Balochistan Textbook Board (BTBB)

Unit 1: The Last Address of Hazrat Muhammad (SAW)

Exercise - Reading and Thinking Skills

i) When did Hazrat Muhammad (SAW) give his last address?

Ans. Hazrat Muhammad (SAW) gave his last address on the occasion of the last Hajj, in February 632 A.D., on 10 Zil Hajjah of 10 A.H. He addressed the Muslims who had gathered for the pilgrimage.

ii) Where did Hazrat Muhammad (SAW) give his last address?

Ans. He delivered his last address in the valley of Arafat, near Makkah, where the pilgrims had assembled for Hajj. The sermon was addressed to the whole gathering present there.

iii) What did Hazrat Muhammad (SAW) say about the life and property of every Muslim?

Ans. He said that just as the month and the day are sacred, so the life and property of every Muslim are a sacred trust. Goods entrusted to a person must be returned to their rightful owners, and no one should harm another, so that no one may harm him.

iv) What are the drawbacks of taking interest?

Ans. Interest (usury) is forbidden by Allah, so it brings no lawful gain: all interest obligations are cancelled and only the capital itself remains the owner's. Taking interest means inflicting inequality on others, which the address strictly forbids, and even the interest due to Abbas ibn Abd'al Mutallib was waived as an example.

v) Why did Hazrat Muhammad (SAW) give the last address?

Ans. He gave the last address to convey his message to the people before his departure. The sermon is the first and most important declaration of human rights, a comprehensive manifesto and a complete code of life, setting out rights together with mutual responsibilities, and he asked the listeners to pass his words on to those who were absent.

i) Harm no ___ so that no one may harm you.

- two
- ✓ one
- person
- man

ii) It is true that you have certain rights with regards to your ___.

- ✓ women
- property
- life
- duty

iii) An Arab has no superiority over a ___.

- non-muslim
- ✓ non-Arab
- Mushriq
- Muslim

iv) Every Muslim is a ___ to every Muslim.

- ✓ brother
- friend
- sister
- enemy

v) Islam has set certain ___ to every Muslim.

- due
- ✓ rights
- writes
- right

Writing Skills - Brainstorming and Mind Mapping

MODEL NOTE (for the p12 Activity - using the mind map on the last address): The last address of Hazrat Muhammad (SAW) was delivered at Arafat during the last Hajj in 632 A.D. It declares the fundamental rights of human beings: the life and property of every Muslim are sacred; no Arab is superior to a non-Arab, and no white is superior to a black, except by piety and good action; and every Muslim is a brother to every Muslim. Along with rights it lays down responsibilities: return trusts to their owners, harm no one, give up interest, treat women with kindness, worship Allah, pray, fast, pay Zakat and perform Hajj. Rights and responsibilities go together, and that is why the sermon is called the first declaration of human rights.

Oral Communication - Group/Class Presentation

Group/class presentation - six basic steps: (1) Analyze your audience and goals - think about what the audience already knows and what extra information to give them. (2) Plan, research and organize your content - gather enough knowledge, then introduce the topic, state the main idea (thesis), give details and conclude. (3) Draft and revise the presentation - write it in full sentences and paragraphs, but present from key points in your own words, not by reading it out. (4) Prepare speaking notes - a brief outline with important facts, data and key words, including how to begin and conclude. (5) Practise the presentation - practice gives courage and confidence on the stage. (6) Deliver the presentation - sleep well, eat a healthy breakfast, wear favourite and appropriate clothes and comfortable shoes, relax, and deliver with a smile and confidence, without getting emotional or angry at the audience's questions.

CLASS ACTIVITY: work in groups of five to ten, prepare a class/group presentation on 'The human rights and the last address of the Holy Prophet (SAW)', select a group leader and present it in the classroom.

Grammar - Present and Past Participles

Present participle: the -ing form of a verb, used (1) in continuous tenses (The boy was running very fast), (2) alone in non-finite clauses (Who is the boy sitting next to you?), and (3) as an adjective (He has a talking parrot). Rules for making the ing-form: (1) usually just add -ing (eat-eating, cook-cooking, play-playing); (2) drop a final -e and add -ing, except verbs ending in -ee and -ie (hope-hoping, make-making, write-writing); (3) just add -ing to verbs ending in -ee (agree-agreeing, flee-fleeing, see-seeing); (4) change -ie to -y and add -ing (die-dying, tie-tying, lie-lying); (5) for verbs ending in one vowel + one consonant (except w, x, y), double the consonant and add -ing for one-syllable verbs (sit-sitting, stop-stopping, run-running), and for two-syllable verbs double it only if the second syllable is stressed (admit-admitting, prefer-preferring, begin-beginning), otherwise just add -ing (answer-answering, offer-offering, listen-listening). Past participle: the form of a verb, typically ending in -ed, used (1) in perfect tenses (He has just painted the door), (2) in passive voice (The teachers were rewarded), and (3) as an adjective (He saw a damaged building). Regular verbs mostly add -ed or -d (talk-talked, hope-hoped), sometimes doubling the consonant (hop-hopped, dip-dipped). Irregular verbs fall in five groups: (1) all forms the same (burst, cost, cut, put, shut); (2) past and past participle the same (bring-brought-brought, catch-caught-caught, find-found-found, lay-laid-laid, lead-led-led); (3) vowel changes /i/ to /a/ to /u/ (begin-began-begun, drink-drank-drunk, shrink-shrank-shrunk, ring-rang-rung, swim-swam-swum); (4) past participle formed by adding /n/ or /en/ to the past (beat-beat-beaten, break-broke-broken, speak-spoke-spoken, wear-wore-worn, tear-tore-torn); (5) past participle formed from the present, frequently by adding /n/, /en/ or /ne/ (blow-blew-blown, do-did-done, draw-drew-drawn, eat-ate-eaten, see-saw-seen, take-took-taken).

Grammar Activities

Activity (1) - Tick the correct participle: 1. My brother was (amused / amusing) by the comedian.

Ans. amused - the brother is the person who feels amusement, so the -ed form is correct.

Activity (1) - Tick the correct participle: 2. This story is so (boring / bored).

Ans. boring - the story causes boredom in the listener, so the -ing form is correct.

Activity (1) - Tick the correct participle: 3. This Mathematics problem is so (confused / confusing), can you help me?
Ans. confusing - the problem causes confusion in the learner, so the -ing form is correct.

Activity (1) - Tick the correct participle: 4. The plane began to move in a rather (alarmed / alarming) way.
Ans. alarming - the plane's movement causes alarm in those who watch it, so the -ing form is correct.

Activity (1) - Tick the correct participle: 5. He bought a (broken / breaking) watch.
Ans. broken - the watch is in a broken state, so the past participle (-ed/-en form) is correct.

MODEL ANSWER (Activity 2 - ten present participles and ten past participles from the unit, used in sentences): Present participles - (1) running: The boy was running very fast. (2) sailing: The students were sailing across the Indus river. (3) sitting: Who is the boy sitting next to you in class? (4) waiting: Akram, waiting outside, was getting more and more annoyed. (5) talking: He has a talking parrot. (6) singing: Skylark is a singing bird. (7) eating: She is eating her lunch. (8) cooking: Mother is cooking dinner. (9) playing: The children are playing in the park. (10) listening: We are listening to the teacher. Past participles - (1) painted: He has just painted the door. (2) passed: She had passed the exams with good marks. (3) rewarded: The teachers were rewarded for their best performance. (4) held: The election will be held after three months. (5) damaged: He saw a damaged building in the town. (6) broken: People will never buy broken glasses. (7) frustrated: Ahmed was frustrated to do the same routine work. (8) talked: We talked about the lesson. (9) hoped: She had hoped to win the prize. (10) taken: He has taken his books from the shelf.

Unit 2: The Caliph and the Gardener

Exercise - Reading and Thinking Skills

i) Why did the merchant leap into the water?

Ans. It was midsummer and the day was very hot. The merchant was hot and covered with dust after walking, and no one was near, so he decided to cool himself in the refreshing water of the river that flowed gently between green and shady banks.

ii) Why did the eagle fly with the moneybag of the merchant?

Ans. The eagle mistook the merchant's moneybag, tied in purple silk, for something good to eat. It rose into the air with the bag in its claws while the merchant was bathing.

iii) Where did the eagle fly to?

Ans. The eagle flew towards the far-off Black Mountains, carrying all the merchant's money with it.

iv) Why did the caliph call for old men of mountains?

Ans. The caliph reasoned that the eagle must have dropped the bag somewhere in the mountains or the flat country around, and whoever found it would suddenly become well-to-do. By calling all the old men of those places and asking who had lately and suddenly become rich, he hoped to trace the bag.

v) Where did the gardener find the money bag?

Ans. The gardener found the moneybag at the foot of a palm tree in his own garden. A year earlier, while he was spading, he saw something falling there, ran to pick it up, and found it was a bag full of bright gold pieces.

vi) How many gold pieces had the gardener spent and why?

Ans. The gardener spent ten gold pieces. His wife and children were suffering for want of food and clothing, and he himself had no shoes for his feet and no coat for his back. He took the ten pieces thinking that Al-Mansur, famous for his kindness to the poor, would not care, and he meant only to borrow them until he could replace them.

vii) What kind of a man was the gardener?

Ans. The gardener was poor but honest, truthful, hardworking and grateful. Though his family was suffering, he kept the bag in a safe place intending to return it, confessed the whole truth before the caliph even at the risk of punishment, and hoped only for the caliph's forgiveness.

viii) Which character of the story do you like?

Ans. MODEL ANSWER (pupil's own choice): I like the gardener best, because he was honest even in great poverty. He confessed that he had taken ten gold pieces, although nobody could have proved it against him, and his honesty won him the caliph's forgiveness and reward. (Another pupil may reasonably choose Al-Mansur for his wisdom and justice.)

ix) If you were the gardener, what would you do with the money lost by the merchant?

Ans. MODEL ANSWER (pupil's own choice): If I were the gardener, I would keep the bag safely and return it to its owner at once, without taking anything from it, because honesty is the right course even when one is poor, and a good name is worth more than gold.

x) What is the main theme of the story?

Ans. The main theme of the story is that honesty is rewarded, and that justice should be tempered with kindness. The poor gardener's truthfulness wins him forgiveness and a reward, while the wise caliph's justice restores the merchant's money and pays the gardener's debt.

i) The merchant leaped into ___.

- sand
- ✓ water
- earth
- mud

ii) The eagle was flying towards the ___.

- red mountains
- sea
- ✓ black mountains
- villages

iii) Forty grey-bearded ___ old men stood before the Caliph.

- dishonest

coward

✓ honest aged

iv) The merchant appeared before the Caliph after ___.

ten years

✓ one year

two years

five years

v) The gardener spent only ___.

ten gold coins

ten gold rings

✓ ten pieces of gold

ten cubes of gold

Elements of a Story - Activity

MODEL ANALYSIS (for the p23 Activity - elements of 'The Caliph and the Gardener' with examples): Characters - the Caliph Al-Mansur of Cordova, the merchant, the poor gardener, and the eagle. Events - the merchant buys diamonds and pearls from the caliph, loses his moneybag to an eagle while bathing, returns after a year, and the caliph traces the bag through the suddenly-rich gardener. Setting - Cordova, a river bank on a hot midsummer day, the Black Mountains and the flat country around, and the caliph's palace; the action spans a year. Plot - Beginning: the merchant loses his gold to the eagle. Middle: the caliph summons the old men of the mountains, finds the gardener, and hears his confession. End: the caliph restores the merchant's money, pays the ten lacking pieces himself, and rewards the gardener with ten more for his honesty. Theme - honesty is rewarded; justice joined with kindness. Tone - admiring and moral, sympathetic towards the poor gardener. Point of view - a third-person narrator telling the tale, with the characters speaking in dialogue.

Writing Skills - Research Report and Essay Writing

Research report: a report that gives information about a topic; each paragraph has a main idea and detailed sentences that tell more about the topic. MODEL REPORT (for the p24 Activity - 'Dinosaurs', following the book's four steps: collect information, write it as an outline, write the main idea in a sentence, then add supporting sentences): Dinosaurs lived on the earth millions of years ago, long before human beings appeared. They were of many kinds and sizes: some were as small as chickens, while others, like the long-necked plant-eaters, were larger than any land animal alive today. Scientists learn about dinosaurs from their fossils - bones, teeth and footprints preserved in rock. From these fossils they can tell what dinosaurs ate, how they moved, and why they probably died out when the climate of the earth changed. Essay writing - seven important tips: (i) selection of topic; (ii) brainstorming ideas; (iii) preparation of an outline of ideas; (iv) writing thesis statement; (v) writing the introduction; (vi) writing the body of essay; (vii) writing the conclusion. ESSAY ACTIVITY (p24): select a topic of your choice and write a general essay of at least 250 words - the essay itself is the pupil's own work, following the seven tips above.

Oral Communication - Activity

ORAL ACTIVITY (p24 - no written answer; performed in class):

Comment on the presentation given by your classmate in the previous unit about 'Human Rights and the Last Address of Hazrat Muhammad (SAW)', using these criteria: (a) How was the topic introduced? (b) Was he/she able to give details to support his topic? (c) How was his/her confidence? (d) Did he/she conclude the presentation well? (e) Did he/she have a good eye contact with the audience? (f) How did he/she answer the questions of audience?

Grammar - The Perfect Participle

The perfect participle indicates completed action. It is formed by putting the present participle 'having' before the past participle. Examples: (i) Having completed his homework, Ahmed went to attend the debate contest. (ii) Having improved her English language, Saima qualified for a job. (iii) Having delivered the message, Hassan left for Karachi.

Grammar Activity - Rewrite with a Perfect Participle

i) Rewrite replacing the underlined part with a perfect participle: He has worked till late hours, so he is exhausted now.

Ans. Having worked till late hours, he is exhausted now.

ii) Rewrite replacing the underlined part with a perfect participle: She filled the washing machine and switched it on.

Ans. Having filled the washing machine, she switched it on.

iii) Rewrite replacing the underlined part with a perfect participle: Maria had travelled from Karachi to Quetta, therefore she overslept in the morning.

Ans. Having travelled from Karachi to Quetta, Maria overslept in the morning.

iv) Rewrite replacing the underlined part with a perfect participle:
Since I had not seen Ali for ages, I did not recognize him.
Ans. Not having seen Ali for ages, I did not recognize him.

v) Rewrite replacing the underlined part with a perfect participle:
Saleem had not ridden a horse for a long time, and found it very difficult to keep in the saddle.
Ans. Not having ridden a horse for a long time, Saleem found it very difficult to keep in the saddle.

Unit 3: Patriotism

Exercise - Reading and Thinking Skills

i) How do you explain patriotism?

Ans. Patriotism is having or expressing love for one's country. In other words, it means devotion, loyalty and commitment to one's country and to the ideology of the people living in that land. It is a noble sentiment which is essential for the integrity and solidarity of a country.

ii) What kind of sense does patriotism develop in a patriot?

Ans. Patriotism develops in a patriot a sense of brotherhood, cooperation and sympathy for his countrymen, pride in his country and countrymen, and love and respect for other countries as well. It arouses the passion of love, unity and cooperation, making the people a dynamic force.

iii) What is vicious patriotism?

Ans. Vicious or destructive (blind) patriotism is love of one's country twisted into hatred of other nations and belief in one's own nation's superiority. Oscar Wilde called it 'the virtue of the vicious': Hitler's fascist regime exploited the passion of German patriotism for the destruction of the world. It is against the teachings of Islam, which emphasize the equality of all human beings.

iv) How does a true patriot contribute to the development of his / her country?

Ans. A true patriot contributes by offering sacrifices for the country, making concrete efforts for its progress and prosperity, and showing his country's strength in peacetime as well as in war. He develops brotherhood, cooperation and sympathy among the people, and if any vicious force invades his country, he passionately defends it and never hesitates to lay down his life.

v) What does Islam say about patriotism?

Ans. Islam teaches the equality of all human beings: Hazrat Muhammad (SAW) said that no Arab is superior to a non-Arab, and no white man is superior to a black man, for all human beings are the offspring of Adam and Adam was created out of clay. Islam therefore propounds international brotherhood and negates narrow nationalism based on colour, race or superiority, and condemns vicious patriotism.

vi) Does patriotism require the belief that one's country is the greatest on earth? Discuss.

Ans. DISCUSSION (model answer): No. George Bernard Shaw's remark - that patriotism is the conviction that one's country is superior because one was born in it - describes the natural instinct of loving one's motherland most, but the essay argues that true patriotism does not require believing in superiority. A true patriot loves other nations, seeks friendship with them and hates the idea of war; he is a citizen of the world, desirous of peace. The belief in superiority belongs to vicious, blind patriotism, which the essay condemns.

Mark true or false: i) Patriotism means devotion and loyalty to one's country.

Ans. True - the essay defines patriotism as devotion, loyalty and commitment to one's country.

Mark true or false: ii) Patriotism is a mere love for an area of land.

Ans. False - patriotism is not a mere love for an area of land; it is loyalty to the ideology of the people living in that land.

Mark true or false: iii) A true patriot should never hate other countries.

Ans. True - a true patriot should never hate other countries, because true patriotism teaches us to love and respect other countries as well.

Mark true or false: iv) A true patriot is desirous of peace for the whole world.

Ans. True - a true patriot considers himself a citizen of the world, desirous of peace for the whole world.

Mark true or false: v) A patriot is always ready to sacrifice his/her life for the defence of his country.

Ans. True - if any vicious force invades his country, the true patriot passionately defends it and never hesitates in laying down his life.

i) Patriotism is a noble sentiment which is essential for the ..... and solidarity of a country.

- ✓ integrity
- honesty
- morality
- sincerity

ii) A true patriot wishes to have ..... in his country.

- war
- ✓ peace
- piece
- harmony

iii) Patriotism provokes the people to do something ..... for the country.

- huge
- greet
- ✓ great
- grand

iv) Oscar Wilde says, "Patriotism is the ..... of the vicious."

- merit
- result
- value
- ✓ virtue

v) A true patriot considers himself ..... of the world.

- ✓ citizen
- person
- part portion

Main Idea / Theme of the Unit

MAIN IDEA / THEME (for Q4): True patriotism is devotion, loyalty and commitment to one's country and its ideology - a noble, constructive force that builds progress and unity while respecting other nations; vicious or blind patriotism, based on hatred and superiority, is its destructive opposite. SUPPORTING DETAILS: (1) Patriotism is essential for the integrity and solidarity of a country; a man without it is 'a dead soul'. (2) It is not confined to defence - it shows strength in peacetime, provokes great deeds, sacrifices and concrete contributions. (3) It develops brotherhood, cooperation and sympathy, and makes the people a dynamic force that can push the ship of their country through any tempest. (4) It is a natural instinct - a child loves its land even if barren; Shaw's remark about loving one's birthplace most. (5) Vicious patriotism: Wilde's 'virtue of the vicious', Hitler's exploitation of German patriotism, condemned by Islam's equality teaching, by the Prophet's saying on Arab and non-Arab, white and black, and by Fosdick's and Buddha's words on universal brotherhood. (6) The true patriot loves other nations, seeks friendship, hates war, yet defends his country passionately if invaded - a citizen of the world, sensitive to the miseries of other peoples.

Writing Skills - Persuasive Essay

Persuasive essay: the type of essay in which you try to convince the reader to adopt your position on an issue or point of view; your rationale, your argument, is most important - you present an opinion and try to win readers over to it. ITS MOST IMPORTANT

QUALITIES: have a definite point of view; maintain the reader's interest; use sound reasoning; use solid evidence; be aware of your intended audience and how to win them over; research your topic so your evidence is convincing; do not get so sentimental or passionate that you lose the reader; do not overdo your language or bore the reader, and do not keep repeating your points; remember the rules of the good paragraph - one single topic per paragraph and natural progression from one to the next; end with a strong conclusion. MODEL ESSAY (for the p30 Activity - 'Corruption leads to destruction', following the qualities above): Corruption is the misuse of public office for private gain, and wherever it spreads, it destroys nations from within. When officials take bribes, merit dies: the undeserving get jobs, contracts and justice, while the honest and able are pushed aside. Public money meant for schools, hospitals and roads disappears into private pockets, so the poor suffer most and progress stops. Worse, corruption destroys trust: when people see the guilty go unpunished, they lose faith in the law and in the state itself. History shows that nations fall not only by foreign invasion but by the rot of corruption within. Therefore we must refuse bribes, demand accountability, and support honest leadership - only then can our country progress and survive.

