Question: Analyse the model descriptive essay about deserts: where is the thesis statement, what are the topic sentences of the body paragraphs, and what is the closing paragraph like?

Answer: The thesis is given in one sentence at the end of the introductory paragraph, pointing to the remarkable Sahara Desert. Body paragraph 1 topic sentence: springs of water are few and far apart in deserts. Body paragraph 2 topic sentence: the Sahara is one of the most remarkable deserts in the world. Each topic idea is then explained with facts and examples. The closing paragraph begins with the signalling phrase To conclude, briefly gathers the main points (vast sand, oases as the only green places, travel risks), and ends with a general concluding idea that modern technology has greatly reduced the risks.

Question: Write a descriptive essay of at least four paragraphs on one of these topics: My village / town / city; A historical place; A scenic place; School playground.

Answer: Model essay — My Village. My village is a small, green and peaceful place where everyone knows one another. Its fields, trees and simple homes make it a lovely place to live. The village has one main street, a small market, a mosque and a school. The people are kind, hardworking and always ready to help. In the morning the fields look fresh and the birds sing in the trees. In the evening children play in the open ground while elders sit and talk. I love my village because it is clean, calm and full of love.

Question: Discuss the story Two Brothers: (a) Why was the twins' father worried? (b) What did he decide to do? (c) Who won the competition? Why did he win? (d) Who lost the competition? Why did he lose? (e) What lesson do you think Tanveer learnt?

Answer: (a) Because Tanveer did things without thinking, while Junaid always thought carefully before doing anything. (b) He set up a competition: both brothers would set out after morning prayers, walk as far as each could, and return by sunset; the winner would get the bicycle. (c) Junaid won because he planned: he walked until midday, turned back, and returned home by sunset, completing the task as instructed. (d) Tanveer lost because he sprinted far ahead, got very tired, and returned long after sunset, failing the time condition. (e) He learnt to think before acting and to plan and follow instructions instead of rushing.

Question: Imagine you are Tanveer's teacher. You wanted him to win but he was not successful. Write a narrative essay: explain the reason for the competition, state what he did and why, describe what his brother did, explain who won and why, identify Tanveer's mistakes, and express your regret and how you would like him to change.

Answer: Model essay — I was sorry to see Tanveer lose the race his father had arranged. His father had only enough money for one bicycle, so he set a walking contest with a sunset deadline. Tanveer, eager to win, sprinted far ahead without any plan and grew so tired that he returned long after sunset. Junaid, his twin, walked calmly till midday, turned back in time, and reached home before sunset. So Junaid won the bicycle, because he followed the instructions. Tanveer's mistakes were rushing, ignoring the time limit, and acting without thought. I wish him to slow down, plan first, and remember that steady thinking beats hasty speed.

Question: Underline the main ideas in each paragraph of the passage about Moen-jo-Daro (do not include details).

Answer: Paragraph 1: Moen-jo-Daro, one of the oldest cities in the world, a large city of the Indus Valley Civilization, built around 2600 BC. Paragraph 2: Discovery in 1922 — villagers found old pots and bricks; Sir John Marshall ordered digging. Paragraph 3: Digging revealed a planned city — straight roads, well-built baked-brick houses, bathrooms, covered drains, shops. Paragraph 4: The people were traders and farmers with skilled craftsmen, living a rich and happy life. Paragraph 5: Their end is unknown — perhaps a raid from the north or a great earthquake.

Question: Use the underlined key words to write a summary of the Moen-jo-Daro passage.

Answer: Model summary: Moen-jo-Daro in Sindh was one of the largest cities of the Indus Valley Civilization, which developed around 3000 BC in areas that today form Pakistan and North India. The city, one of the oldest in the world, was built around 2600 BC. It remained unknown until 1922, when villagers found old pots and bricks and Sir John Marshall ordered digging. The digging revealed a well-planned city of straight roads, baked-brick houses with bathrooms, covered drains and shops. Its people were traders, farmers and skilled craftsmen who lived a rich, happy life. How they ended is unknown — perhaps a raid from the north or a great earthquake destroyed them.

