Effects of our Actions on the Environment

Question: Pre-reading: The story you are about to read is titled "Can We Do Anything?" What do you think the story is about?

Answer: Model answer: The story is about pollution around us and what we, as citizens and students, can do to stop it.

Question: Pre-reading: Do you think we should do something to improve things?

Answer: Model answer: Yes, we should do something to improve things instead of only complaining about them.

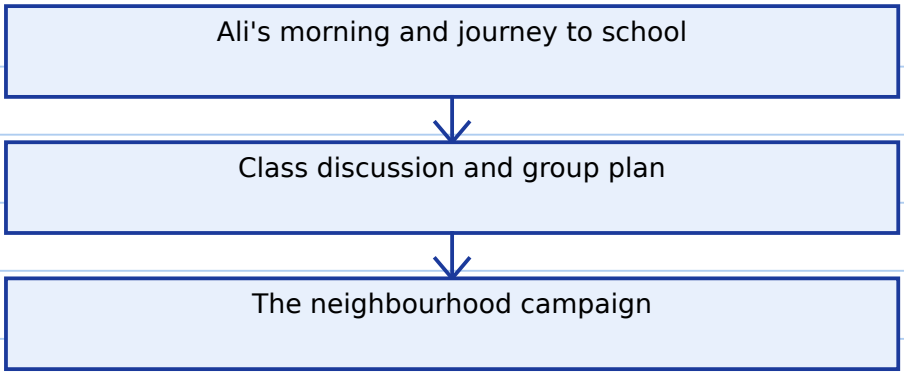

Question: Pre-reading: What is our responsibility as citizens to bring about a good change?

Answer: Model answer: As citizens, our responsibility is to keep our surroundings clean, stop pollution, and take part in work that brings a good change.

Question: Reading, Exercise 1: Match these titles with the three sections of the story. One title is extra. Column-1: Section 1 (Ali's morning and journey to school), Section 2 (class discussion and group plan), Section 3 (the neighbourhood campaign) / Column-2: (i) Air Pollution, (ii) Pollution Free Environment, (iii) Social Hazard, (iv) A Task Completed

Answer: Section 1 — Air Pollution; Section 2 — Pollution Free Environment; Section 3 — A Task Completed. Extra title: Social Hazard.

Question: Reading, Exercise 7: Did Ali enjoy his Social Studies class? Why?

Answer: Yes. Ali eagerly waited for his Social Studies teacher, sat in the first row, and took out his book; his teacher also involved the students in social campaigns, which he enjoyed.

Question: Reading, Exercise 7: Why do you think Miss Sana showed the posters on pollution to the class?

Answer: Model answer: She showed the posters to start a discussion on pollution and to make the students think about what they could do to stop it.

Question: Reading, Exercise 7: Had the students done anything to stop pollution when Miss Sana asked them?

Answer: No. They kept complaining about pollution but had done nothing to stop it, which is why the classroom fell into pin-drop silence.

Question: Reading, Exercise 7: What did Ali and his group members do to fight against pollution?

Answer: They arranged a campaigning programme for the neighbourhood: they made and showed posters, distributed handbills listing steps the youth could take, presented role-plays, gave speeches, and shared an action plan for cleaning their neighbourhood.

Question: Reading, Exercise 7: What do you think happened the day after the programme?

Answer: Model answer: This is not stated in the text. The next day, the neighbours probably began carrying out the action plan — cleaning their streets, putting garbage in proper places, and following the steps in the handbills.

Question: Speaking: Work in pairs and practise the dialogue between Saleh and Bachal about identifying a problem and proposing a solution (the problem is malaria in their area). Then repeat it with another topic.

Answer: Model answer: The dialogue proposes fighting malaria by educating school children, spraying kerosene on stagnant water, covering the body with a thin cloth or net while sleeping, and asking the Union Council member to order regular spray in the area. For another topic (e.g. diarrhoea), pupils brainstorm similar steps — clean drinking water, hand-washing, and covering food — and practise the same dialogue pattern.

Question: Writing, Exercise 1: Work in groups of five. Brainstorm on "Pollution" and fill the mind map with four branches: Types, Causes, Steps that the government must take, Steps that citizens can take. Add details to each branch.