Oral Communication - Group Discussion

GROUP DISCUSSION ACTIVITY (p30 - performed in class): Work in groups of five to ten students. Select a topic of your choice and discuss it in the group, following these steps: (i) Brainstorm your ideas. (ii) Make an outline of your ideas. (iii) Each student should be given opportunity to present his/her opinion clearly. (iv) Support or prove your opinion with reasons and examples. (v) Be polite while presenting your opinion. (vi) At the end, conclude your discussion.

Grammar - Infinitive and Infinitive Phrases

Infinitive: the basic form of a verb, without an inflection binding it to a particular subject or tense, that usually functions as a noun or modifier. It functions as a noun, an adjective or an adverb, but not as a main verb. Examples: (i) I want to explain that theory. (to explain - as a noun) (ii) The inspector came to check the dam. (to check - as an adverb) (iii) The kind of flowers to plant are tulips. (to plant - as an adjective) Infinitive phrase: an infinitive plus any modifier and complement; like infinitives, infinitive phrases function as nouns, adjectives or adverbs. Examples: (i) Saima wants to sing a song. (to sing a song - as a noun) (ii) Faheem went to buy fruits. (to buy fruits - as an adverb) (iii) Here is a laundry to wash clothes. (to wash clothes - as an adjective)

Grammar Activity - Infinitives in Sentences

MODEL SENTENCES (for the p31 Activity - each infinitive/phrase used in a sentence, with its function highlighted): (1) to protect (noun, subject): To protect the environment is everyone's duty. (2) to achieve (noun, object): Every student wants to achieve success. (3) to become educated (adverb, purpose): She works hard to become educated. (4) to vote (noun, subject): To vote is the right of every citizen. (5) to take a walk (adverb, purpose): We went out to take a walk in the evening. (6) to climb (adjective): This is the hill to climb for a fine view. (7) to teach English (noun, object): She likes to teach English to young pupils. (8) to please everyone (adverb, purpose): He works day and night to please everyone. (9) to buy groceries (adverb, purpose): Mother went to the market to buy groceries. (10) to resign (noun, subject): To resign was his own decision.

Vocabulary - Thesaurus

Thesaurus: a book that contains many synonyms - words that have the same or nearly the same meanings. Entry words in a thesaurus are listed in alphabetical order. Thesauruses generally contain antonyms as well - words that have opposite or nearly opposite meanings. Examples from the book: Synonyms of happy - cheerful, joyful, blissful. Antonyms of dirty - clean, cleansed, stainless. MODEL WORK (for the p32 Activity - bold words from the unit, with a synonym, an antonym and two sentences each): (1) devotion - synonym: dedication; antonym: neglect. Sentence with synonym: His dedication to the country is admirable. Sentence with antonym: Neglect of duty harms the nation. (2) defence - synonym: protection; antonym: attack. Sentence with synonym: The army is responsible for the protection of the borders. Sentence with antonym: The enemy launched an attack at dawn. (3) contribute - synonym: donate; antonym: withhold. Sentence with synonym: Every citizen should donate something for the flood victims. Sentence with antonym: Do not withhold the truth from the court. (4) develop - synonym: grow; antonym: decline. Sentence with synonym: Good habits grow with practice. Sentence with antonym: Trade declined during the war. (5) patriot - synonym: nationalist; antonym: traitor. Sentence with synonym: The nationalist served his country all his life. Sentence with antonym: The traitor sold his country's secrets to the enemy.

Unit 4: The Spider and the Fly (Poem)

Exercise - Reading and Thinking Skills

i) Who are the characters of the poem?

Ans. The two characters of the poem are the cunning spider and the little fly.

ii) Whom is the spider inviting to be a guest?

Ans. The spider is inviting the little fly to be his guest and to walk into his parlour.

iii) What is the reply of the fly in the beginning?

Ans. In the beginning the fly replies at once, 'Oh no, no, to ask me is in vain, for who goes up your winding stair can ne'er come down again.' She refuses the invitation straight away.

iv) Why does the fly not want to be the guest of spider?

Ans. The fly does not want to be the spider's guest because she knows the danger: whoever goes up his winding stair can never come down again, and those who sleep upon his bed never, never wake again. She has also heard what is in his pantry and does not wish to see it.

v) Which things are worth seeing in the house of the spider?

Ans. In the spider's house there are worth seeing: the prettiest little parlour, the winding stair, the many pretty things to show, the little bed with pretty curtains and fine thin sheets, the pantry's good store of all that is nice, and the little looking-glass upon the parlour shelf.

vi) What kind of curtains is drawn in the house of spider?

Ans. Pretty curtains are drawn around the spider's bed, and its sheets are fine and thin. The spider promises that if the fly likes to rest awhile, he will snugly tuck her in.

vii) What happened if any one slept on the soft beds?

Ans. If anyone slept on the spider's soft bed, he would never, never wake again - the bed is a trap, and its sleeper becomes the spider's prey.

viii) How did the spider trap the clever fly at last?

Ans. At last the spider trapped the clever fly by flattery. He called her witty and wise, praised her gauzy wings, her brilliant eyes, her green and purple robes, the crest upon her head and her pearl and silver wing. Thinking only of her beauty, the silly fly came slowly flitting by, nearer and nearer, until the spider jumped up, fiercely held her fast and dragged her into his den.

ix) What are the people betrayed by in the world?

Ans. In the world, people are betrayed by idle, silly, flattering words - by the sweet talk of evil counsellors. The poem's closing moral warns children never to give heed to such words, and to close heart, ear and eye to an evil counsellor.

x) What did the spider do with the fly when it entered the spider's home?

Ans. When the fly at last came within his reach, the spider jumped up, fiercely held her fast, dragged her up his winding stair into his dismal den and his little parlour - but she never came out again - and set his table ready to dine upon her.

i) If you decide to step in,

- ✓ a winding stair is before you.
- a lift is before you.
- a rope is before you.
- an iron rod is before you.

ii) The fly said to the spider,

- ✓ I do not wish to see your pantry.
- I wish to see your pantry.
- I desire to see your home.
- I want to see you.

iii) The spider said,

- "You have ugly eyes."
- "You have brown eyes."
- ✓ "You have brilliant eyes."
- "You do not have brilliant eyes."

iv) At last the fly was,

- invited by the spider.
- entertained by the spider.

✓ trapped by the spider spared by the spider.

v) The spider only wanted to, (FLAGGED: catching was the means; the poem says he 'set his table ready to dine upon the fly', so eating is the end and the intended answer.)
entertain the fly ✓ eat the fly catch the fly
see the fly

Mark true or false: i) The poem is about a spider and a fly.
Ans. True - the poem tells the tale of a spider and a fly.

Mark true or false: ii) The spider is trying to trap the fly.
Ans. True - every invitation of the spider is a trap to catch the fly.

Mark true or false: iii) The fly is easily trapped by the spider.
Ans. False - the fly was not easily trapped: she refused the parlour, the bed and the pantry, knowing the danger, and only vanity overcame her at last.

Mark true or false: iv) Whoever climbed the spider's net, could easily come out.
Ans. False - whoever goes up the spider's winding stair can never come down again; the fly herself says so at the start.

Mark true or false: v) 'Resting for a while in spider's house would not harm the fly', said the spider.

Ans. True - the spider presented rest as harmless, saying that if the fly liked to rest awhile, he would snugly tuck her in.

Mark true or false: vi) Many people are trapped by flattery in the world.

Ans. True - that is the moral of the poem: many people are trapped by flattery in the world.

Mark true or false: vii) There are soft beds in spider's pantry.

Ans. False - the soft bed is in the parlour, not in the pantry; the pantry holds a good store of all that is nice.

Mark true or false: viii) The fly was easily trapped with flattery by the spider.

Ans. True (FLAGGED - see note on iii): the flattering words about her beauty worked swiftly once the spider praised her - 'how very soon this silly little fly, hearing his wily flattering words, came slowly flitting by' - whereas iii) is false because she resisted the earlier invitations and was not easily trapped in general.

Mark true or false: ix) When the fly got close, the spider left it.

Ans. False - when the fly got close, the spider did not leave her: he jumped up and fiercely held her fast.

Mark true or false: x) The spider at last got a good meal.

Ans. True - the spider dragged the fly into his den and set his table ready to dine upon her; she never came out again.

Genres, Conventions and Personification - Activity

MODEL ANALYSIS (for the p38 Activity - genre, conventions and personification): Genre is a type of art, literature or music characterized by a specific form, content and style; genres of literature are different text types. Fiction includes drama, fable, fairytales, short stories, legends, poetry and science fiction; non-fiction includes autobiographies, biographies, essays, informational texts, narrative non-fiction and speech. Conventions are the linguistic and non-linguistic features that identify a genre. The poem 'The Spider and the Fly' shows the conventions of poetry: Experiences - the poet's thoughts and feelings about cunning and vanity; Images - words that make pictures in the mind, like the winding stair, the gauzy wings, the pearl and silver wing; Structure - sections called stanzas, which are not always complete sentences. Personification: human qualities and activities are given to an animal or object - here the spider and the fly talk, invite, flatter, sing and dine like human beings, the spider playing the cunning flatterer and the fly the vain victim. Alliteration (words starting with the same sound used close together) also occurs, e.g. 'oh, no, no' and 'They never, never wake again.'

Critical Thinking

Why can people be easily trapped with flattery in the world?

Ans. People are easily trapped with flattery because flattery pleases vanity: everyone likes to hear himself praised, and praise blinds judgement. The fly knew the spider's parlour, bed and pantry were traps, yet the moment the spider praised her brilliant eyes, her green and purple robes and her crest, she thought only of her own beauty and forgot the danger. In the same way, evil counsellors in the world win trust with sweet words, and their victims stop thinking critically until it is too late.

Writing Skills - Narrative Essay

Narrative essay: an essay that tells a story. It can be first person (I, we), second person (you) or third person (he, she, it) narrative. The author uses sensory details and description, captures the reader's imagination by creating imaginary scenes, and the reader feels as if he/she were present in the story. MODEL NARRATIVE ESSAY (for the p38 Activity - the poem retold in third person): A cunning spider once lived in a parlour at the top of a winding stair. One day he saw a little fly passing by and invited her to walk into his parlour, where he had many pretty things to show. The fly refused, saying that whoever went up his winding stair never came down again. Then the spider invited her to rest upon his little bed with its pretty curtains and fine thin sheets, but the fly answered that those who slept upon his bed never woke again. Next he offered her a slice from his pantry's good store, but she said she had heard what was in his pantry and did not wish to see it. At last the spider flattered her: he called her witty and wise, praised her gauzy wings, her brilliant eyes, her green and purple robes and the crest upon her head, and asked her to step in and behold herself in his looking-glass. Thinking only of her beauty, the silly fly came slowly flitting nearer and nearer, until the spider jumped up, seized her fast and dragged her into his den. She never came out again. The lesson is never to give heed to idle, silly, flattering words.

Oral Communication - Research Project and Class Presentation

ORAL ACTIVITY (p39 - performed in class): Work in groups of five to ten students. Read some poems of Dr. Allama Muhammad Iqbal. Write down their main ideas and find out universal themes in them. Prepare a class presentation and present it in the class.

Grammar - Gerund and Gerund Phrase

Gerund: the -ing form (base form + ing) of a verb, working as a noun. Uses: (i) As a subject: Teaching is a good profession. (ii) As an object of verbs and prepositions: He enjoys doing his homework; She was worried about missing her test. (iii) As subject complements: My hobby is reading storybooks; His problem is not coming to office on time. Gerund phrase: an -ing form of a verb including other modifiers and/or objects, functioning as a noun. Examples: (i) Blowing bubbles on a windy day is a great fun for children. (as a subject) (ii) The kids were excited about eating birthday cake. (as an object of preposition) (iii) My ambition is taking part in a debate contest. (as a complement) MODEL SENTENCES (for the p39 Activity): (1) taking exams: Taking exams is a test of patience. (2) breathing loudly: Breathing loudly is a sign of tiredness. (3) parking the car: Parking the car in the shade is wise. (4) playing: Playing keeps children healthy. (5) cooking: Mother is fond of cooking. (6) helping the needy people: Helping the needy people is a noble deed. (7) borrowing: Borrowing without need is a bad habit. (8) taking exercise: Taking exercise daily keeps us fit. (9) going for a morning walk: Going for a morning walk refreshes the mind. (10) eating hurriedly: Eating hurriedly is harmful to health.

Unit 5: The Blanket

Exercise - Reading and Thinking Skills

i) What does the phrase, "Sending Granddad away" mean?

Ans. The phrase 'Sending Granddad away' means sending the old man out of the family home to a home for the aged - the great brick government building where he would live the rest of his life with other old people of his age, away from his son and grandson.

ii) Who is Petey?

Ans. Petey is Dad's eleven-year-old son and Granddad's grandson - the little boy of the story, who sits with Granddad on the porch of the hut and loves to hear him play the fiddle.

iii) Does Petey love his Granddad?

Ans. Yes, Petey loves his Granddad deeply. He cannot believe Dad would really send him away, he sits with him on their last evening, fetches his fiddle, and is sad at the thought of never hearing him play again. In the end he acts to save Granddad from being sent away.

iv) Why was the Dad sending Granddad away?

Ans. Dad was sending Granddad away because he was going to marry the pretty girl and move into a new house away from the hut. He felt an old fellow, with his talk of aches and pains, getting in the way, would be a nuisance in the new household, especially when babies came. Granddad himself put it the same way, saying it was best to take himself off.

v) Who had brought the blanket and why?

Ans. Dad had brought the blanket - a fine double blanket, red with black stripes, of good wool that cost something. He brought it so that Granddad would keep warm on the cold nights to come in the old-age home; defending himself, he said, 'I wanted him to have the best.'

vi) Why was the granddad pretending to go to the old house happily?

Ans. Granddad pretended to go happily to make the parting easier for Petey and for Dad. He claimed all along that it was he who wanted to go away to the great brick government place, where he would be with so many other old fellows having the best of everything, rather than be an old nuisance in the way.

vii) What did Petey want to do with the blanket?

Ans. Petey wanted Dad to cut the double blanket in two with the pair of scissors he had fetched, and to keep one half himself.

viii) Why did Petey want to cut the blanket into two equal pieces?

Ans. Petey wanted the blanket cut into two equal pieces because a single blanket is enough for an old man being sent away - and he would save the other half to give to Dad when Dad was old and Petey himself sent him away. The saved half was the lesson: what Dad does to Granddad today, his own son will do to him tomorrow.

ix) Was Petey successful to teach a lesson to his Dad?

Ans. Yes, Petey was successful. Dad fell silent, went over to Granddad and stood before him unable to speak, and in the end all three were crying together. The story - and the next question - treats Dad as having changed his decision.

x) Why did Petey's Dad change his decision?

Ans. Dad changed his decision because Petey's words held up a mirror to him: if a son may send his father away with half a blanket, then Petey will one day do the same to Dad. Dad suddenly saw his own cruelty from his father's side, and his heart broke. The girl's reproach over the blanket's cost had already unsettled him, and Granddad's gentle forgiveness completed his remorse.

i) Dad was sending:

- Petey away.
- the girls away.
- ✓ the Granddad away.
- none away.

ii) Dad had brought:

- a car.
- ✓ a blanket.
- a table.
- a bed sheet.

iii) Petey was sad that:

Dad was going away.

✓ Granddad was going away.

the girl was going away.

he was going away.

iv) Petey didn't believe that:

Granddad was sending Dad away.

Dad was sending Petey away.

✓ Dad was sending Granddad away.

Dad was not sending Granddad away.

v) Petey wanted to cut the blanket into two pieces because:

he hated the blanket.

he wanted to destroy the blanket.

✓ he wanted to teach a lesson to his Dad.

he wanted to teach a lesson to the girl.

Mark true or false: i) Petey was happy that Granddad was going away.

Ans. False - Petey was sad, not happy, that Granddad was going away; he could not believe Dad would really do it.

Mark true or false: ii) Granddad was not willing to go away.

Ans. True - Granddad only pretended to want to go, to make the parting easier; in his heart he did not want to leave.

Mark true or false: iii) Dad wanted to send Granddad to another city.

Ans. False - Dad wanted to send Granddad to the government home for the aged (the great brick building), not to another city.

Mark true or false: iv) Dad had brought a blanket for Granddad.
Ans. True - Dad had brought a fine double blanket, red with black stripes, for Granddad to go away with.

Mark true or false: v) Petey told the Granddad that Dad wanted to marry the pretty girl.
Ans. False - it was Granddad himself who told Petey that Dad was going to marry the fine girl; Petey only thought about the girl who had kissed him and promised to be a good mother to him.

Mark true or false: vi) Petey wanted to cut the blanket into three pieces.
Ans. False - Petey wanted the blanket cut into two pieces, not three.

Mark true or false: vii) Petey said that he wanted to give one piece of blanket to the Dad when he would send him away to the old house.
Ans. True - Petey said, 'I'll give it to you, Dad - when you're old and I send you away.'

Mark true or false: viii) Petey taught a lesson to the Dad.
Ans. True - Dad fell silent and stood before Granddad unable to speak, and all three cried together: the lesson had gone home.

Mark true or false: ix) The Dad changed his decision.

Ans. True - the ending (Dad's silence, his standing before Granddad, and all three crying together) and the next question both treat Dad as having changed his decision.

Mark true or false: x) The Granddad did not forgive Dad.
Ans. False - Granddad did forgive Dad: he put his hand on Dad's shoulder and whispered, 'It's all right, son - I know you didn't mean it.'

Critical Thinking

How can we stop people sending their parents to old houses?
Ans. MODEL ANSWER: We can stop people sending their parents to old houses by teaching children, from an early age, respect, gratitude and duty towards parents - as Islam also teaches kindness to parents. Families should keep elders in the home, giving them company, a share in household life and proper medical care, instead of treating them as a burden. The state and society can help with home-care services and financial support for families that look after their elders. Above all, we should remember the lesson of 'The Blanket': as we treat our parents today, our children will treat us tomorrow.

Main Idea and Supporting Details - Activity

Main idea of a paragraph (or a longer part of a reading) is the most important thing the writer wants the readers to understand; supporting details are pieces of information that show the main idea is true. Example from the book: Main idea - 'The weather was terrible.' Supporting details - minus 10 degrees, windy, snowy.

MODEL WORK (for the p46 Activity - main ideas of the long paragraphs of 'The Blanket', often found in the first or last sentence, with supporting details): (1) Old people are rejected even by their relatives in modern society - they are sent to special homes for the aged. (2) Petey cannot believe Dad will really send Granddad away - the blanket Dad brings home proves it. (3) Granddad pretends he wants to go - he praises the blanket, the government place and its comforts, to make the parting easier. (4) It is their last night together - Granddad plays the fiddle tunes Petey will never hear again, including 'one you'd like to remember'. (5) The girl's visit exposes Dad's guilt - she feels the wool, notes that the blanket cost something and is double, and leaves angrily. (6) Petey's scissors teach the lesson - half a blanket is enough for a sent-away old man, and the other half will be Dad's one day. (7) Dad's heart changes - silence, standing before Granddad, forgiveness, and all three crying together.

Universal Themes - Activity

Universal themes are ways to connect ideas across all disciplines: a universal theme is an idea that applies to anyone regardless of cultural differences or geographic location. Examples from the book: (i) Abuse of power, (ii) Corruption, (iii) Freedom, (iv) Parent-child relationship. MODEL WORK (for the p47 Activity - theme of 'The Blanket' and its universality): The theme of 'The Blanket' is the parent-child relationship - the duty children owe their ageing parents, and the truth that children treat their parents as their parents treated theirs. It is universal because every culture and every religion faces the question of old age: everywhere, parents grow old and weak, and everywhere children must choose between gratitude and rejection. The story's lesson - that today's son is tomorrow's father - holds true in every country and every age, which is why the tale moves readers far beyond its own valley and time.

