Unit 1: Living Together in Peace

Pre-reading Questions (page 9)

1. Why is it necessary to live peacefully with each other in a society?

Peaceful living is necessary because the members of a society depend on one another for safety, help and progress. Peace brings cooperation and development, while conflict harms everyone and breaks the trust on which a community stands.

2. How can we live peacefully in a society?

We can live peacefully by respecting diversity, tolerating differences and being good neighbours. Disputes should be settled fairly, minorities should be protected, and all communities should work together for the common good.

1. What is an inclusive society?

An inclusive society is one in which all communities, including minorities, enjoy equal rights, respect and protection. Every community is free to practise its own faith and follow its own religious laws, and no group is oppressed by another.

2. What is the importance of the Charter of Madina in the present situation?

The Charter of Madina is important today because differences still often lead to conflict. It teaches inclusivity, tolerance and cooperation, and reminds us that compassion, respect and dialogue can build stronger and more peaceful communities.

Reading and Critical Thinking - A) Answer the questions (page 11)

1. What does the word 'migration' mean in the context of the text?

In the context of the text, migration means moving from one place to another to settle there. It refers to the Hijra, when the Holy Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him) migrated from Makkah to Madina in 622 AD.

2. Who established the Charter of Madina?

The Charter of Madina was established by the Holy Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him) on his arrival at Madina. It laid down rules for coexistence among the Muslims, Jews and other tribes of Madina.

3. Why is the Charter of Madina important today?

The Charter is important today because it shows how different communities can live together in peace. Its principles of inclusivity, tolerance, justice and cooperation are still needed wherever diversity causes tension or conflict.

4. How did the Charter of Madina promote justice?

The Charter promoted justice by requiring that disputes be resolved fairly and justly, with the Holy Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him) as the final arbitrator. It also forbade any community from oppressing another community.

5. How is the Madina Charter relevant to today's society?

The Madina Charter is relevant today through inclusivity, tolerance and cooperation. We can apply it daily by respecting diversity, being good neighbours, working together for common goals, and promoting justice and fairness for all.

Reading and Critical Thinking - B) Tick True or False (page 12)

1. The Holy Prophet, Hazrat Muhammad (peace be upon him), migrated from Madina to Makkah in 622 AD. False

2. The Charter of Madina allowed each community to practise their own faith. True

3. The communities in Madina were not allowed to defend themselves against external threats. False

4. The Charter of Madina is relevant only for Muslims. False

5. The Charter of Madina promoted cooperation and mutual respect among different communities. True

Activity: Dictionary work (page 15)

1. What is the guideword at the top of the dictionary page?

The guideword at the top of the dictionary page is 'accord'. Guidewords are the bold words at the top of a dictionary page; the first guideword is the first word on the page.

2. Find the entry word 'accord'. Write down the page number where you found it.

The entry word 'accord' is found on the sample dictionary page printed on page 14 of the book. Its pronunciation is given as /a'ko:d/ and it is shown as both a verb and a noun.

3. Find the definition of 'accord' that best suits its meaning.

As a noun, 'accord' means agreement or consent, that is, harmony between people. As a verb it means to agree with someone or something, or to be in harmony with them.

4. Using the thesaurus, find a synonym for 'accord'.

A synonym for 'accord' is 'agreement'. Another suitable synonym is 'harmony', because both words express the same idea of people living or acting together without conflict.

5. Write a sentence using the word 'accord'.

The neighbours lived in accord with one another and shared everything fairly. (Model sentence: your own sentence using 'accord' correctly is also acceptable.)

Activity: Make more words with prefixes and suffixes (page 16)

Make more words with the prefix 'un-'.

unfair, unkind, unknown, unhappy, unlucky. The prefix 'un-' means 'not', so it changes the root word to its opposite meaning.

Make more words with the prefix 're-'.

reread, rebuild, return, rewrite, replay. The prefix 're-' means

'again', so it shows that an action is done once more.

Make more words with the suffix '-able'.

readable, washable, breakable, lovable. The suffix '-able' means 'able to be', so it is added after a root word to form an adjective.

Make more words with the suffix '-ed'.

worked, played, learned, walked. The suffix '-ed' is added to a verb to show the past tense of an action that is already finished.

Make more words with the suffix '-en'.

wooden, golden, widen, strengthen. The suffix '-en' can form adjectives from nouns, as in wood to wooden, or verbs, as in wide to widen.

Activity: Write down the kind of noun (page 17)

a) I like red cars. (noun: cars)

Common noun. 'Cars' is the general name of things, and it is a countable noun in its plural form.

b) My friend bought a new dress. (noun: dress)

Common noun. 'Dress' is the general name of a thing, not the specific name of a person or a place.

c) We must admire honesty. (noun: honesty)

Abstract noun. Honesty is a quality or idea that cannot be seen, heard, tasted, smelt or touched, but only felt.

d) Ali studies day and night to pass the exams. (noun: exams)
Common noun. 'Exams' is the general name of things, and it is a countable noun in its plural form.

e) A bunch of grapes was hanging on the tree. (noun: bunch)
Collective noun. 'Bunch' is a noun that refers to a collection of things of a similar kind, here a collection of grapes.

Activity: Use the following nouns in sentences (page 18)
Use 'statics', 'ethics', 'linguistics', 'politics' and 'economics' in sentences.
Statics is a branch of mechanics. Ethics teaches us the difference between right and wrong. Linguistics is the study of language. Politics affects the life of every citizen. Economics is the study of how wealth is produced and used.

Use 'news', 'measles', 'mumps', 'droughts' and 'innings' in sentences.
The news is good today. Measles is a disease of childhood. Mumps is also a common childhood illness. Droughts damage crops in dry regions. The first innings of the match was very exciting.

Activity: Make one sentence of each type of sentence (page 19)
1. Declarative sentence.
Our school opens at eight in the morning. A declarative sentence makes a statement or expresses an opinion, and it ends with a full stop.

2. Exclamatory sentence.

What a beautiful morning it is today! An exclamatory sentence expresses strong emotion or excitement, and it ends with an exclamation mark.

3. Interrogative sentence.

Have you finished your homework? An interrogative sentence asks a question, and it ends with a question mark.

4. Imperative sentence.

Please close the door quietly. An imperative sentence gives a command, makes a request or offers advice, and it ends with a full stop.

Activity: Simple present tense - negative and interrogative (page 21)

1. He plays football. Change into negative and interrogative.

Negative: He does not play football. Interrogative: Does he play football? With a singular subject we use 'does not' and 'Does' with the first form of the verb.

2. We study science. Change into negative and interrogative.

Negative: We do not study science. Interrogative: Do we study science? With a plural subject we use 'do not' and 'Do' with the first form of the verb.

3. She writes a book. Change into negative and interrogative.

Negative: She does not write a book. Interrogative: Does she write a book? The 's' of the verb is dropped when 'does' is used.

4. Ahmed gets first position. Change into negative and interrogative.

Negative: Ahmed does not get first position. Interrogative: Does Ahmed get first position? The verb returns to its first form after 'does'.

Activity: Mind map (page 22)

Mind map for 'Living Together in Peace' - centre: Living Together in Peace. Branches: (1) Unity and solidarity, (2) Religious freedom, (3) Mutual defence, (4) Justice and fairness, (5) Protection of minorities, (6) Respect for neighbours, (7) No oppression, (8) Cooperation in goodness.

Write a short narrative. (Model answer)

A Kind Neighbour. One hot afternoon, my old neighbour fell ill and could not go to the market. I bought his medicines and some food, and my mother cooked soup for him. He smiled and thanked us warmly. That day I learnt that a small act of kindness can make a whole neighbourhood feel like one family, living together in peace.

Unit 2: Read and You Will Know

Pre-reading Questions (page 24)

1. What kind of books do you read?

I like to read storybooks, books about science and books about the lives of great people. Reading such books gives me new information and new ideas, and it makes learning enjoyable.