Question: Complete this table for the four model emails: Email No., Sent by, Sent to, Cc to, Subject. Then discuss: Do all the emails begin in the same manner? Do all of them end in the same manner? How is the style of these emails different from a letter to a friend? Is the language use and vocabulary same or different? How? What is written in the subject line?

Answer: Email 1: Sent by Iqbal; sent to Fareed Khan; Cc Sohail Ali; Subject: sports day practice. Email 2: Sent by Kapoor; sent to Adil; Cc none; Subject: maths homework. Email 3: Sent by Adil; sent to Sunil Kapoor; Cc none; Subject: maths homework. Email 4: Sent by Nadia; sent to six people (Shahida, Rozina, Sita, Diana, Ms Fauzia, Chanda Lal Mal); Cc Saira Guddu and Mahnaz Munni; Subject: wedding invitation. Beginnings differ: Assalam-o-Alaikum, Dear Adil, a direct opening with no greeting, and a direct announcement. Endings differ: name only, Regards, See you on Saturday. Bye., and name only. Emails differ from letters: they have To, Cc and Subject lines, are brief and to the point, and use informal language with no postal address or date. Language and vocabulary differ: some are more formal (Dear Adil, Regards) and some very informal (Bye, See you).

The subject line carries a short phrase naming the topic.

Question: Write an informal email to a friend or class fellow asking or requesting for something that you need. Follow the format of the model emails.

Answer: Model email — To: friend@example.com. Cc: (none). Subject: borrow your science notes. Dear Sara, I hope you are well. I was absent yesterday and missed the science lesson. Could you please lend me your science notes for one day? I will return them tomorrow. Please let me know if it is possible. Thanks. Ali.

Question: Read the compare and contrast essay Autumn versus Spring. How are the introduction, body and concluding paragraphs written? Underline the words that show similarity and those that show differences.

Answer: Introduction: it names both seasons, says both are celebrated in many parts of the world, and then points to differences with However. Body paragraph 1 describes spring (rebirth, new leaves and buds, animals becoming active, people preparing for summer). Body paragraph 2 describes autumn with the contrast marker on the other hand (leaves turning yellow, brown and red and falling, trees becoming barren, animals hoarding food, people hurrying home and harvesting). Conclusion begins with All in all and sums up both: spring signals winter's end and a new beginning; autumn signals summer's end and more rest. Similarity words: both, celebrated, various ways. Difference words: However, on the other hand, instead of, All in all.

Question: Write a compare and contrast essay on one of these topics: Summer and Winter; Pet and wild animals; City and village life; Good neighbours and bad neighbours.

Answer: Model essay — City and Village Life. People live in both cities and villages, but the two ways of life are very different. In the city, life is fast: there are big buildings, wide roads, schools, hospitals, markets and jobs of many kinds. In the village, life is slow and peaceful: people live close to nature, grow crops, and know all their neighbours. City people enjoy modern facilities, but they face noise, traffic and pollution. Village people enjoy fresh air and open fields, but they often lack good schools, hospitals and jobs. To sum up, both city and village life have their own joys and problems; a good life depends on hard work, clean habits and care for others, wherever we live.

Question: Write a compare and contrast essay on any remaining topic from the four given in the previous exercise.

Answer: Model essay — Summer and Winter. Summer and winter are two opposite seasons of the year. In summer, the days are long and hot; people wear light clothes, drink cold water, and enjoy mangoes and long evenings. In winter, the days are short and cold; people wear warm clothes, sit near heaters, and enjoy dry fruits and hot tea. Both seasons affect our food, clothes and daily routine, but in opposite ways. In summer we need fans, shade and cold drinks, while in winter we need warm rooms, blankets and hot food. To sum up, summer brings heat and long days, winter brings cold and short days, and both teach us to adjust our lives to nature.

Unit 4: Pakistan and National Pride

Question: Complete the "What I learned" part of the KWL table about Quaid-e-Azam and Allama Iqbal after reading the text.