Writing Skills - Research Report

MODEL RESEARCH REPORT (for the p47 task - at least three paragraphs): The characters of 'The Blanket' are Petey, an eleven-year-old boy; his Dad, a widower about to remarry; Granddad, the old fiddle-player; and the pretty girl Dad is going to marry. The flexible character - the one who changes his behaviour as the story develops - is Dad. At the start he is coldly determined: he has bought the blanket and fixed the morning for sending Granddad to the government home, defending himself with 'I wanted him to have the best.' By the end he is silent, remorseful and weeping before his father, his decision changed. The motives that change him are, first, the girl's reproach - her cold remarks that the blanket cost something and is double make him feel guilty; second, and chiefly, Petey's mirror-lesson with the scissors, which shows him his own future as a sent-away old man; and third, Granddad's gentle forgiveness, 'It's all right, son - I know you didn't mean it,' which breaks his heart instead of hardening it.

Grammar - Adjective Phrases

Adjective phrase: a group of words that describes a noun or pronoun in a sentence. It can be placed before or after the noun or pronoun. Examples: The movie was not too terribly long. A person smarter than me needs to figure this out. The final exams were unbelievably difficult. This pie is very delicious and extremely expensive. Everyone was extremely delighted when the winner was announced. MODEL ANSWERS (for the p48 Activity - adjective phrases underlined): i) Faster than a speeding bullet, superman was finished in no time. - 'Faster than a speeding bullet'. ii) Students, upset about the rising cost of tuition, staged a rally. - 'upset about the rising cost of tuition'. iii) That complex has quite small but cheap apartments. - 'quite small but cheap'. iv) The highly emotive actor gave a wonderful performance. - 'highly emotive'. v) Eating out is usually not very healthy. - 'not very healthy'. vi) The extremely tired kitten fell asleep by her food dish. - 'extremely tired'. vii) A dog covered in mud makes a mess in a car. - 'covered in mud'. viii) Cowboys riding into the sunset were in the final scenes of many movies. - 'riding into the sunset'. ix) The man covered in sweat took a well-deserved break. - 'covered in sweat'. x) The music from next door was annoyingly loud. - 'annoyingly loud'.

Grammar - Adjective Clauses

Adjective clause: a dependent clause that, like an adjective, modifies a noun or pronoun. Adjective clauses begin with words such as that, when, where, who, whom, whose, which and why. An essential (restrictive) adjective clause provides information necessary for identifying the word it modifies; a nonessential (nonrestrictive) adjective clause provides additional information, but the word's meaning is already clear, and nonessential clauses are always set off with commas. Note: use 'that' for essential clauses and 'which' for nonessential clauses. Essential example: The art class that Samina takes focuses on design. (That Samina takes is an essential adjective clause; it contains the subject Samina and the verb takes, and modifies the noun class.) Further examples: We are going to the beach that I like the best. Mr.

Naseem is the teacher who helped me with my math problems. The bad weather is the reason why I decided to drive instead of walk. Maria is the person whose family owns a horse ranch. This is the park where we can walk in the evening. Do you remember the time when we almost missed the train? Faheem went to the studio where he takes glassblowing lessons. Monday is the day when I have my doctor's appointment. Nonessential example: The house on the left, which belongs to Javed, is up for sale. Further examples: Hameed, who teaches English language, is my best friend. Quetta, which is capital of Balochistan, is a small city. Tiger, which runs very fast, is a dangerous animal. MODEL ANSWERS (for the p50 Activity - at least ten adjective clauses from 'The Blanket'): (1) 'the girl that he was going to marry' (Dad seeing the girl he would marry). (2) 'the blanket that Dad had bought for him'. (3) 'the last evening that they would have together'. (4) 'the last night they'd be having together'. (5) 'that girl who had kissed him and slobbered over him'. (6) 'the government place where he'd be with so many other old fellows'. (7) 'the morning when I'll pack up my fine blanket'. (8) 'one you'd like to remember' (a tune you would like to remember). (9) 'a fine girl your father is going to marry'. (10) 'the fine blanket my son has given me to go away with'.

Unit 6: Dignity of Labour

Exercise - Reading and Thinking Skills

i) What would the life be like without work?

Ans. Life without work would be worthless, meaningless, dull and boring. It is work that fills life with joys and happiness; only productive and beneficial activity deserves to be called work.

ii) Why is an idle person always gloomy and sick?

Ans. An idle person is always gloomy and sick because idleness eats into the very soul of a man, while a busy man remains happy and healthy. Even the richest men do some sort of work to avoid boredom.

iii) Which works did Hazrat Muhammad (SAW) do?

Ans. Hazrat Muhammad (SAW) drove sheep in the pasture, drew water from the well, mended his shoes and did various sorts of menial work, although he is the most beloved person of Allah Almighty and the cause of the creation of the whole universe.

iv) What will happen if there is no one to sweep our streets?

Ans. If there is nobody to sweep our streets or manage our sewerage system, the whole city will turn into a heap of garbage, which will in turn cause the spread of diseases.

v) What is the value of a worker before God?

Ans. Before God a worker holds a high place: according to Hazrat Muhammad (SAW), the hands of a labourer are dear to Allah Almighty, and a great scholar says Allah is there where the tiller of land is tilling the soil and the path-maker is breaking the stones. The Holy Quran says, 'Verily, we have created man in toil.'

vi) Why is every profession important for a society?

Ans. Every profession is important because no work is inferior to another work and the distinction between works is purely man-made. If the tillers of land refuse to grow wheat and vegetables we shall starve to death, and if the factories stop working we shall have no clothes to wear and no shoes to put on.

vii) What will happen when a nation becomes lazy and lethargic?

Ans. When a nation becomes lethargic and lazy, it meets its final doom. The rise and fall of nations shows that it was the efforts and hard struggle of nations which took them to the height of glory, and laziness brought their downfall.

viii) Which nations have achieved glory through toil and hard work?

Ans. The nations that have achieved glory through toil and hard work are those that kept up continuous struggle and hard work instead of falling into lethargy - the essay states this as a general law of the rise and fall of nations, and gives Sir Syed Ahmed Khan as an example: he became immortal because of his great services to his nation. (General answer from the text; the essay names no list of nations.)

Mark true or false: i) It is work that fills life with joys and happiness.
Ans. True - the essay opens with this very statement: life without work is worthless, and it is work that fills life with joys and happiness.

Mark true or false: ii) An idle man is always happy and healthy.
Ans. False - it is the busy man who remains happy and healthy, whereas an idle person is always gloomy and sick.

Mark true or false: iii) Hazrat Muhammad (SAW) did many sorts of works like grazing sheep, mending his shoes and drawing water from the well.
Ans. True - he drove sheep in the pasture, drew water from the well and mended his shoes, besides other menial work.

Mark true or false: iv) The dignity of labour is not yet recognized by the world.
Ans. False - the dignity of labour is now recognized all over the world.

Mark true or false: v) The distinction made between one work to another is not man-made.
Ans. False - the distinction made between one work and another is purely man-made; no work is inferior to another work.

Mark true or false: vi) If the tillers of land refuse to grow wheat and vegetables, we will definitely starve to death.
Ans. True - the essay says exactly this.

i) A busy man remains ..... and healthy.

Ans. A busy man remains happy and healthy.

ii) A person who tills the land, works in coal mine, factory or builds houses is as honourable as the ..... of a country.

Ans. A person who tills the land, works in coal mine, factory or builds houses is as honourable as the president of a country.

iii) The workers must be convinced of the fact that no work is ..... to another work.

Ans. The workers must be convinced of the fact that no work is inferior to another work.

iv) It is true that life is action and not ..... .

Ans. It is true that life is action and not contemplation.

v) If a nation becomes lazy, it will ..... .

Ans. If a nation becomes lazy, it will meet its final doom.

Reading Skill - Fact and Opinion

FACT AND OPINION: A fact is something that can be proven; an opinion is a belief that may be true but cannot be proven. Examples from this unit - FACT: Hazrat Muhammad (SAW) drove sheep in the pasture and drew water from the well; Quaid-e-Azam said, 'Work, Work and Work'. OPINION: The work of a sweeper is as sacred and noble as that of a bureaucrat or a doctor; a sweeper is far more a dignified person than a learned man who applies no knowledge.

GROUP ACTIVITY (p54, performed in class): Work in groups of five to ten, read a selection, identify its facts and opinions with justification, and write down ten facts and ten opinions from it.

Writing Skills - Research Report

MODEL RESEARCH REPORT (for the p55 task - 'The sewerage system of your area'; area-specific facts must be collected by the student by interviewing community people, visiting and observing the area, and reading books and the internet, as the book's Note directs): A sewerage system is the network of drains, pipes and disposal arrangements that carries waste water and sewage away from homes and streets. A poor sewerage system harms the health of the community: stagnant sewage breeds germs and mosquitoes, spreads diseases such as cholera and typhoid, and makes streets foul and unfit to live in. Responsibility for a bad system lies partly with the civic authorities who must build and maintain it, and partly with residents who throw solid waste into drains and block them. The whole community can work together to keep the area clean by not littering drains, reporting blockages, and cooperating with sweepers and municipal staff. Measures to improve the system are regular cleaning and repair of drains, covered drains, proper disposal of solid waste, and public awareness that a clean sewerage system protects everyone's health.

Grammar - Use of all Tenses

TENSES SUMMARY (pp55-57): Present Simple - repeated actions (He drinks milk daily), general actions (The Sun rises in the East), set future events (We go to Karachi next week), current facts (If we mix red and green, we get yellow). Past Simple - completed past actions (He passed his test yesterday) and past duration/habit (She always carried an umbrella). Future Simple - a specific future action (Ali will go to Khuzdar tomorrow), a promise (I will pay you ten thousand rupees), a plan (We will stay at Pishin), a prediction (It will rain in the next month). Present Perfect - an action at an unspecific past time (Ahmed has travelled overseas several times), an action started in the past and continuing (The children have felt sick ever since they ate lunch), past experience (We have eaten at that restaurant once or twice). Past Perfect - an action before another past action (The aeroplane had taken off before they reached the airport) and duration before a past point (I met him in Dubai in 1980; I had seen him last five years before). Future Perfect - completion before a future point (They will have left for Chaman before you go to see them) and duration before a future point (I will have written the essay by that time). Present Continuous - an action happening now (I am reading a novel now), a continuing action (I am learning English), a planned future action (They are going to Islamabad tomorrow). Past Continuous - an action going on at a past time (When I saw him, he was playing tennis) and persistent past habits (He was always speaking loudly). Future Continuous - an action going on at a future time (When I get home, my children will be doing their homework). Present Perfect Continuous - events started in the past and still continuing (Umer has been living next door to me for two years). Past Perfect Continuous - an ongoing action that continued for some time in the past (He had been teaching English for ten years before he retired). Future Perfect Continuous - an ongoing action that will complete in the future (She will have been serving as a social worker for two years when we leave the city).

Grammar Activity - Tenses in the Unit

MODEL SENTENCES FROM THE UNIT (for the p57 Activity - find sentences of each tense in 'Dignity of Labour'): Present Simple - 'Work makes a man optimist and develops in him confidence and pride.' Past Simple - 'Hazrat Muhammad (SAW) drove sheep in the pasture, drew water from the well, mended his shoes.' Present Perfect - 'The dignity of labour is now recognized all over the world' is present simple passive in form; a true present-perfect example from the unit's spirit is 'Quaid-e-Azam has rightly pointed out the importance of work.' (MODEL sentence, flagged - the unit text itself is written mostly in present and past simple, so students should list the present-simple and past-simple sentences they find and note that other tenses occur rarely in this essay.)

Unit 7: The Choice of a Career

Exercise - Reading and Thinking Skills

i) Why did the youths follow the profession of their parents in the past?

Ans. In the past the youths followed the professions of their parents because they needed not bother themselves with the thoughts of choosing any profession: a merchant's son would become a merchant and a cobbler's son a cobbler. Social conditions have now completely changed, and the culture of democracy has changed the mindset and outlook of the people, so today every individual tends to choose a profession of his own choice.

ii) How does the right choice of a career lead to a happy and healthy life?

Ans. The right choice of a career leads to a happy and healthy life because a man's prosperity and bright future depend largely on the profession he chooses. A career that suits his tastes and talents brings satisfaction and success, whereas the wrong one leads to a gloomy and sad life, and arbitrary decisions often lead to despair and ruin.

iii) Why should one select a profession matching to one's taste and talent?

Ans. One should select a profession matching one's taste and talent because only then can one put one's heart into it and persevere through difficulties. A person forced into an unsuitable profession - a square peg in a round hole - performs poorly or fails completely, while a person in a matching profession devotes himself to it and does not lose heart.

iv) Who was Abraham Lincoln?

Ans. Abraham Lincoln was the son of a poor farmer who chose to become a lawyer and put his wholehearted efforts into this profession. Gradually he became popular among the masses and eventually he was elected as the President of the United States of America. The essay cites him as proof that hard work and strong will can carry a man from very unfavourable circumstances to his goal.

v) What is the role of technical training centres in the development of Germany?

Ans. A German scholar, asked about the reason for the development of his country, replied that the progress and development of Germany lay in establishing technical training centres in which young men were trained in various trades and crafts. The essay says the same is the reason for the development of other European countries, and that Pakistan lacks skilled workers in every field because it has only a few, poorly equipped technical training centres.

vi) What role can media play in motivation of youth?

Ans. Thanks to the role of media, especially the electronic media, the young generation is gradually developing an outward-looking approach and dynamism which the old generation was lacking. Now the youth want to become engineers, scientists and economists, are no more interested in office jobs, and are inclined towards joining the Army, Navy and Air Force - a change of outlook which augurs well for the future of the country.

vii) Is there any career counseling in your college?
Ans. MODEL ANSWER (college-specific - answer for your own college): In our college there is a career counselling arrangement under which teachers guide students about the professions open to them, their requirements, and how to match a profession with one's taste, talent and future prospects. If your college has no formal counselling cell, state so honestly and add that students should consult their elders and specialists before deciding, as the essay advises.

viii) What role does career counseling play for the youth?
Ans. Career counselling plays the role the essay assigns to elders and specialists: choosing a suitable career that can guarantee a respectable position in society is not easy and requires a clear vision and far-sightedness which is not so common among the youth. Counselling helps a young person weigh the pros and cons of a career, check whether it suits his tastes and talents, consider its future, and keep abreast of trends in his society and the whole world, instead of drifting along the current.

Mark true or false: i) One should choose the profession matching to one's talent and interest.

Ans. True - the essay insists that a career must suit one's tastes and talents, besides its future prospects.

Mark true or false: ii) In the past, the youth never followed the profession of their parents.
Ans. False - in the past the youths followed the professions of their parents; a merchant's son became a merchant and a cobbler's son a cobbler.

Mark true or false: iii) One has to earn a valuable amount of money to lead a decent life.
Ans. True - a person cannot live through life by holding on to his taste alone; he has to earn a reasonable amount of money to lead a decent life, so the financial aspect of a career must not be totally ignored.

Mark true or false: iv) Abraham Lincoln was the son of a merchant.
Ans. False - Abraham Lincoln was the son of a poor farmer; it was Quaid-e-Azam who was the son of a merchant.

Mark true or false: v) The clash of interest between the parents and their wards results in poor performance.
Ans. True - the clash of interest between parents and their wards results in either poor performance or complete failure.

Mark true or false: vi) Technical education is not necessary for the development of a country.
Ans. False - technical education is the very reason the essay gives for Germany's and Europe's development, and its absence is why Pakistan lacks skilled workers.

Mark true or false: vii) Media can play a key role in motivation of youth to choose a better career.

Ans. True - thanks to the media, especially electronic media, the youth are developing an outward-looking approach and dynamism and now aim at professions like engineering, science and the armed forces.

Mark true or false: viii) Every educational institute must have career counseling for the students.

Ans. True - the essay's position is that the youth need the guidance of elders and specialists before making a career decision, since clear vision and far-sightedness are not common among them; a counselling arrangement in every institute is the practical form of that guidance. (Unit's implied position, flagged.)

Mark true or false: ix) Technical education has been introduced in every college recently.

Ans. False - technical education has been introduced in many colleges in recent years, not in every college; and Pakistan still has only a few technical training centres, not properly equipped with modern technology.

Mark true or false: x) There are only a few technical training centres in Pakistan.

Ans. True - the essay states that in Pakistan there are only a few technical training centres, and even these are not properly equipped with modern technology.

Writing Skills - Persuasive Essay

MODEL PERSUASIVE ESSAY (for the p63 task - 'Internet that changed our lives'): The internet has changed our lives more deeply than any invention of the last hundred years, and no one can now imagine life without it. It has changed how we learn: a student in a remote town can now read the same books, lectures and newspapers as a student in a big city. It has changed how we work and communicate: messages that once took weeks now reach the other side of the world in seconds, and business, banking and shopping are done from home. It has changed how we spend our leisure, bringing films, music and games to every house. Those who warn about its harms - wasted time, false news and weak social bonds - are right that it must be used wisely, but the remedy is wise use, not rejection: the internet itself is a tool, and like every tool it serves the hand that guides it. We should therefore embrace it, learn to judge what we read on it, and use it to educate ourselves and to earn our living, for a nation that lags behind in the internet age will lag behind in everything.

Oral Communication - Group/Class Presentations

GROUP PRESENTATION OUTLINE (for the p63 activity - 'the right choice of a career', in groups of five to ten): a) What is a career? A career is the profession a person follows through life; his prosperity and bright future depend largely on it. b) How to choose the best career? Weigh its pros and cons, check that it suits your tastes and talents, consider its future, consult elders and specialists, keep abreast of trends, and do not drift along the current or stake your future on a career with little chance of success. c) Benefits of choosing the best career: a happy and healthy life, satisfaction in work, perseverance through difficulties, and a respectable position in society. d) The career you have chosen: state your own choice and your reasons (personal answer - give your chosen profession, how it matches your taste and talent, and what future you expect from it).

Grammar - Adverb, Adverbial Phrases and Clauses

ADVERB: A word that modifies the meaning of an adjective, verb or other adverb. Examples: i) Ahmed is financially weak. ii) The weather is terribly hot today. iii) We should drive very carefully. iv) He plays tennis extremely well. ADVERBIAL PHRASE: A group of words that describes the action of a verb. Examples: i) Are you sitting in a comfortable chair? ii) He draws cartoons like a real cartoonist. iii) The train arrived on time. ADVERBIAL CLAUSE: A subordinate clause that usually describes the action of a verb. Examples: i) A crow attacked a cat while I was waiting for the bus. ii) Put the sign where the students can read it. KINDS OF ADVERBIAL CLAUSES: i) Manner - tells how an action happens: The dog is walking around like he owns the place; He is behaving as if he were our boss. ii) Place - tells where an action takes place: She can study wherever she wants; He stayed where it was comfortable. iii) Time - tells when an action takes place: Every time he cracked a joke, the punters roared with laughter; When the train arrived, they had left the station. iv) Degree - tells to what extent an action takes place: He is not as intelligent as he thinks he is; He is as modest as he is brilliant. v) Reason - tells the reason of an action: He came late because his car got out of order; Since he is working hard, he can win the contest. vi) Condition - tells the condition for a certain result: If they have enough money, they will arrange a nice party; I will help you provided that you become a good person. vii) Concession - expresses an idea that suggests the opposite of the main part: Though he is poor, he is honest; Even if I fail, I will contest once again.

Grammar Activity - Adverbs, Phrases and Clauses in the Unit

MODEL IDENTIFICATIONS (for the p65 Activity - adverbs, adverbial phrases and clauses in 'The Choice of a Career'): ADVERBS - largely ('depends largely on the profession'), carefully ('carefully choose his career'), completely ('have completely changed'), gradually ('he became popular... gradually' and 'is gradually developing'), courageously ('must face courageously the difficulties'). ADVERBIAL PHRASES - 'in the past' (time), 'in our country' (place), 'in various trades and crafts' (manner). ADVERBIAL CLAUSES - 'when he entered the arena of politics' (time), 'while performing his duties' (time), 'before he retired' style time clauses aside, students should underline the finite subordinate clauses they find in the unit, such as 'when he fails to earn his living through these careers' (time) and 'that a career must suit his tastes' is a noun clause, not an adverbial clause, and should not be counted as one.

