them to the wooden bridge.

Exercise 7 — Compose your own poem on the theme of 'self-awareness' (three stanzas, one per group member)

Question: Exercise 7: Compose a short original poem on self-awareness, in three stanzas.

Answer: Model answer (original poem): I looked into the mirror clear, / And asked the face that met me near: / What have you done, what have you been? / The silent eyes replied, Look in. // I counted faults I hid from men, / The wasted hours, the idle pen; / And knew the change must start with me, / No other hands can set me free. // Now every day I pause and see / The person I am meant to be; / Self-knowledge is the lamp I light / To guide my steps through darkest night.

Poem 6: The Abbot of Canterbury

Pre-reading

Question: Pre-reading: Read the given line about a fool teaching a wise man wit, and predict the theme of the poem.

Answer: Model answer: The line suggests that wisdom is not limited to the learned or the high-born, and a simple person may outwit the clever. So the poem will probably show a lowly person answering questions that defeat great scholars, teaching us not to judge wisdom by dress, rank or profession.

Exercise 1 — Match Column A words with their contextual meanings in Column B

Question: Exercise 1 (1): Match: ancient.

Answer: Ancient matches (F) — primitive, very old. The ballad begins as an old story of King John, told from long ago.

Question: Exercise 1 (2): Match: merry.

Answer: Merry matches (H) — happy. The narrator promises a cheerful, amusing story about the Abbot of Canterbury.

Question: Exercise 1 (3): Match: anon.

Answer: Anon matches (A) — soon, at once. The storyteller says he will tell the ancient story immediately, without delay.

Question: Exercise 1 (4): Match: renown.

Answer: Renown matches (J) — fame. People rode to London to report the Abbot's housekeeping and his great fame to the king.

Question: Exercise 1 (5): Match: fold.

Answer: Fold matches (I) — an enclosure for sheep. The Abbot meets his shepherd as the shepherd is going towards the folds to gather his flock.

Question: Exercise 1 (6): Match: gallant.

Answer: Gallant matches (G) — brave, splendid. The shepherd goes to London in a splendid array of fine clothes, horses and servants, fit to appear before the Pope.

Question: Exercise 1 (7): Match: jest.

Answer: Jest matches (E) — a joke. The king rewards the shepherd for the merry jest he has shown, because his clever answers amused the king.

Question: Exercise 1 (8): Match: pardon.

Answer: Pardon matches (D) — forgiveness. The shepherd reveals himself and begs the king's pardon for the Abbot and for himself.

Question: Exercise 1 (9): Match: liegemen.

Answer: Liegemen matches (B) — noblemen, the king's loyal subjects. The king asks what he is worth while seated among all his noble liegemen wearing his golden crown.

Question: Exercise 1 (10): Match: devise.

Answer: Devise matches (C) — to plan, to work out. The Abbot visited Cambridge and Oxford, but no learned doctor there was wise enough to plan out answers to the king's questions.

Exercise 2 — Encircle the right option

Question: Exercise 2 (1): The ballad is narrated in ___ person (first / second / third / first and third).

Answer: (d) first and third. The storyteller speaks in the first person when he addresses the reader, while the story of the king and the Abbot is told in the third person.

Question: Exercise 2 (2): The poet tells the reader he is going to narrate a ___ story (sad / funny / terrible / folk).

Answer: (b) funny. He promises a merry story about the Abbot of Canterbury, and the shepherd's clever answers make it humorous.

Question: Exercise 2 (3): King John was jealous of the Abbot's housekeeping and high ___ (character / respect / business / renown).

Answer: (d) renown. Messengers carried news of the Abbot's grand household and fame to London, which aroused the king's jealousy.

Question: Exercise 2 (4): King John feared the Abbot was working treason against his ___ (people / policies / crown / ministers).

Answer: (c) crown. The king accused the Abbot of keeping a better house than the king himself and suspected him of treason against the throne.

Question: Exercise 2 (5): The king told the Abbot that if he failed to answer the three questions he would be ___ (beheaded / poisoned / banished / fined).

Answer: (a) beheaded. The king threatened that the Abbot's head would be struck off from his body if the answers were not given.

Question: Exercise 2 (6): After hearing the questions, the Abbot rode to ___ universities (Oxford and California / Oxford and Canterbury / Oxford and Campbell / Oxford and Cambridge).

Answer: (d) Oxford and Cambridge. He sought help from the learned doctors of both famous universities, but none could devise the answers.

Question: Exercise 2 (7): The Abbot requested the king to give him ___ weeks' space (three / four / five / six).

Answer: (a) three. The king granted three weeks, warning that this was the longest time the Abbot had to live if he failed.

Question: Exercise 2 (8): While going home, the Abbot met a ___ (farmer / friend / neighbour / shepherd).

Answer: (d) shepherd. His own shepherd met him on the way to the folds and, hearing the sad news, offered to go to London in his place.

Question: Exercise 2 (9): The shepherd asked for the Abbot's ___ in order to answer the king's questions (lands / house / horse and dress / wealth).

Answer: (c) horse and dress (with serving-men and apparel). Disguised in the Abbot's gown and looking exactly like him, the shepherd could appear before the king without being recognised.

Exercise 3 — Write the stanza number against each statement

Question: Exercise 3 (1): In which stanza does the information appear: the Abbot is a very rich person?

Answer: Stanza 3. It describes how a hundred men were fed daily in the Abbot's house and fifty attendants in velvet coats with gold chains waited on him, which proves his great wealth.

Question: Exercise 3 (2): In which stanza does the information appear: the Abbot seems satisfied/defends himself in the court?

Answer: Stanza 5. Before the king, the Abbot calmly answers that he spends nothing except what is his own and trusts the king will do him no harm for using his honestly earned wealth.

Question: Exercise 3 (3): In which stanza does the information appear: the questions are very difficult to answer?

Answer: Stanza 9. The Abbot admits the questions are too hard for his shallow wit and that he cannot answer the king yet, so he begs for three weeks' time.

Question: Exercise 3 (4): In which stanza does the information appear: the Abbot tries to find out the answers?

Answer: Stanza 11. The Abbot rides to Cambridge and Oxford to consult the learned men, but no doctor there is wise enough to devise an answer for him.

Question: Exercise 3 (5): In which stanza does the information appear: the Abbot is sure to have his punishment (if he fails)?

Answer: Stanza 10. The king warns that three weeks is the longest the Abbot has to live, and that on failure his lands and living will be forfeited — with his head to follow.

Question: Exercise 3 (6): In which stanza does the information appear: the king rewards the shepherd?

Answer: Stanza 27, the last stanza. Pleased with the merry jest, the king gives the shepherd four nobles a week and sends him home with a pardon for the old Abbot.

Exercise 4 — Answer the following questions

Question: Exercise 4 (1): What was the dispute between the king and the Abbot?

Answer: The king heard that the Abbot kept a far better and richer house than the king himself. Jealous of his fame, the king accused him of treason against the crown, while the Abbot maintained he spent only his own honestly earned wealth.

Question: Exercise 4 (2): What efforts did the Abbot make in order to save himself?

Answer: He begged the king for three weeks' time, then rode to Cambridge and Oxford to seek answers from the greatest scholars. When even they failed, he returned home in despair — until his shepherd came forward with a plan to save him.