Answer: What I learned: The Quaid-e-Azam's message was Unity, Faith and Discipline; his greatest achievement was the creation of Pakistan. He left the Congress, joined the Muslim League, and wanted Pakistan to be a state of equal citizens with justice and merit. Allama Iqbal was a poet, professor of Arabic, barrister and Ph.D.; in his Allahabad address in 1930 he demanded a separate Muslim state, which led to the Pakistan Resolution in 1940 and the creation of Pakistan in 1947. He died in 1938 and advised Muslims to remain true to Islam.

Question: Name the students who collected information on each topic: a. Personality and achievements of the Quaid. b. Political acumen and contribution of Allama Iqbal. c. The Quaid's aspirations (for Pakistan). d. Allama Iqbal's aspirations for the Muslims. e. Personality and achievements of Allama Iqbal. f. The Quaid's political acumen and contribution.

In 1930, at the Allahabad meeting of the All-India Muslim League, Allama Iqbal said these words. 4. In 1930, in his Allahabad address, Allama Iqbal said these words. 5. On August 11, 1947, in the Constituent Assembly of Pakistan, the Quaid-e-Azam said these words. 6. On August 11, 1947, in the Constituent Assembly of Pakistan, the Quaid-e-Azam said these words. 7. On August 11, 1947, in the Constituent Assembly of Pakistan, the Quaid-e-Azam said these words.

Question: Rewrite the following statements by stating the reasons (the first one is done as an example in the book): 1. Jinnah's achievement is unparalleled in recent history. 2. The Quaid was greatly respected by the people of all faiths. 3. Quaid-e-Azam left the Indian National Congress. 4. Despite strong opposition by the British and the Hindus, Quaid-e-Azam succeeded in creating Pakistan. 5. Allama Iqbal could point out some of the defects in the philosophical systems of the West. 6. Dr. Iqbal did not seek re-election to the Punjab Legislative Council. 7. One of Iqbal's biggest political contributions is his Allahabad address. 8. Allama Iqbal wanted the Muslims to put their faith in Islam.

Answer: 1. (Given in the book.) 2. The Quaid was greatly respected by the people of all faiths because of his tolerance and acceptance of all faiths; Hindu leaders like Gokhale and Sarojini Naidu called him the best Ambassador of Hindu Muslim Unity. 3. Quaid-e-Azam left the Indian National Congress because he sensed that it was leading the Hindus towards Hindu-Muslim polarization, which would result in political and economic victimization of the Muslims. 4. Despite strong opposition by the British and the Hindus, Quaid-e-Azam succeeded in creating Pakistan because he pleaded the case of a separate homeland with great skill and determination as president of the Muslim League. 5. Reason not given in the lesson — the text does not discuss Iqbal and Western philosophical systems. 6. Reason not given in the lesson — the text only says he held the Punjab Legislative Council seat till 1929; it does not say he did not seek re-election. 7. One of Iqbal's biggest political contributions is his Allahabad address because in it he made a definite demand for a separate Muslim state in South Asia. 8. Allama Iqbal wanted the Muslims to put their faith in Islam because he had learned from Muslim history that at difficult moments it is Islam that has saved Muslims, and faith in Islam would make them strong and united again.

Question: Make mind-maps on the following aspects of both great personalities. Quaid-e-Azam: Qualities as a person; Vision for Pakistan; What should we do to make Pakistan great. Allama Iqbal: Academic achievements; Dream about Pakistan; Advice to Muslims.

Answer: Quaid-e-Azam — Qualities: dynamic, determined, steadfast, tolerant, just, impartial. Vision for Pakistan: a nation state with equal rights for all citizens, no discrimination, justice and merit prevailing, an exemplary state. What we should do: follow Unity, Faith and Discipline; implement his vision; work for peace and prosperity; on every Independence Day think what we need to do to take Pakistan forward. Allama Iqbal — Academic achievements: M.A., Professor of Arabic at Oriental College Lahore (1899), law degree from London (1905), barrister, Ph.D. from Munich University on Persian philosophy (1908). Dream about Pakistan: a separate Muslim state — Punjab, North West Frontier Province, Sindh and Baluchistan united under a single Muslim state. Advice to Muslims: remain true to Islam and practise it in letter and spirit; put faith in Islam to become strong and united.