Answer: Model answer: Types — air pollution, water pollution, noise pollution, land pollution. Causes — smoke from vehicles and factories, garbage heaps, loud horns, plastic waste. Steps the government must take — make and enforce anti-pollution laws, arrange proper garbage collection, plant trees, punish those who pollute. Steps citizens can take — throw garbage in bins, avoid unnecessary honking, plant trees, keep streets clean, spread awareness.

Question: Writing, Exercise 2: Write one paragraph on topic sentence 1: "Pollution is all around us."

Answer: Model answer: Pollution is all around us. When we go to school, we see garbage heaps in our neighbourhoods and black smoke coming out of vehicles. Loud horns on the roads disturb our ears, and dirty water flows in the streets. Even the air we breathe is full of fumes. Pollution is not far away; it surrounds us every day.

Question: Writing, Exercise 2: Write one paragraph on topic sentence 2:

"There are many types of pollution."

Answer: Model answer: There are many types of pollution. Air pollution is caused by smoke and fumes from vehicles and factories. Water pollution makes rivers and taps dirty. Noise pollution comes from loud horns, loudspeakers, and machines. Land pollution is caused by garbage heaps and plastic waste. All these types of pollution harm our health and our environment.

Question: Writing, Exercise 2: Write one paragraph on topic sentence 3: "Pollution is caused by many things."

Answer: Model answer: Pollution is caused by many things. Vehicles and factories give out black smoke and harmful fumes. People throw garbage in the streets instead of in bins. Drivers blow their horns without any need. Plastic bags and bottles are thrown everywhere. All these actions make our air, water, and land dirty.

Question: Writing, Exercise 2: Write one paragraph on topic sentence 4: "The government should take steps to stop pollution."

Answer: Model answer: The government should take steps to stop pollution. It should make strict laws against pollution and make sure that everyone follows them. It should arrange proper garbage collection in every neighbourhood. It should check the smoke of vehicles and factories. It should also plant trees and create parks so that the air becomes clean.

Question: Writing, Exercise 2: Write one paragraph on topic sentence 5: "The citizens can do a number of things to stop pollution."

Answer: Model answer: The citizens can do a number of things to stop pollution. They can throw garbage in bins and keep their streets clean. They can avoid blowing horns without reason. They can plant trees in their homes and schools. They can use bicycles or walk for short distances. They can also tell others about the dangers of pollution. If every citizen plays his part, our environment can become pollution free.

Question: Writing, Exercise 3: Repeat the steps in Exercises 1 and 2 and write a paragraph on "Playgrounds". First develop five topic sentences, then write a paragraph on one of them.

Answer: Model answer: Five topic sentences: (1) Playgrounds are necessary for every school and neighbourhood. (2) Playgrounds give us many benefits. (3) A good playground has many facilities. (4) The government should provide playgrounds. (5) Citizens should look after playgrounds. Paragraph (on TS 2): Playgrounds give us many benefits. We play games there and become strong and healthy. We learn to work in teams and to follow rules. Playing in the open air refreshes our minds and makes us happy. Children who play regularly can study better because their minds are fresh.

Question: Study Skills, Exercise 1: Free writing — write without stopping for 5 minutes every day on a topic of your choice. What are the steps?

Answer: Model answer: (1) Spend just 5 minutes daily; keep a separate copy. (2) Choose any topic — a person, place, thing, idea, TV programme, wedding, festival, or fight with a brother/sister/friend. (3) Write without stopping, in any order; do not worry about punctuation, spelling, grammar, or handwriting. (4) If you cannot think of an English word, write it in another language and find the English word later. Sample start: "Yesterday I went to my cousin's house. We played cricket in the street. The match was very interesting..."

Question: Fun: Work in groups of three. Discuss and develop a mind map on what you can do to control pollution in your school, playground, neighbourhood, or on the roads. Then develop a chart on one area and present it.

Answer: Model answer: Mind-map branches: School — put bins in every classroom, plant trees, stop burning garbage. Playground — pick up litter after games, keep the ground clean. Neighbourhood — weekly cleanliness day, posters and handbills, ask shopkeepers to use bins. Roads — request drivers not to honk without need, plant trees along roads. Chart (on "Our School, Pollution Free"): drawings of bins, trees, and clean classrooms with the message "Keep our school clean — throw garbage in bins, plant trees, say no to pollution."