2. Which book / books inspired you the most? Discuss.

The book that inspired me the most is the story of Sir William Jones in this unit. It inspired me because he became a great scholar simply by reading and by never losing his curiosity about the world.

Post-reading Questions (page 25)

1. How many languages could William Jones speak and write?

William Jones could speak and write in twenty-eight languages, including English, Sanskrit, Persian, Arabic, Latin, Greek, French and German.

2. How did he become a famous person?

He became famous through his love of reading and learning from childhood. He read widely, became one of the most respected scholars of his time, was made a knight (Sir William Jones) by the King of England, served as a judge in India, and founded the Asiatic Society of Bengal.

Reading and Critical Thinking - A) Answer the questions (pages 26-27)

1. What was William Jones very curious about?

William Jones was very curious about everything around him. As a boy he asked what clouds are made of, why rain falls, where rainwater goes, what makes the wind blow, who lives on the other side of the world, and why the sky is blue.

2. How did William's mother help him with his questions at first?

At first his mother tried to answer his questions herself. When he learnt to read, she encouraged him to find the answers in books instead.

3. Why did William's mother encourage him to read books?

She encouraged him to read books because a good book gives information and knowledge, and reading about beautiful and good things helps a person become wise. Her advice to him was, 'Read, and you will know.'

4. Where did William Jones go to work as a judge?

William Jones went to India to work as a judge of the Supreme Court. There he studied Sanskrit and Persian to understand Hindu and Muslim laws.

5. What society did William Jones found in 1784?

In 1784 he founded the Asiatic Society of Bengal to promote the study of Eastern cultures and to encourage oriental studies.

6. What idea did he present about the languages Sanskrit, Latin and Greek?

He presented the idea that Sanskrit, Latin and Greek share a common ancestry. This idea helped develop the study of comparative linguistics in the early 19th century.

7. How many languages is William Jones said to have spoken and written?

William Jones is said to have spoken and written twenty-eight languages. His dedication to learning inspired countless people to value education and curiosity.

Reading and Critical Thinking - B) Mark the correct option (page 27)

1. William Jones always wanted to do:

- sleep
- ✓ learn
- play games
- sing

2. William Jones asked questions from:

- his father
- his friends
- ✓ his mother
- his teacher

3. William could read quite well at the age of:

- three
- ✓ five

eight

ten

4. William's mother told him to do ____ when he had questions:

ask others

watch TV

✓ read

ignore them

5. The title given to William Jones by the King of England was:

✓ sir doctor

captain

professor

6. The name of the society William Jones founded was:

the Learning Society

✓ the Asiatic Society of Bengal

the Reading Club

the Scholar's Society

Activity: Word bank (page 28)

Word bank of difficult words from the unit (learn their spellings for dictation): curious - eager to learn; incredibly - to a great degree; dedicated - giving full time and effort; scholar - a learned person; founded - started an institution; ancestry - common origin; comparative linguistics - the study comparing languages; inspired - filled with the desire to do something good.

Activity: Punctuate the paragraph (page 28)

Punctuate the following paragraph correctly (capitalization, full stops, commas, apostrophes).

William Jones went on reading and learning. He became one of the most famous scholars in the world. The King of England made him a knight and called him Sir William Jones. He came to India as a judge of the Supreme Court. In 1784, he founded the Asiatic Society of Bengal to encourage oriental studies. He studied Sanskrit and Persian to equip himself with Hindu and Muslim laws. His 'Institutes of Hindu Law' was published in 1794 and his 'Muhammedan Law of Inheritance' in 1792. In his 1786 presidential discourse to the Asiatic Society, he postulated the common ancestry of Sanskrit, Latin and Greek. His findings provided the impetus for the development of comparative linguistics in the early 19th century.

Activity: Gender of nouns - use in sentences (page 29)

Identify masculine, feminine, common and neuter nouns and use them in your own sentences.

Masculine: The boy is reading a book. The actor performed well on the stage. Feminine: The girl won the race. The actress sang a beautiful song. Common: My parent helped me with my homework. The student answered the question correctly. Neuter: The rock is very heavy. This table is made of wood.

Activity: Underline subject pronouns, circle object pronouns (page 29)

Underline the subject pronouns and circle the object pronouns in the given sentences.

i) They will be back next week. Subject pronoun: They. Object pronoun: none. ii) She went shopping yesterday. Subject pronoun: She. Object pronoun: none. iii) Shehla went to the party with us. Subject pronoun: Shehla (noun subject). Object pronoun: us. iv) Maria threw the ball to them. Subject pronoun: Maria (noun subject). Object pronoun: them. v) We bought some chocolates for him. Subject pronoun: We. Object pronoun: him. vi) They enjoyed playing in the school ground. Subject pronoun: They. Object pronoun: none.

Activity: Encircle the possessive pronouns (page 30)

Encircle the possessive pronouns in the given sentences.

i) All the files are here, but what about ours? Possessive pronoun: ours. ii) That copy of the program is not yours; it is hers and mine. Possessive pronouns: yours, hers, mine. iii) The most offensive presentation in our assembly this morning was his. Possessive pronoun: his. (Note: 'our' in this sentence is a possessive adjective before a noun, not a possessive pronoun.)

Activity: Clauses and phrases (page 32)

Read the first paragraph of the unit, identify clauses and phrases and write them in your notebook.

First paragraph of the unit: 'Once upon a time, there was a boy named William Jones.' Phrase: 'Once upon a time' (it cannot stand alone as a sentence). Clause: 'there was a boy named William Jones' (it has a subject and a verb). 'He was incredibly curious and asked many questions.' Clauses: 'He was incredibly curious' and 'He asked many questions'. 'Mother, what are clouds made of?' Clause:

'what are clouds made of' (subject: clouds, verb: are made). 'Why does the rain fall?' Clause: 'the rain falls' in question form.

Activity: Summary of the unit (page 32)

Write a summary of the unit with the help of your note-taking points. (Model summary)

Summary: William Jones was a curious boy who always asked questions about the world. His mother first answered him, then advised him to find answers in books, saying, 'Read, and you will know.' By reading good books he became wise, learnt twenty-eight languages, and became a great scholar. He was knighted by the King of England, worked as a judge in India, and founded the Asiatic Society of Bengal in 1784. His idea that Sanskrit, Latin and Greek share a common ancestry founded comparative linguistics. The lesson is that reading is the first step to knowledge.

Unit 3: Written in March (Poem)

Pre-reading Questions (page 34)

1. After reading the title of the poem, what idea comes in your mind?

After reading the title 'Written in March', the idea that comes to mind is a poem about the month of March, when winter is ending and spring is beginning, and nature looks fresh and joyful after the rain.

2. What beauty can we see in the world?

We can see great beauty in the world: the blue sky, the shining sun, green fields, flowing streams, glittering lakes, singing birds, mountains and flowers. All of nature is beautiful when we look at it with love and attention.

Post-reading Questions (page 35)

1. How does the poet describe nature in the morning after the rain?

The poet describes nature in the morning after the rain as fresh, bright and full of joy. The cock is crowing, the stream is flowing, the small birds are twittering, the lake is glittering, the green field sleeps in the sun, and the snow has retreated from the bare hill.

2. How do you feel in rain? (Model answer)

I feel happy and fresh in the rain. The cool air, the sound of raindrops and the fresh smell of wet earth make me feel joyful, and after the rain the whole world looks clean and beautiful.

Reading and Critical Thinking - A) Answer the questions (page 36)

1. What is happening in the morning, according to the poem?

In the morning, the cock is crowing, the stream is flowing, the small birds are twittering, the lake is glittering, and the green field is sleeping in the sun.

2. Which animals are mentioned in the poem?

The animals mentioned in the poem are the cock, the small birds and the cattle grazing in the field.

3. What do the small birds do?

The small birds twitter, that is, they make short, sweet chirping sounds in the morning.

4. How does the lake appear?

The lake appears glittering, that is, it shines and sparkles brightly in the morning light.