Question: Rewrite Sabiha's letter to Munira using a mix of simple and compound sentences to make the writing interesting.

Answer: Model rewrite (same ideas, in a mix of simple and compound sentences): Dear Munira, I have some exciting news for you about my town. There is a housing boom in our town, and builders are planning to build at least 300 new houses. These houses will be small and mainly two-storeyed, and they can easily accommodate single families. The people of our town are really excited, for they think the town needs new people and new business. More people will mean more progress, but they will also require more facilities. New roads, schools, colleges, shopping areas, and water and electricity facilities will have to be built. Some people are not so happy, for they feel that more people will make the town crowded and cause more pollution, garbage and traffic. The houses will be built soon, within two years, and many people already want to buy a house here. People can contact the builders, and the builder's office can give them more details. Yours, Sabiha.

Question: Put all the direct speech sentences in the story Avoiding Criticism into indirect speech.

Answer: One bystander said that that boy was so selfish; he was riding on a donkey while his poor old father was forced to walk alongside. Another man said that that was so disrespectful, and exclaimed that he was a horrible and spoiled child. Nasrudin hoped to himself that he was doing the right thing then. One of them exclaimed that the poor young boy had to walk while his selfish father was riding the donkey, and that he was a heartless parent. Nasrudin wished that people would mind their own business. One bystander commented that that man and his son were so cruel; they were forcing that poor donkey to bear the weight of two people, and they should be put in jail for that act. Nasrudin told his son that the only way they could avoid people's comments was that they both walk. The son replied that he supposed he was right. Nasrudin promised happily that nobody would be able to say anything to them as they were doing the right thing that time. They said that those people were so stupid that both of them were walking in that heat and neither of them was riding the donkey, and exclaimed what foolish people they were.

Question: Write a descriptive essay of at least four paragraphs on one of the following: 1. My favourite Aunt / Uncle. 2. A teacher that I remember. 3. Our school principal. 4. My grandmother / grandfather.

Answer: Model essay — My Grandmother. My grandmother is the oldest and dearest member of our family. She is about seventy years old. Her hair is white and her face is full of wrinkles, but her smile is always sweet. She wears simple clothes and a white scarf, and she walks slowly with a stick. Her eyes are weak, but her memory is very sharp. My grandmother is a very kind and patient woman. She never gets angry, even when we make a noise. She tells us stories of her childhood and teaches us good manners. She prays five times a day and asks Allah to bless our family. She helps my mother in the kitchen and sews clothes for all of us. Everyone in our street respects her because she is always ready to help others. I love my grandmother very much. She is like a blessing for our family. I pray that Allah gives her a long and healthy life.

Answer: Model summary: Most people are very lucky as they can see all things around them. But some people cannot see or hear. However, there are also those unfortunate ones who could once see and hear but are now blind and deaf. Some such people are brave and they take this as a challenge. One such person was Helen Keller. She was born in 1880 in a small town of the USA. At the age of two, she fell seriously ill and became blind and deaf. At seven, Miss Sullivan, who had once been blind herself, began to teach her. Slowly Helen learnt the word water and then many other things. At eight she went to a school for blind children, and by ten she could speak again. She learnt Braille, passed all her exams, and graduated from Harvard University. In 1956 she visited Pakistan, encouraged deaf and blind people, and praised the volunteers who worked for them.

Question: Write an essay about K2 using the information in the table.