Question: (Writing) In groups of 3, write an essay on the Importance of Sports, with an introductory paragraph, at least two body paragraphs, and a concluding paragraph, following the essay rules given in the unit.

Answer: Model answer: IMPORTANCE OF SPORTS — Sports are very popular all over the world. People of all ages play games and watch matches with great interest. Sports keep us healthy and teach us many good habits. The two most important benefits of sports are good health and good character.

Sports keep our bodies healthy and strong. When we play games, we run, jump, and exercise, so our muscles grow strong and our hearts stay healthy. Playing games also keeps our minds fresh, and we can study better. Sports also build good character. Players learn to follow rules, to work in a team, and to accept both victory and defeat. They learn discipline, patience, and fair play, and they make good friends. In short, sports give us both good health and good character. They make our bodies strong and our minds fresh, and they teach us discipline and teamwork. Every student should take part in sports every day.

Answer: (1) 4 (given in the book) (2) 3 (3) 1 (4) 5 (5) 2

Question: (Exercise 8, Matching) Match the second sentence in Column B that explains each verse (Column A gives the first part). Column A: (1) The boy asks people to tell him about the thing called light because he will never be able to see it. (2) He tells people that they talk of things that they can see, like the sun shining. (3) Since he cannot see the light he makes his own days and nights. (4) He says that he can hear people feeling sorry for his unlucky state. (5) He then requests people not to destroy his happiness by reminding him that he is blind. / Column B: (a) He says that although he can feel the sun he cannot understand how the sun makes days and nights. (b) He tells them that as long as he can happily accept the situation, it is alright for him, and he can enjoy life. (c) But, he tells them that since he has never seen anything, he can bear this situation patiently. (d) He also wants to know what advantages people with eyes have. (e) As long as he can stay awake it is day for him.

Answer: 1-d (given in the book), 2-a, 3-e, 4-c, 5-b

(Exercise 9) Write a summary of the poem in your notebooks using the gapped summary: The title of the poem is _____. It is written by _____. In this poem _____ tells us how he feels. In the first verse he asks people _____. He also _____. In the second verse he tells people _____. He says that _____. In the third verse he says that since _____. He further says that as long _____. In the fourth verse he says that _____. But, he tells them _____. In the fifth verse he requests _____. He tells them that _____. The main idea of the poem is that we should not make _____ people unhappy, by feeling _____ for them. We should let them be _____ and let them _____ their life happily.

Answer: "The Blind Boy"., C. Cibber., a blind boy, what light is, because he will never enjoy it., asks what the blessings of sight are., that they talk of wonderful things they see, like the bright sun., he feels the sun warm but cannot understand how it makes day or night., he cannot see the light, he makes his own day and night., as he can stay awake, it is day for him., he hears people mourning his unlucky woe with heavy sighs., that he can bear this loss patiently because he has never known what he is missing., people not to destroy his cheer of mind by reminding him of what he cannot have., while he sings, he is a king, although a poor blind boy., special (disabled), pity, happy, enjoy Question: (Exercise 10, discussion) Do you think that the blind boy is happy? Why? Why not?

Answer: Model answer: Yes, I think he is happy, because he accepts his blindness patiently, he sings, and he says that while he sings he is a king.

Question: (Exercise 10, discussion) Why is it difficult for the blind boy to understand how the sun makes day and night?

Answer: Model answer: It is difficult because he has never seen light or darkness, so he cannot understand how the sun's light changes night into day.

Question: (Exercise 10, discussion) Do you think he sleeps when the sun sets and wakes up when the sun rises? Why?

Answer: Model answer: No, he does not follow the sun, because he cannot see it; he makes his own day and night — when he sleeps it is night for him, and when he is awake it is day for him.

Question: (Writing) Work in pairs and identify the major problems in our education system. Follow all the steps of essay writing. Write a cause and effect essay on the problems in our education system.