5. What are the oldest and youngest doing?

The oldest and the youngest are at work with the strongest, that is, people of all ages are working together in the fields.

6. How many cattle are grazing in the field?

Forty cattle are grazing in the field, feeding like one, with their heads never raising.

7. What happened to the snow?

The snow has retreated like an army defeated, and now it fares ill, that is, it survives only poorly, on the top of the bare hill.

8. Who is the Ploughboy, and what is he doing?

The Ploughboy is the boy who ploughs the fields, and he is whooping 'anon-anon', that is, calling out again and again in joy as he works.

9. What do the mountains and fountains represent in the poem?

In the poem the mountains represent joy ('There's joy in the mountains') and the fountains represent life ('There's life in the fountains').

10. What does the poem say about the weather at the end?

At the end the poem says the rain is over and gone, small clouds are sailing, and the blue sky is prevailing, that is, the sky is clear and blue everywhere.

Reading and Critical Thinking - B) Tick the correct option (pages 36-37)

1. What is the sound made by the cock?

- singing
- ✓ crowing
- barking
- hooting

2. What is flowing according to the poem?

the river

✓ the stream

the wind

the road

3. How do the birds sound in the morning?

singing

chirping

✓ twittering

whispering

4. What is happening to the green field?

it is dry.

✓ it is sleeping in the sun.

it is flooding.

it is burning.

5. How many cattle are mentioned?

twenty thirty

✓ forty fifty

Activity: Meanings from context and sentences (page 37)

Infer the meanings of 'twitter', 'glitter', 'grazing', 'retreated', 'prevailing' and 'bare' from the context, and make a sentence of each word.

twitter - the short chirping sounds made by small birds. Sentence:

The small birds twitter in the morning. glitter - to shine brightly with sparkling light. Sentence: The lake doth glitter in the sun. grazing - eating grass in a field. Sentence: The cattle are grazing in the green field. retreated - moved back or went away, as an army defeated. Sentence: The snow hath retreated from the hill. prevailing - existing or spreading everywhere; dominant. Sentence: Blue sky is prevailing after the rain. bare - without covering, plants or leaves. Sentence: The snow lies on the top of the bare hill.

Activity: Deduce the meaning of underlined words (pages 38-39)
Deduce the meanings of the underlined words in the verses: 'The cock is crowing, The stream is flowing, The small birds twitter, The lake doth glitter.'
crowing - the loud call made by a cock in the morning. flowing - moving smoothly along, as water in a stream. twitter - making short chirping sounds, as small birds do. glitter - shining or sparkling brightly, as the lake does in sunlight.

Activity: Pronoun-antecedent agreement (page 39)
Underline the pronoun and the antecedent in the given sentences.
1. Saima was decorating her room. Antecedent: Saima. Pronoun: her. 2. Aslam has driven his car carefully. Antecedent: Aslam. Pronoun: his. 3. Her mother and sister are playing in their football team. Antecedents: mother and sister. Pronoun: their. 4. The dog is playing with its tail. Antecedent: dog. Pronoun: its. 5. I have accomplished my task successfully. Antecedent: I. Pronoun: my.

Make five sentences by following correct pronoun-antecedent agreement.

1. Ahmed finished his homework on time. 2. The girls are proud of their school. 3. Ali lost his pen yesterday. 4. The teacher praised her students warmly. 5. We should always keep our promises.

Activity: Present continuous tense (page 41)

Make five sentences of the present continuous tense and change them into negative and interrogative sentences.

1. He is playing football. Negative: He is not playing football. Interrogative: Is he playing football? 2. She is writing a book. Negative: She is not writing a book. Interrogative: Is she writing a book? 3. Ahmed is getting first position. Negative: Ahmed is not getting first position. Interrogative: Is Ahmed getting first position? 4. I am cooking meat. Negative: I am not cooking meat. Interrogative: Am I cooking meat? 5. We are studying science. Negative: We are not studying science. Interrogative: Are we studying science?

Activity: Apostrophe with nouns (page 42)

Make ten sentences using the apostrophe with nouns.

1. This is Keats' poetry. 2. The boys' college is near our house. 3. The child's toy is broken. 4. The woman's dress is beautiful. 5. The children's books are on the table. 6. The teachers' lounge is on the first floor. 7. Shees' book is very interesting. 8. Women's rights must be respected. 9. The baby's smile is lovely. 10. The students' notebooks were checked by the teacher.

Activity: Main idea of the poem (page 43)

Read the poem 'Written in March' once again and write down its main idea.

Main idea: The poem 'Written in March' by William Wordsworth describes a beautiful spring morning after the rain. Nature is full of joy and life: the cock crows, the stream flows, the birds twitter, the lake glitters, the cattle graze, and the snow retreats from the bare hill. The main idea is that spring brings new life, joy and beauty to the whole world after winter.

Activity: Make a short poem (page 43)

Make a short poem with the help of the word bank: beauty, breeze, clear, buzzing, wonderful, rear, smashing, cooling, hotter, wilder. (Model poem)

A Morning Breeze (Model poem). The beauty of the morning breeze is wonderful and clear, / The birds are buzzing in the trees, the sky is bright and clear. / A cooling wind is blowing soft, the sun is getting hotter, / Yet nature smiles in beauty, growing ever wilder and fair.

Unit 4: Disaster Management

Pre-reading Questions (page 45)

1. Have you ever seen flooding?

Yes, I have seen flooding. (Model answer: if you have not, say so.) Floodwater entered streets and houses, damaged crops and roads, and people had to move to higher and safer places until the water went down.

2. What is an earthquake?

An earthquake is a sudden shaking of the ground caused by movement of the earth's crust. It can damage buildings, roads and bridges, and it can cause great loss of life and property if people are not prepared.

Post-reading Questions (page 47)

1. How many kinds of disasters are there?

There are two kinds of disasters: human-made disasters, which occur due to human mistakes, like factory explosions; and natural disasters, which occur due to natural events, like earthquakes, floods or droughts. Epidemics and wars are also considered disasters.

2. How can we play our role in disaster management?

We can play our role by learning about hazards, making a family disaster plan, knowing shelter locations and evacuation routes, and taking part in training programmes. During a disaster we should stay calm, follow official instructions, help the needy, and after it we can help in relief and rebuilding work.

Reading and Critical Thinking - Answer the questions (page 48)

1. What is a disaster?

A disaster is an unexpected and sudden event that causes serious harm, like an earthquake, a flood or a storm. Its main features are suddenness, unexpectedness and destructive consequences, along with a lack of planning or foresight.

2. What is disaster management?

Disaster management is the process of preparing for and responding to disasters. It involves organizing resources to reduce harm, and managing the steps to prevent, prepare for, respond to, and recover from disasters.

3. How can we manage human efforts to lessen down the effects of disaster?

We can lessen the effects of a disaster through human effort by prevention and preparedness: educating the public about hazards, improving warning systems, teaching families to make disaster plans, using fire-resistant materials in buildings, avoiding building in flood-prone areas, and organizing resources, roles and training in advance.

4. How can building schools, hospitals, and neighbourhoods in flood-prone areas cause disasters during flood season?

Building schools, hospitals and neighbourhoods in flood-prone areas is dangerous because, during flood season, floodwater can enter and damage these buildings, injure or kill the people inside them, and cut off roads and services. That is why the unit advises safer uses for such land, like parks or trails.

5. Write down some disaster relief examples.

Examples of disaster relief are: setting up temporary shelters with food and emotional support; delivering meals and water to affected people; and providing emergency medical services like first aid to save lives and protect health and property.

Activity: Add apostrophes where necessary (page 49)

Add the apostrophe ('s) in the given paragraph where necessary.

Sameer's family visited Hazarganji park. He was excited to see different kinds of birds and animals in the park. The birds' cages were beautiful. He enjoyed merry-go-rounds. He saw a beautiful parrot and said, 'Wow, what a beautiful parrot this is!' He asked his brother, 'When will we go home?' Sameer's brother said, 'We will go home in the evening.'