Answer: Model essay — K2. Pakistan is a land of high mountains, lakes, deserts, rivers and sea. In the north of Pakistan stand some of the highest mountains of the world. This essay is about K2, the highest mountain of Pakistan. K2 stands on the Pakistan-China border, between Gilgit in Gilgit-Baltistan and the Tashkurgan Tajik Autonomous County of Xinjiang in China. It is 28,253 feet (8,612 meters) high and belongs to the Karakoram range. It is the second-highest mountain in the world and the highest in Pakistan. The name K2 was given in 1852 by the British surveyor T.G. Montgomerie: K for the Karakoram Range and 2 for the second highest peak. It was later named Mount Godwin-Austen, after the British surveyor and explorer Haversham Godwin-Austen. Its local names are Chogori, meaning large mountain, and Qogir, meaning Great Mountain. K2 is called the Savage Mountain for its severe weather and high death rate. The first attempt to reach the summit was made in 1902 by British climbers, who reached 18,600 feet. The summit was first reached on July 31, 1954, by Achille Compagnoni and Lino Lacedelli of Italy. The first Pakistani, Ashraf Aman, reached K2 on August 9, 1977, and the first team of Pakistani climbers reached it on July 26, 2014. K2 is usually climbed in June, July or August, and it has never been climbed in winter. Till 2014, over 335 climbers reached its summit, but at least 82 people died, a death rate of 27 percent. K2 is one of the greatest glories of Pakistan.

Question: Discuss whether the 'secret of success' is applicable to all people, or if it only applied to the king. Give reasons.

Answer: Model view: The secret of success applies to all people. The most important time for everyone is the present — we cannot change the past, and the future is not in our hands. The most important work for everyone is what we are doing now — a student should study now, a farmer should work in his field now. The most important person for everyone is the one we are with at the moment — we should help and respect the people around us. So the lesson is for everyone, not only for the king.

Question: Prepare a two-minute speech on one of the topics: Water problem, Electricity shortage, Sewerage system, Waste disposal, Education system, Health Facilities, 14th August, Literacy day, Plantation, Wild Life Protection.

Answer: Model speech — Plantation. Assalam-o-Alaikum. My name is Ali, and today I will speak on plantation. My first point is that trees are the life of our land. They give us fresh air, shade and fruit, and they bring rain. My second point is that our land is losing its trees. People cut trees for wood and for new buildings, and this has made the weather hotter. My third point is that we can all plant trees. Every student should plant at least one tree and look after it. In conclusion, plantation is the best gift we can give to our country. Let us plant trees and make Pakistan green.

Question: Write a compare and contrast essay on: Reading story books and reading course books.

Answer: Model essay — Reading Story Books and Reading Course Books. Both story books and course books are read by students, and both increase knowledge. However, they are different in many ways. Story books are read for pleasure. They take us to new worlds, teach us about people and places, and improve our language in a happy way. On the other hand, course books are read for study. They contain the lessons we must learn for our exams, and we must read them with care and attention. Story books are chosen by the reader, but course books are fixed by the school. All in all, both kinds of books are needed. Course books help us pass our exams, and story books make us love reading and learning.

Question: Write a compare and contrast essay on: What happens when a school has a good principal or a bad one.

Answer: Model essay — A Good Principal and a Bad One. A school is known by its principal. Both a good principal and a bad principal hold the same office, but their schools are very different. A good principal loves the school. He comes on time, checks the classes, helps the teachers, and listens to the students. His school is clean, the classes are regular, and the results are good. On the other hand, a bad principal does not care for the school. He comes late, does not check the classes, and does not listen to anyone. In his school, the teachers are careless and the students are unhappy. All in all, a good principal makes a school a garden, and a bad principal makes it a desert.

Question: Fill the table for the two diary entries: Item, Day, Date, Topic, Place Mentioned, No. of Paragraphs, Type of Text. Entry 1: Wednesday, 10th February, 2015, 'Village life'. Entry 2: Friday, 4th August, 2017, 'We Need to Store Rain Water'.

Answer: Entry 1: Day — Wednesday. Date — 10th February, 2015. Topic — Village life. Place Mentioned — his village (and Karachi, where he lives now). No. of Paragraphs — 7. Type of Text — Descriptive. Entry 2: Day — Friday. Date — 4th August, 2017. Topic — We Need to Store Rain Water. Place Mentioned — Pakistan; Guddu Barrage on the river Indus. No. of Paragraphs — 8. Type of Text — Narrative.