Unit 8: Be the Best of whatever you are (Poem)

Exercise - Reading and Thinking Skills

i) What is the difference between pine and scrub?

Ans. A pine is a tall tree growing on the top of the hill, while a scrub is a small, low bush growing in the valley by the side of a rill (a small stream). The pine stands high and conspicuous; the scrub is small and lowly - yet the poet says the scrub too can be the best of its kind.

ii) Why does the poet say that we should be a best scrub?

Ans. Because it is not by size that you win or you fail: if you cannot be a pine on the top of the hill, you can still be the best little scrub by the side of the rill. Worth lies not in being great but in being the best of whatever you are, in whatever place life has put you.

iii) Why cannot we all be captains?

Ans. We cannot all be captains because we have got to be crew: there is something for all of us here, big work to do and lesser work to do, and the task we must do is the near one. A ship, like society, needs both captains and crew; if everyone tried to be captain, no work would get done.

iv) Does the poet want to say that everyone should perform his / her duty well?

Ans. Yes. That is the very message of the poem: whatever your work is - pine or scrub, bush or grass, muskie or bass, highway or trail, sun or star - do it as well as it can be done, and be the best of whatever you are. The poet measures a person not by the size of his task but by how well he performs it.

v) What is the main theme of the poem?

Ans. The main theme is the dignity of every honest work and contentment with one's own place in life: do not grieve that you cannot be great; be the best in the position you hold, for success is not measured by size or rank but by excellence in one's own task.

i) If you can't be a pine on the top of the rill: (the question prints 'rill'; the poem says 'hill')

- be a school boy
- ✓ be a scrub in the valley
- be a teacher
- be a tall tree

ii) The poet says that we should be:

- the best little boy
- the best little fellow
- ✓ the best little scrub by the side of the rill
- the best little tree

iii) We should be like:

- a bush by the side of a highway
- a tree by the side of a highway
- ✓ grass by the side of a highway plants by the side of a highway

iv) The poem "Be the Best of Whatever You are" is written by:

William Wordsworth

✓ Douglas Malloch

John Keats

William Blake

v) The poet wants to convey the message that:

✓ one should be best at one's own place

one should be a good person one should be a mischievous fellow

one should be a bad fellow

i) If you can't be a _____ on the top of the hill.

tree

✓ pine apple tree

flower

ii) Be a _____ if you can't be a tree.

tree

pine

✓ bush

flower

iii) We can't all be captains, we have got to be _____.

✓ crew

students teachers

iv) If you can't be the sun be a:
planet ✓ star moon heavenly body

v) Be the _____ of whatever you are.
good worse bad ✓ best

Reading Skill - Use of Figurative Language

FIGURATIVE LANGUAGE: Writers and poets often use figurative language to appeal to the senses and make their stories and poems more interesting. i) SIMILE: a kind of figurative language in which the words 'like' or 'as' are used to show comparison. Examples: a) He ran like wind. b) She is as beautiful as a rose. ii) METAPHOR: a way of describing something by comparing it to something else (without 'like' or 'as'). Examples: a) Qasim has a heart of stone. b) He is a lion. iii) IMAGERY: figurative language which creates mental images, figures or pictures through descriptive language; it improves the reader's experience through the five senses. Example from this poem: 'If you can't be a pine on the top of the hill / Be a scrub in the valley - but be / The best little scrub by the side of the rill' - the hill, valley and rill paint a clear picture in the reader's mind. GROUP ACTIVITY (p69, performed in class): Form groups of five to ten students, read the poem, and discuss the figurative language used by the poet and how he creates pictures or images in your mind - the pine on the hilltop, the scrub by the rill, the muskie and the bass in the lake, the captains and the crew, the highway and the trail, the sun and the star.

Critical Thinking

DISCUSSION (model answer): The best person in his or her profession raises the standard of the whole society. A best teacher shapes honest, capable citizens; a best doctor saves lives that others would lose; a best sweeper keeps a city healthy; a best judge keeps justice alive. Such people become examples that others follow, they earn trust, and their work, though it may be 'lesser work' in the poem's words, holds society together - for, as the poem says, the task we must do is the near one, and doing it best is what makes a person great.

Writing Skills - Compare and Contrast Essay

COMPARE AND CONTRAST ESSAY: An essay that discusses the similarities and differences between two things, people, places or concepts - for example the similarities and differences between two places like Quetta and Ziarat, between two religions like Islam and Christianity, or between two people like my brother and myself.

MODEL ESSAY (for the p70 Activity - two cities of your choice, here Quetta and Ziarat): Quetta and Ziarat are both famous cities of Balochistan, yet they differ greatly. Quetta is the provincial capital, a large, busy city with offices, colleges, hospitals and markets, and a dry, cold-winter climate. Ziarat is a small hill town, quiet and green with juniper forests, famous as a summer resort and as the place where Quaid-e-Azam spent his last days. Both share the same province, the same rugged mountain beauty, and the same hospitable people; but Quetta offers the life of a city - work, education and trade - while Ziarat offers rest, fresh air and natural beauty. A visitor to Quetta sees Balochistan at work; a visitor to Ziarat sees Balochistan at rest. Then proof-read and edit each other's essays, as the Activity directs.

Oral Communication - Class Presentations

CLASS PRESENTATION PLAN (p70 - follow these steps): (a) Make a list of works which benefit mankind - e.g. teaching, medicine, farming, engineering, sweeping and cleaning, writing. (b) Make a list of great people and the works they did for mankind - e.g. doctors who fought disease, teachers who spread knowledge, leaders who won freedom. (c) Draft your presentation. (d) Proof-read it and re-draft it. (e) Present it in the class.

Grammar - Noun, Noun Phrases and Noun Clauses

NOUN: A word that functions as the name of something or a set of things, such as living creatures, objects, places, actions, qualities, states of existence or ideas. Examples: i) The cat sat on the mat. ii) They studied in school for ten years. iii) Cleanliness is the half faith. iv) The man who controls anger is a strong man. USES OF A NOUN: In a sentence, nouns can play the role of subject, object, complement or appositive. As SUBJECT: i) Ahmed is an intelligent student. ii) My friend secured A+ grade in M.Phil. As OBJECT: I gave many books to my friend ('books' is a direct object and 'friend' an indirect object). As COMPLEMENT: He is a very good teacher ('teacher' tells what 'he' is); They appointed him as a lecturer ('lecturer' tells what 'him' is). As APPOSITIVE: An appositive noun immediately follows another noun in order to further define it - My brother, Ali, is 25 years old ('Ali' further defines 'my brother'). NOUN PHRASE: A phrase that has a noun as its head and can occupy the same slot as a single noun. Examples: i) I am afraid of spiders (noun) / I am afraid of black spiders (noun phrase). ii) She was reading a book (noun) / She was reading her favourite book (noun phrase). USES OF NOUN PHRASES: i) As subject: A boy with short hair was standing outside the departmental store; The books on the shelf belong to my brother. ii) As object: He was talking to a boy with short hair; He ordered for the books on the shelf. iii) As complement: This room is the guest room; This is a two litre bottle. iv) In apposition: The bookshelf, a modern piece of furniture, was moved into the house first; The insect, a large and hairy creature, scared the children. NOUN CLAUSE: A subordinate clause that can have the same function or fill the same slot in a sentence as a noun. USES: i) As subject: Whoever ate my lunch is in big trouble; That the department cancelled the lecture disappoints me. ii) As object: Do you know when the train will arrive? I do not know who he was talking to. iii) As complement: The truth is that he secured A+ grade; The committee has announced the winner whoever wrote the essay on noun clauses. NOUN CLAUSES IN APPOSITION: That man, whoever he is, bought some books to read; The problem, that the earthquake demolished the town, affected his senses.

Grammar Activity - Sentences in Apposition

MODEL SENTENCES (for the p73 Activity - write five sentences of nouns, noun phrases and noun clauses in apposition): 1) My teacher, Mr. Ahmed, is very kind. (noun in apposition) 2) Quetta, the capital of Balochistan, is a beautiful city. (noun phrase in apposition) 3) Douglas Malloch, the author of this poem, is called the 'Lumberman's Poet'. (noun phrase in apposition) 4) My friend, whoever he is, will help me in need. (noun clause in apposition, on the book's pattern) 5) The news, that our college won the match, made everyone happy. (noun clause in apposition, on the book's pattern)

Unit 9: The Scholarship Jacket

Exercise - Reading and Thinking Skills

i) What tradition was followed by the small Texas school every year during the eighth grade graduation?

Ans. Every year during the eighth grade graduation, a beautiful gold and green jacket, the school colors, was awarded to the class valedictorian - the student who had maintained the highest grades for eight years. The jacket had a big gold S on the left front side and the winner's name written in gold letters on the pocket.

ii) Describe the scholarship jacket awarded to the class valedictorian?

Ans. The scholarship jacket was a beautiful gold and green jacket in the school colors. It had a big gold S on the left front side, and the winner's name was written in gold letters on the pocket. It was awarded free to the valedictorian, who also gave a little thank-you speech on graduation night.

iii) Why was Martha given to her grandparents to raise?

Ans. Martha was given to her grandparents to raise when she was six because her father was a farm laborer who could not earn enough money to feed eight children.

iv) Why couldn't Martha participate in sports at school?

Ans. Martha could not participate in sports at school because there were registration fees, uniform costs and trips out of town, which her family could not afford - so even though she and her siblings were quite agile and athletic, there would never be a sports school jacket for them. The scholarship jacket was their only chance.

v) What were Martha's history and math teachers arguing about?
Ans. Martha overheard her history teacher Mr. Schmidt and her math teacher Mr. Boone arguing about her. Mr. Boone wanted the jacket to go to Joann, whose father was on the Board and owned the only store in town, saying it was a close tie; Mr. Schmidt refused, saying he would not lie or falsify records, because Martha had a straight A plus average and Joann's grades did not even begin to compare with Martha's. Martha also caught the words 'Martha is Mexican' and 'resign' and 'won't do it'.

vi) What was the change in policy regarding the scholarship Jacket?
Ans. The change in policy was that the scholarship jacket would no longer be free: this year the Board decided to charge fifteen dollars for it, which still would not cover the complete cost of the jacket, and if the winner was unable to pay, the jacket would be given to the next one in line.

vii) Why did the school change the policy regarding the award of the scholarship Jacket?
Ans. The reason the principal gives is cost: the Board decided to charge fifteen dollars, which still would not cover the complete cost of the jacket. The story states no other official reason. (Martha herself suspected the change was timed to take the jacket from her, since Joann's father sat on the Board - that is her suspicion in the story, not a stated reason, and it is flagged here as such.)

viii) What did her grandpa say when Martha told him about payment to be made for the Jacket?

Ans. Her grandpa asked quietly, 'What does a scholarship jacket mean?' and when Martha answered that it means you have earned it by having the highest grades for eight years, he said, 'Then if you pay for it, Martha, it's not a scholarship jacket, is it? Tell your principal I will not pay the fifteen dollars.'

ix) What is your opinion of the principal of the school? (p82, printed as iii)

Ans. OPINION (model answer): The principal is a weak but not heartless man. At first he hides behind the Board's new policy and avoids Martha's eyes, and he even taunts her that her grandfather owns a small bean farm; but when Martha, with dignity, refuses to pay and says he will just have to give it to Joann, he stops her and makes an exception in her case. He does the right thing in the end, but only after Martha's courage forces him to face what the policy really meant.

x) What would be your reaction if you had been deprived of a justly earned award? (p82, printed as iv)

Ans. MODEL ANSWER: I would feel what Martha felt - shock, anger and sadness, and I would cry in private as she did. But I would also do what she and her grandfather did: state the truth calmly and with dignity, refuse to buy what I had already earned, and ask the authorities to correct the injustice, rather than accept a bought award or give up quietly.

Mark true or false: i) The small Texas school awarded a scholarship Jacket to the class valedictorian every year.
Ans. True - this was the school's yearly tradition at eighth grade graduation.

Mark true or false: ii) Martha did not hope to get the scholarship jacket.
Ans. False - Martha fully expected to win it: she had been a straight A student since the first grade and had looked forward all last year to owning that jacket, as her oldest sister Rosie had won it a few years back.

Mark true or false: iii) Martha was a very dull student.
Ans. False - Martha was a straight A student since the first grade, with a straight A plus average in eighth grade; her teachers called her a good forward in P.E. too.

Mark true or false: iv) Martha's father was a farm laborer.
Ans. True - her father was a farm laborer who could not earn enough to feed eight children.

Mark true or false: v) Martha was called "Beanpole" and "String Bean" in school.
Ans. True - pencil thin, not a curve anywhere, she was called 'Beanpole' and 'String Bean'.

Mark true or false: vi) Martha's teacher, Mr. Schmidt favored her to get scholarship jacket.

Ans. True - Mr. Schmidt argued angrily for Martha, refusing to lie or falsify records, and at the end of the day winked at her and said he heard she was getting a scholarship jacket this year.

Mark true or false: vii) The Board decided to charge fifteen dollars for the scholarship jacket.

Ans. True - the principal told Martha the Board had decided to charge fifteen dollars this year.

Mark true or false: viii) The principal finally decided not to award the scholarship jacket to Martha.

Ans. False - the principal finally made an exception in her case and told her she would get her jacket.

Mark true or false: ix) Martha's history teacher was happy that the scholarship Jacket would be awarded to her.

Ans. True - Mr. Schmidt, her history teacher, winked at her and said, 'I hear you're getting a scholarship jacket this year', his face looking as happy and innocent as a baby's.

Mark true or false: x) Martha was too glad to get the scholarship Jacket.

Ans. True - she felt great, felt as tall as the sky, ran to tell Grandpa, and cried on the walk home again, this time because she was so happy.

i) Every year, the small Texas school carried out:

- a competition
- ✓ a tradition
- a football match
- a debate contest

ii) The winner's name was written in gold letters:

- in the pocket
- inside the pocket
- ✓ on the pocket
- on the collar

iii) Martha couldn't take part in sports because:

- ✓ her parents were poor
- her parents were out of the town
- her parents were rude
- her parents disliked sports

iv) Mr. Schmidt favored Martha because:

- she had a straight B plus average
- she had a C plus average
- she had an A average
- ✓ she had a straight A plus average

v) Martha's grandfather said if she had to pay for it:

- ✓ then it wouldn't be a scholarship Jacket
- then it would be a prize

then it would be a scholarship Jacket

then it wouldn't be a scholarship

Reading Skill - The Speaker or Narrator in a Story

THE SPEAKER OR NARRATOR: The speaker or narrator in a story is the person who tells the story. In 'The Scholarship Jacket', the narrator is the author Martha Salinas herself. She uses the pronouns 'I, me, my, we, us, our' as a first person point of view - the story is told by Martha as a fourteen-year-old girl remembering her eighth-grade year.

Reading Skill - Author's Purpose and Point of View

AUTHOR'S PURPOSE: When an author writes something, he or she has a purpose: (a) To entertain - the author has a funny or an unusual story to tell. (b) To inform - the author tells us about a thing, animal or place in order to give us information. (c) To express an opinion - the author expresses his or her opinion about a thing or an animal etc. For example: Eagles are proud birds. (d) To persuade - the author writes because he or she wants us to do something. ACTIVITY (p84): Re-read 'The Scholarship Jacket' and identify the narrator and the author's purpose with examples from the text - the narrator is Martha herself in first person ('I was fourteen and in the eighth grade', 'I fully expected to win also'); her purpose is chiefly to inform and to express an opinion - to show, through her own experience, that an earned award must not be bought, and that dignity matters more than money.

Reading Skill - Transitional Words

TRANSITIONAL WORDS: Transitional words are words or groups of words that connect ideas; they help readers follow the chronological order. TIME: in 1977, on Tuesday, in the morning, at noon, ten years ago. SEQUENCE: first, second, next, then, finally. PERIOD OF TIME: for five years, in the summer, last week, for five days, for few moments. ACTIVITY (p84, group work): Re-read 'The Scholarship Jacket' and identify transitional words and discuss the chronological order of events - e.g. 'a few years back' (Rosie won the jacket), 'since the first grade' (straight A student), 'last year' (looked forward to the jacket), 'in May, close to graduation' (overheard the teachers), 'the next day' (principal called her), 'tomorrow' (the money deadline), 'at the end of the day' (Mr. Schmidt's wink), 'after' (telling Grandpa in the field).

Writing Skills - Personal Narrative

PERSONAL NARRATIVE: A personal narrative is a story about real events that happened to the author. Its features: Characters - real people in the author's life; Events and problems - events and problems in the author's life; First person point of view - the pronouns I, me, we and us. ACTIVITY (p85, model guidance): As you read 'The Scholarship Jacket', observe the events and problems in the author's life - poverty, the $15 charge, the grandfather's refusal, the principal's exception. Then write your own personal narrative of three to four paragraphs about a similar experience of your own: an award, a fee or a rule that seemed unfair, how you felt, what you said or did, and how it ended. (Personal - write your own true experience; the story above is only the model.)

Grammar - Prepositions

PREPOSITION: A word that shows how a noun or a pronoun is related to other words in the sentence. 1) POSITION: words which tell us the actual location of objects are known as prepositions of position - between, among, on, upon, above, over, below, under etc. 2) TIME: prepositions of time express a specific time period or the actual time a certain thing takes place - in, at, after, later, ago, before etc. 3) MOVEMENT AND DIRECTION: prepositions of movement or direction show movement from one place to another; they are most often used with verbs of motion and are found after the verb - to, towards, through, into, across, over, along etc. LIST OF PREPOSITIONS OF POSITION: BETWEEN - a position which separates two things, used in the middle of two objects or locations: My office is between my college and home. AMONG - denotes belonging of a thing or a person to a group, used when comparing with more than two: She is tallest among the three siblings. ON - refers to things touching and above something: The cat is on the table. UPON - refers to that denotation in which one is in motion while the other is at rest: The leopard jumped upon the deer. ABOVE - an object being vertically higher than another thing, both not in contact: The parachute jumper is flying above the clouds. OVER - denotes something covering higher: There is a bridge over the river. BELOW - something lower than other things and not in contact: Questions are given below the text. UNDER - an object being exactly below or vertically down and not in contact: My brother is sitting under a tree. ACROSS - refers to the opposite side of something: There is a mango tree across the river. THROUGH - the sense of crossing from something: He went out through the window. BESIDE - next to something/someone: She is sitting beside the teacher. NEAR - nearby: His office is near his apartment. OPPOSITE TO - the other side: The bank is opposite to the Government College. BY - next to something/somebody: There is a small jug by the bed. IN FRONT OF - facing something: There is a cupboard in front of my fridge. BEHIND - something at the back: The teacher is standing behind me. AT - a location or position as in time or on a scale or in order: At the beginning of the year, children are informed about the rules and regulations of the college. IN - used with the larger area: I live in Germany. PREPOSITIONS OF TIME: AFTER / LATER - use after + phrase, and use later alone (at the end of a sentence or phrase): I'll call you later; I'll call you after I get home from work. You can say 'later + time period' for an unspecified future time: I'll finish the project later this week; We'll go on vacation later this year. Never end a sentence with 'after' - instead use 'afterwards': 'No, we went out for drinks after.' (Incorrect) / 'No, we went out for drinks afterwards.' (Correct). AGO / BEFORE - use ago for past times in reference to the current moment, before for past times in reference to another moment in the past: He taught English language ten years ago; The train had arrived before we reached the station. BY / UNTIL - use by for one specific event that will happen before a certain time in the future, until for a continuous event that will continue and then stop at a certain time in the future: Please send me the information by Monday; He's staying in Karachi until the 30th. DURING / WHILE - both mean something happens at the same time as something else: use during + noun (She cried during the movie); use while + subject + verb, or while + gerund (She cried while she was watching the movie; She cried while watching the movie). FROM... TO / TILL / UNTIL - from + to / till / until defines the beginning and end of a time period: The museum is open from 8 AM to 4 PM; Naeem will be on vacation from tomorrow until next Friday; I studied English from 2001 till 2004. ON / IN / AT - use in for centuries, decades, years, seasons and months (In the 18th century, In the 1960s, In 2001, In the summer, In October); use on for days (On Friday, On March 15th, On my birthday, On the weekend); use at for times (At 3:30, At noon, At quarter past four). Be careful with morning, afternoon, evening and night: In the morning, In the afternoon, In the evening, At night. PAST / TO - with minutes in relation to the hour: 3:50 = Ten to four, 6:15 = Quarter past six. FOR / SINCE - for is used for a period of time, since refers to a specific point in time: I've been waiting for three hours; I've been waiting since ten o'clock. AS SOON AS / AS LONG AS - as soon as means 'immediately after another event': We'll call you as soon as we arrive. As long as means 'for the period of time' or 'on the condition that': I stayed awake for as long as I could (period of time); I'll take the job as long as I have the freedom to work from home a few days a week (condition). PREPOSITIONS OF MOVEMENT AND POSITION: TO / TOWARDS - to indicates movement with the aim of a specific destination, a place or an event: I'm travelling to France tomorrow; I've never been to a football match. Note that up to is often used to express movement to a person: He came up to me and asked me what the time was. Towards indicates movement in a particular direction: She was carrying a suitcase and walking towards him. THROUGH AND INTO - through refers to movement within a space which can be thought of as three-dimensional: They couldn't get the new sofa through the door; Through usually suggests movement across an entire space, from one side of something to another: He cut through the wire. Into refers to movement from the outside to the inside of a three-dimensional space: We got into the back of the car. ACROSS, OVER AND ALONG - across and over are used to talk about movement from one side of a place to another, in relation to places which can be thought of as two-dimensional, such as surfaces (a lawn) or lines (a river): I'll jump over the wall and open the gate; How are we going to get across the stream? Over also functions as a preposition expressing position, often with a similar meaning to above: There was a mirror above/over the sink. IN AND ON AS PREPOSITIONS OF MOVEMENT - the core function of in is as an indicator of the position of something in relation to the three-dimensional space that surrounds it: They were having a picnic in the park. However, in can also express movement towards the inside of a container, place or area: Can you put the milk in the fridge? CLASS PRESENTATION ACTIVITY (p91, group work): Work in groups of five to ten students, prepare a class presentation on 'The use of Prepositions', select one kind of preposition and explain it in your own words before the class.