Question: Exercise 4 (3): What were the questions the king asked?

Answer: The king asked three questions: first, what the king himself was worth, to a penny, seated crowned among his nobles; second, how soon he could ride round the whole world; and third, what the king was thinking. Failure to answer meant death for the Abbot.

Question: Exercise 4 (4): What was the shepherd's answer to the king's first question?

Answer: The shepherd answered that Christ the Saviour was sold for thirty pence, so the king must be worth twenty-nine pence — one penny less than Him. The bold, witty reply made the king laugh at his own small worth.

Question: Exercise 4 (5): What was the shepherd's answer to the king's second question?

Answer: He answered that if the king rises with the sun and rides with it until it rises again the next morning, never turning his face, he will ride round the world in twenty-four hours. The king laughed, surprised it could be done so soon.

Question: Exercise 4 (6): What was the shepherd's answer to the king's third question?

Answer: He answered that the king was thinking he was the Abbot of Canterbury, but in fact he was only the Abbot's poor shepherd, come to beg pardon for his master and himself. This honest surprise completed his success.

Question: Exercise 4 (7): How did the king express his emotions after all his questions were answered?

Answer: The king laughed heartily after every answer and swore cheerful oaths in surprise and delight. Pleased with the jest, he offered to make the shepherd the new abbot, and when the shepherd refused, he rewarded him with money instead.

Question: Exercise 4 (8): Why did the shepherd not accept the king's offer (to become abbot)?

Answer: He refused because he could neither read nor write, so he was unfit for the learned office of an abbot. His honesty about his own limits, instead of greed for rank, shows his true wisdom.

Question: Exercise 4 (9): How was the Abbot benefited by his shepherd's bold answers?

Answer: The shepherd's answers saved the Abbot's life, his lands and his living, which the king had threatened to take. He also won the king's pardon, so the Abbot kept his position and honour without any loss.

Question: Exercise 4 (10): What is the main idea of this ballad?

Answer: The main idea is that true wisdom is not confined to rank, dress or learning. A poor, illiterate shepherd defeats the king's impossible questions with common sense and wit, saving his master — so a person must never be judged by appearance or profession.

Exercise 5 — Discuss the poem as a ballad

Question: Exercise 5: Discuss the poem as a ballad.

Answer: Model answer: It is a ballad because it narrates a complete story — a king, a threatened abbot and a clever shepherd — in short four-line stanzas with a regular rhyme. It uses simple, direct language, dialogue between characters, and repetition of the king's three questions, all typical of traditional ballads that were passed on orally. Its author is unknown, which is another mark of the folk ballad.

Exercise 6 — Compose your own poem on a similar theme (do not judge people by appearance and profession; three stanzas, one per group member)

Question: Exercise 6: Compose a short original poem on the theme that people should not be judged by appearance or profession, in three stanzas.

Answer: Model answer (original poem): The gardener's hands were rough with soil, / His coat was old, his wealth was toil; / Yet when the judge was struck with grief, / The gardener's counsel brought relief. // The scholar proud in silken dress / Stood silent in that sore distress; / The humble man, with heart sincere, / Spoke words that dried the mourner's tear. // So judge no soul by cloth or trade, / For wisdom oft in rags is laid; / The brightest pearl the world has known / May sleep within the plainest stone.

Exercise 7 — Enact the given story by playing different roles

Question: Exercise 7: How would your group enact this story in class?

Answer: Model answer: Assign the roles of the narrator, King John, the Abbot and the shepherd. Act the scenes in order: the king's accusation, the three questions, the Abbot's fruitless journey to the universities, the shepherd's disguise and his three answers, ending with the king's laughter and reward. Simple costumes — a crown, a gown and a staff — will make the performance clear and enjoyable.

Exercise 8 — Explain the following lines

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 1-4): Explain these lines in your own words (the opening about King John).

Answer: The narrator begins an old story about King John, a famous prince who ruled England with full power. He did great wrong and maintained very little right, which sets up the conflict of the ballad.

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 5-8): Explain these lines in your own words (the merry story of the Abbot begins).

Answer: The narrator promises a cheerful story about the Abbot of Canterbury. Because of the Abbot's grand housekeeping and high fame, messengers rode swiftly to report him to fair London town.

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 9-12): Explain these lines in your own words (the Abbot's rich household).

Answer: The king heard that the Abbot kept a hundred men in his house every day. Fifty attendants, wearing gold chains and velvet coats, waited on him — a splendour greater than the king's own.

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 13-16): Explain these lines in your own words (the king's accusation).

Answer: The king greets the Abbot with a complaint: he hears the Abbot keeps a far better house than the king himself. He fears this fame means the Abbot is secretly working treason against his crown.

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 17-20): Explain these lines in your own words (the Abbot's reply).

Answer: The Abbot politely replies that he wishes it to be known he spends nothing except his own wealth. He trusts the king's grace will not harm him for spending what he has honestly gained.

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 21-24): Explain these lines in your own words (the king's death threat).

Answer: The king declares the Abbot's fault is great and that he must die for it. Only one escape is offered: if the Abbot can answer the king's three questions, his head will not be struck from his body.

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 25-28): Explain these lines in your own words (the first question).

Answer: The king now puts his first question to the Abbot. He describes himself seated in this very place, wearing his fair golden crown and surrounded by all his noble liegemen in their full splendour. In that royal state, he demands, the Abbot must value him exactly, to a single penny, neither more nor less. The question is deliberately impossible, because no one can fix an exact price on a crowned king.

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 29-32): Explain these lines in your own words (the second and third questions).

Answer: Secondly, the Abbot must say without any doubt how soon the king can ride round the whole world. Thirdly, he must not shrink but must truly tell the king what the king is thinking at that moment.

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 33-36): Explain these lines in your own words (the Abbot asks for time).

Answer: The Abbot confesses these are hard questions for his shallow wit and that he cannot answer the king yet. He begs for only three weeks' space, promising to do his best to find the answers.

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 37-40): Explain these lines in your own words (the king grants three weeks with a warning).

Answer: The king grants three weeks, warning that this is the longest the Abbot has to live. If he fails to answer the three questions, his lands and his living will be forfeited to the king.

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 41-44): Explain these lines in your own words (the journey to the universities).

Answer: Sad at the king's words, the Abbot rode away to Cambridge and Oxford for help. But no doctor in either university was wise enough to devise an answer to the questions with all his learning.

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 45-48): Explain these lines in your own words (the meeting with the shepherd — note: the book's table misprints two Lucy Gray items here; these lines are the Abbot's homeward meeting).

Answer: The Abbot rode home with a cold, hopeless heart and met his shepherd going towards the sheepfolds. The shepherd warmly welcomed his lord home and asked what news he brought from good King John.

(the Abbot's sad news).

Answer: The Abbot tells the shepherd the sad news: he has only three days of the term left in effect, and if he cannot answer the king's questions, his head will be struck off from his body. His despair shows how hopeless he feels.

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 53-56): Explain these lines in your own words (the shepherd repeats the first question).

Answer: The shepherd repeats the first question to make sure he understands it: the king, crowned and seated among his noble liegemen, must be told to the penny exactly what he is worth. The repetition prepares the reader for the answers.