Activity: Main idea and implied ideas (page 49)

Read the unit 'Disaster Management' and identify the main idea and any implied ideas.

Main idea: Disaster management is the organized process of preventing, preparing for, responding to, and recovering from disasters, so that harm to lives, health and property is reduced.

Implied ideas: (1) Communities that are poor or unprepared suffer more, so preparation and resources matter most for the vulnerable. (2) Safety is a shared responsibility: governments, families and individuals must all plan, practise and help one another, because no one can face a disaster alone.

Unit 5: Do Good and Keep It Doing

Pre-reading Questions (page 51)

1. Have you ever helped a needy person?

Yes, I have helped a needy person. (Model answer.) I once shared my lunch with a classmate who had forgotten his own, and I helped an old man carry his bags to his house. Helping others makes both the giver and the receiver happy.

2. How do we all depend upon one another?

We all depend upon one another because no person can do everything alone. Farmers grow our food, teachers teach us, doctors treat us, and our families care for us. In the same way, others depend on our help, so society works only when people help one another.

Post-reading Question (page 52)

What is the moral of this story?

The moral of the story is: 'The evil you do remains with you; the good you do comes back to you.' We should do good and never stop doing good, even if it is not appreciated at that time, because goodness returns to us in unexpected ways.

Reading and Critical Thinking - A) Answer the questions (page 55)

1. What did the woman do every day with the chapatti she baked?

Every day the woman baked an extra chapatti, placed it on the window sill for whosoever would take it away, and offered a prayer for her son who had gone to a distant place to seek his fortune.

2. How did the hunchback react when he took the chapatti?

Every day the hunchback came, picked up the chapatti and uttered the words, 'The evil you do remains with you; the good you do comes back to you!' He never expressed a word of gratitude.

3. What did the woman initially plan to do to get rid of the hunchback?

Annoyed by the hunchback's daily jingle and his lack of gratitude, she initially planned to get rid of him by adding poison to the chapatti she prepared for him.

4. Why did the woman decide to add poison to the chapatti?

She decided to add poison because she felt irritated and annoyed. She said to herself, 'Not a word of gratitude,' and she was tired of hearing the same jingle every day without any thanks.

5. What made the woman change her mind about poisoning the chapatti?

As she was about to keep the poisoned chapatti on the window sill, her hands trembled and she asked herself, 'What am I doing?' Feeling guilty, she immediately threw the poisoned chapatti into the fire and prepared another one.

6. What prayer did the woman offer every day as she placed the chapatti on the window sill?

Every day, as she placed the chapatti on the window sill, she offered a prayer for her son's safe return, because for many months she had no news of him.

7. Describe the condition of the woman's son when he returned.
When her son returned, he had grown thin and lean, his garments were tattered and torn, and he was hungry and weak. He said it was a miracle that he was there at all.

8. How did the hunchback's act of kindness save the woman's son?
The hunchback's act of kindness saved the son because, when the hungry son begged him for food a mile away from home, the hunchback gave him his whole daily chapatti, saying his need was greater. That chapatti was the fresh, safe one, not the poisoned one the mother had burnt.

9. What realization did the woman have when she heard her son's story?
She realized the significance of the words, 'The evil you do remains with you; the good you do comes back to you!' She understood that if she had not burnt the poisoned chapatti, her own son would have eaten it and lost his life.

10. What lesson does the story teach about the consequences of doing good deeds?
The story teaches that good deeds have consequences, whether positive or negative, and that the good we do comes back to us. We should keep doing good even when it is not appreciated at the time.

Reading and Critical Thinking - B) Tick the correct option (page 56)

1. What did the hunchback do with the chapatti every day?

- ✓ ate it with gratitude.
- left it untouched.
- gave it to someone else.

2. Why did the woman initially decide to add poison to the chapatti?

- She was angry with the hunchback.
- She wanted to teach the hunchback a lesson.
- ✓ She wanted to get rid of the hunchback.

3. What made the woman change her mind about poisoning the chapatti?

- ✓ She felt guilty.
- She remembered her son.
- She realized the consequences of her actions.

My First Day at School. (Topic sentence) My first day at school was one of the happiest and most memorable days of my life. (Supporting details) My mother took me to school early in the morning, and my new teacher welcomed me with a smile. I met many new friends, learnt new lessons, and played games in the playground during break. Everything was new and exciting, and I was not afraid at all. (Concluding sentence) I returned home happily and told my family that I loved my school and wanted to go there every day.

Unit 6: Going Forward (Poem)

Pre-reading Questions (page 64)

1. What did you think about the poem after reading the title?

After reading the title 'Going Forward', I think the poem is about moving ahead in life with good values: learning patience, strength, compassion and forgiveness, and sharing ideas and lessons so that we can live well together.

2. When you are in a trouble, do you have patience?

Yes, when I am in trouble I try to have patience. (Model answer.) I stay calm, think about the problem quietly, and ask for help instead of getting angry, because patience helps me find a better solution.

1. What is the importance of the past?

The past is important because it gives us lessons. By remembering what happened before, we learn from our mistakes and our successes, and we can make better choices for the future.

2. How does the poet advise us in the last stanza?

In the last stanza the poet advises us to share ideas about the future, share lessons from the past, discover new horizons, uncover the best of ourselves, and live alongside one another in harmony.

Reading and Critical Thinking - A) Answer the questions (page 66)

1. What does the poetess ask to be taught when there is anger?

When there is anger, the poetess asks to be taught patience, so that she can wait calmly instead of acting in anger.

2. How does the poetess suggest one should respond to injustice?

The poetess suggests that one should respond to injustice with strength, so that one can stand up for what is right.

3. What quality does the poetess request to be taught when there is a need?

When there is a need, the poetess requests to be taught compassion, that is, kindness and care for others who need help.

4. How does the poetess propose one should react to sadness?

The poetess proposes that one should react to sadness with empathy, that is, by understanding and sharing the feelings of others.

5. What does the poetess ask for when there is noise?

When there is noise, the poetess asks for silence, so that she can be calm and peaceful.

Reading and Critical Thinking - B) Tick the correct option (page 66)

1. When there is anger, the poetess asks to be taught:

patience

strength

compassion

silence

2. According to the poem, how should one respond to injustice?

- with anger
- with patience
- ✓ with strength
- with compassion

3. What is the poetess asking for when there is a need?

- empathy
- ✓ compassion
- forgiveness
- healing

4. When faced with sadness, the poetess suggests one should show:

- anger
- ✓ empathy
- compassion
- laughter

5. In times of noise, what does the poetess ask for?

- Patience
- ✓ Silence
- Strength
- Healing

Activity: Simple and compound sentences (page 68)

Make three simple sentences and three compound sentences.

Simple sentences: 1. She loves to read. 2. The cat is sleeping. 3. He runs every morning. Compound sentences: 1. She loves to read, but she also enjoys writing. 2. The cat is sleeping, and the dog is playing. 3. He runs every morning, so he stays fit and healthy.

Activity: Adjectives from nouns (pages 68-69)

Make adjectives from the given nouns using the appropriate suffixes: question, nature, child, human, storm, colour.

1. question + able = questionable. 2. nature + al = natural. 3. child + ish = childish. 4. human + ly = humanly. 5. storm + y = stormy. 6. colour + ful = colourful.

Activity: Adjectival phrases in sentences (page 69)

Make sentences of the given adjectival phrases.

1. That is a lovely cake. 2. The food was tasty enough. 3. The cricket team was really happy. 4. The big green plastic bin is for recycling. 5. The tall boy was playing basketball nicely. 6. The cool green grass looks beautiful. 7. The hard working girl completed all the tasks on time.

Activity: Opinion on the second stanza (page 70)

Write down your opinion on the second stanza of the poem. (Model answer)

In my opinion, in the second stanza of the poem 'Going Forward' the poet wants to tell us that we should allow ourselves to feel and to heal. Laughter should be allowed in joy, tears in grief, forgiveness in guilt, healing in hurt, and growth in change. This teaches us that every feeling has its place, and that accepting our feelings honestly helps us grow stronger and move forward in life.