Unit 10: Gender Inequality

Exercise - Reading and Thinking Skills

i) What is the view of Socrates about the status of woman in the society?

Ans. Socrates said, 'Once made equal to man, woman becomes his superior.' The essay cites this as one extreme view in the old debate about woman's right place in society - the view that equality would not merely level woman with man but raise her above him.

ii) How can you explain the point of view of Edmund Burke regarding women rights?

Ans. Edmund Burke held the opposite, degrading view: according to him, 'A woman is but an animal and an animal not of the highest order.' The essay cites this to show how low some thinkers placed woman - denying her full human status, in contrast to Socrates' praise of her.

iii) Explain the Orthodox Christians point of view about women.

Ans. The Orthodox Christians consider women as the cause of all evils, for it was Eve that enticed Adam to commit the first sin by eating the forbidden fruit, which caused the Great Fall. In Judaism too, the essay adds, Hebrew scriptures condemn women to an eternal curse: 'of the woman came the beginning of sin and through her we all die.'

iv) What was the condition of women in pre-Islamic Arab society?

Ans. In pre-Islamic Arab society the condition of women was pitiable: they were considered a disgrace to their families, female children were buried and treated as the personal property of menfolk, and young maidens were traded as slaves in the open markets.

v) How did Islam change mindset of man regarding the status of women?

Ans. Islam changed man's mindset, including his social and religious thinking, by placing women at a respectable place in society. It gave them a vast amount of freedom enabling them to contribute towards the general welfare of society, and it holds as a fundamental principle that woman is a human being, equal to man, with equal rights.

vi) Does Islam give woman the right to own property?

Ans. Yes. Islam recognizes an independent economic status of woman and gives her the right to own property, use and enjoy it without any intermediary, trustee or mediator. She has similar rights to hold property, mortgage it, bequeath it, sell or buy it, or exploit it for her own benefit - rights which, the essay notes, the legal systems of Europe did not give women until very recently, and then only indirectly through a man.

vii) Which year was declared as "International Women's Year" by United Nations?

Ans. The United Nations declared 1975 as 'International Women's Year'. For perhaps the first time in history, the eyes of the world were focused on that half of its population who, by virtue of an accident of birth, perform two-thirds of the world's work, receive one-tenth of its income and own less than one-hundredth of its property.

viii) What does the Hazrat Muhammad (SAW) say about the status of women in the society?

Ans. In his farewell sermon Hazrat Muhammad (SAW) said, 'O people, it is true that you have certain rights with regard to your women, but they also have rights over you. Do treat your women well and be kind to them, for they are your partners and committed helpers.' He presented the first charter of Human Rights, in which women were placed at an equal level with men, and dismantled the concept of woman as a necessary evil, the devil's gateway or the deserter of Divine law.

ix) What jobs are chosen by women in our society?

Ans. According to the essay, in our society women are found in quite a large number in education, but even there they are confined to the teaching side and only a small number get a chance to become top educational administrators. In certain professions like army, police, architecture and engineering, the entry of women is considered a taboo, and in public and private employment their share in supervisory positions is very little, and at the top ranks in administration thinner still.

x) What kind of role can women play in development of a country?
Ans. Women can play the fullest role in a country's development: the preamble to the Declaration on Elimination of Discrimination against Women (November 7, 1967), quoted in the essay, states that the development of a country, the welfare of the world and the cause of peace require the maximum participation of women as well as men in all fields. Quaid-i-Azam said at Aligarh University in 1944, 'No nation can rise to the level of glory unless your women are side by side with you... You should take your women along with you as comrades in every sphere of life.' The essay adds that women must work together with men, understanding the true spirit of the Holy Quran, so that there is no widespread resistance to their participation in national life.

Mark true or false: i) According to Socrates, women will gain superiority if they are given equal status to man.
Ans. True - Socrates said, 'Once made equal to man, woman becomes his superior.'

Mark true or false: ii) The Orthodox Christians do not consider woman as the cause of all evils.
Ans. False - the Orthodox Christians do consider women as the cause of all evils, since Eve enticed Adam to the first sin.

Mark true or false: iii) Islam gives equal rights to women.
Ans. True - Islam holds as a fundamental principle that woman is a human being, equal to man, and thus has equal rights, including the right to own and dispose of property and to choose her husband.

Mark true or false: iv) According to Islam, women are not allowed to choose their husbands.

Ans. False - she is free to choose her husband; no marriage is valid unless she agrees to it. Hazrat Muhammad (SAW) said no widow should be married without consulting her, and no virgin without her assent, and her assent is her silence; even after the ceremony, if she declares she does not assent, the marriage is dissolved.

Mark true or false: v) The word "feminism" was first coined by the younger Duma's in a pamphlet "L" Homme femme' in 1872.

Ans. True - the essay states that the word 'Feminism' was first coined by the Younger Dumas in a pamphlet 'L'Homme femme' in 1872, and it had a deep impact on people's minds.

Writing Skills - Business Letters

BUSINESS LETTER: A business letter is written from one company or organization to another, or for correspondence between organizations and their customers, clients and other external parties. It is written in formal language, and its overall style depends on the relationship between the organizations or companies. FORMAT (model letter in the book, p101 - a letter to the editor of a magazine for printing an advertisement): Heading - Welfare Educational Society, Shahbaz Town, Quetta, April 21st, 2018. Inside Address - News Express, 52-F, Jinnah Road, Quetta. Salutation - Dear Mr. Faheem, Body - We have a Welfare Educational Society at Quetta, managing a group of colleges offering various courses in medical, computer, engineering and management; the detailed list of courses, their duration and fee structure is attached herewith; we are interested in admitting students from all over Balochistan and would like the help of your magazine to give wide circulation to our admission notice; you are kindly requested to provide the details of the cost of the package, and we would appreciate it if you kindly enlighten us about the overall impact of this advertisement. Closing - With warm regards, Thanking you, Yours sincerely, Signature - Nadir Khan, Welfare Educational Society, Quetta. ACTIVITY (p102, model letter): Write a letter to a company to place an order for stationery material for your company - follow the same format: your company's heading and date, the supplier's inside address, a formal salutation, a body stating the items, quantities and rates required and requesting delivery by a date, and a formal closing with signature and designation. (Model format given; the student's own company and items are personal details.)

Oral Communication - Group/Class Presentations

GROUP PRESENTATION PLAN (p102 - 'How to work for the awareness of enrollment in the schools in your province?', in groups of five to ten): i) Brainstorm your ideas - door-to-door campaigns, parent meetings, mosque and community announcements, radio messages, free books and uniforms. ii) Make a mind map. iii) Make an outline of your ideas. iv) Write down the introduction. v) Support your ideas with reasoning - every child in school raises literacy, health and future earnings for the whole province. vi) Write down the conclusion.

Vocabulary - Translation

TRANSLATION: Translation from one language to another is not an easy job; it needs knowledge of both languages. A good command of grammar, vocabulary, idioms and phrases is the basic requirement of translation, and word-for-word translation changes the core concept of the language. Book examples (p102): i) See him off at the station. ii) Work whole heartedly. iii) Talk politely. iv) I have known him for a long time. v) He is an apple of his father's eye. (The book prints the Urdu equivalents in Urdu script beside each sentence.) ACTIVITY (p103 - translate the seventh paragraph of the unit into Urdu): The seventh paragraph is the one beginning 'Islam holds a fundamental principle that woman is a human being, equal to man...' Its sense in Urdu (transliteration, since this English-medium notes PDF uses Latin script): 'Islam ka bunyadi usool yeh hai ke aurat aik insan hai, mard ke barabar, aur is liye us ke huqooq barabar hain. Dunya mein apni madi zarooratein poori karne ke liye un ke huqooq barabar hain, jin mein jayedad rakhne, girvi rakhne, wasiyat karne, khareedne ya baichne ya apne faide ke liye istemal karne ke huqooq shamil hain.' (Full Urdu-script translation to be written by the student in the notebook, following the book's script examples.)

Grammar - Capitalization

RULES OF CAPITALIZATION: (a) CAPITALIZE PROPER NAMES - names of particular persons, places and things: 1) Words referring to the Deity: Allah, God, Almighty, Creator, King of kings and Lord. (Do not capitalize the word god when referring to pagan deities.) Note: Capitalize pronouns that refer to the Deity: God always keeps His promises. 2) Name of Satan, angels, human beings: The Devil, Gabriel, Saima, Fahim, Tariq. (The abbreviations Jr. and Sr. are capitalized following a name.) 3) Continents, countries, states, provinces, cities: Antarctica, Pakistan, Balochistan, Quetta, Mastung, Lahore. 4) Recognized political or geographical regions: The South, the Far West, the Northwest (U.S); the Far East, the Near East. (Do not capitalize north, east, south, west, northwest, etc. when they refer to a direction: west of town, driving east.) Note: Do not capitalize adjectives that merely indicate a portion of a region: southern France, eastern Balochistan. Do capitalize adjectives that are part of a name referring to a political or geographical division: Central America, West Germany, Northern Ireland, Eastern Samoa, South Korea, Western Europe. 5) Islands, bodies of water, mountains, parks: Baffin Island, Isle Royale; Old Harbour Bay, Caribbean Sea; Big Horn Mountains, Mount Whitney; Hazar Gangi National Park. 6) Streets and highways: Zaib-un-Nisa Street, Najeeb Street, Forty-second Street. (The second part of a hyphenated number is not capitalized.) 7) Special organizations: The Security Council, Congress, State Department, Library of Congress, Supreme Court of Pakistan. 8) Calendar items and special events: Friday, May, Eid, Sibi Festival. Note: Names of the seasons (spring, summer, fall, autumn, winter) are not capitalized unless personified: Then came Autumn in her multicolored garb. 9) Historical events and periods: Hundred Years War, Battle of Panipat, Great Depression, Romantic Age. 10) Nationalities, races, and tribes: Pakistani, Dravidian, Bugti, Tareen. 11) Religious writings, groups and terms: The Quran, Hadith, Catholic, Crucifixion. 12) Languages and particular courses: Pakistani, Japanese, Functional English 601, Computer Science 205. (The number after the subject indicates a particular course.) 13) Brand names of business products: Dunlop tires, Blue Band. (Do not capitalize the common noun after the brand name.) 14) Monuments, bridges, buildings, documents, planes, ships and any other particular persons, places or things: Death Valley, National Monument, Man, Safina, Balochistan Bridge, Habib Plaza. (b) CAPITALIZE THE TITLES OF WORKS: Capitalize the first and last words and all content words in the titles of books, magazines, newspapers, poems, stories, plays, musical compositions, paintings, sculpture, and other works of art. Function words, coordinating conjunctions, prepositions and the articles (a, an and the) are not capitalized. Examples: Exploring the World of English (book); News and Views (magazine); Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening (poem); The Merchant of Venice (Play). FUNCTION WORDS: words which have little meaning on their own, but which show grammatical relationship in and between sentences - and, to, the etc.; also called grammatical or structural words. CONTENT WORDS: words which refer to a thing, quality, state or action, and have meaning when they are used alone - world, play, happy, quickly etc.; also called lexical words. MISCELLANEOUS: 1) Capitalize the first word of every sentence (including quoted sentences): The sleep of a labouring man is sweet. Vince Lombardi said, 'Fatigue makes cowards of us all.' 2) Capitalize the pronoun 'I' and the interjection 'O'. (The more common interjection oh is followed by a comma or an exclamation point; O is never followed by punctuation.) Return, O Lord, deliver my soul: oh, save me for Thy mercies' sake. 3) Capitalize the first word in every line of poetry, whether or not the word begins a sentence: If you can't be a pine on the top of the hill / Be a scrub in the valley - but be / The best little scrub by the side of the rill; / Be a bush if you can't be a tree.

Grammar Activity - Capitalize the Relevant Words

CORRECTED PARAGRAPH (for the p105 Activity): 'My lively, funny grandfather, Akbar, lives in Kalat, a quiet suburb of Balochistan, Pakistan. He has occupied the same house for over fifty years. This is my favourite place in the world. Whenever I think of the lush gardens by the house, I feel warm and secure.' (Capitalized: sentence beginnings My, He, This, Whenever; the name Akbar; the place names Kalat, Balochistan, Pakistan; and the pronoun I.)

Unit 11: The Rubaiyat of Omer Khayyam (Poem)

Exercise - Reading and Thinking Skills

i) What does "The Worldly Hope" mean?

Ans. 'The Worldly Hope' means the hopes men set their hearts upon in this world - wealth, fame, power and other worldly gains. The quatrain says such hope turns to ashes, or if it prospers, it lasts only a little hour or two and is gone, like snow upon the desert's dusty face.

ii) Why has "Omar Khayyam" compared desert snow with the temporary worldly hopes?

Ans. Because desert snow and worldly hopes share the same brief fate: snow falling on the desert's dusty face lights up the ground for a little hour or two and then melts and is gone. In the same way, worldly hopes, even when they prosper, shine only briefly and then vanish - they do not last.

iii) Explain in your own words the Rubai "AWAKE! For Morning in the Bowl of Night."

Ans. The poet calls on the sleeper to awake, because morning has come: like a stone flung into the bowl of night, the dawn has put the stars to flight, and the Hunter of the East - the sun - has caught the Sultan's turret (the sky, or the highest tower) in a noose of light. In plain words: night is over, the stars have fled before the sunrise, and the sun now holds the whole sky in its light - so rise and do not sleep your life away.

iv) What does "The Moving Finger" mean?

Ans. 'The Moving Finger' means fate, or the hand of destiny that writes the record of our lives. It writes and, having written, moves on: no piety, no wisdom, no tears can lure it back to cancel half a line or wash out a single word. What is written - what has happened - cannot be undone.

v) Write down the main theme of the Rubai "There was a Door to which I found no key."

Ans. The main theme is the mystery of human existence and the limits of human knowledge: there was a door to which the poet found no key, and a veil past which he could not see. Of 'Me and Thee' there was only some little talk for a while, and then there was no more of Thee and Me - life, death and what lies beyond them remain locked and veiled from man, however much he questions.

vi) Why does the poet compare "Spring with Youth"?

Ans. Because spring and youth are alike in beauty and in brevity: spring comes with the rose, youth comes with its sweet-scented manuscript - the fresh, fragrant record of a young life - and both vanish all too soon. The poet grieves that spring should vanish with the rose and youth's sweet-scented manuscript should close, just as the nightingale that sang in the branches flies away, and no one knows whence it came or whither it has flown again.

vii) What is the main theme of the Rubai "Yet Ah, that Spring should vanish with the Rose!"

Ans. The main theme is the transience of youth and beauty: spring, youth and the nightingale's song all pass away. The poet laments that what is sweetest in life - the springtime of youth, like the rose and the nightingale's song - does not stay, and its going leaves only wonder at where it came from and where it has gone.

i) When the sun rises, the stars:

- appear
- ✓ vanish
- disappear
- burn

ii) The Hunter of the East means:

- stars
- ✓ sun
- son
- earth

iii) In Rubaiyat of Omer Khayyam, the word manuscript means:

- destiny
- period
- ✓ life
- death

iv) We can change our destiny by:

- piety
- intelligence

tears

✓ nothing

v) The snow in the desert vanishes in:

few months

some years

✓ two hours

twelve hours

Mark true or false: i) The sun has put the stars to flight.

Ans. True - morning has flung the stone that puts the stars to flight, and the Hunter of the East has caught the sky in a noose of light.

Mark true or false: ii) The worldly hope remains forever.

Ans. False - worldly hope turns to ashes, or prospers only to vanish like desert snow after a little hour or two.

Mark true or false: iii) We can change our destiny by piety.

Ans. False - neither piety nor wit can lure the Moving Finger back to cancel half a line, nor can tears wash out a word of it.

Mark true or false: iv) The youth ends very soon.

Ans. True - spring vanishes with the rose, and youth's sweet-scented manuscript closes all too soon.

Mark true or false: v) The nightingale sings throughout the year.

Ans. False - the nightingale sang in the branches in spring, and then flew away; the poet asks whence it came and whither it has flown again, which shows its song belongs to the spring season, not the whole year.

Critical Thinking

LESSON (model answer): The lesson of the Rubaiyat is to value the present and to be humble before fate: worldly hopes are brief like desert snow, youth passes like spring with the rose, and what is written cannot be unwritten. Therefore a person should not spend his whole life chasing worldly gains only, nor grieve endlessly over the past; he should live wisely, do good while he can, and accept that life, death and the world beyond remain partly a locked door and a veil.

Reading Skill - Examples to Support an Opinion

EXAMPLES TO SUPPORT AN OPINION: A writer or poet presents his or her opinion to persuade the readers; in order to support his or her opinion, the writer or poet gives examples and reasons.

ACTIVITY (p109): The poet's opinion is that the world and our lives are temporary and beyond our control. Examples he gives to support it: (1) worldly hope turns to ashes or prospers only a little hour or two, like snow upon the desert's dusty face; (2) the Moving Finger writes and moves on, and neither piety, wit nor tears can cancel half a line; (3) spring vanishes with the rose and youth's sweet-scented manuscript closes; (4) the nightingale that sang in the branches flies away, and no one knows whence or whither; (5) there is a door to which no key was found and a veil past which no eye could see.

Writing Skills - Research Report and Essay

MODEL RESEARCH REPORT (for the p109 task - 'Purpose of man's creation'): Man was created for a purpose higher than eating, drinking and gathering wealth. The world around him - the sun that puts the stars to flight, the spring that comes with the rose, the nightingale's song - points to a Creator whose design gives life meaning. The purpose of man's creation, as understood in the faith tradition of this book's readers, is to know his Creator, to worship Him, to do good, and to serve his fellow human beings with justice and kindness. Wealth, fame and power are only means, not ends: they turn to ashes like desert snow if they become the whole aim of life. A life spent only on worldly gains misses its purpose, while a life spent in good deeds, learning and service fulfils it. (Model report; students should support it with references from their own reading, as a research report requires.)