Answer: Model answer: PROBLEMS IN OUR EDUCATION SYSTEM — Education is the key to a country's progress, but our education system has many problems. These problems harm students, teachers, and the whole country. The three major problems are untrained teachers, rote learning, and a lack of facilities. One major problem is untrained teachers. Many teachers do not know modern teaching methods, so their lessons are dull and students do not understand. Because teachers are not trained, students lose interest in learning and their results become poor. Another problem is rote learning. Students memorise their books without understanding them, because examinations only test memory. As a result, students pass examinations but cannot use their knowledge in real life. A third problem is the lack of facilities. Many schools have crowded classrooms, no libraries, no clean drinking water, and no science laboratories. Because of this, students cannot learn properly and many leave school early. To sum up, untrained teachers, rote learning, and a lack of facilities are the main problems in our education system. If the government trains teachers, changes examinations, and provides facilities, our schools will improve and our students will succeed.

Question: (Exercise 6-1) The passage gives the meanings of the names of two sites. Which sites are they, and what do their names mean?

Answer: Only one name-meaning is actually given in the passage: Taxila means "City of Cut Stone". The passage does not give the meaning of a second site's name.

Question: (Exercise 6-2) The ruins show that three religions were present here before Islam arrived. Which three?

Answer: Hinduism (the Shiva temple at Bhambore), Buddhism (the Buddhist stupas at Taxila and Takht-i-Bahi) and Zoroastrianism (the religion of the Parsis at Takht-i-Bahi).

Question: (Exercise 6-3) The passage mentions two earliest urbanised sites. Which two?

Answer: Mohenjo-Daro (one of the world's earliest major urban settlements) and Rehman Dheri (one of the oldest urbanised centres found so far in South Asia).

Question: (Exercise 7-1) Why was Bhambore left empty? (Already stated in the book.)

Answer: Bhambore was abandoned due to the change in the direction of the river Indus.

Question: (Exercise 7-2) Why was Mohenjo-Daro left empty?

Answer: Mohenjo-Daro was abandoned as the Indus Valley Civilization lost power. The passage does not give any further reason.

Question: (Exercise 7-3) Why was Nindowari left empty?

Answer: Nindowari was abandoned because the land rose up, so it got cut off from its water source, the Kud River.

Question: (Exercise 7-4) Why was Harappa destroyed?

Answer: Harappa was destroyed due to wars and diseases like leprosy and tuberculosis.

Question: (Exercise 7-5) Why was Taxila destroyed?

Answer: Taxila was finally destroyed by the Huns in the 5th Century AD.

Question: (Exercise 8-1) Name the three buildings found at Bhambore.

Answer: A palace-type stone building with a semicircular shape, a Shiva temple from the Hindu period, and a mosque with 727 AD written on it.

Question: (Exercise 8-2) Was Mohenjo-Daro a well-planned city? How do we know?

Answer: Yes. It had properly planned streets, a central marketplace with a large central well and other smaller wells, and waste water from houses went into covered drains lining the major streets.

Question: (Exercise 8-3) How do we know that life in Harappa ended due to war and diseases?

Answer: The skeletons found in the ruins show that the city was destroyed due to wars and diseases like leprosy and tuberculosis.

Question: (Exercise 8-4) Do you think Taxila was a major Buddhist centre? Why or why not?

Answer: Model answer: Yes. Its ruins contain buildings and Buddhist stupas spread over a large area, and it is believed to have had one of the earliest universities in the world, which points to a major Buddhist centre.

Question: (Exercise 8-5) How was the Nindowari settlement built?

Answer: It was built on a flat rock. It had a central square platform surrounded by buildings on one side. The central mound near the platform was 82 feet (25 m) high, made of large stones, and its top could be reached by a staircase from the platform.

Question: (Exercise 8-6) What do we learn about Rehman Dheri's town planning from the passage?

Answer: It shows signs of town planning: the settlement was probably well planned in its earliest phases, and these plans were followed in the later stages. It is one of the oldest urbanised centres found so far in South Asia.

Question: (Exercise 8-7) Which areas in Takht-i-Bahi have stupas, and which one has small cells?

Answer: The Stupa Court (a cluster of stupas in a central courtyard) and the temple complex (stupas of later construction) have stupas. The Tantric monastic complex has small, dark cells with low openings. The monastic chambers also have individual cells around a courtyard.

children were in trouble?

Answer: The people heard the victims shouting for help, jumped into the deep pond, and rescued three of them.