Unit 7: The Autobiography of a Piece of Paper

Pre-reading Questions (page 72)

1. What is an autobiography?

An autobiography is the story of a person's life written by that person himself or herself. In this unit, the piece of paper tells its own life story, from a tree in the forest to a page in a book.

2. Do you know how paper is made?

Yes, paper is made from trees. The trees are cut down, their wood is chopped and ground with water into a mushy mixture called pulp, the pulp is cleaned and spread into thin sheets, pressed with rollers, dried, and cut into paper.

Reading and Critical Thinking - A) Answer the questions (page 76)

1. What is the paper made of?

The paper is made of wood from a tree. It began as part of a tall, green tree in the forest, whose roots reached deep into the soil.

2. What is 'pulp' in the paper's story?

In the paper's story, 'pulp' is the mushy mixture made by grinding chopped wood into tiny bits and mixing them with water. The pulp is cleaned, treated with chemicals, spread into thin sheets, pressed and dried to become paper.

3. What were some of the paper's uses in school?

In school the paper was used for a student's homework, filled with maths problems and spelling words; for art projects, where children drew pictures, cut shapes and folded origami; and for letters sent to family and friends.

4. How did the paper change as it got older?

As it got older, its edges became worn, it turned a little yellow, it was no longer as smooth and fresh as before, some of its ink faded, and it developed small creases from being handled often.

5. What did the paper learn from being recycled?

The paper learnt that even when its first life is over, it can be recycled and begin a new life serving people again in a new form. The lesson is that nothing useful should be wasted, and every ending can become a new beginning. (Note: the printed story ends with the paper stored in a box; this question draws on general knowledge of recycling.)

Reading and Critical Thinking - B) Tick the correct option (pages 76-77)

1. What was the piece of paper originally?

- a plastic sheet
- ✓ a tree
- a flower
- a book

2. How did the paper describe its transformation from a tree?

- It was burned to become paper.

It was left in the forest.

✓ It was cut down and turned into pulp.

It was painted to look like paper.

3. What happened to the paper after it became a blank sheet?

It was thrown away.

It was given to a teacher.

✓ It was placed in a store and later taken to a school.

It was recycled right away.

4. Who first used the paper after it was brought to school?

✓ a young student

the school principal

a factory worker

a librarian

5. What changes did the paper notice as it grew old?

It became thicker and whiter.

It stayed exactly the same.

✓ It turned yellow and got creases.

It turned into a tree again.

6. After recycling, what did the piece of paper become? (The only paper product among the options; the printed story does not name the recycled product.)

✓ a notebook

a poster

an art project

a plastic bag

Write multiple paragraphs on 'Benefits of Regular Exercise' following the steps: brainstorming, first draft, peer feedback, teacher feedback and final draft. (Model answer)

Benefits of Regular Exercise. (Paragraph 1) Regular exercise is one of the best habits for a healthy life. It keeps our body strong, our mind fresh and our mood cheerful. (Paragraph 2) Exercise makes our heart and muscles strong, controls our weight, and protects us from many diseases. It also improves our concentration, helps us sleep better, and reduces stress and worry. (Paragraph 3) In short, everyone, young or old, should exercise daily, even for a short time, because a healthy body is the key to a happy and successful life.

Unit 8: The Mountain and The Squirrel (Poem)

Pre-reading Questions (page 87)

1. What does the title of this poem indicate?

The title indicates that the poem is about a quarrel, or argument, between a huge mountain and a tiny squirrel, and about what each of them thinks of the other.

2. Have you ever seen a squirrel?

Yes, I have seen a squirrel. (Model answer.) It was a small, quick animal with a bushy tail, running up and down the trees in our garden and cracking nuts.

Post-reading Questions (page 87)

1. What is the theme(s) of this poem?

The themes of the poem are: every creature and thing has its own value, talents differ from person to person, and pride in one's size or strength is foolish. Small does not mean unimportant.

2. How has the poet proved that everything is important?

The poet proves that everything is important by showing that the mountain, for all its size, cannot crack a nut, while the squirrel, for all its smallness, is spry and makes a pretty squirrel track. All sorts of things and weather together make up a year and a sphere, so each has its own place and purpose.

Reading and Critical Thinking - A) Answer the questions (pages 88-89)

1. What is the subject of the poem?

The subject of the poem is the quarrel between the mountain and the squirrel about size and importance, and the lesson that every creature has its own talents.

2. Describe the quarrel between the mountain and the squirrel.

The mountain and the squirrel had a quarrel because the mountain, proud of its great size, called the squirrel a 'Little prig', that is, a small, conceited creature. The squirrel answered calmly and defended its own worth.

3. How does the mountain describe the squirrel?

The mountain describes the squirrel as a 'Little prig', insulting it for being small and, in the mountain's view, self-important.

4. What is the squirrel's response to the mountain's insult?

The squirrel replies that the mountain is doubtless very big, but that all sorts of things and weather must be taken in together to make up a year and a sphere, and it is no disgrace for the squirrel to occupy its own place.

5. What does the squirrel say about the importance of different things and weather?

The squirrel says that all sorts of things and weather must be taken in together to make up a year and a sphere, meaning that the world needs everything, great and small, and no single thing makes the whole.

6. How does the squirrel feel about its size compared to the mountain?

The squirrel does not feel ashamed of its size. It says that if it is not so large as the mountain, the mountain is not so small as it, and not half so spry, that is, not half so quick and lively.

7. What does the squirrel suggest about talents and abilities?

The squirrel suggests that talents differ and all is well and wisely put, meaning that every creature has been given different abilities wisely, and each ability has its own value.

8. Explain the significance of the squirrel's statement, 'If I cannot carry forests on my back, neither can you crack a nut.'

This statement means that each of them lacks something the other can do: the squirrel cannot carry forests on its back as the mountain does, but the mountain cannot crack a nut as the squirrel can. Neither is better than the other in every way, so neither should boast.

Reading and Critical Thinking - B) Tick the correct option (page 89)

1. What did the mountain call the squirrel?

- little squirrel
- ✓ little prig
- tiny creature
- small rodent

2. How does the squirrel describe the mountain?

- very small
- ✓ doubtlessly big
- insignificant
- unimportant

3. According to the squirrel, what must be taken into consideration to make up a year and a sphere?

- only the mountain's opinion
- ✓ all sorts of things and weather
- the squirrel's size
- the mountain's size

4. What does the squirrel suggest about talents and abilities?

- they are insignificant
- ✓ everyone has different talents
- only the mountain has talents
- talents do not matter

5. What analogy does the squirrel use to illustrate its point? (Note: both 'carrying forests on its back' and 'cracking a nut' appear in the same quoted line.)

The squirrel uses the contrast between carrying forests and cracking a nut: it cannot carry forests on its back, and the mountain cannot crack a nut. Both actions appear among the options, so the point is the pair together, not one action alone.

Find out figures of speech in the poem 'The Mountain and the Squirrel' and write them down.

1. Personification: The mountain and the squirrel speak and quarrel like human beings, although they are not human. 2. Hyperbole: 'If I cannot carry forests on my back' is an exaggeration for effect, because no one can carry whole forests. 3. Comparison: 'If I am not so large as you, you are not so small as I, and not half so spry' compares the size and quickness of the two speakers.

Activity: Kinds of adjectives (page 92)

Identify the type of adjectives in the given sentences and also spot out the nouns that have been described.

Activity: Dialogue writing (page 95)

Write a short dialogue between two persons about the importance of female education. (Model dialogue)

Dialogue: Importance of Female Education. Ali: Do you think girls' education is important? Sara: Yes, very important. An educated girl becomes a good mother, a good teacher and a useful citizen. Ali: How does it help the country? Sara: When girls are educated, families become healthier and happier, and the whole country progresses. Ali: You are right. We should all support female education. Sara: Yes, educating a girl means educating a whole family.