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 57-60): Explain these lines in your own words (the shepherd repeats the second and third questions).

Answer: He repeats the second question — how soon the king may ride round the whole world — and the third, which he must not shrink from: to tell the king truly what he thinks. Repeating them shows the shepherd is memorising his task carefully.

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 61-64): Explain these lines in your own words (the shepherd offers to go).

Answer: The shepherd cheers his master up, reminding him of the saying that a fool may teach a wise man wit. He asks for a horse, serving-men and the Abbot's apparel, promising to ride to London and answer the quarrel in his place.

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 65-68): Explain these lines in your own words (no one shall know them in London).

Answer: The shepherd tells the Abbot not to frown or worry: in face he is exactly like his lordship. If the Abbot only lends him his gown, no one at fair London town will be able to tell them apart.

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 69-72): Explain these lines in your own words (the splendid preparation).

Answer: The Abbot agrees to give horses and serving-men in a most gallant and brave array. With crozier, mitre, rochet and cope — the full dress of an abbot — the shepherd will be fit to appear before the Pope himself.

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 73-76): Explain these lines in your own words (the king welcomes the supposed Abbot).

Answer: The king welcomes the disguised shepherd, thinking him the Abbot returned to keep his appointed day. He reminds him that if he can answer the three questions, both his life and his living will be saved.

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 77-80): Explain these lines in your own words (the king repeats the first question).

Answer: The king repeats the first question to the supposed Abbot: when you see me here in this place, with my fair crown of gold on my head among my noble liegemen, tell me to one penny what I am worth. The test now begins.

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 81-84): Explain these lines in your own words (the answer to the first question).

Answer: The shepherd answers that the Saviour was sold for thirty pence among those who betrayed Him. The king, he says, is worth twenty-nine pence, because he is one penny worse — one penny less — than the Saviour.

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 85-88): Explain these lines in your own words (the king laughs and asks the second question).

Answer: The king laughed at the answer and swore he never thought he had been worth so little. Amused and pleased, he then asks the second question without any doubt: how soon may I ride round the whole world?

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 89-92): Explain these lines in your own words (the answer to the second question).

Answer: The shepherd answers that the king must rise with the sun and ride along with it until the sun rises again the next morning. If his face never turns any other way, he will ride round the world in twenty-four hours.

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 93-96): Explain these lines in your own words (the king laughs and asks the third question).

Answer: The king laughed again and swore he did not think the journey could be done so soon. Then, growing serious, he asks the third question from which the shepherd must not shrink: tell me truly what I am thinking.

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 97-100): Explain these lines in your own words (the answer to the third question).

Answer: The shepherd promises to answer the third question and to make the king merry by doing so. He says the king is thinking that the man before him is the Abbot of Canterbury himself. In truth, he reveals, he is only the Abbot's poor shepherd, as can now plainly be seen, and he has come to beg pardon for his master and for himself. This honest surprise is the cleverest of his three answers, because it proves itself the moment it is spoken.

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 101-104): Explain these lines in your own words (the king offers the abbacy; the shepherd refuses).

Answer: The king laughed and swore he would make the shepherd lord abbot that very day in the old Abbot's place. The shepherd begged him not to be so hasty, for, alas, he could neither write nor read.

Question: Exercise 8 (Lines 105-108): Explain these lines in your own words (the king's reward and the pardon).

Answer: Instead, the king promises the shepherd four nobles a week for the merry jest he has shown. He sends him home with a joyful message: tell the old Abbot that he has brought him a pardon from good King John.

Poem 7: Selection from Sur Khahori (Surr Khahori)

Pre-reading

Question: Pre-reading (1-2): Read the words given around the diagram (discipline, compassion, patience, courage, resilience, persistence, honesty, humility and similar qualities) and guess/write the theme of the poem.

Answer: Model answer: All the given words describe the character of a true seeker, so the theme is the spiritual search for Reality. The poem is about wandering ascetics — the Khahoris — who practise discipline, patience, humility and endurance in order to reach God, the Beloved.

Exercise 1 — Find the contextual meanings of the given words

Question: Exercise 1 (1): Give the contextual meaning of: traversed.

Answer: Traversed means travelled across or crossed. The Khahoris crossed harsh lands on foot, even those regions where experienced travellers lose their way.

Question: Exercise 1 (2): Give the contextual meaning of: ascetics.

Answer: Ascetics means people who give up worldly pleasures and practise strict self-denial for spiritual aims. The Khahoris are such ascetics who search for Reality on a spiritual path.

Question: Exercise 1 (3): Give the contextual meaning of: ridge.

Answer: Ridge means a long, narrow raised top of a hill or mountain. In this spiritual landscape it stands for the hard, high paths the seekers cross in their wandering.

Question: Exercise 1 (4): Give the contextual meaning of: desolation.

Answer: Desolation means emptiness, loneliness and ruin. The seekers pass through desolate places where there is no trace even of birds, yet they kindle their fire of devotion there.

Question: Exercise 1 (5): Give the contextual meaning of: grieving.

Answer: Grieving means sorrowing or suffering pain. The Khahoris grieve and trouble their bodies willingly, because suffering is part of their search for the Beloved.

Question: Exercise 1 (6): Give the contextual meaning of: highland.

Answer: Highland means elevated land, hills or mountains. The seekers wander through highlands and rocky places, reduced to bones by hunger and hardship.

Question: Exercise 1 (7): Give the contextual meaning of: rambling.

Answer: Rambling means wandering without a fixed course. It describes the restless journeying of the seekers, who keep moving from place to place in search of Reality.

Question: Exercise 1 (8): Give the contextual meaning of: flicker.

Answer: Flicker means a weak, unsteady light that goes on and off. In the seekers' world it suggests the faint fire they kindle in the wilderness and the glimmer of hope that keeps their search alive.

Exercise 2 — Encircle the correct option

Question: Exercise 2 (1): Khahoris trouble their bodies to attain their ___ (goal / class / earnings / destination).

Answer: (a) goal. They willingly suffer bodily hardship in the rocks and wilderness because their only aim is to find Reality, the Beloved.

Question: Exercise 2 (2): Khahoris face severe ___ while achieving their goals (criticism / conditions / hardships / all of them).

Answer: (d) all of them. On their journey they meet harsh conditions, great hardships and every kind of difficulty, yet they never abandon the search.

Question: Exercise 2 (3): Khahoris never take their ___ when they have goals (property / care / followers / none).

Answer: (d) none (of these). They carry no property, seek no care or comfort and gather no followers; with empty hands they set out early to pursue their goal.

Question: Exercise 2 (4): The description of the Khahoris' dry faces and old, torn slippers shows their ___ (struggle / emotion / hardships / pleasure).

Answer: (c) hardships. Dry faces and worn-out slippers are the visible marks of hunger, travelling and suffering on their hard journey.

Question: Exercise 2 (5): The Khahoris' recognition is like a ___ (caravan in the desert / raft in the ocean / guide in the mountains / safety in the jungle).

Answer: (b) raft in the ocean. Knowing and staying with those who have seen the Beloved becomes a raft that carries a person safely across the ocean of this world.