Question: (Exercise 7, News 1-2) What would have happened to the three children who survived if the people had not helped them?

Answer: Model answer: They would probably have drowned too, like the two boys who died.

Question: (Exercise 7, News 2-1) Do you think the organizers' idea of naming the rooms after Pakistani literary people was a good idea? Why or why not?

Answer: Model answer: Yes, it was a good idea because children who sat in those rooms would ask about the names and learn about Pakistan's rich literary heritage in a natural, interesting way.

Question: (Exercise 7, News 2-2) Write down the names of at least three literary people mentioned in the text, and state what you think they were famous for.

Answer: Model answer: Shah Abdul Latif Bhittai, Allama Iqbal and Saadat Hasan Manto are named in the text as authors/poets whose names were given to rooms. The text does not say what Bhittai, Iqbal or Manto were famous for; the only achievement stated in the text is Arfa Karim's — she was the youngest Microsoft Certified Professional until 2008.

Question: (Exercise 7, News 3-1) Why do you think the lion attacked Fayyaz?

Answer: Model answer: The text gives two views: some people believed the lion was hungry because its food came late, while the Zoo Incharge denied this. Either hunger or a sudden change in the animal's mood could explain it; the text does not settle the cause.

Question: (Exercise 7, News 3-2) Do you agree with the statement of the Zoo Incharge? Give reasons.

Answer: Model answer: Yes, his view is reasonable because Fayyaz entered the cage daily and the lion had been friendly with him for two to three years, which suggests the attack was not simply about hunger. (The opposite view — that late food made the lion hungry — is also possible from the text.)

Question: (Exercise 7, News 4-1) Who organized the walk and why?

Answer: The text does not name a single organizer. The Deputy Commissioner addressed the dengue awareness walk in Talash, and the Merlin district team, Talash traders and social and political workers took part. The walk was held to raise awareness about the dengue threat and to encourage collective work against it.

Question: (Exercise 7, News 4-2) Do you think such walks should be organized? Why or why not?

Answer: Model answer: Yes, such walks should be organized because they spread awareness, bring departments and the public together, and encourage people to remove dengue larvae from homes and water tanks.

Question: (Exercise 7, News 5-1) Why did the fire spread quickly? How many vehicles got burnt?

Answer: The two vehicles were getting their fuel tanks filled when the fire broke out, and within moments both were engulfed, giving the occupants no chance to escape. Two vehicles got burnt: a passenger wagon and a taxi.

Question: (Exercise 7, News 5-2) Did the people working at the gas station help people? Why not?

Answer: No. As the fire spread, the staff at the filling station ran away, so they did not help the victims.

Question: (Exercise 9, News 1) Which is the main learning from news item 1: (1) Many lives can be saved if people help each other, or (2) Children should learn how to swim?

Answer: Option 1: Many lives can be saved if people help each other.

Question: (Exercise 9, News 2) Which is the main learning from news item 2: (1) Children's Literature Festivals should be held every year, or (2) The organizers chose a nice way to educate children about Pakistan's literary heritage?

Answer: Option 2: The organizers chose a nice way to educate children about Pakistan's literary heritage.

Question: (Exercise 9, News 3) Which is the main learning from news item 3: (1) One should be very careful when going near wild animals, or (2) Many visitors go to the zoo every day?

Answer: Option 1: One should be very careful when going near wild animals.

Question: (Exercise 9, News 4) Which is the main learning from news item 4: (1) It is every citizen's duty to raise awareness about harmful things, or (2) Dengue is a dangerous disease?

Answer: Option 1: It is every citizen's duty to raise awareness about harmful things.

Question: (Exercise 9, News 5) Which is the main learning from news item

5: (1) One should not do anything that can start a fire at a gas/petrol station, or (2) People should save themselves first when there is a fire?

Answer: Option 1: One should not do anything that can start a fire at a gas/petrol station.

Question: (Writing Exercise 6) Change this story into indirect speech: Moosa is unwell and his mother tells him to rest and go to bed; he asks to play, to watch TV, and his father asks his mother to allow TV for a while.