Question: Give the meanings of these words from the two diary entries. Entry 1: desperately, siblings, commuting, credit, gossips, devices, compromised, distanced, access, replaced. Entry 2: devastation, havoc, capture, retain, structures, releases, irrigation, tamed, self-sufficient, surplus.

Answer: Entry 1: desperately — with great longing. siblings — brothers and sisters. commuting — travelling from one place to another. credit — goods taken now, paid for later. gossips — idle talk. devices — machines, gadgets. compromised — weakened, harmed. distanced — separated. access — the way to reach or use. replaced — took the place of. Entry 2: devastation — great destruction. havoc — great damage, ruin. capture — catch, hold. retain — keep. structures — buildings. releases — lets go. irrigation — supplying water to crops. tamed — brought under control. self-sufficient — able to meet one's own needs. surplus — extra, more than needed.

Question: Write two paragraphs. Use at least five words from Entry 1 to write one paragraph, and five words from Entry 2 to write the second paragraph.

Answer: Paragraph 1 (Entry 1 words): My grandparents live in a village. They desperately miss the old days when the whole family lived together. My father and his siblings walked to school, and commuting was not a problem because everything was near. The shopkeeper gave goods on credit because he knew everyone. Today, devices have distanced us from one another, and this has compromised our family life. Paragraph 2 (Entry 2 words): Floods cause great havoc and devastation in our country. One way to capture and retain the rain water is to build strong structures like barrages. A barrage releases water for irrigation and can also tame a river. If we store water well, we can become self-sufficient in food and even grow a surplus to export.

Question: The sentences are a summary of each paragraph of the two entries. Write the number of the paragraph to which each sentence is related. Entry 1: a. There were no roads and no vehicles (4, given). b. The modern lifestyle has affected our health and our relationships. c. I miss the simple village life. d. Men met and discussed things at the Otaq and women at the village well. e. Three families lived in three rooms. f. The houses were not made of cement. g. People bought things from small shops. Entry 2: a. One of the barrages in Pakistan is the Guddu Barrage. b. Construction of more barrages is an important need of Pakistan today. c. The Guddu barrage irrigates land in two provinces. d. Rivers has always been important for travel and for growing crops. e. The flow of water is controlled through gates in a barrage. f. Many different people worked to complete the Guddu barrage. g. A way was found to store extra water for later use. h. Rains cause rivers to overflow, leading to flood.

Answer: Entry 1: b. 7. c. 1. d. 6. e. 2. f. 3. g. 5. Entry 2: a. 5. b. 8. c. 6. d. 2. e. 4. f. 7. g. 3. h. 1.

Is the writer happy with his present life? Why? Why not? d. Why do most parts of Pakistan have flood problem in summer? e. Why did people start building barrages? f. Do you agree / think that we should build bridges? Why? Why not?

Answer: a. The writer was missing his simple village and its loving and caring people; the simple mud house, the simple toys, and the simple, carefree people amongst whom he lived. b. Because they were narrow mud lanes. c. No — he lives in a beautiful house in Karachi with many modern facilities, but he is desperately missing his village and wishes for a time machine to take him back to his simple life. d. Because rivers overflow their banks during the monsoon season. e. To capture and retain rain water for later use — to control floods and store water for irrigation throughout the year. f. Note: the lesson is about barrages, not bridges. Yes, we should build more barrages, to control flooding during the rainy season and to supply water throughout the year for irrigating more land.

Question: Write a summary of the poem 'The Miller of the Dee' by Charles Mackay, giving the title, the poet's name, the key message, and a summary of all the stanzas.

Answer: Summary — 'The Miller of the Dee' by Charles Mackay. Key message: Contentment and honest work bring more happiness than riches and power. A happy miller lived beside the river Dee. He worked and sang from morning to night, and his song was that he envied nobody and nobody envied him. Old King Hal said he was wrong — the king himself was sad though he was the king, and wished his heart were as light as the miller's. He asked what made the miller sing so loudly and freely. The miller smiled and said he earned his bread, loved his wife, his friend and his three children, owed no penny he could not pay, and thanked the river Dee that turned his mill to grind the corn to feed his children and himself. King Hal sighed and said the miller's cap was worth his crown and his mill worth his kingdom; such men are England's boast.