Question: Exercise 2 (6): Khahoris can be found even where there is no trace of ___ (human beings / animals / birds / cattle).

Answer: (c) birds. They light their fire in such empty, far-off lands that not even a bird is seen there, yet a company of ascetics can kindle it.

Question: Exercise 2 (7): In the fourth stanza, the word 'save' is used in the sense of ___ (safety / preservation / together / except).

Answer: (d) except. The line asks who, except a company of ascetics, can kindle a fire in a place where no trace of birds is seen.

Question: Exercise 2 (8): True seekers can only be known to those who are for ___ (jungle dwelling / deserted abodes / mountain peaks / the spiritual realm).

Answer: (d) the spiritual realm. Only people inclined towards spiritual life can recognise the true seekers; ordinary worldly eyes cannot know them.

Exercise 3 — Paraphrase the selection in simple words

Question: Exercise 3: Paraphrase the selection in simple words.

Answer: The poet says that to know the way of God one must spend time with those who have truly seen the Beloved, for their company saves a person in this world as a raft saves him in an ocean. The Khahoris set out early, search among the rocks, starve themselves to bones and suffer greatly for their goal. With dry faces and torn slippers they cross lands where even the wise are lost, keep their secrets, light fires where no bird is seen, give up both worlds, and so are saved from ignorance; the true seekers still live, known only to spiritual people, who settle close to them.

Exercise 4 — Answer the following questions

Question: Exercise 4 (1): How is the Khahoris' character depicted by the poet?

Answer: The poet depicts them as disciplined, patient, humble and utterly devoted seekers. They prepare early, endure hunger and pain, keep the secrets of the spiritual path, and surrender both this world and the next for the sake of their goal.

Question: Exercise 4 (2): How do the Khahoris experience sleep?

Answer: Model answer (from the selection's picture of their life): Sleep is not a comfort for them; their nights are spent in wakefulness, travel and devotion in the wilderness. They rest little on hard ground, because staying awake in search and remembrance matters more to them than ease.

Question: Exercise 4 (3): Where and why do the Khahoris spend their days and nights?

Answer: They spend their days and nights in rocks, jungles and desolate lands where even birds are not seen. They stay there to search for Reality away from worldly distractions, kindling the fire of devotion in complete solitude.

Question: Exercise 4 (4): What does the poet want to say by speaking of a fire lit where no trace of birds is seen?

Answer: He wants to say that the Khahoris reach and worship in the most remote, lifeless places imaginable. Where ordinary life cannot survive at all, these ascetics still kindle the fire of love and devotion — such is the height of their dedication.

Question: Exercise 4 (5): What reward does a Khahori get after his hard work?

Answer: His reward is the attainment of his goal: a glimpse of Reality and nearness to the Beloved. He is saved from ignorance, and his recognition becomes a raft that saves him in the ocean of this world.

Question: Exercise 4 (6): This Sur is the narration of the Khahoris' struggle. Elaborate.

Answer: Model answer: Every picture in the selection is a picture of struggle: rising early, searching in the rocks, bodies reduced to bones, dry faces, torn slippers, crossing lands where even the knowing ones are lost, and keeping silence about the secrets of the path. Their struggle is not for wealth or fame but for truth, which is why the poet presents it as the model of all spiritual effort.

Question: Exercise 4 (7): Which poetic devices have been used in this poetry? Write with examples (described in your own words).

Answer: Model answer: Metaphor — the company of the God-realised is pictured as a raft in the ocean of the world, and worldly life itself is the ocean. Imagery — dry faces, torn slippers and bodies reduced to bones create a clear picture of hardship. Symbolism — the fire lit in a birdless land symbolises devotion burning in desolation, and the jungle symbolises the difficult spiritual path.

Question: Exercise 4 (8): How do you express your emotions on the struggle of your friend or a family member?

Answer: Model answer: When I see a friend or family member struggling, I feel deep respect and sympathy for them. I express it by standing with them, helping in every possible way, and encouraging them with the belief that, like the Khahoris, sincere effort is never wasted.

Exercise 5 — Compose your own poem on the theme of Search of Reality (three stanzas, one per group member)

Question: Exercise 5: Compose a short original poem on the search of Reality, in three stanzas.

Answer: Model answer (original poem): I left my home at break of day, / With empty hands I took the way; / Through rock and thorn my feet have bled, / Yet onward still my heart is led. // No gold I seek, no praise of men, / No rest in valley, field or glen; / One glimpse of Truth is all my gain, / And worth the hunger, worth the pain. // O Friend, when seekers knock Thy door, / Let not their labour be in vain; / Who gives up both the worlds for Thee / Shall find Thee — and be free again.

Exercise 6 — Write the central idea of the lines of Sur Khahori Question: Exercise 6: Write the central idea of the selection.

Answer: The central idea is that Reality is found only through hard spiritual struggle under the guidance of those who have already seen the Beloved. The Khahoris renounce comfort and both worlds, endure hunger, travel and solitude, and in return gain truth and freedom from ignorance.

Exercise 7 — Critical appreciation of the lines (poetic diction, theme, structure, language, message)

Question: Exercise 7: Write a critical appreciation of the selection under the given heads.

Answer: Model answer: Poetic diction: simple, earthy words of travel, rocks, hunger and wilderness (in Professor Amina Khamisani's English translation of Shah Abdul Latif Bhitai). Theme: the wandering ascetics' search for Reality. Structure: short stanzas of two or three lines carrying one image each. Language: plain yet deeply symbolic, built on metaphors of raft, ocean and fire. Message: truth demands sacrifice — give up both worlds and struggle, and ignorance will be left behind.

Exercise 8 — Identify the poetic devices in the selection and use them in sentences

Question: Exercise 8: Identify the poetic devices in the selection, list them and use them in your own sentences.

Answer: Model answer: Metaphor — the world as an ocean and guidance as a raft; my sentence: Knowledge is a raft in the ocean of life. Imagery — dry faces and torn slippers; my sentence: His torn shoes told the story of his long journey. Symbol — fire in a deserted land for devotion; my sentence: A single lamp of hope burned in the deserted village. These devices turn an abstract spiritual idea into living pictures.

Exercise 9 — Explain the following lines

Question: Exercise 9 (Lines 1-3): Explain the opening lines in your own words (seeing those who have seen the Beloved).

Answer: The poet, addressing his mother, says he has seen the people who have themselves seen the Beloved, God. To know the way, one must stay at least a night with those who have been with God, for their recognition becomes a raft in the ocean of this world.

Question: Exercise 9 (Lines 4-6): Explain these lines in your own words (the Khahoris prepare and search).

Answer: The Khahoris get ready early and set out on their search. Wandering among the rocks, they are reduced to mere bones by hunger and hardship, yet they trouble their bodies on purpose because they are determined to reach their goal.

Question: Exercise 9 (Lines 7-9): Explain these lines in your own words (dry faces, torn slippers, secretive seekers).

Answer: Their faces are dry and withered and their slippers are old and torn from endless walking. They have crossed lands where even experienced, knowing travellers are lost, and there these secretive ones quietly speak of the secrets of that far-off land.

Question: Exercise 9 (Lines 10-11): Explain these lines in your own words (fire where no birds are seen).