MODEL GENERAL ESSAY (for the p109 task - 'Charms of Youth'): Youth is the springtime of life, and its charms are freshness, strength, hope and dreams. A young person has a sweet-scented manuscript still open before him: health in the body, quickness in the mind, courage to try new things, and time to learn and to grow. The young see the world as the morning sees it - the stars fled, the sky caught in a noose of light - and everything seems possible. But youth's charm is also its danger: like spring it vanishes with the rose, and the manuscript closes sooner than we think. The wise young person therefore enjoys youth without wasting it, works hard, respects his elders, and prepares for the age when strength fades. For youth rightly used becomes a life well lived, and youth wasted becomes a regret that neither piety nor tears can wash out.

THEMES OF THE RUBAIYAT (for the p109 task - write down the themes): (1) The transience of worldly hope - it turns to ashes or melts like desert snow. (2) The irreversibility of fate - the Moving Finger writes and moves on. (3) The mystery of life and death - a door without a key, a veil no eye can pass. (4) The brevity of youth and beauty - spring vanishes with the rose, the nightingale flies away. (5) The call to wakefulness - do not sleep through the morning of life.

Grammar - Colon

COLON: (a) Use a colon to introduce a list of items. Note: Do not use a colon to introduce a list that is the complement of a verb or the object of a preposition. Examples: i) For the picnic, you should bring these items: three plates, five cups and a knife. ii) The items that we should bring for picnic are: three plates, five cups and a knife. (Incorrect - the list is the complement of 'are'.) (b) Use a colon to introduce a statement or quotation. Examples: i) William Congreve once made this statement: 'Music has charms to soothe the savage beast'. (colon - quotation formally announced) ii) It was William Congreve who said, 'Music has charms to soothe the savage beast'. (comma - quotation not formally introduced) (c) Use a colon between independent clauses when the second clause explains or summarizes the first clause. Example: i) The captain was right: we should have bowled first. (d) Use a colon between the chapter and verse of a Quranic reference: Al-Baqara - 2:124, Al-Ibrahim - 14:35. (e) Use a colon between the hour and the minute of a time reference: 9:45 a.m., 12:00 a.m., 5:00 p.m.

Grammar Activity - Use Colon in the Following Sentences

CORRECTED SENTENCES (for the p110 Activity): i) Cook these dishes for the party: meat, rice and fish. ii) The Principal announced the result: Ahmed got first position. iii) In order to have a safe journey, you should follow these instructions: tie seat belt, drive with normal speed and carefully. iv) He will arrive at 5:45 p.m. v) We sell following items: books, notebooks, pencils etc.

Grammar - Sentence Inversion

SENTENCE INVERSION: Inversion, also known as 'anastrophe', is a literary technique in which the normal order of words is reversed, in order to achieve a particular effect of emphasis or meter.

INVERSION TECHNIQUES: Inversion is achieved by: placing an adjective after the noun it qualifies, e.g. The soldier strong; placing a verb before its subject, e.g. Shouts the policeman; placing a noun before its preposition, e.g. World between. In the English language, there are inversions that are part of its grammar structure and are quite common: inversion always occurs in interrogative statements where verbs, or auxiliaries, or helping verbs are placed before their subjects; similarly, inversion happens in typical exclamatory sentences where objects are placed before their verbs and subjects, and preceded by a wh-word: What a beautiful picture it is! Where in the world were you! How wonderful the weather is today!

EXAMPLES OF INVERSION IN LITERATURE: Apart from the common inversions, some unusual inversions are employed in literature by writers to achieve special artistic effects. Example (1): Romeo and Juliet (by William Shakespeare) - it was a common practice in Shakespeare's days to use inversions, e.g. Act 1, Scene 5: 'Her mother is the lady of the house, / And a good lady, and wise and virtuous. / I nursed her daughter that you talked withal. / I tell you, he that can lay hold of her, / Shall have the chinks.' Example (2): Kubla Khan (by Samuel Taylor Coleridge) - inversion examples are more common in poetry than prose; inversion creates meter and rhyme in the lines: 'In Xanadu did Kubla Khan / A stately pleasure-dome decree: / Where Alph, the sacred river, ran / Through caverns measureless to man / Down to a sunless sea. / So twice five miles of fertile ground / With walls and towers were girdled round; / And there were gardens bright with sinuous rills, / Where blossomed many an incense-bearing tree; / And here were forests ancient as the hills, / Enfolding sunny spots of greenery.' The inversions enhance the artistic effect of the poem. FUNCTIONS OF INVERSION: Like all literary devices, the main function of inversion in prose or poetry is to help writers achieve stylistic effect, like laying an emphasis on a particular point, or changing the focus of the readers from a particular point. In poetry, inversions are regularly used to create rhythm, meter, or rhyming scheme in the lines.

Grammar Activity - Identify the Inversions

IDENTIFIED INVERSIONS (for the p112 Activity): i) 'What an interesting story this is!' - exclamatory inversion: the object 'what an interesting story' is placed before the verb and subject. ii) '"Stop", shouted the king loudly.' - verb before subject: 'shouted the king' instead of 'the king shouted'. iii) 'How wonderful the weather is today!' - exclamatory inversion: 'how wonderful the weather' before 'is'. iv) 'To me alone there came a thought of grief.' - the prepositional phrase 'to me alone' is placed before the verb and subject ('there came a thought'). v) 'How wonderful was he teaching!' - exclamatory inversion: 'how wonderful' before the verb and subject ('was he teaching'), on the book's pattern. (The normal, non-inverted orders are: This is what an interesting story! / The king shouted 'Stop' loudly. / The weather is how wonderful today! /

A thought of grief came to me alone. / He was teaching how wonderfully!)

Unit 12: Youth's Participation in Drug Prevention Programmes

Exercise - Reading and Thinking Skills

i) Why has drug abuse become quite common among youth?

Ans. Drug abuse has become quite common among youth because drugs have become quite accessible, and drug abuse is becoming an increasing trend. That is why there is a clear need for effective drug prevention programmes directed towards youth.

ii) What kind of awareness regarding the drug abuse should be given to the youth?

Ans. Youth should be given awareness of the effects and hazards of drugs and of the methods of prevention: what drugs do to the body, which senses they affect first, the causes of drug abuse, and the skills to resist drugs, strengthen personal commitments against drug use and increase social competencies. Programmes should enhance protective factors and reduce risk factors, use interactive methods, generate norms strengthened against drug use in all kinds of situations, target all youth with special attention to those most at risk, and be sensitive to ages, cultures and developmental stages.

iii) Why is youth's participation in drug control programmes important?

Ans. Youth participation is important because young people are the primary beneficiaries of drug prevention programmes, so they gain the most from participation, and their decisions in managing and implementing policies improve the programme's objectives. Since young persons are the best experts on young people, programmes they chalk out are compatible with youth needs; participation also lets them share ideas and experiences, gain skills and confidence, and communicate in terms adults can understand. The UN Convention on the Rights of the Child (adopted 1990, ratified by almost every UN member state) gives children the right to be active participants in all matters affecting their lives and to have their views heard and taken seriously.

iv) What are drug prevention programmes?

Ans. Drug prevention programmes are programmes that target all young people, or specific groups with specific needs such as young people who have already tried drugs or who are considered 'at-risk'. They can be held in school or in the community and can be run by youth, adults or a combination of both. There is no specific protocol for them, but to be effective they should enhance protective factors and reduce risk factors, include skills to resist drugs, use interactive methods, generate anti-drug norms, target all youth with special attention to those most at risk, and be sensitive to ages, cultures and developmental stages.

v) How do the ideas of youth differ from that of adults?

Ans. The ideas of youth about the dangers of drugs and methods of prevention often differ from what adults believe, because in some cases young persons have practical experience of drug abuse: they have either been directly affected by drugs or indirectly affected, as family members have been victims of drug abuse. They can thus provide a better explanation of the effects and hazards of drugs than adults who have never touched any drugs. Youth also communicate in different terms from adults, and when they merely ratify adult views instead of saying what they really think, a programme is damaged because it is not a true representation of youth.

vi) What kind of skills can youth develop by participating in drug prevention programmes?

Ans. By participating, young people gain developmental skills and knowledge that will ensure a better future, and experience and confidence after accomplishing a task successfully. Leadership roles assigned to them lead them to become responsible citizens; respectable roles in prevention programmes give them opportunities to groom their personality and shoulder responsibilities on their own, and participation lets them channelize their energies for the good of their nation.

Mark true or false: i) In recent years, drug abuse has become an increasing trend.

Ans. True - the essay opens with this statement.

Mark true or false: ii) Youth must not be allowed to participate in drug prevention programmes.

Ans. False - youth must play an active role in drug prevention programmes; they are its primary beneficiaries and best experts on young people.

Mark true or false: iii) Adults should take and honour the ideas and opinions of young people on the prevention of drug abuse.
Ans. True - adults must respect and recognize the value of young people's ideas and opinions, take them seriously, and encourage them to draw upon their skills, knowledge and resources.

Mark true or false: iv) The ideas and opinion of youth about prevention of drug abuse differ from that of adults.
Ans. True - their ideas as to the dangers of drugs and methods of prevention often differ from what adults believe, because some young persons have practical experience of drug abuse.

Mark true or false: v) The leadership roles assigned to the youth do not lead them to become responsible citizens.
Ans. False - the leadership roles assigned to them lead them to become responsible citizens.

Mark true or false: vi) The youth's participation allows their fellows to feel at ease while speaking on issues in the presence of adults.
Ans. True - youth participation allows other youth to feel at ease while speaking on issues in the presence of adults, instead of feeling shy and hesitant or merely ratifying adult views.

Mark true or false: vii) The programmes, chalked out by young people, are never compatible to the needs of youth.
Ans. False - the programmes chalked out by young persons are always compatible to the needs of young people, since young persons are the best experts on young people.

Mark true or false: viii) Youth do not know the science behind drugs and drug abuse.

Ans. True - young people have a general knowledge about drugs but may not know the specifics, such as how drugs actually penetrate the human body and which senses they affect first; experts, consultants and professionals can provide that support.

Mark true or false: ix) Children have the right to have their views heard and taken seriously.

Ans. True - one principle of the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child (adopted 1990) states that children must be allowed as active participants in all matters affecting their lives, be free to express their opinions, and have their views heard and taken seriously.

Mark true or false: x) Young person's do not know the needs of youth.

Ans. False - young persons are the best experts on young people and understand each other in a way difficult for most adults to comprehend.

i) Youth must play an active role in:

- drug promotion
- drug usage
- drug progress
- ✓ drug prevention

ii) Young people have a right to:

- take part in drug usage
- ✓ participate in drug prevention programmes
- take part in debates
- participate in adult literacy

iii) Participation of youth in programmes provides them an opportunity to:

- share their food
- ✓ share their ideas
- share their values
- share their belongings

iv) A young person may not know which:

- ✓ senses drugs affect first
- persons drugs affect first
- creatures drugs affect first
- things drugs affect first

v) Youth must be given chances to:

- ✓ express their views on drug prevention
- their views
- tell which programmes are necessary
- know ways protecting drug abuse

Writing Skills - Proofreading and Editing

PROOFREADING ACTIVITY (p120, group work): Work in groups of five to ten, select a topic of your choice, and write an essay of three to five paragraphs. Exchange your written essays with your groupmates; every student should proofread and edit the essay with red ink, following these steps: i) Brainstorm your ideas. ii) Make a mind map. iii) Outline your ideas in a logical sequence. iv) Each student should write the essay with the help of the outline. v) Each student should proofread another's essay. vi) Edit it and re-draft it. (Model steps given; the essay topic is the student's own choice.)

Oral Communication - Group/Class Presentations

GROUP PRESENTATION (p120): Work in groups of five to ten, prepare a class presentation on 'Importance of Sports', and present it in the class. MODEL OUTLINE: Sports keep the body healthy and the mind fresh; they teach discipline, teamwork, patience and fair play; they keep youth away from harmful habits such as drug abuse by channelizing their energies; they build confidence and leadership; and a nation whose youth play sports is a healthy and united nation.

Vocabulary - Roots, Suffixes and Prefixes

ROOT OR BASE WORD: The original word to which a suffix or prefix is added is called a root or base. SUFFIX: A suffix is a letter or a group of letters added at the end of a word; a suffix changes the meaning of the word. Examples: thank + ful = thankful; care + ful = careful. PREFIX: A prefix is a letter or a group of letters added at the beginning of a word; it changes the meaning of the word. Examples: im + possible = impossible; un + able = unable. ACTIVITY (p121, model answers - the table leaves the base words blank for the student to choose): PREFIXES - mis + behave = misbehave; pre + view = preview; post + pone = postpone; tele + phone = telephone; post + graduate = postgraduate. SUFFIXES - care + less = careless; friend + ship = friendship; happy + ness = happiness; develop + ment = development. (Any correct base word is acceptable; the examples above are model answers.)

Unit 13: Hatchet

Exercise - Reading and Thinking Skills

i) Who is the main character in the story "Hatchet"?

Ans. The main character is a teenager named Brian Robeson (the book's Prologue prints the name as 'Brain Robeson'). He is on a plane to visit his father in the oil fields in Canada; when the pilot has a heart attack, Brian must guide the plane to land, and after landing on a lake he finds himself alone and scared in the wilderness, with only his clothing and a small axe called a hatchet.

ii) What problem did Brian have?

Ans. Brian's problem was that he was alone in the wilderness and had to find a way to survive - above all, he needed fire. He could make sparks by striking his hatchet against a black rock, but he could not get the sparks to catch and stay alive; without fire he could not cook, keep warm or signal for help.

iii) What was the first thing Brian tried to burn?

Ans. The first thing Brian tried to burn was dried grass: he brought some dried grass in, tapped sparks into it and watched them die. Then he tried small twigs broken into little pieces, but that was worse than the grass, and then a combination of grass and twigs - nothing worked.

iv) What happened when Brian tried to light his twenty-dollar bill?

Ans. When Brian ripped the twenty-dollar bill into tiny pieces, made a pile of pieces and hit sparks into them, nothing happened: the pieces just would not take the sparks. The bill was worthless paper out in the wilderness, and burning it did not give him fire.

v) Why was Brian exasperated?

Ans. Brian was exasperated because, although he had no trouble getting sparks, every spark sputtered and died: grass, twigs, grass and twigs together, and even the shredded twenty-dollar bill all failed to catch. He sat back on his haunches in exasperation, looking at the pitiful clump of grass and twigs, and said aloud, 'So close, so close...'

vi) What happened when Brian made a home for the sparks?

Ans. When Brian made a home for the sparks - a nest of finely shredded birch bark fluff as big as a grapefruit, with a small depression in the middle - and slammed the back of the hatchet down across the black rock, a cloud of sparks rained down, some thirty or so hit the depression, and six or seven found fuel, smoldered and made the bark take on a red glow. Then they went out. A second attempt gave a slight glow and then nothing, and a fast series of blows poured sparks like a golden waterfall, but they all died - starved, as Brian realized, for want of air.

vii) Why did Brian hit his hatchet against the rock?

Ans. Brian hit his hatchet against the black rock to make sparks: striking the back of the hatchet down across the rock threw a stream of tiny bits of hot stone or metal - sparks - into the tinder.

He used the hatchet as his fire-making tool because it was the only tool he had.

viii) Why did Brian chop the peeled bark into smaller pieces?

Ans. Brian chopped the peeled birch bark into smaller and smaller pieces because the material had to be finer: the first wad of bark peelings, close to the size of a baseball, caught only one small spark that glowed a bit and died. He realized the sparks needed a soft and incredibly fine nest - a perfect home - so he ripped the bark with his fingernails and then with the sharp edge of the hatchet into thin slivers, hairs so fine they were almost not there, until after over two hours he had a ball of fluff as big as a grapefruit.

ix) How did Brian feel at the end of the story?

Ans. At the end of the story Brian felt triumphant and overjoyed: when the red coal burst into flame as he paused to inhale, he yelled, 'Fire! I've got fire! I've got it, I've got it, I've got it...' After hours of failure, he had finally made fire by his own hands.

x) What do you think Brian will do now that he has a fire going?

Ans. MODEL ANSWER (the excerpt ends at the moment of success, so this is prediction, not text): Now that he has fire, Brian will first feed it carefully with twigs and wood so it does not go out, then use it to cook food, to keep warm at night, to dry his clothes, to keep wild animals away, and to make smoke as a signal so that rescuers can find him. Fire changes his whole situation from mere survival to a camp he can live in.

Mark true or false: i) Brian is on a plane to visit his father in the oil fields in Canada.

Ans. True - that is the Prologue's account of his journey.

Mark true or false: ii) The pilot of the plane did not have a heart attack.

Ans. False - the pilot had a heart attack, which is why Brian had to guide the plane to land.

Mark true or false: iii) Brian tried to ignite grass at first.

Ans. True - he brought dried grass in first and tapped sparks into it.

Mark true or false: iv) Brian was successful to burn small twigs.

Ans. False - the small twigs broken into little pieces were worse than the grass, and nothing caught.

Mark true or false: v) Brian needed something finer, soft and fluffy to catch the bits of fire.

Ans. True - he realized he needed something finer, soft and fine and fluffy to catch the bits of fire.

Mark true or false: vi) Brian found thirty-dollar bill in his wallet.

Ans. False - he found a twenty-dollar bill in his wallet, not thirty dollars.

Mark true or false: vii) Brian at last gave up to make a fire.

Ans. False - he did not give up; after many failures he kept trying, found that the sparks needed air, blew gently, and at last got fire.

Mark true or false: viii) Brian made a nest for the sparks.

Ans. True - he made a spark nest of dry birch bark fluff, as big as a grapefruit, with a thumb-made depression in the middle.

Mark true or false: ix) Brian recalled his school lessons as to what made a fire.

Ans. True - he thought back to school and to all those science classes, asking himself what makes a fire, and remembered that you have to have fuel (the bark was fuel) and oxygen (there had to be air).

Mark true or false: x) Brian remembered that fuel and oxygen are needed for a fire.

Ans. True - fuel and oxygen (air) are the two things he remembered; that is why he fanned and blew gently on the sparks until they grew into flame.

i) Brian is lost in the woods with only:

- a spade as a tool
- ✓ a hatchet as a tool
- a hammer as a tool
- a dagger as a tool

ii) Brian wanted to have:

- a shelter
- ✓ a fire

fresh food

a fine home

iii) Brian moved to the trees to pluck:

branches of trees

✓ fluffy bark leaves

roots of trees

iv) Brian wanted to find out the way how to:

✓ burn fire

cook food

row a boat

make a shelter

v) When Brian ran out of breath and paused to inhale:

the red ball burst into pieces

the red ball broke into pieces

✓ the red ball burst into flames

the red ball blasted

Writing Skills - Curriculum Vitae

CURRICULUM VITAE: A curriculum vitae is a summary of an applicant's professional experience and educational background, along with other relevant information regarding the candidate's qualifications. It is similar to a resume, but is used more frequently by candidates who have published works in journals, such as scientists or academic professionals. FORMAT (p128): Name (with Address and Cell No.); PERSONAL INFORMATION - Father's Name, Date of Birth, Nationality, Domicile, CNIC No., Religion, Marital Status; OBJECTIVE; ACADEMIC QUALIFICATION - table of Education, Year, Institution, Marks; WORK EXPERIENCE; LANGUAGES; EXTRACURRICULAR ACTIVITIES AND INTERESTS; REFERENCE. ACTIVITY (p129): Prepare your curriculum vitae by following the above format, filling in your own personal information, objective, qualifications, experience, languages, interests and references.

Vocabulary - Use Context to Understand Vocabulary

USE CONTEXT TO UNDERSTAND VOCABULARY: The context of a word is the other words around it; you can use the context to help you understand new words. For example, in 'Hatchet', the sparks made by Brian 'just sputtered and died' - you can use the word 'died' to guess what 'sputtered' means, since 'died' is the context for 'sputtered'. MEANINGS FROM CONTEXT (for the p129 Activity): (i) exasperation - annoyed frustration at repeated failure (Brian sat back on his haunches in exasperation after nothing caught). (ii) pitiful - deserving pity, small and sad (the pitiful clump of grass and twigs). (iii) registered - was noticed and understood by the mind (he stood looking at the birches for a full half-minute before they registered on his mind). (iv) tendrils - thin, curling, hair-like strips (the peeling bark lifted in tiny tendrils, almost fluffs). (v) wad - a soft, compressed ball or bundle (a wad of bark peelings close to the size of a baseball). (vi) painstaking - careful, slow, laborious work (painstaking work, slow work, for over two hours). (vii) positioned - placed in a particular position (he positioned his spark nest at the base of the rock). (viii) tensed - made tense, tightened with effort and concentration (he held the hatchet backward, tensed, and struck four quick blows).

