CHAPTER-1: AL-QURAN-AL-KAREEM — Tanveen, Khara Zabar, Khari Zair and Ulta Pesh

Answer the following Questions:

Question: What is tanveen?

Answer: Tanveen refers to double zabar (ً), double zair (ٍ) and double pesh (ٌ). From these, the sound of noon sakin is produced when a tanveen is used.

Question: Which harf sound is produced from a tanveen?

Answer: The sound of Noon Sakin is produced from a tanveen. For example, double zabar over Taa = Taa do Zabar 'Tann'.

Question: What is the difference between a zabar and a Khara Zabar?

Answer: Khara Zabar (standing zabar) is a type of zabar, but its pronunciation is stretched more than the zabar. Due to this reason, it sounds like an alif when pronounced, and in place of a Khara Zabar, a small symbol of alif is placed.

Question: Which harf sound is produced from Ulta pesh?

Answer: Ulta pesh (upside down pesh) is a type of pesh, and its pronunciation is stretched. Due to this, it sounds like a stretched Wow (waaw) when pronounced.

Tick "✓" the correct answer of following:

Question: The Sign of tanveen is: (A) [sign] (B) [sign] (C) [sign]

Answer: Correct answer: the tanveen signs — double zabar (ً), double zair (ٍ) and double pesh (ٌ). Note: the three printed sign options for this question are in a font that did not survive in the scan file, so the option letter cannot be read from the scan.

Question: 'Khari Zair' is written correctly as: (A) اَمْنَ (B) بِه (C) مَالُهٗ

Answer: Correct answer: (b) — Khari Zair is the standing (vertical) zair placed in zair's location, so it is written as in بِه.

From the table given below, write examples of huroof with tanveen in the circle given beside it:

Question: Which of these words contain tanveen: حَامِدًا، مَحْمُوْدًا، بَعْضٍ، نَفْسٍ، بَاسِطٌ، كِتَابٌ?

Answer: All six words contain tanveen: حَامِدًا and مَحْمُوْدًا have double zabar, بَعْضٍ and نَفْسٍ have double zair, and بَاسِطٌ and كِتَابٌ have double pesh. Tanveen is always placed on the last letter (harf).

CHAPTER-1: AL-QURAN-AL-KAREEM — Madd and Shadd (Tashdeed)

Answer the following questions:

Question: What is Madd?

Answer: Literally, the word Madd refers to stretch. It is of two types: one is known as long Madd and the other, short Madd.

Question: How many types of Madd are there?

Answer: There are two types of Madd. One is long Madd and the other is short Madd.

Question: How long is the long Madd stretched?

Answer: The long Madd is stretched to the extent of 5 alif. The short Madd is extended to the limit of three alif.

Question: What is Shadd?

Answer: Shadd (Tashdeed) refers to a sign which looks like three teeth (ّ). The harf on which a Shadd is placed is called 'Mushaddad'.

Question: What is harf-e-mushaddad?

Answer: The harf on which a Shadd is placed is called harf-e-mushaddad (Mushaddad harf). Such as: مَدَّ (Madda), حَلَّ (Halla).

Question: How is harf-e-mushaddad read?

Answer: Mushaddad harf is pronounced with stress. We press the sound a little while reading it.

Tick "✓" the correct answer of following:

Question: The sign of a small Madda is: (A) [sign] (B) [sign] (C) [sign]

Answer: Correct answer: the small (short) Madd sign — the book teaches two Madd signs, the long Madd and the short Madd, and the short Madd is the small Madda. Note: the three printed sign options for this question are in a font that did not survive in the scan file, so the option letter cannot be read from the scan. ✓

Question: The short Madd is stretched as: (A) One alif (B) Two alif (C) Three alif

Answer: Correct answer: (c) — The book states that the short Madd is extended to the limit of three alif, while the long Madd is stretched to 5 alif. ✓

Question: Mushaddad harf in the following is: (A) اَمْنَ (B) كَرِيْمٌ (C) رَبُّ

Answer: Correct answer: (c) — In رَبُّ the Baa carries a Shadd (ّ), so it is the Mushaddad harf and is read with stress. ✓