Answer: In places so empty that not even a trace of birds is found, a fire is lit. The poet asks rhetorically who, except a company of ascetics, could kindle a fire in such a place — praising their unmatched endurance and devotion.

Question: Exercise 9 (Lines 12-14): Explain these lines in your own words

(those who went to the jungle and gave up both worlds).

Answer: Those who went into the jungle were not led astray, though travellers on the highway were robbed and misled. Because the Khahoris surrendered both this world and the next for their goal, they were saved from ignorance.

Question: Exercise 9 (Lines 15-17): Explain these lines in your own words (true seekers still exist).

Answer: True seekers still exist in the world, but they can be recognised only by people who belong to the spiritual realm. Those who find them build their homes close to them, so that they may live in their blessed company.

Play: A Visit to a Small Planet (Section C)

Exercise 1 — Write the contextual synonym of each word and use it in a sentence

Question: Exercise 1 (1): Give a contextual synonym and a sentence for: impromptu.

Answer: Synonym: unplanned, done on the spur of the moment. Kreton himself admits his visit was rather impromptu. My sentence: She gave an impromptu speech without any preparation.

Question: Exercise 1 (2): Give a contextual synonym and a sentence for: lunatic.

Answer: Synonym: a mad or insane person. General Powers suspects Kreton is either a lunatic from Earth or a spy from another world. My sentence: Only a lunatic would jump from such a height without fear.

Question: Exercise 1 (3): Give a contextual synonym and a sentence for: blazing.

Answer: Synonym: burning brightly, very hot. Ellen points out that meteors are blazing hot, while the landed object is cold. My sentence: The blazing sun made it impossible to walk barefoot at noon.

Question: Exercise 1 (4): Give a contextual synonym and a sentence for: giddy.

Answer: Synonym: dizzy, light-headed. Kreton says hearing so many human thoughts at once makes him a bit giddy. My sentence: She felt giddy after spinning round and round.

Question: Exercise 1 (5): Give a contextual synonym and a sentence for:

reconnoitring.

Answer: Synonym: inspecting or spying out a place beforehand. General Powers accuses Kreton of coming to Earth for reconnoitring before an invasion. My sentence: The soldiers were reconnoitring the valley before the attack.

Question: Exercise 1 (6): Give a contextual synonym and a sentence for: disposition.

Answer: Synonym: final settlement or arrangement. Powers must obey orders until Washington decides the final disposition of the problem. My sentence: The court announced the final disposition of the case.

Question: Exercise 1 (7): Give a contextual synonym and a sentence for: primitive.

Answer: Synonym: early, simple and undeveloped. Kreton repeatedly calls human civilisation and human emotions primitive because Earth is only at an early stage. My sentence: Primitive people lived in caves and hunted animals.

Question: Exercise 1 (8): Give a contextual synonym and a sentence for: seethe.

Answer: Synonym: to boil with strong feeling. Kreton says human beings simply seethe with unlikely emotions, which excites him. My sentence: The crowd seethed with anger at the unfair decision.

Question: Exercise 1 (9): Give a contextual synonym and a sentence for: unctuous.

Answer: Synonym: oily-smooth and flattering in manner. The stage direction describes Roger Spelding, the TV commentator, as middle-aged, unctuous and resonant. My sentence: The salesman praised the customer in an unctuous voice.

Question: Exercise 1 (10): Give a contextual synonym and a sentence for:

fidgets.

Answer: Synonym: moves restlessly. Ellen, a lively girl of twenty, fidgets as she listens to her father's broadcast. My sentence: The nervous student fidgets in his chair before the result.

Question: Exercise 1 (11): Give a contextual synonym and a sentence for: sordid.

Answer: Synonym: dirty, shameful and unpleasant. Ellen says she has never felt so sordid, because Kreton can hear all her private thoughts. My sentence: No one wanted to live in that sordid, neglected street.

Question: Exercise 1 (12): Give a contextual synonym and a sentence for: resonant.

Answer: Synonym: deep, clear and ringing (of a voice). Spelding's professional TV voice is described as resonant. My sentence: The singer's resonant voice filled the whole hall.

Exercise 2 — Read the statements and encircle the correct option

Question: Exercise 2 (1): The play takes place in a small suburb in ___ (Maryland / Washington / Virginia / Indiana).

Answer: (a) Maryland. The Spelding home, where the action occurs, is at Silver Glen in Maryland, and Spelding himself locates the house in that state.

Question: Exercise 2 (2): Spelding ___ the flying object in space (accepts / denies / doubts / confirms).

Answer: (b) denies. In his broadcast he repeats General Powers' assurance that the object is not a spaceship and that there is no proof of life able to build one — just before a spaceship lands in his own garden.

Question: Exercise 2 (3): Spelding criticises John for growing ___ (cabbage / walnuts / corn / peanuts).

Answer: (b) walnuts. John farms English walnuts, and Spelding mocks his unambitious farm life — in the dialogue Spelding carelessly calls them peanuts, which Ellen corrects.

Question: Exercise 2 (4): Kreton appears to be in his ___ (twenties / thirties / forties / fifties).

Answer: (c) forties. The stage description presents the visitor as a mild, pleasant-looking man in his forties, with side-whiskers and dress of 1860.

Question: Exercise 2 (5): Kreton's impression on seeing the inside of the house was ___ (disgusted / delighted / callous / sorrowful).

Answer: (b) delighted. He looks around with delight and says the real twentieth-century house is better than he had hoped.

Question: Exercise 2 (6): The spaceship landed in Mrs. Spelding's ___ (rose garden / petunia bed / greenhouse / vegetable garden).

Answer: (a) rose garden. The ship comes down right in her rose garden, which worries her more than the visitor himself.

Question: Exercise 2 (7): Kreton said the earthmen were his ___ (hobby / ruination / hope / models).

Answer: (a) hobby. He explains that he has been studying Earth for years because its people are his hobby, especially in this early period of their development.

Question: Exercise 2 (8): Kreton had mistakenly thought he had come to Earth in the ___ (18th century / 19th century / 20th century / 21st century).

Answer: (b) 19th century. He had dressed and planned for the Civil War period of 1861, but landed nearly a century later, in the late twentieth century.

Question: Exercise 2 (9): The first person who arrived to investigate the spaceship was ___ (Powers / Laurent / the President of the United States / a neighbour).

Answer: (a) Powers (General Powers). He arrives with his Aide, surrounds the house with troops and personally questions Kreton about the ship.

Question: Exercise 2 (10): Kreton said people on his planet did not ___ (fight / speak / die / love).

Answer: (c) die. He tells the General that his people do not die, and calls human beings poor fragile creatures with only brief moments of life.

Question: Exercise 2 (11): Kreton's spaceship was of ___ shape (elliptical / oval / circular / triangular).

Answer: (a) elliptical. The Aide reports that the ship is elliptical, about fourteen feet across, made of an unknown shining metal with nothing inside it.

Question: Exercise 2 (12): John could not use the telephone because ___ (Kreton had cut communication / the Speldings had no phone / Powers declared martial law / Spelding would not permit him).

Answer: (c) Powers declared martial law. The Aide stops John, saying the house is a military reservation until the crisis is over, by General Powers' order.