Unit 9: The Secret of Happiness

Pre-reading Questions (page 97)

1. What does the title 'The Secret of Happiness' indicate about the unit?

The title indicates that the unit is about discovering what real happiness is. It suggests that happiness has a secret which must be learnt, not from wealth or luxury, but from a wise way of living.

2. How can a person become happy?

A person can become happy by enjoying the beautiful things of the world while also fulfilling his duties and responsibilities. Happiness comes from balance: seeing the marvels of life and never forgetting one's small but important obligations.

Post-reading Questions (page 99)

1. Why could the boy take care of the oil second time? (As printed; the story shows he could not.)

As the story tells it, the boy could NOT take care of the oil the second time. (The question as printed omits 'not'.) The second time he observed all the marvels of the palace, the gardens, the mountains and the flowers, but in enjoying all that beauty he forgot the spoon, and when he looked down, the oil was gone.

2. What is the moral of this story?

The moral of the story is that the secret of happiness is to see all the marvels of the world and never to forget the drops of oil on the spoon, that is, to enjoy life's beauty while faithfully fulfilling our daily duties and responsibilities.

Activity: Rhetorical patterns in the story (page 101)

Identify and write down one example of each rhetorical pattern from the story: facts, opinions, descriptions, examples, cause and effect, comparison, definition, problem and solution.

1. Facts: The lad wandered through the desert for 40 days before reaching the castle. 2. Opinions: The table was covered with the most delicious food in that part of the world. 3. Descriptions: The castle stood high atop a mountain, with a small orchestra playing soft music. 4. Examples: The Persian tapestries, the garden made in ten years, and the parchments in the library are examples of the marvels of the wise man's world. 5. Cause and Effect: Because the boy kept his eyes fixed on the spoon, he observed nothing of the palace. 6. Comparison: The first tour, with eyes only on the spoon, is compared with the second tour, with eyes on the marvels. 7. Definition: The wise man defines the secret of happiness as seeing all the marvels of the world and never forgetting the drops of oil on the spoon. 8. Problem and Solution: The boy's problem was that he could not both watch the oil and see the palace; the solution taught by the wise man is balance between the two.

Reading and Critical Thinking - A) Answer the questions (page 101)

1. Why did the shopkeeper send his son to learn about the secret of happiness?

The shopkeeper sent his son to learn the secret of happiness from the wisest man in the world, so that his son might learn how to live a happy life.

2. Describe the scene the son encountered upon entering the wise man's castle.

On entering the castle, the son saw a hive of activity: tradesmen came and went, people conversed in corners, a small orchestra played soft music, and a table was covered with platters of the most delicious food. The wise man was conversing with everyone.

3. What task did the wise man give to the son before he could learn about the secret of happiness?

Before he could learn the secret, the wise man gave him a teaspoon holding two drops of oil and asked him to wander around the palace for two hours, carrying the spoon without allowing the oil to spill.

4. Why was the son embarrassed when he returned to the wise man after two hours?

He was embarrassed because, having kept his eyes fixed on the spoon for two hours, he had observed nothing at all. When the wise man asked about the tapestries, the garden and the parchments, he had to confess that he had seen none of them.

5. What did the wise man advise the son to do before revealing the secret of happiness?

The wise man advised him to go back and observe the marvels of his world, saying, 'You cannot trust a man if you do not know his house.' Only then would he reveal the secret.

6. What did the son observe during his second exploration of the palace?

During his second exploration he observed all the works of art on the ceilings and walls, the gardens, the mountains all around, the beauty of the flowers, and the taste with which everything had been selected.

7. What was the wise man's reaction when the son returned without any oil in the spoon?

The wise man asked, 'But where are the drops of oil I entrusted to you?' Looking down, the boy saw that the oil was gone, and the wise man then gave him the one piece of advice that is the secret of happiness.

8. According to the wise man, what is the secret of happiness?

According to the wise man, the secret of happiness is to see all the marvels of the world and never to forget the drops of oil on the spoon.

9. How did the son's perspective change throughout the story?

At first the son thought only of his duty and saw nothing; then he thought only of beauty and forgot his duty. By the end he understood that happiness needs both: enjoying the world and remembering one's responsibilities.

10. What lesson can be learned from the story?

The lesson is that true happiness lies in balance. We should enjoy the beauty and marvels of life, but we must never neglect our small daily duties and responsibilities.

Reading and Critical Thinking - B) Tick the correct option (pages 101-102)

1. Why did the son have to wait for two hours before meeting the wise man?

- the wise man was sleeping.
- ✓ the wise man was busy with other activities.
- the son arrived too early.
- the son got lost in the palace.

2. What task did the wise man give to the son to carry out during his exploration of the palace?

- carry a candle without extinguishing it
- ✓ carry a spoon without spilling its oil
- water the garden plants
- memorize the tapestries in the dining hall

3. Why was the son embarrassed when he returned to the wise man after two hours? (Closest option: he had observed nothing at all, having kept his eyes on the spoon.)

- ✓ He could not find anything interesting in the palace.
- He forgot the task given by the wise man.
- He spilled the oil from the spoon.
- He observed only the beauty of the palace without noticing its details.

4. What did the son observe during his second exploration of the palace?

- the wise man's collection of rare artifacts
- ✓ the marvels of the world and the palace's beauty
- the servants working in the palace
- the wise man's personal library

5. What lesson did the wise man impart to the son regarding the secret of happiness?

- Always focus on material possessions.
- ✓ Enjoy the marvels of the world and remember the importance of small things.
- Pursue wealth and power relentlessly.
- Seek approval and recognition from others.

Activity: Main theme of the story (page 102)

Activity: Summary of the story (page 109)

Write the summary of the story 'The Secret of Happiness' using the steps given in the book. (Model summary)

Summary: A shopkeeper sent his son to learn the secret of happiness from the wisest man in the world. After wandering the desert for 40 days, the boy reached a beautiful castle full of activity and waited two hours to meet the wise man. The wise man gave him a spoon with two drops of oil and asked him to tour the palace without spilling it. The first time the boy watched only the spoon and saw nothing; the second time he saw all the marvels but spilt the oil. The wise man then told him the secret: to see all the marvels of the world and never to forget the drops of oil on the spoon.

Activity: Paragraph - My Favourite Personality (page 109)

Use the mind map (family, date and place of birth, education, personality, interests, career) to write a paragraph about 'My Favorite Personality'. (Model paragraph)

My Favourite Personality. My favourite personality is Quaid-e-Azam Muhammad Ali Jinnah, the founder of Pakistan. He was born on 25 December 1876 in Karachi, and he was educated in Karachi and London, where he became a lawyer. His personality was marked by honesty, determination, discipline and courage. He loved reading, law and hard work, and his career as a lawyer and leader gave a separate homeland to the Muslims of the subcontinent. I admire him because he never gave up, always spoke the truth, and lived a simple and principled life.

Activity: Proofread the paragraph (page 111)

Proofread the given paragraph for sentence structure, subject/verb agreement, noun/pronoun agreement, connectives, punctuation and spelling.

There are many people who enjoy hiking in the mountains. One of the most popular hiking trails leads to a breathtaking view of the valley below. However, hikers need to be prepared for the challenging terrain, including steep inclines and rocky paths. Proper footwear and clothing are essential for ensuring safety on the trail. In addition, it is advisable to bring enough water and snacks for the journey. Despite the difficulties, the experience of reaching the summit makes it all worthwhile. Errors corrected: Their to There; peoples to people; enjoys to enjoy; lead to leads; needs to need; worth wild to worthwhile.

Unit 10: Artificial Intelligence in Our Daily Lives

Pre-reading Questions (page 113)

1. What do you already know about artificial intelligence?

I already know that artificial intelligence is a way to make machines think and act like humans. Computers can learn from experience, solve problems and make decisions, for example voice assistants and self-driving cars.