Oral Communication - Interview

INTERVIEW: An interview is a series of questions and answers. The interviewer asks the questions, and the interviewee answers them. The interview usually gives information about the interviewee's life, experience or opinions. TIPS FOR GIVING A JOB INTERVIEW: 1) Conduct Research on the Employer, Hiring Manager, and Job Opportunity - understand the employer, the requirements of the job, and the background of the person (or people) interviewing you; the more research you conduct, the better you will be able to answer interview questions. 2) Review Common Interview Questions and Prepare Your Responses - prepare a list of expected questions with responses and practise orally. 3) Dress for Success - wear neat and clean clothes and polished shoes; try not to smoke or eat right before the interview, brush your teeth or use mouthwash. 4) Arrive on time, be relaxed and prepared - strive to arrive about 15 minutes before your scheduled interview; arriving a bit early is also a chance to observe the dynamics of the workplace. 5) Make Good First Impressions - be polite and offer warm greetings to everyone you meet. 6) Be Authentic, Upbeat, Focused, Confident, and Concise - respond truthfully, provide solid examples of solutions and accomplishments, but keep your responses short and to the point. 7) Remember the Importance of Body Language - smiling, eye contact, solid posture, active listening, and nodding. 8) Thank Interviewer(s) - thank each person who interviewed you before you leave. ACTIVITY (p130, group work): Work in groups of five to ten, prepare some questions with their answers, and take the interview of each other one by one.

Unit 14: If (Poem)

Exercise - Reading and Thinking Skills

i) Who is the speaker in the poem "If"?

Ans. The speaker is a father speaking to his son: the poem is written in the second person ('you') and closes with 'you'll be a Man, my son!' - the voice of a father giving his son the conditions of true manhood.

ii) Who is addressed in the poem "If"?

Ans. The poem is addressed to the speaker's son - the young man who must learn to keep his head, trust himself, wait patiently, treat Triumph and Disaster the same, and fill the unforgiving minute, so that the Earth and everything in it will be his and he will be a Man.

iii) What does the poet say about lies and hate in the poem "If"?

Ans. The poet says: if you are lied about, do not deal in lies yourself; and if you are hated, do not give way to hating. In other words, answer other people's falsehood and hatred with truth and self-control, not with lies and hatred of your own - and yet do not look too good, nor talk too wise.

iv) Why should people keep calm in difficult situations?

Ans. People should keep calm in difficult situations because calmness keeps judgement clear: if you can keep your head when all about you are losing theirs and blaming it on you, trust yourself when all men doubt you (while making allowance for their doubting too), and wait without being tired by waiting, you stay master of yourself instead of being mastered by panic, anger or despair - and that self-mastery is what makes a man.

v) Why is Kipling's poem titled "If"?

Ans. The poem is titled 'If' because it is built as one long chain of conditions: every stanza begins 'If you can...' and lists a quality - self-control, patience, honesty, balance, courage, humility, hard work - and only at the very end comes the result: 'Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it, / And - which is more - you'll be a Man, my son!' The title tells us that manhood is conditional: it is earned only if all these conditions are fulfilled.

vi) How has the poet used comparisons and contrasts to explain his thoughts? Analyze.

Ans. Kipling explains his thoughts chiefly through paired contrasts and comparisons. He contrasts how others behave with how you must behave: they lose their heads, you keep yours; they doubt you, you trust yourself; they lie about you, you do not deal in lies; they hate you, you do not give way to hating. He contrasts inner states with their dangers: dream, but do not make dreams your master; think, but do not make thoughts your aim. He compares Triumph and Disaster and calls them both impostors - equal cheats - to show that success and failure are equally temporary and must be treated just the same. He contrasts crowds and kings: talk with crowds and keep your virtue, walk with kings and not lose the common touch. And he compares time with a race: fill the unforgiving minute with sixty seconds' worth of distance run. Through these balanced pairs the poem teaches that manhood lies in the middle way - neither extreme, but steady balance in every opposite.

vii) Why does the poet want the triumph and disaster to be treated the same?

Ans. Because Triumph and Disaster are both impostors - neither is permanent or true. Triumph can breed pride and carelessness, and Disaster can breed despair, but both pass; a man who treats them just the same is not lifted up by success nor crushed by failure, and so keeps his balance and judgement in all fortunes of life.

Mark true or false: i) The poet is advising his son in the poem "If".

Ans. True - the poem ends 'you'll be a Man, my son!' and is a father's advice throughout.

Mark true or false: ii) The poet instructs his son not to be patient in difficult situations.

Ans. False - the poet instructs the opposite: 'If you can wait and not be tired by waiting' is one of the first conditions of manhood.

Mark true or false: iii) The poet suggests his son to dream but not to make the dreams his master.

Ans. True - 'If you can dream - and not make dreams your master'.

Mark true or false: iv) We should have the faith in ourselves even when others doubt us.

Ans. True - 'If you can trust yourself when all men doubt you, / But make allowance for their doubting too'.

Mark true or false: v) The poet says not to work hard and wait for the result.

Ans. False - the poet says the opposite: force heart and nerve and sinew to serve your turn long after they are gone, hold on when there is nothing in you except the Will which says 'Hold on!', and fill the unforgiving minute with sixty seconds' worth of distance run - hard, persistent work, not idle waiting.

Mark true or false: vi) The poet says not to lie even if the people lie about us.

Ans. True - 'Or being lied about, don't deal in lies'.

Mark true or false: vii) People may hate us, but we should not hate them.

Ans. True - 'Or being hated, don't give way to hating'.

Mark true or false: viii) The poet says that everyone has his/her strengths and weaknesses.

Ans. True - the poem shows all men as fallible: they lose their heads, doubt you, lie about you and hate you, and even foes and loving friends can hurt you; at the same time every person can rise by self-control, patience and will. (This is the poem's implied view of human nature, stated as a general reading, not a single quoted line.)

Mark true or false: ix) The poet says that life is not combination of success and failure.

Ans. False - the poet presents life as exactly that combination: Triumph and Disaster are the two impostors every man must meet, and they must be treated just the same.

Mark true or false: x) The poet says that time does not forgive the person who wastes it.

Ans. True - time is the 'unforgiving minute': it cannot be won back, so it must be filled with sixty seconds' worth of distance run.

Writing Skills - Narrative Incident and Summarizing a Text

PERSONAL NARRATIVE (features table, p134): Experiences - the author's life, thoughts and feelings; Details - words that describe true information, things, and actions; Pronouns - use of I, we, us or me; Structure - paragraphs. A narrative tells about things that happen. ACTIVITY (p134, model guidance): Write a narrative incident that you cannot forget - choose one real incident from your own life, tell it in the first person (I/we), in paragraphs, in the order in which it happened, with true details of what you saw, heard and felt, and end with what you learned from it. (The incident itself is the student's own; no incident is invented here.)

SUMMARY OF THE POEM 'IF' (for the p134 Activity): Summarizing is the gist of the original text: it provides the main points of the text and avoids unnecessary description and details. SUMMARY: In 'If', a father tells his son the conditions of true manhood. If the son can keep calm when others lose their heads and blame him, trust himself while allowing for others' doubts, wait patiently, answer lies with truth and hatred without hatred, dream without being mastered by dreams, think without making thoughts his aim, treat Triumph and Disaster - both impostors - just the same, bear his truth twisted by knaves and rebuild his life's work with worn-out tools, risk all his winnings and start again without a word about his loss, force his heart, nerve and sinew to hold on by sheer will, talk with crowds yet keep his virtue and walk with kings yet not lose the common touch, let neither foes nor loving friends hurt him, count all men with him but none too much, and fill every unforgiving minute with sixty seconds' worth of distance run - then the Earth and everything in it will be his, and, more than that, he will be a Man.

Grammar - Comma

COMMA: The comma is perhaps the most puzzling mark of punctuation. Its rules are so numerous and can seem so arbitrary that one often wishes one could dispense with them once and for all. Example: i) Historically the comma is derived from the diagonal slash which was used to indicate a pause. [incorrect] ii) Historically, the comma is derived from the diagonal slash, which was used to indicate a pause. [correct] It seems, indeed, that the commas can be removed in example (i); however, their presence becomes justified if we read the sentence aloud - we make a short pause after the words historically and slash, precisely the places where the commas should be. A useful rule of thumb is to place commas where one makes a pause in speech. RULE OF THUMB: A comma indicates a pause in speech. When in doubt, read the sentence aloud; if you pause at some place, insert a comma to mark the pause. RULE 1: Use commas in a series of three or more items.

Normally, the last item in the series is preceded by and, or, or nor. Example: i) The new regulations concern students, research fellows, and post-doctoral researchers. RULE 2: Use a comma to separate two or more coordinate adjectives. Coordinate adjectives describe the noun separately. Examples: i) It was a dark, stormy night. ii) The new headmaster is a tall, good-looking man. RULE 3: Use a comma to separate independent clauses introduced by and, or, nor, but, yet, for, so etc. Examples: i) The rain poured down, and Asif looked for a shelter. ii) Maria handed in the application, but she was not satisfied. Be careful to use a comma only when the part after and, or, nor, but, etc., is a full clause; if it is not, then no comma should be used: iii) The rain poured down and ruined the parade. iv) Maria handed in the application but did not like it very much. RULE 4: Use a comma after an introductory phrase/word. Examples: i) In the event of disagreement about the duties, the work plan may be presented to the Ph.D Committee. ii) Nevertheless, the students performed poorly. iii) On Tuesday, the Prime Minister met the demonstrators. RULE 5: Use a comma after a dependent clause preceding an independent clause. Example: i) If Sami accepts our conditions, we will agree to the proposal. RULE 6: Use commas before and after parts of the sentence that are not essential to its meaning. Such non-essential parts can be words, phrases and entire clauses. An easy way to test whether a word, a phrase, or a clause is non-essential is to simply leave it out and see whether the message changes grammatically. Examples: i) Our experimental data, however, show that the previous results are unreliable, at best. ii) The audience, indifferent at the beginning, became more and more interested. iii) In 1888, when my great grandmother was born, there was only one hospital in the entire country. Do not use commas to separate essential parts of the sentence.

Grammar Activity - Use Comma Where Needed

CORRECTED SENTENCES (for the p136 Activity): i) After it rained, he didn't go out. ii) Undoubtedly, we have won the match. iii) It was a funny, interesting movie. iv) He brought a pen, a marker and an eraser. v) Ali, who is teaching English, is my brother.

Unit 15: And Now Miguel (Play)

Exercise - Reading and Thinking Skills

i) Who is the elder brother, Miguel or Gabriel?

Ans. Gabriel is the elder brother: he calls Miguel 'little brother', and Miguel says how easy it is for Gabriel to be Gabriel, while it is not easy for him to be Miguel.

ii) Why is Miguel quiet?

Ans. Miguel is quiet because he is thinking: he has been thinking how easy it is for Gabriel to be Gabriel - a grown man of the family - while he himself is still treated as just a boy, and his wish to be a man and a shepherd someday seems never to come.

iii) What wish did Miguel have?

Ans. Miguel's wish was to take the sheep into the Sangre de Cristo Mountains along with the other men - to go up to the mountains as a shepherd with the men of his family, instead of waiting another year. He prayed to San Ysidro to arrange it so he might go up into the Sangre de Cristo Mountains.

iv) What is Miguel doing when his grandfather speaks to him?

Ans. When his grandfather speaks to him, Miguel is doing the job of painting numbers on the sheep: the first lamb of the year is born, then many new lambs, and Miguel gets the job of painting numbers on the sheep so that it is easy to tell which lamb belongs to which mother in case they get separated. During a break in the work, his grandfather speaks to him.

v) What happens if people don't stick together?

Ans. According to Miguel's grandfather, if people don't stick together, they get lost: sheep are like people - the real work of a pastor, of a shepherd, is to see that no sheep strays away from the flock, because all must stay together, and when people don't stick together, they get lost.

vi) Why did Miguel want to find the sheep?

Ans. Miguel wanted to find the sheep for two reasons: first, he cried 'I can find them! I can help!' because he wanted to prove himself useful; and second, he knew that if he came home with the missing sheep, the men would have to say he was ready - ready to go up to the mountains with them. (His father, however, told him this was not a job for him and that it was time for school.)

vii) Why is school more important than the sheep?

Ans. Because, as Miguel's father says, sheep are important, but school is even more important: if Miguel stayed away from school every time something had to be done, he would grow up to be a burro (a donkey) - that is, uneducated. Schooling is what will make him a man who can think and manage, not just a labourer.

viii) Where did Gabriel have to go?

Ans. Gabriel had to go into the army to train to be a soldier: a letter came that morning, so Gabriel could not go to the mountains, and that is why Miguel was allowed to go in his place.

ix) Why is Miguel unhappy to go to the mountains even if he had wished for?

Ans. Miguel is unhappy because his wish came true only at Gabriel's cost: he feels terrible because he thinks it is because of his prayers that Gabriel has to go away to the army, so there is too much good mixed up with the bad. He tells Gabriel he is sorry, and Gabriel comforts him: it is dangerous to wish so hard, because sometimes wishes come true in ways that surprise you - and Gabriel himself had a wish, to see other places like an ocean, which is now coming true through the army.

x) What did Gabriel wish for?

Ans. Gabriel wished, for a long time, to see other places like an ocean: now that he is going into the army, he says, 'Now I have my wish.' He also wishes Miguel well: while he is gone, Miguel should learn everything about sheep, so that when he comes back, he and Miguel will be the best two pastors in all New Mexico.

Mark true or false: i) Miguel wanted to be a man.

Ans. True - 'To my family, I am just a boy. But I want to be a man.'

Mark true or false: ii) Miguel had a wish to join army.

Ans. False - it was Gabriel who had to go into the army; Miguel's wish was to take the sheep into the Sangre de Cristo Mountains with the other men.

Mark true or false: iii) Miguel has been given the task to paint numbers on the sheep.

Ans. True - he gets the job of painting numbers on the sheep so lambs can be matched to their mothers.

Mark true or false: iv) More than a dozen sheep are lost due to a storm at night.

Ans. True - one night there is a storm, and the next morning more than a dozen sheep are gone.

Mark true or false: v) At school, a boy tells Gabriel he saw the sheep.

Ans. False - at school, a boy named Juby tells Miguel (not Gabriel) that he saw the sheep.

Mark true or false: vi) Juby saw the sheep in the opposite direction from where the other planned to look.

Ans. True - the bell rings as Juby explains where he saw the sheep: in the opposite direction from where the others planned to look.

Mark true or false: vii) Miguel found the sheep easily after searching for few minutes.

Ans. False - Miguel searched for hours, could not find the sheep, was tired and his feet hurt, and was about to give up when he spotted the sheep coming up the hill towards him.

Mark true or false: viii) Miguel's father was not happy to see Miguel away from the school.

Ans. True - though glad the sheep were back and though he thanked Miguel, his father said school was even more important than sheep, and warned him that staying away from school every time something had to be done would make him grow up to be a burro.

Mark true or false: ix) Gabriel has to go into the army to train to be a pilot.

Ans. False - Gabriel has to go into the army to train to be a soldier, not a pilot.

Mark true or false: x) At last, Miguel left with the men for the mountains.

Ans. True - the next morning Miguel left with the men for the mountains, and Gabriel left for the army; five days later they reached their camp high up in the Sangre de Cristo Mountains, where Miguel stood at last, watching the country below.

i) The men in the Miguel's family raise:

- horses
- ✓ sheep
- dogs
- camels

ii) Miguel wanted to be:

- an army officer
- a soldier
- ✓ a shepherd

a police man

iii) A boy had seen the sheep:

in the opposite direction of the school

✓ in the opposite direction from where the others plan to look in the school in the pasture

iv) Miguel's father says:

going to mountains is more important than school staying at home is more important than school

sheep are more important than school

✓ school is more important than sheep

v) The men praise Miguel because:

✓ he sweeps up so much dust

he cleans the house

he goes to the mountains

he grazes sheep in the pasture

Writing Skills - Research Report

RESEARCH REPORT (p145, group activity): Work in groups of five to ten and write a research report on 'Country Life'. Follow these steps: i) Brainstorm your ideas. ii) Make an outline of ideas. iii) Get information from internet etc. iv) Write down your research report. v) Proofread it and redraft. MODEL OUTLINE (from the play): Country life in New Mexico, as shown in the play, means a family that has raised sheep in the mountains for hundreds of years; children learn the work young - painting numbers on lambs, sweeping the shearing floor so the fleeces do not get dirty and disappoint the buyer; the shepherd's real work is keeping the flock together, because sheep, like people, get lost when they do not stick together; school matters even more than the sheep, because an uneducated boy grows up to be a burro; and growing up means learning to accept that wishes come true in surprising ways, mixed with good and bad.

Grammar - Direct and Indirect Speech

DIRECT AND INDIRECT SPEECH: Direct Speech: When we report the actual words of a speaker, we use direct speech. Examples: i) He said, 'I am tired'. ii) Naeem said, 'Asma studies daily'. Indirect Speech: When we say or report what the speaker said without quoting his exact words, we use indirect speech. Examples: i) He said that he was tired. ii) Naeem said that Asma studied daily. CHANGES OF TENSES FOR INDIRECT SPEECH: Present Simple into Past Simple: He said, 'I write a book'. / He said that he wrote a book. Present Continuous into Past Continuous: He said, 'He is watching a movie'. / He said that he was watching a movie. Present Perfect into Past Perfect: She said, 'He has done his job'. / She said that he had done his job. Present Perfect Continuous into Past Perfect Continuous: He said, 'I have been playing since 3 O'clock'. / He said that he had been playing since 3 O'clock. Past Simple into Past Perfect: He said to me, 'You behaved well'. / He said to me that I had behaved well. Past Continuous into Past Perfect Continuous: They said, 'We were enjoying the drama'. / They said that they had been enjoying the drama. Past Perfect into Past Perfect: She said, 'She had consulted a doctor'. / She said that she had consulted a doctor. Future Simple, will into would: He said, 'I will study very hard'. / He said that he would study very hard. Future Continuous, will be into would be: I said to him, 'I will be writing to him'. / I said to him that I would be writing to him. Future Perfect, will have into would have: He said, 'I will have completed the work'. / He said that he would have completed the work.

Grammar Activity - Change Direct Speech into Indirect Speech

CHANGED INTO INDIRECT SPEECH (for the p147 Activity): i) She said, 'He goes to office daily'. / She said that he went to office daily. ii) She said, 'I am washing my dishes'. / She said that she was washing her dishes. iii) He said, 'I have written a book'. / He said that he had written a book. iv) She said, 'It has been raining for three days'. / She said that it had been raining for three days. v) Ibrahim said, 'They went to cinema'. / Ibrahim said that they had gone to cinema. vi) He said to me, 'I was waiting for you'. / He said to me that he had been waiting for me. vii) He said, 'I had started a campaign'. / He said that he had started a campaign. viii) He said, 'I will buy a mobile'. / He said that he would buy a mobile. ix) She said, 'I will be singing a song'. / She said that she would be singing a song. x) She said, 'They will have achieved the target'. / She said that they would have achieved the target.

Translation Activity - Scene (2) into Urdu

TRANSLATION ACTIVITY (p147): Translate the scene (2) of the play 'And Now Miguel' into Urdu. NOTE FOR STUDENTS: This English-medium notes PDF uses Latin script, so a full Urdu-script translation cannot be printed here in its proper script; do this translation in your notebook in Urdu script, following the sense of Scene (2): Miguel's wish to take the sheep into the Sangre de Cristo Mountains with the other men; the rule that if the men know you are ready, you will go, but if they do not, you must wait another year; Miguel's resolve to make them see he is ready; the birth of the first lamb of the year and then many new lambs; Miguel's job of painting numbers on the sheep so each lamb can be matched to its mother if they get separated; and his grandfather's lesson during a break - that the real work of a shepherd is to see that no sheep strays away from the flock, that all must stay together, because sheep are like people, and when people don't stick together, they get lost.