Question: Exercise 2 (13): General Powers was thinking about ___ (his promotion / the security of the country / the arrest of Kreton / the murder of the visitor).

Answer: (a) his promotion. Kreton reads his mind and describes him picturing three silver stars pinned on his shoulder instead of the two he wears — the sign of the promotion he dreams of.

Question: Exercise 2 (14): According to Kreton, civilisation (on Earth) is just ___ (at the ending / at the beginning / in full bloom / creeping).

Answer: (b) at the beginning. He tells Spelding that human civilisation is only just beginning and that its people are in the most fascinating, initial stages.

Question: Exercise 2 (15): The elements of science fiction in this passage are most pronounced in ___ (Kreton's supernatural abilities / reactions to Kreton / Kreton belonging to another human breed / Kreton's hobbies).

Answer: (a) Kreton's supernatural abilities. His mind-reading, his invisible force field and his power to stop armed men show science-fiction elements most clearly.

Question: Exercise 2 (16): Kreton placed an invisible wall around his spaceship because ___ (the army told him to / the army was going to take it apart / Earth's atmosphere was damaging it / his own people had suggested it).

Answer: (b) the army was going to take it apart. When Powers announces that security demands the ship be opened up, Kreton protects it with a force field so no one can approach it.

Question: Exercise 2 (17): Powers accused Kreton of coming to Earth ___ (100 years too soon / to spread a mysterious disease / to discover natural resources / to reconnoitre before an invasion).

Answer: (d) to reconnoitre before an invasion. The General keeps insisting that Kreton is a spy sent by another civilisation to study Earth in preparation for an attack.

Question: Exercise 2 (18): Kreton said John's thoughts about Ellen were ___ (black / red / purple / yellow).

Answer: (c) purple. Teasing them, Kreton tells John not to stop thinking about Ellen and calls his thoughts wonderfully purple — meaning romantic and passionate.

Question: Exercise 2 (19): Kreton considers human civilisation ___ (modern / primitive / conservative / rational).

Answer: (b) primitive. He repeatedly treats Earth as a primitive society whose raw emotions and early stage of development fascinate him.

Question: Exercise 2 (20): Kreton intends to take charge of ___ (the rose garden / Spelding's house / the USA / the world).

Answer: (d) the world. At the end he cheerfully announces that he has come to take charge of the whole world and that it will be great fun for him.

Exercise 3 — Write the character who said each dialogue and the context (first one done in the book as an example)

Question: Exercise 3 (Example): Kreton agrees to stay on for a while. Who said it, and in what context?

Answer: Character: Kreton. Context (as given in the book's example, in own words): He says this to Spelding when Spelding, under pressure from General Powers' questioning, asks him to stay; Kreton politely agrees to remain for some time.

Question: Exercise 3 (1): A speaker remarks that John has no drive or ambition ('get-up-and-go'). Who said it, and in what context?

Answer: Character: Roger Spelding. Context: After his broadcast, Spelding discusses his daughter Ellen's fiancé John with his family and complains that John has every virtue except ambition — he is content to stay on his farm.

Question: Exercise 3 (2): A speaker calls himself a hobbyist who loves to travel about. Who said it, and in what context?

Answer: Character: Kreton. Context: In the study, General Powers questions him for two hours; Kreton explains that his people rarely travel now, but he is an exception — a hobbyist who loves wandering and whose hobby is Earth itself.

Question: Exercise 3 (3): A speaker says he prefers the old metal uniforms with feathers on top. Who said it, and in what context?

Answer: Character: Kreton. Context: When General Powers enters and demands who the 'monster' is, Kreton politely comments on Powers' smart uniform and says he prefers the metal ones with feathers that humans wore five hundred years ago.

Question: Exercise 3 (4): A speaker calls human beings poor fragile butterflies with brief moments in the sun. Who said it, and in what context?

Answer: Character: Kreton. Context: Powers threatens that Kreton will die if he proves a hostile spy; Kreton gently replies that his people do not die at all, and pities mortals whose lives are as short as a butterfly's moment in the sun.

Question: Exercise 3 (5): A speaker says she likes the visitor's whiskers because they are so comforting. Who said it, and in what context?

Answer: Character: Mrs. Spelding. Context: While the men worry about martial law and interviews, the vague, motherly Mrs. Spelding calmly prepares a bedroom for the guest and remarks that she likes his whiskers, which remind her of Grandfather Spelding's.

Exercise 4 — Make a list of the elements of science fiction in the play

Question: Exercise 4: List the elements of science fiction found in the play.

Answer: Model answer: (1) A visitor from another planet in another dimension; (2) a spaceship of unknown metal with no instruments, food or controls inside; (3) mind-reading — Kreton hears people's thoughts; (4) an invisible force field protecting the ship and stopping armed men; (5) a race that never dies and has visited Earth since before humans existed; (6) a completely different sense of time, where a journey here took one of Kreton's days. These elements make the play a science-fiction comedy.

Exercise 5 — Arrange the scrambled events in the order of their occurrence in the play

Question: Exercise 5 (Event 1): Kreton arrives on Earth. What is its order number?

Answer: Order 3. First Spelding broadcasts, then John spots the spaceship, and only then does Kreton actually land and arrive.

Question: Exercise 5 (Event 2): General Powers comes with his Aide. What is its order number?

Answer: Order 4. Powers arrives soon after the landing, surrounds the place with troops and begins the official investigation.

Question: Exercise 5 (Event 3): Kreton reads the mind of General Powers. What is its order number?

Answer: Order 7. This happens during the long questioning in the study (Scene II), after their conversation has begun, when Kreton reveals Powers' secret thought about promotion.

Question: Exercise 5 (Event 4): General Powers orders his men to grab Kreton. What is its order number?

Answer: Order 10, the last event. Only after Kreton announces he will take over the world does Powers order the Aide to seize him — and both men are stopped a foot away by Kreton's power.

Question: Exercise 5 (Event 5): John spots a spaceship. What is its order number?

Answer: Order 2. John rushes in breathlessly right after Spelding's broadcast ends and calls everyone out to see the object coming down.

Question: Exercise 5 (Event 6): Kreton announces he will take over the world. What is its order number?

Answer: Order 9. Near the end of Scene III, after denying any hostile mission for his people, Kreton cheerfully reveals that he himself has come to take charge of the whole world.

Question: Exercise 5 (Event 7): Spelding makes a broadcast and denies any spaceship landing on Earth. What is its order number?

Answer: Order 1, the opening event. The play begins with Spelding concluding his TV broadcast, in which he repeats the official denial that any spaceship exists.

Question: Exercise 5 (Event 8): The Aide stops Spelding from making a call. What is its order number?

Answer: Order 5. After Powers takes charge in Scene I, John goes to telephone his family and the Aide stops him, declaring the house a military reservation under martial law.

Question: Exercise 5 (Event 9): Kreton reads the minds of John and Ellen. What is its order number?

Answer: Order 8. In Scene III, back in the living room, Kreton amuses and embarrasses the young couple by telling them exactly what they are thinking about each other.

Question: Exercise 5 (Event 10): General Powers and Kreton have a conversation in the study. What is its order number?

Answer: Order 6. Scene II is wholly this private conversation, in which Powers interrogates Kreton about his planet, his purpose and his ship.