2. In what ways do you think machines could help us in the future?

In the future machines could help us by teaching students, helping doctors diagnose diseases, driving cars safely, cleaning our homes, and doing dangerous jobs so that humans stay safe.

3. What are some tasks that you think computers could do better than humans?

Computers can do some tasks better than humans, such as doing very fast calculations, remembering huge amounts of information, searching millions of books in seconds, and working day and night without getting tired.

Post-reading Questions (page 117)

1. What is artificial intelligence?

Artificial intelligence is a way to make machines think and act like humans. Computers learn from experience and data, solve problems, and even make decisions, in order to imitate human abilities and make our lives easier.

2. What are some benefits of artificial intelligence mentioned in the unit?

Some benefits of artificial intelligence mentioned in the unit are: efficiency (tasks done faster), accuracy (fewer human errors, better diagnoses), personalization (learning plans for each student), safety (self-driving cars, safety in factories), and twenty-four-hour availability (chatbots helping at any time).

Reading and Critical Thinking - A) Answer the questions (page 118)

1. Can you give two examples of where we see artificial intelligence in our daily lives?

Two examples of artificial intelligence in daily life are: voice assistants like Siri, Alexa or Google Assistant, which answer questions and play music; and online shopping websites, which recommend products based on what we have looked at or bought before.

2. What are the challenges or concerns about artificial intelligence?

The challenges and concerns are: mistakes when data is missing or wrong; difficulty in understanding human emotions; privacy concerns about personal data; job displacement as some jobs change or disappear; and bias, when AI learns from biased data and makes biased decisions.

3. How do you think artificial intelligence will change in the future?

In the future, artificial intelligence will become more capable and a bigger part of our lives. It may do more jobs, help doctors and teachers more, and create new jobs for people who manage and work alongside AI. (Model answer: your own opinion is also acceptable.)

4. Why is it important for people to learn about artificial intelligence?

It is important for people to learn about artificial intelligence because it is becoming a bigger part of our future. By understanding how it works and its impact, we can make better choices about its use and ensure that it benefits all of us.

5. How can we ensure that artificial intelligence is used ethically?

We can ensure ethical use by respecting people's privacy, checking AI decisions for bias, making clear rules for its use, keeping human control over important decisions, and using AI only for good purposes that help everyone.

Reading and Critical Thinking - B) Tick the correct option (pages 118-119)

1. What does artificial intelligence aim to do?

- make machines look like humans
- ✓ make machines think and act like humans
- replace all human jobs
- create new types of plants

2. How does artificial intelligence learn?

- by memorizing facts

✓ by using data to find patterns

by guessing answers

by following strict rules

3. Which of the following is an example of artificial intelligence in daily life?

a physical book

a calculator

✓ a voice assistant like Siri

a paper map

4. What challenge does artificial intelligence face regarding data?

it can only use numbers

it always uses too much data

✓ it may make biased decisions based on data

it does not need data at all

5. How does artificial intelligence impact job markets?

it guarantees job security for everyone

✓ it may cause some jobs to disappear

it creates jobs only for robots

it has no effect on jobs

Activity: Compound words in sentences (page 119)

Use the compound words (ice-cream, football, bookshelf, rainbow, butterfly, sunflower, moonlight, raincoat, firefly) in sentences of your own.

1. I like to eat ice-cream in summer. 2. The boys are playing football in the ground. 3. Please put the book on the bookshelf. 4. A rainbow appeared in the sky after the rain. 5. A butterfly sat on the flower. 6. The sunflower turns towards the sun. 7. The moonlight was bright at night. 8. Wear your raincoat because it is raining. 9. The firefly glows in the dark night.

Activity: Informal letter (page 124)

Write a letter to your friend informing him/her about your achievement in the recent exams. (Model letter)

Jinnah Town, Quetta. 24th May, 2024. Dear Sidra, I hope you are doing great. I am writing to share my happy news: I have got first position in our recent exams! I worked very hard, and my teachers and parents are very pleased. I hope you are also doing well in your studies. Please write back and tell me your result. With love, Alizah. (Model letter: write your own name, result and date.)

Activity: Dialogue in speech bubbles (page 125)

Think of any situation and write a short dialogue between two persons in speech bubbles. (Model dialogue)

A: Excuse me, can I borrow your English book for one day? B: Yes, of course. But please return it tomorrow, because I need it for homework. A: Thank you very much. I promise I will return it on time. B: You are welcome. (Model dialogue for speech bubbles.)

Activity: Library membership form (page 126)

Fill in the given library membership form. (Sample entries only.)

Sample filled form (write your own details in your form): Name: Ahmed Khan. Date of Birth: 12 March 2014. Address: House 5, Street 2, Jinnah Town. City: Quetta. State/Province: Balochistan. Email: ahmed@example.com. Phone Number: 0300-1234567. Occupation: Student. Library Card Number (if renewing): Not applicable (new member). Date: 24 May 2024. Signature: Ahmed Khan.

Unit 11: The World (Poem)

Pre-reading Questions (page 128)

1. What do you understand after reading the title?

After reading the title 'The World', I understand that the poem is about our Earth: how great, wide and beautiful it is, and how small a human being is in comparison with it.

2. Tell some beautiful things present in the world.

Some beautiful things present in the world are: the blue water of seas and rivers, the green grass and wheat-fields, the fresh air and wind, mountains and hills, cities and gardens, cliffs and islands, and the people who live in them.

Post-reading Question (page 129)

What message is given in the last two lines of the poem?

The message given in the last two lines is: 'You are more than the Earth, though you are such a dot: You can love and think, and the Earth cannot!' It means that although a human being is tiny compared with the Earth, he is greater than it, because he can love and think, while the Earth cannot.

Activity: Group discussion (page 130)

Group discussion on 'The Beauty of the World' (follow the rules: be respectful, take turns, speak clearly, stay on topic, encourage others, ask questions, build on ideas, be open-minded, stay positive, summarize). Points: the world is great, wide, beautiful and wonderful; its water, grass, air, wind, fields, rivers, cities and gardens; humans are small but can love and think; we must protect this beauty.

Reading and Critical Thinking - A) Answer the questions (page 130)

1. What aspects of the world does the poet describe as 'wonderful'?

The poet describes the world as great, wide, beautiful and wonderful: the wonderful water curled round it, the wonderful grass upon its breast, the wonderful air over us, and the wonderful wind shaking the trees.

2. How does the poet characterize the air and the wind in the poem?

The poet characterizes the air as wonderful and over us, and the wind as active and alive: it shakes the tree, walks on the water, whirls the mills, and talks to itself on the tops of the hills.

3. What imagery does the poet use to describe the Earth?

The poet uses the imagery of a beautifully dressed friend: the Earth wears wonderful grass upon its breast, wonderful water curled round it, wheat-fields that nod, rivers that flow, and cities, gardens, cliffs and isles, with people upon it for thousands of miles.

4. What realization does the poet come to about his own significance compared to the vastness of the world?

The poet realizes that he is so small compared with the vastness of the world that he trembles to think of the World at all: 'Ah! you are so great, and I am so small.'

5. What comforting thought does the poet recall while saying their prayers?

While saying his prayers, the poet recalls a whisper inside him saying that he is more than the Earth, though he is such a dot, because he can love and think, and the Earth cannot. This is the comforting thought.

Reading and Critical Thinking - B) Tick the correct option (page 131)

1. According to the poem, what is one feature of the world that the poet finds wonderful?

- the moon's reflection on the water
- the rustling of leaves in the trees
- the sound of waves crashing on the shore
- ✓ the greenery of grass covering the Earth's surface

2. What does the poet compare the world's air to? (Note: the poem states no direct comparison; see the answer.)

The poem does not compare the air to any one of these things directly. It says the wonderful air is over the poet, and the wonderful wind shakes the tree, walks on the water, whirls the mills, and talks to itself on the hilltops. The whirling action is closest to a whirlwind, but the poem gives no direct comparison for the air itself.