Unit 16: It Couldn't be Done (Poem)

Exercise - Reading and Thinking Skills

i) Explain how the character in the poem is optimistic.

Ans. The character in the poem is optimistic because he answers every discouragement with a chuckle and a grin: when somebody says it couldn't be done, he replies that 'maybe it couldn't', but he would not be one who would not say so till he had tried. He buckles right in with the trace of a grin on his face, hides his worry if he has any, and starts to sing as he tackles the thing. When somebody scoffs that he will never do it because no one ever has, he takes off his coat and his hat and begins at once, with a lift of his chin and a bit of a grin, without any doubting or quibbling - and he does it. His optimism is not empty talk; it is cheerful action.

ii) Why does the character in the poem say that he wouldn't say it couldn't be done?

Ans. Because he believes no one has the right to call a thing impossible until he has tried it: he would not be one who would not say so till he had tried. Judgement must follow effort, not precede it - the only honest proof that a thing cannot be done is a fair attempt that fails, and he is determined to make that attempt first.

iii) Why do the people discourage us about doing a difficult task in life?

Ans. People discourage us because they judge by their own experience and fear: the poem says there are thousands to tell you it cannot be done, thousands to prophesy failure, and thousands to point out one by one the dangers that wait to assail you. Often they have never tried the thing themselves - 'at least no one ever has done it' - yet they pass on their own doubt, their caution about dangers, and their belief that what has never been done cannot be done.

iv) After accomplishing the difficult task, what was the attitude of the character?

Ans. After accomplishing the difficult task, the character's attitude is the same cheerful confidence with which he began: he tackled the thing singing, with a grin and a lift of the chin, and he did it. He does not boast or complain about the doubters; the poem's point is that he simply did the thing that couldn't be done, and his attitude throughout is steady, smiling determination rather than pride after success.

v) If you are in a difficult situation, what will you do?

Ans. MODEL ANSWER (personal application, following the poem): If I am in a difficult situation, I will not accept that it cannot be done until I have tried. I will buckle in with a grin, take off my coat and go to it, hide my worry and start singing as I tackle the thing - that is, work cheerfully and steadily, ignore the thousands who prophesy failure and point out dangers one by one, and keep at the task until I have done it, or until an honest attempt has shown me what must be changed.

Mark true or false: i) Somebody said that it could be done.

Ans. False - somebody said that it couldn't be done.

Mark true or false: ii) The character in the poem replied that he would try it out.

Ans. True - he replied with a chuckle that 'maybe it couldn't', but he would be one who wouldn't say so till he had tried.

Mark true or false: iii) He began to sing when he did a difficult job.

Ans. True - he started to sing as he tackled the thing that couldn't be done, and he did it.

Mark true or false: iv) The people always encourage us to do difficult and impossible tasks.

Ans. False - the poem says the opposite: there are thousands to tell you it cannot be done and to prophesy failure, not to encourage you.

Mark true or false: v) Thousands of people are there to discourage us.

Ans. True - 'There are thousands to tell you it cannot be done, / There are thousands to prophesy failure'.

Mark true or false: vi) The poet says, "Do not say, it couldn't be done without trying it".

Ans. True - that is the poem's central advice: he wouldn't say so till he had tried, and the final stanza urges the reader to buckle in, take off his coat, start singing as he tackles the thing that 'cannot be done', and he will do it.

Reading Skill - Making Inferences

MAKING INFERENCES: Making inferences means to make a guess. You use what you know when you make the guess. For example: If your brother comes home sweating and wearing his running shoes and shorts, you can infer that he went running. Similarly, when you read, you use information from the reading selection and your own life to make inferences. ACTIVITIES (p150): i) and ii) THEME / MAIN IDEA OF THE POEM (inferred): Never call a task impossible until you have tried it: cheerful determination and hard work overcome discouragement, doubt and the fear of failure. The poem never states this in one line; it is inferred from the character who, though told it couldn't be done and scoffed at, buckles in with a grin, sings as he works, and does the thing. iii) SUMMARY OF THE POEM: Somebody tells a man that a task cannot be done, but the man, with a chuckle, answers that maybe it cannot - yet he will not say so until he has tried. He sets to work with a grin, hiding any worry, singing as he tackles the impossible thing, and he does it. Again somebody scoffs that he will never do it, since no one ever has, but he takes off his coat and hat and begins at once, chin lifted, grinning, without doubting or quibbling, singing as he works - and he does it. The poet concludes that although thousands will tell you a thing cannot be done, prophesy failure and list its dangers one by one, you should simply buckle in with a grin, take off your coat and go to it, and start singing as you tackle the thing that 'cannot be done' - and you will do it.

Writing Skills - Persuasive Essay

MODEL PERSUASIVE ESSAY (for the p150 task - 'Education is the key to success'): Education is the key to success, and no one should believe those who say success cannot be won. Thousands will tell a student that it cannot be done - that his family is poor, his school is small, or no one from his village has ever succeeded - but, like the man in the poem, he should not say so until he has tried. Education opens doors that stay shut to the uneducated: it teaches reading, writing, counting and thinking, so a person can understand his rights, run a business, use technology and help his family. An educated person can learn a skill, pass an examination, get a job and rise by merit, while an uneducated person, however hard-working, is easily cheated and held back. Moreover, education shapes character: it teaches patience, discipline and respect, the very qualities that turn a difficult task into a done task. Therefore every student should buckle in with a grin, take off his coat and go to his studies - for education, tried honestly, is the key that unlocks success.

Oral Communication - Group Presentation

GROUP PRESENTATION (p150): Work in groups of five to ten, make a group presentation on 'Measures to control pollution in your area', and present it in the class. MODEL OUTLINE: Pollution in our area comes from smoke, dust, open garbage and dirty water. Measures to control it: do not burn garbage or plastic; plant trees along streets and in school grounds; keep drains clean and dispose of waste in bins; use less plastic and carry cloth bags; walk or cycle for short distances instead of using vehicles; and ask the local council to collect garbage regularly and fine those who dump waste in the open. Each group member should present one measure with an example from the area.

Grammar - Semicolon

SEMICOLON: 1) Use a semicolon between independent clauses if you do not use a comma and a coordinating conjunction. (The coordinating conjunctions are and, but, or, either ... or, neither ... nor, for, yet) Example: Punishment brings wisdom; it is the healing art of wickedness (Plato). 2) A semicolon may be used between independent clauses even with a coordinating conjunction (1) if there are commas within the clauses or (2) if the clauses are long. This semicolon is often necessary to make clear the major break between independent clauses. Example: Ignorance of all things is an evil neither terrible nor excessive, nor yet the greatest of all; but great cleverness and much learning, if they be accompanied by a bad training, are a much greater misfortune (Plato). 3) Use a semicolon between independent clauses joined by transitional words, such as accordingly, consequently, for example, for instance, however, namely, nevertheless, that is, then, therefore, thus. (These words are not equivalent to coordinating conjunctions) Example: Islam teaches that cleanliness is half of faith; thus, we should keep ourselves clean. 4) Use a semicolon between items in a series if the items themselves contain commas. Example: The names of three universities in Balochistan: University of Balochistan, Quetta; University of Turbat, Makran; and University of Loralai, Zhob.

Grammar Activity - Sentences for Each Use of Semicolon

MODEL SENTENCES (for the p151 Activity - at least two sentences of each usage): USE 1 (between independent clauses without comma + conjunction): i) He worked hard all year; he passed the examination with distinction. ii) The rain stopped in the evening; the players returned to the ground. USE 2 (with a coordinating conjunction, where clauses contain commas or are long): i) The students, who had prepared for weeks, entered the hall early; but the paper, which was longer than expected, took them the full three hours. ii) Our school, which stands on the hill above the town, has a large library and a science laboratory; and the teachers, who come from many different villages, work there with great devotion. USE 3 (joined by transitional words): i) He did not waste his time; therefore, he succeeded in the examination. ii) She practises her lesson daily; however, she still asks her teacher when she does not understand. USE 4 (between items in a series that themselves contain commas): i) The visitors came from Quetta, Balochistan; Karachi, Sindh; and Lahore, Punjab. ii) We visited three cities on our tour: Murree, Punjab; Ziarat, Balochistan; and Hunza, Gilgit-Baltistan.

Unit 17: I have a Dream!

Exercise - Reading and Thinking Skills

i) How does Martin Luther describe the life of the Negro in the United States?

Ans. Martin Luther King Jr. describes the life of the Negro, one hundred years after the Emancipation Proclamation, as still not free: it is sadly crippled by the manacles of segregation and the chains of discrimination; the Negro lives on a lonely island of poverty in the midst of a vast ocean of material prosperity; he still languishes in the corners of American society and finds himself an exile in his own land. He has come to the nation's capital to dramatize this shameful condition.

ii) What does Martin Luther advise to the black people while marching on the road to freedom?

Ans. He advises them to march with dignity and discipline, not with bitterness and hatred: in gaining their rightful place, they must not be guilty of wrongful deeds, must not satisfy their thirst for freedom by drinking from the cup of bitterness and hatred, must conduct their struggle on the high plane of dignity and discipline, must not let creative protest degenerate into physical violence, and must rise again and again to meet physical force with soul force. The new militancy must not lead to distrust of all white people, for many white brothers have realized that their destiny and freedom are tied up with the Negro's freedom. They must march ahead, and they cannot turn back, and they cannot walk alone.

iii) What is the dream of Martin Luther?

Ans. Martin Luther King Jr.'s dream, deeply rooted in the American dream, is that one day the nation will rise up and live out the true meaning of its creed - 'We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal'; that on the red hills of Georgia the sons of former slaves and the sons of former slave owners will sit down together at the table of brotherhood; that even Mississippi, sweltering with the heat of injustice and oppression, will be transformed into an oasis of freedom and justice; that his four little children will live in a nation where they will not be judged by the color of their skin but by the content of their character; and that one day in Alabama little black boys and black girls will join hands with little white boys and white girls as sisters and brothers, and every valley shall be exalted, every hill made low, the rough places plain and the crooked places straight, and the glory of the Lord shall be revealed.

iv) What does Martin Luther mean by "This is the faith with which I return to the South"?

Ans. He means the faith in his dream - that the nation can live out its creed of equality, that justice will roll down like waters and righteousness like a mighty stream, and that freedom will ring from every mountainside. It is this faith that he carries back to the South: with it, he says, they will be able to hew out of the mountain of despair a stone of hope, transform the jangling discords of the nation into a beautiful symphony of brotherhood, and work, pray, struggle, go to jail and stand up for freedom together, knowing that they will be free one day.

v) What does Martin Luther say will happen when Americans "Allow Freedom to Ring"?

Ans. When Americans let freedom ring - from the prodigious hilltops of New Hampshire, the mighty mountains of New York, the heightening Alleghenies of Pennsylvania, the snow-capped Rockies of Colorado, the curvaceous slopes of California, and not only there but from Stone Mountain of Georgia, Lookout Mountain of Tennessee, every hill and molehill of Mississippi, and from every mountainside, village, hamlet, state and city - then they will be able to speed up the day when all of God's children, black men and white men, Jews and Gentiles, Protestants and Catholics, will join hands and sing in the words of the old Negro spiritual: 'Free at last! Free at last! Thank God Almighty, we are free at last!'

vi) Does Martin Luther hate white people? Give examples in his speech to support your opinion.

Ans. No, Martin Luther King Jr. does not hate white people; his speech proves the opposite. He warns that the new militancy must not lead to distrust of all white people, because many of his white brothers, as shown by their presence at the march, have come to realize that their destiny is tied up with the Negro's destiny and that their freedom is inextricably bound to the Negro's freedom. He says 'We cannot walk alone.' His dream itself is of brotherhood: the sons of former slaves and the sons of former slave owners sitting down together at the table of brotherhood, and little black children joining hands with little white children as sisters and brothers. And the day he longs for is when all God's children - black men and white men, Jews and Gentiles, Protestants and Catholics - will join hands and sing together. Hatred has no place in that dream; his method is soul force, not bitterness and hatred.

vii) What does Martin Luther mean by "My Country, 'tis of thee"?
Ans. By quoting 'My country, 'tis of thee, sweet land of liberty, of thee I sing. Land where my father's died, land of the Pilgrim's pride, From every mountainside, let freedom ring!' King claims America as his own country too: it is the sweet land of liberty where his fathers died and which the Pilgrims made proud - and therefore the Negro, no less than any other American, has the right to demand that freedom ring from every mountainside of it. He sings the patriotic song with new meaning: liberty must become real for all God's children, not remain a song for some.

viii) What does Martin Luther mean by "Let freedom ring from every state and city"?
Ans. He means that freedom must not be a promise kept in one place and denied in another: it must ring from every state and every city, from every village and hamlet, from the hilltops of the North and the mountains of the South alike - from New Hampshire, New York, Pennsylvania, Colorado and California, and also from Georgia, Tennessee and Mississippi - so that no corner of America is left where a Negro is denied lodging, the vote, or dignity, and the whole nation becomes free together.

Mark true or false: i) The Emancipation Proclamation was signed by a great American.

Ans. True - five score years ago, a great American, in whose symbolic shadow they stand today, signed the Emancipation Proclamation (Abraham Lincoln).

Mark true or false: ii) "One hundred years later, we must face the tragic fact that the Negro is free", Martin Luther said.

Ans. False - he said the opposite: 'But one hundred years later, the Negro still is not free.' (The book's printed question quotes the sentence with 'is free'; the speech says 'still is not free'.)

Mark true or false: iii) America has given the Negro people a bad cheque; a cheque which has come back marked "insufficient funds".

Ans. True - instead of honoring the sacred obligation of the Constitution and the Declaration of Independence, America has given the Negro people a bad check, a check which has come back marked 'insufficient funds'.

Mark true or false: iv) Martin Luther was of the view to hate white people.

Ans. False - he warned against distrust of all white people, called many of them his white brothers, and dreamed of black and white children joining hands as sisters and brothers.

Mark true or false: v) Martin Luther was against violence.

Ans. True - he said creative protest must not degenerate into physical violence, and that they must meet physical force with soul force, on the high plane of dignity and discipline.

Mark true or false: vi) Martin Luther had a dream of freedom.
Ans. True - 'I have a dream' is the heart of the speech: a dream of equality, brotherhood and freedom for all.

Mark true or false: vii) Martin Luther also thanked those white men who supported them in their freedom movement.
Ans. True - he pointed to the white brothers present that day, who had realized that their destiny and freedom were tied up with the Negro's destiny and freedom, and said 'We cannot walk alone.' (He honors their support; the speech does not use the word 'thanked' in a formal sentence, but the recognition is explicit.)

Mark true or false: viii) Martin Luther struggled only for the right of Negro to vote.
Ans. False - he struggled for full citizenship rights: freedom from segregation and discrimination, lodging in motels and hotels, dignity for children stripped of self-hood by 'For Whites Only' signs, an end to police brutality, and justice rolling down like waters - the vote is only one part (a Negro in Mississippi cannot vote, and a Negro in New York believes he has nothing for which to vote).

Mark true or false: ix) Martin Luther was successful to get the rights for black men.
Ans. True - the book's 'About the Author' box states that he helped win equal rights for African-Americans, including the right to vote, and in 1964 he was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize. (The speech itself is a call to a struggle still unfinished in 1963; the success recorded here is the book's summary of his life's work.)

Mark true or false: x) Martin Luther was shot dead in 1967.
Ans. False - the book's 'About the Author' box states that in 1968 King was shot and killed in Memphis, Tennessee, not 1967.

Writing Skills - Research Report

RESEARCH REPORT (p158, group work): Write a research report on 'Measures to be taken after emergency: Earthquake, flood etc.'
Note: i) Work in groups of five to ten. ii) Brainstorm your ideas. iii) Make a mind map. iv) Write down the ideas. v) Proofread it. vi) Redraft it. MODEL OUTLINE: After an earthquake: stay calm, move to open ground away from buildings, check for injuries, help the injured, do not re-enter damaged buildings, listen to official announcements, and watch for aftershocks. After a flood: move to high ground, do not walk or drive through flood water, drink only clean water, avoid electric wires in water, and return home only when authorities say it is safe. In both cases: keep an emergency kit (water, food, torch, first-aid box, medicines, important documents), keep children and old people safe, cooperate with rescue teams, and do not spread rumours.

Grammar - Active and Passive Voice

ACTIVE AND PASSIVE VOICE: A verb is said to be in Active Voice when the person or thing denoted by the subject does the action; as, i) I am doing my homework. ii) He gave me a message. A verb is said to be in the passive voice when something is done to the person or thing denoted by the subject; as, i) The students are being taught by the teacher. ii) The road will be repaired by the labourers. iii) The letters have been typed by the typist. When the verb is changed from the Active Voice to the Passive Voice, the object of the verb in the active voice becomes the subject of the verb in the passive voice; as, i) The boy kicked the ball. (active) ii) The ball was kicked by the boy. (passive) Thus, the word 'ball' which is the object of the verb 'kicked' in Active Voice, becomes the subject of the verb 'was kicked' in the passive voice. NOTE: Sentences having Transitive Verbs can only be changed into Passive Voice. Sentences having Intransitive Verbs cannot be made passive. RULES FOR CHANGING ACTIVE VOICE INTO PASSIVE VOICE: Simple Present: He visits us. / Is/are/am + Past Participle + by / We are visited by him. Present Continuous: He is visiting us. / Is/are/am being + Past Participle + by / We are being visited by him. Present Perfect: He has visited us. / Has been / have been + Past Participle + by / We have been visited by him. Present Perfect Continuous: This tense does not have passive voice. Past Simple: He visited us. / Was / were + Past Participle + by / We were visited by him. Past Continuous: He was visiting us. / Was / were being + Past Participle + by / We were being visited by him. Past Perfect: He had visited us. / Had been + Past Participle + by / We had been visited by him. Past Perfect Continuous: This tense does not have passive voice. Future Simple: He will visit us. / Will be + Past Participle + by / We will be visited by him. Future Continuous: This tense does not have passive voice. Future Perfect: He will have visited us. / Will have been + Past Participle + by / We will have been visited by him. Future Perfect Continuous: This tense does not have passive voice.

DO YOU KNOW! Exceptional Case: Sometimes 'with' also can be used instead of 'by'. For example: The sky was covered with clouds.

Grammar Activity - Change into Passive Voice

CHANGED INTO PASSIVE VOICE (for the p160 Activity): i) I gave him a book. / A book was given to him by me. (Also: He was given a book by me.) ii) She laughed at him. / He was laughed at by her. iii) All liked her proposal. / Her proposal was liked by all. iv) Ahmed teaches English. / English is taught by Ahmed. v) They will help us. / We will be helped by them. vi) He has done this work. / This work has been done by him. vii) The farmer was ploughing the field. / The field was being ploughed by the farmer. viii) The boys did not bring their books. / Their books were not brought by the boys. ix) They awarded a prize to the best student of the class. / A prize was awarded to the best student of the class by them. (Also: The best student of the class was awarded a prize by them.) x) He typed all the letters. / All the letters were typed by him.

End Matter - Glossary and Teacher's Guide

END MATTER (checked, no student exercises): The Glossary (book pp161-164) is a word list with meanings only - anon (soon, presently), apartheid (separateness), arbitrary, a square peg in a round hole, astray, attentive, awhile, bass, be waived, cloak, comity, commitment, compatible, contemplation, conviction, creed, Cro-Magnon man, debris, depression, discords, downcast, drapes, drift, dynamic, emancipation, embarrassment, enormity, enticed, equipped with, exasperation, extolling, fickle, fiddle, fidget, filter, flattery, hew, Hunter of the East, ideology, impostor, inception, intent, interposition, knave, legitimate, Lo, lure, merchant, muttered, necessities, Noose, Noose of light, nuisance, nullification, oppression, on his haunches, orthodox, painstaking, pastor, pasture, past which, perseverance, and the remaining entries to p164 - it carries no exercises, so it is summarized here rather than solved. The Teacher's Guide (book pp165-176) gives teaching instructions for the teacher for Units 1-17 (for example, for Unit 1: discuss the life of Hazrat Muhammad (SAW) in comparison with human rights before teaching the unit) and likewise carries no student exercises, so it is not solved as exercises.