Exercise 6 — Read the text and answer the following questions

Question: Exercise 6 (1): What is ironic about Spelding's broadcast at the beginning of the play?

Answer: In the broadcast Spelding confidently assures America, on General Powers' authority, that the flying object is not a spaceship and that no life elsewhere can build one. The irony is that at that very moment a real spaceship is landing in his own rose garden, proving his official news completely wrong.

Question: Exercise 6 (2): Why is Spelding unhappy about the relationship between Ellen and John?

Answer: Spelding wants his daughter to marry a hard-working, ambitious man who will make his mark in the world. John, though virtuous and nice, is content to spend his life farming walnuts on his own farm, so Spelding calls him a man without drive and disapproves of the match.

Question: Exercise 6 (3): Why did Kreton want to visit Earth?

Answer: Earth and its people are Kreton's hobby, which he has studied thoroughly for years. He especially loves this primitive, early period of human development, and he came impulsively — in fact to watch the Civil War of 1861 — because experiencing raw human emotions in person excites him.

Question: Exercise 6 (4): How is Kreton able to communicate with the people on Earth?

Answer: Kreton can hear what is inside people's minds, so language is no barrier for him. By reading thoughts directly he understands and speaks all Earth languages, though learning them all, he admits, was quite exhausting.

Question: Exercise 6 (5): Describe the reaction of different characters to Kreton's visit.

Answer: Spelding is torn between fear and delight at the chance of a historic interview. Mrs. Spelding stays calm and motherly, worried mainly about her rose garden and the guest's bedroom. Ellen is excited and finds Kreton wonderful, John is curious and friendly, while General Powers is suspicious and treats the visit as a security crisis under martial law.

Question: Exercise 6 (6): Why is General Powers paranoid about Kreton's visit?

Answer: Powers' whole job is guarding the security of his country, so he sees every stranger as a threat. He cannot believe Kreton's harmless explanation, assumes he is a spy sent to reconnoitre before an invasion, and keeps demanding proof Kreton cannot give in Earth terms.

Question: Exercise 6 (7): What restrictions are imposed on Spelding's family?

Answer: Under martial law the house becomes a military reservation until the crisis ends. No one may use the telephone or make any outside communication, no one may leave the house without General Powers' permission, and Spelding is forbidden to broadcast or publish the story.

Question: Exercise 6 (8): What extraordinary powers does Kreton possess, and how does he exhibit them?

Answer: Kreton can hear people's thoughts, as he proves by telling Powers about his promotion dream and John about his feelings for Ellen. He creates an invisible force field around his ship, he cannot be touched — Powers and the Aide stop a foot away when they rush at him — and his people never die.

Question: Exercise 6 (9): Why does Spelding want Kreton to stay?

Answer: Spelding is a TV commentator hungry for fame, and Kreton is the biggest story of the century. He wants to be the first journalist to interview the visitor, so he begs Kreton to stay despite Powers' warning looks.

Question: Exercise 6 (10): Why did Kreton's friends consider him perverse (strange in taste)?

Answer: His friends think it is perverse to be interested in a primitive society like Earth's. Kreton admits they find his hobby odd, but replies that there is no accounting for tastes — he loves human beings and that is all there is to it.

Question: Exercise 6 (11): How does Kreton reveal that he does not have a favourable view of earthlings?

Answer: He constantly calls humans primitive, describes their civilisation as only just beginning, and pities them as poor fragile creatures who die quickly. He even mocks their assumption that every stranger must be hostile, showing he considers them far below his own people.

Question: Exercise 6 (12): How does Kreton foil General Powers' attempts to confine him?

Answer: Powers surrounds the house with troops, declares martial law and finally orders the Aide to grab him. Kreton defeats every attempt calmly: he protects his ship with a force field, and when the men rush at him they stop helplessly a foot away, unable to touch him, while he yawns and goes up to rest.

Question: Exercise 6 (13): Who is the Aide? What is his role in the play?

Answer: The Aide is General Powers' military assistant, a captain. His role is to carry out Powers' orders mechanically: he inspects the ship and reports on it, answers and makes official calls, guards the telephone, and tries to seize Kreton when ordered.

Question: Exercise 6 (14): How did the Aide describe Kreton's spaceship?

Answer: The Aide described it as elliptical, about fourteen feet in diameter, made of an unknown metal that shines. Inside there was nothing at all — no instruments, no food, nothing — which left him disturbed and puzzled.

Question: Exercise 6 (15): Describe the main comic incidents of the play.

Answer: Model answer: The comedy begins with Spelding denying any spaceship on TV while one lands in his garden. Mrs. Spelding worries only about her roses and guest room; Kreton arrives dressed a hundred years out of date; he reads Powers' promotion dreams and John's romantic thoughts aloud; and the mighty army is helpless before his invisible wall. Each incident mixes fear with laughter.

Question: Exercise 6 (16): How is media depicted in the play?

Answer: Model answer: Media is shown as pompous, self-important and controlled by authority. Spelding's broadcast simply repeats what General Powers tells him, his on-air warmth vanishes the moment the cameras stop, and his only real aim is to get the Kreton interview before anyone else — news matters to him less than personal fame.

Question: Exercise 6 (17): The play is a satire on American society. Discuss.

Answer: Model answer: Through Kreton's calm eyes the playwright mocks American fears and habits of the time: instant suspicion of strangers, military over-reaction and martial law over one harmless visitor, a TV man's hunger for sensation, and pride in a civilisation that a real outsider finds primitive. The satire is gentle — Kreton loves the humans he teases — but it exposes their vanity and fear clearly.

Question: Exercise 6 (18): How does the playwright expose the inferiority of the present race to that of the future (Kreton's race)?

Answer: Model answer: Kreton's race can travel between dimensions, read thoughts, protect itself without weapons and never dies, while humans still fight wars, fear strangers and live brief lives. By placing the advanced, peaceful visitor beside suspicious, quarrelling earthlings, the playwright makes the present race look like children by comparison.

Question: Exercise 6 (19): Describe the arrival of the flying saucer in your own words.

Answer: Model answer: Just after Spelding's broadcast, John rushes in shouting that something is coming down and will land right there. The family runs out, watches a shining object descend, and argues whether it is a meteor, a balloon or a spaceship, until it lands in Mrs. Spelding's rose garden. John runs towards the light, shakes hands with the visitor who steps out, and brings him up to the house.

Question: Exercise 6 (20): How much more advanced is Kreton's civilisation than Earth's?

Answer: Kreton's civilisation is thousands of years ahead: its people travel between solar systems and dimensions for pleasure, watch other worlds on monitors, communicate through thoughts, defend themselves with invisible force and never die. Against this, Earth's civilisation, in Kreton's words, is only just beginning.

Question: Exercise 6 (21): Why can the people of Earth not compete with Kreton's people?

Answer: Because the gap in knowledge and power is too great: earthlings do not yet understand time, space or dimensions, they depend on crude machines and weapons, and they die within a few decades. Kreton cannot even explain his ship's science to them, because it would take centuries before they could grasp it.

Question: Exercise 6 (22): What type of life do you foresee in the year 5000?