Answer: Model answer: Moosa was not feeling well and had not been able to go to school. The doctor had asked him to rest. His mother ordered Moosa to go to bed. Moosa requested his mother to let him play with his friends. His mother did not want him to go out and play; she wanted him to rest. His mother ordered him to drink the milk and go to bed. His friends asked Moosa to come out and play with them. Moosa said sorry and requested them to come after two days. Then Moosa requested his mother to let him watch TV. His mother became very angry and ordered him to go to his room, saying that the doctor wanted him to rest. Moosa tried once more and requested his mother to let him watch TV for half an hour. His father asked his mother to allow him to watch TV for a while. Finally his mother agreed. Moosa thanked his mother and father. He watched his favourite TV programme for a while and then went to sleep.

Question: (Writing, Exercise 1) Work in pairs and choose a person you both know (a friend, a teacher, the van driver, the school gatekeeper, or anyone). Brainstorm, make a mind map, then write a descriptive essay about that person: one main idea per paragraph, a concluding paragraph summing up, correct spellings, grammar and punctuation.

Answer: Model answer — My Teacher: My teacher is a tall man of about forty years. He has a kind face, and he always smiles when he comes into the classroom. He wears clean clothes and keeps his books neatly on the table. He is a very patient and hardworking person. He explains every lesson slowly and clearly, and he never gets angry when we ask questions. He helps weak students after the class and tells us to be honest and kind. He teaches us English and also tells us stories about great people. He checks our homework every day and praises us when we do well. I respect my teacher very much. He is not only our teacher but also our guide. I will always remember his good lessons and his kind behaviour.

Question: (Study Skills, Exercise 1, a) From the dictionary page, what is the meaning of the word "instinct"?
Answer: Instinct is a noun meaning a natural tendency to behave in a certain way that people and animals are born with and follow without knowing why; it also means a natural ability to know what to do in a particular situation.

Question: (Study Skills, Exercise 1, b) What are the adjective and the adverb of the word "instinct"? Make sentences using all three forms (noun, adjective, adverb), using the sample phrases and sentences as help.
Answer: Adjective: instinctive (the dictionary also gives "instinctual"); adverb: instinctively. Sentences — Noun: A mother's instinct is a woman's natural tendency to behave like a mother. Adjective: His reaction was purely instinctive. Adverb: She seemed to know instinctively what he was thinking.

Question: (Study Skills, Exercise 2) Remember to do your free writing regularly, as this will improve your writing skills.
Answer: Guidance: Set aside a short time every day to write freely about anything you like — your day, your family, or your ideas — without worrying about mistakes. Regular free writing builds fluency and confidence.

Question: (Study Skills, Exercise 3) Regular practice of cloze passages is very useful for learning English grammar and vocabulary.

Answer: Guidance: Practise cloze passages (passages with missing words) often. Read the whole passage first, guess each missing word from the context and grammar, then check your answers.

Question: (Study Skills, Exercise 4) Make sure that you find time to do some loud reading every day. Reading aloud will help you develop your spoken language.

Answer: Guidance: Read aloud for a few minutes daily — from this book, a story, or a newspaper. Listen to your own pronunciation and try to read with clear sounds and natural pauses.

Question: (Fun, 7.6) Read the poem "Why?" aloud, then work in groups of three and try to answer the questions the boy is asking. The group that answers the most questions wins.

Answer: Model answers to the boy's questions: Wood swims (floats) because it is lighter than water; lead and marbles sink because they are heavier than water. Stars shine because they give out their own light. Winds blow because air moves from one place to another. We eat and drink to get energy and to live and grow. Clouds are made of tiny drops of water vapour in the sky, and they move with the wind. The sun seems to sink behind the hills because the earth turns. Flowers die because every living thing has a life cycle. Fish have gills to take in air (oxygen) from the water. Boys cannot fly because they have no wings and are too heavy. Steam comes from the kettle's spout because boiling water turns into vapour. Rain falls from the sky when water drops in the clouds grow heavy and fall. Coal burns because it is a fuel that catches fire; stone does not burn because it is not a fuel. Seeds get into the apple core so that new apple trees can grow. Marrow is inside the bone because it makes new blood cells. Ice melts because heat turns it back into water. Spiders eat flies because flies are their food. Bees sting to defend themselves and their hive. Yeast makes the dough rise because it makes gas bubbles that push the dough up. Note: the poem itself says some "whys" have no known reason yet, so not every question has a final answer.