Question: Model Test Paper-II Q.13. Write an essay on any ONE of the following: a. The importance of computers in our lives. b. Pakistan needs highly educated people in the field of agriculture. c. A family wedding.

Answer: Model essay — The importance of computers in our lives. Today computers are a part of our lives. They help us in study, in work and in play. Students use computers to learn, to read books and to find information. Doctors use them to keep records and to treat patients. Offices, banks and shops all work with computers. Computers also bring us together — we can talk to our family and friends far away, and learn about the whole world. But we must use computers wisely. We should not waste our time on useless games or harmful things. Used well, computers are a great blessing.

Question: Model Test Paper-II Q.14. Write any ONE of the following: a. Write a summary of the reading passage on Rice, given at the beginning of the paper. b. Write an application to apply for a job of your choice.

Answer: Model summary of the Rice passage (option a; for option b, see the application models in Unit 8.4). Rice is one of the three crops on which human beings largely depend as food for survival, and it is a staple food in most countries of the world. Pakistan is the world's 4th largest producer of rice, producing about 6 million tonnes a year. Most of the rice is grown in the fertile Sindh and Punjab region. Punjab contributes 58 per cent and Sindh 29 per cent of the national production. The Kalar bowl area between the Ravi and Chenab rivers is famous for Basmati rice. Pakistan exports about 4 million tonnes of rice a year, which is a major source of foreign exchange. With more and better quality rice and good government policies, Pakistan can compete in the world market.

Question: 8.7 Task 1: Identify 7-10 adjectives and adverbs used in the text. Use them in your own sentences.

Answer: Adjectives from the text: young — Karim's grandparents were young at heart. old — The old man told a story. large — A large family gathered at the house. healthy — We should eat healthy food. critical — Hand washing is critical for health. harmful — Germs are harmful to us. natural — Phitkari is a natural product. Adverbs from the text: extremely — Hand washing is extremely necessary. properly — Wash your hands properly. quietly — Zainab quietly decided to ask her teacher. eagerly — She eagerly raised her hand. (Note: the text also repeats two paragraphs — the same argument appears twice.)

Question: 8.7 Task 2: Organize a declamation contest on one of the topics: A hand washed is a life saved; Water — it takes a community to save children; Science and Tradition: can they be combined?

Answer: Model speech outline — A hand washed is a life saved. Introduction: Every day, germs pass from our hands into our mouths and make us sick. Points: 1. Hand washing prevents the direct transferring of germs into the mouth — the germs that cause diarrhea. 2. Diarrhea is one of the main causes of death among young children across the world. 3. Washing hands after using the latrine, before eating, after coughing and after touching animals keeps us safe. Conclusion: A hand washed is a life saved — let us all wash our hands and teach others to do the same.

Question: 8.7 Task 3: Collect information: What are the main sources of drinking water in your area? How does water get contaminated? Are there visible signs of water contamination or unhygienic practices near the source? What are the common ways of purifying or cleaning water?

Answer: Model findings: Main sources — tap water (water supply), hand pump, well, and water tanker. Contamination — open drains and garbage near the source, animal waste, open defecation, and leaking pipes. Visible signs — bad smell, cloudy or coloured water, dirt and garbage near the source, animals drinking from the same source. Purifying — boiling the water, filtering it through a clean cloth or filter, using alum (Phitkari), and chlorination.

Question: 8.8 Task 1: Explore the effects of stunting on young children.

Answer: Model findings from the text: Stunting means low height for age. In Pakistan, 1 in 4 children of age 5 and below is stunted; in Sindh the stunting rate is 45.5%, higher than the national average. Malnourishment in early childhood can lead to irreversible damage to physical growth, called stunting. In young people (age 12-16), malnourishment can cause mood swings, low energy, low blood pressure, and other physical and mental disorders. A good low-cost natural source of nutrition is the Moringa tree (Sahajna); its leaves and fruits are high in vitamins, minerals and protein, and help reduce malnourishment.