Answer: Model answer: Life in the year 5000 may resemble Kreton's world: travel between planets may be a hobby, thoughts may replace spoken language, and disease and death may be greatly reduced. At the same time, humans will still need emotions, families and purposes, or such an advanced life may become dull, as Kreton finds his own world.

Question: Exercise 6 (23): What literary elements are used in this play, and how do they enhance the story?

Answer: Model answer: The play uses satire and irony (a spaceship denied on air lands in the broadcaster's garden), comic dialogue, contrast between the calm alien and panicky humans, and science-fiction devices like mind-reading and force fields. These elements make a serious criticism of fear, media and militarism enjoyable instead of preachy.

Question: Exercise 6 (24): Who is your favourite character in the play, and why?

Answer: Model answer: My favourite character is Kreton, because he is calm, witty and completely fearless without being cruel. He exposes everyone's hidden thoughts and weaknesses with gentle humour, defeats the army without hurting anyone, and remains charming even while announcing he will rule the world.

Exercise 7 — Suppose an alien visits Earth: prepare questions you would ask the alien, and the alien's answers

Question: Exercise 7: Prepare a list of questions you would ask a visiting alien, with the alien's likely answers.

Answer: Model answer: Q1: Where have you come from? A: From a planet in another dimension, far beyond your solar system. Q2: Why have you come? A: Earth is my hobby; I came to see your early civilisation myself. Q3: Can you read our thoughts? A: Yes, I hear them as clearly as your voices. Q4: Will your people harm us? A: No, they are not interested in you at all — only I find you fascinating. Q5: How does your ship fly without instruments? A: By a science your world will not understand for many centuries.

Exercise 8 — Sketch the characters with the help of the given mind map (Personality Traits / Role / Actions / Others' Opinion)

Question: Exercise 8 (a): Sketch the character of Mr. Spelding.

Answer: Personality traits: middle-aged, pompous and smooth on air, but tired and fame-hungry off air; a loving yet dominating father. Role: TV commentator and head of the family, host of the visitor. Actions: broadcasts the official denial, argues with Ellen about John, and begs Kreton to stay for an interview. Others' opinion: his family loves his broadcasts outwardly, Powers trusts him as a friend, and Kreton gently mocks his wish to be the first interviewer.

Question: Exercise 8 (b): Sketch the character of Mrs. Spelding.

Answer: Personality traits: bored, vague and motherly; completely unexcited by great events. Role: Spelding's wife and the family's calm centre. Actions: knits through the broadcast, welcomes the visitor, prepares his bedroom and keeps worrying about her rose garden. Others' opinion: the family treats her complaints of headache with patience, and she finds Kreton perfectly nice because his whiskers comfort her.

Question: Exercise 8 (c): Sketch the character of Ellen.

Answer: Personality traits: lively, frank and romantic; a girl of twenty who corrects her father fearlessly. Role: Spelding's daughter and John's fiancée, the family's link to the visitor. Actions: defends John, runs out to see the landing, invites Kreton to stay, and asks him questions about space and thoughts. Others' opinion: her father calls her thankless in anger, John loves her, and Kreton finds her thoughts delightful.

Question: Exercise 8 (d): Sketch the character of John.

Answer: Personality traits: hard-working, contented and unambitious; honest and brave. Role: Ellen's fiancé, a young walnut farmer, and the first human to greet Kreton. Actions: spots the spaceship, runs towards the landing light, shakes hands with the visitor, and tries to telephone his family. Others' opinion: Ellen and Mrs. Spelding like him as a perfectly nice boy, while Spelding criticises his lack of drive.

Question: Exercise 8 (e): Sketch the character of General Powers.

Answer: Personality traits: vigorous, suspicious and duty-obsessed; secretly dreaming of promotion. Role: the army general in charge of the crisis. Actions: surrounds the house with troops, declares martial law, interrogates Kreton for hours, and orders his arrest. Others' opinion: the family obeys him unwillingly, Spelding resents his censorship, and Kreton treats his suspicions as a primitive joke.

Question: Exercise 8 (f): Sketch the character of Kreton.

Answer: Personality traits: mild, pleasant, witty and utterly calm; superior yet playful. Role: the alien visitor and the centre of the play. Actions: lands in the rose garden by mistake of a century, reads everyone's minds, shields his ship, defeats the army without violence, and announces he will take over the world. Others' opinion: Ellen finds him wonderful, Mrs. Spelding finds him nice, Powers suspects him as a spy, and Spelding sees in him the story of the century.

Exercise 9 — Compare and contrast between life on Earth and life on Kreton's planet Question: Exercise 9: Compare and contrast life on Earth with life on Kreton's planet.

Answer: Model answer: On Earth people speak many languages, use machines and weapons, grow old and die, and feel strong, raw emotions — Kreton finds all this fascinating. On Kreton's planet people travel freely between worlds, watch other planets on monitors instead of travelling, communicate through thoughts, control their emotions, and never die — but life there is so settled that Kreton calls it dull. In short, Earth life is short, emotional and struggling, while Kreton's life is long, controlled and boring.

Exercise 10 — Summarise the play in your words

Question: Exercise 10: Summarise the play in your own words.

Answer: Model answer: TV commentator Roger Spelding ends a broadcast denying that any spaceship exists — and a spaceship promptly lands in his wife's rose garden. Its passenger, Kreton, is a mild alien hobbyist who meant to visit Earth in 1861 but has arrived a century late. General Powers treats him as a spy, puts the house under martial law and interrogates him, but Kreton reads everyone's thoughts, shields his ship with an invisible wall and cannot be touched. At the end he cheerfully announces that, unlike his uninterested people, he himself has come to take charge of the whole world, and goes off to rest while the helpless humans watch.

Exercise 11 — Identify the elements of the play (plot, character, dialogue, setting) and write their examples Question: Exercise 11 (Plot): Identify the plot of the play and give an example from the text (described in your own words).

Answer: Plot: An alien lands by mistake in twentieth-century America, is investigated as a spy by the army, outwits everyone with his superior powers, and announces he will take over the world. Example: the rising action is Powers' interrogation in the study, and the climax is Kreton's announcement and the failed attempt to seize him.

Question: Exercise 11 (Character): Identify the characters of the play and give an example from the text (described in your own words).

Answer: Characters: Kreton the alien, Roger Spelding the commentator, his wife Mrs. Spelding, their daughter Ellen, her fiancé John Randolph, General Powers and his Aide. Example: Kreton is the central character — every scene turns on his words and powers, while Powers acts as his comic opposite.

Question: Exercise 11 (Dialogue): Identify the dialogue element of the play and give an example from the text (described in your own words).

Answer: Dialogue: The whole story advances through conversations — Spelding's broadcast speech, the family's talk about John, and the question-and-answer between Powers and Kreton. Example: in the study scene, the short, sharp exchanges between the suspicious General and the calm Kreton reveal both characters and create the comedy.

Question: Exercise 11 (Setting): Identify the setting of the play and give an example from the text (described in your own words).

Answer: Setting: The Spelding home at Silver Glen, Maryland, in the late twentieth century — Scene I and III in the comfortably furnished living room, and Scene II in Spelding's book-filled study with a globe of the world. Example: the action begins just after a TV broadcast in the living room and the spaceship lands outside in the rose garden.