3. In the poem, what is the Earth described as wearing?

- a coat of snow
- a mantle of clouds

✓ a dress of grass

a veil of mist

4. How does the poet express his feelings of insignificance compared to the vastness of the Earth?

✓ they feel overwhelmed and fearful.

they express awe and admiration.

they feel empowered and confident.

they feel indifferent and detached.

5. What comforting thought does the poet recall while praying?

the Earth is far larger than they are.

they are a small part of the Earth's ecosystem.

✓ they have the ability to love and think.

the Earth is incapable of feeling emotions.

Activity: Direct or indirect speech - identify (page 136)

Identify and write the following sentences as direct or indirect speech.

1. They said, 'We have won the match.' Direct speech. 2. Sara said that she was reading a storybook. Indirect speech. 3. Hassan said that he had walked on the beach. Indirect speech. 4. The boy said, 'I like to fly a kite.' Direct speech. 5. He asked me if I was busy. Indirect speech. 6. She asked if they were playing the games. Indirect speech. 7. The captain said, 'We are out of danger.' Direct speech.

Activity: Change into indirect speech (pages 136-137)

Change the following sentences into indirect speech.

1. Raza said that he lived in a village. 2. She said that she was going out. 3. The boys said that they had reached in time. 4. Sara said that Zara loved to eat fish. 5. My father asked if it was raining outside. 6. The teacher said that I had completed the task. (The pronoun follows the listener: if reported by another person, 'he/she had completed the task'.) 7. Obaid asked if I read the newspaper. 8. She asked if I was going to the market. 9. He said that the baby was crying. 10. The children said that they were colouring the pictures.

Activity: Descriptive composition (page 138)

Write a descriptive composition about 'My Grandmother' with the help of the brainstorming and mind map. (Model composition)

My Grandmother. My grandmother is an elderly woman of short stature, with kind eyes, silver hair, a wrinkled face, and glasses. She is usually dressed in floral dresses and cardigans, and she carries a walking stick. She is wise, warm-hearted, patient and generous. She loves gardening, enjoys baking, and tells captivating stories. She likes flowers, cakes and her grandchildren, and she dislikes noise and carelessness. Her behaviour is always gentle: she listens to everyone, forgives quickly, and helps her neighbours. I love my grandmother because her warm heart makes our whole family feel safe and happy.

Unit 12: The Paddle Boat

Pre-reading Questions (page 140)

1. Have you ever ridden a boat?

Yes, I have ridden a boat. (Model answer.) I once rode a small boat on a river with my family, and it moved slowly over the water while we watched the banks go by.

2. Can you name any invention that you ever heard about or seen?

Yes, I have heard of many inventions, for example the steamboat, the telephone, the aeroplane and the electric bulb. The steamboat was invented by Robert Fulton, who is the hero of this unit.

Post-reading Questions (page 142)

1. Who invented the steamboat?

Robert Fulton invented the steamboat. As a boy he had made paddle wheels for an old fishing boat, and as a man he kept planning and working until he made a boat with paddle wheels that could be run by steam.

2. How does a steamboat move?

A steamboat moves by paddle wheels fixed on its sides. In Fulton's boyhood boat the wheels were turned by a crank; in his later steamboat the paddle wheels were run by steam, pushing the boat forward through the water.

Reading and Critical Thinking - A) Answer the questions (pages 143-144)

1. What were the two boys doing at the beginning of the story?

At the beginning of the story, the two boys, Robert and Christopher, were fishing in a small river. They sat in a heavy flat-bottomed boat, each holding a long, crooked rod and eagerly waiting for 'a bite'.

2. How did the boys initially move the boat from one fishing place to another?

Initially the boys moved the boat by poling it, that is, by pushing against a long pole whose lower end reached the bottom of the stream.

3. What did Robert think about the process of poling the boat?

Robert thought poling was slow and hard work. He said the old boat crept over the water no faster than a snail, and he believed there ought to be a better way of moving a boat.

4. What idea did Robert come up with to improve the boat's movement?

Robert's idea was to fit the boat with paddle wheels, turned by a crank, so that the boat could move without poling it or rowing it.

5. What materials did Robert and Christopher use to create their invention?

Robert and Christopher used wood for two rough, crude but strong paddle wheels, and an iron rod passed through the boat from side to side, bent in the middle so that it could be turned as with a crank. Robert also used something like an oarlock and a paddle for steering.

6. How did they attach the paddle wheels to the boat?
They fastened each paddle wheel to the end of an iron rod which they passed through the boat from side to side. The rod was bent in the middle so that it could be turned as with a crank.

7. What problem did Christopher raise about guiding the boat?
Christopher raised the problem of guiding the boat: 'She goes ahead all right, but how shall we guide her?'

8. How did Robert solve the problem of guiding the boat?
Robert solved the problem by fastening something like an oarlock to the stern of the boat, with a paddle working in it, so that one boy could guide the boat while the other turned the paddle wheels.

9. How did Christopher's father react to their invention?
Christopher's father was impressed and pleased. He wondered why they had not thought of something like that long ago, and said that almost anybody could rig up an old boat like that.

10. What did Robert Fulton eventually become famous for inventing?
Robert Fulton eventually became famous for inventing the steamboat, a boat with paddle wheels run by steam. He became famous because he was always thinking and studying about new ideas.

Reading and Critical Thinking - B) Tick the correct option (pages 144-145)

1. How did the boys initially move the boat?

- by rowing
- ✓ by poling
- by paddling
- by sailing

2. What did Robert think about poling the boat?

- He found it easy and enjoyable.
- ✓ He thought it was a slow and laborious process.
- He believed it was the best way to move the boat.
- He thought it required too much equipment.

3. What did Robert and Christopher use to create their invention?

- fishing nets
- paddleboards
- ✓ iron rods and paddle wheels
- sails and masts

4. How did they attach the paddle wheels to the boat?

- They tied them with ropes.
- They glued them to the sides of the boat.
- ✓ They fastened them to iron rods passing through the boat.
- They nailed them to wooden planks.

5. What problem did Christopher raise about guiding the boat?

He was worried about the boat sinking.

He did not know how to paddle.

✓ He was concerned about steering.

He thought the paddle wheels would break.

6. How did Robert solve the problem of guiding the boat?

He attached a rudder to the boat.

✓ He used an oarlock and paddle.

He installed a motor.

He hired a navigator.

7. How did Christopher's father react to their invention?

✓ He was impressed and proud.

He laughed and dismissed it.

He scolded them for wasting time.

He did not notice it.

8. What did Robert Fulton become famous for inventing?

The bicycle

✓ The steamboat

The airplane

The submarine

9. What did Robert Fulton continue to do even after his experiment with the fishing boat?

He gave up on inventing.

He moved to a different country.

✓ He kept planning and working on new ideas.

He focused on his fishing hobby.

10. Why is Robert Fulton remembered and honored?

for his skill in fishing

for his success in politics

✓ for his contributions to steamboat technology

for his talent in painting

Activity: Topic sentence and supporting details (page 147)

Read the second paragraph of the unit and write its topic sentence and supporting details.

Second paragraph of the unit: Topic sentence: 'When they wanted to move the boat from one place to another they had to pole it.' Supporting details: Poling means pushing against a long pole whose lower end reaches the bottom of the stream. The old boat crept over the water no faster than a snail, and the work was slow and hard, so Robert thought there ought to be a better way.

Activity: Conjunctions (pages 147-148)

a) She did not go to the concert ____ she had to work late.

because

b) I have to finish this report ____ I will go to the meeting.

and

c) You can have tea ____ coffee for breakfast.

but

Activity: Transitional devices (page 148)

Use the correct transitional device to connect the given sentences.

a) She was tired because she stayed up late to finish her project. b) Jameel loves swimming. However, he is afraid of deep water. c) I forgot my umbrella. As a result, I got soaked in the rain.

Activity: Past continuous tense (page 150)

Make five sentences of the past continuous tense and change them into negative and interrogative.

1. He was playing football. Negative: He was not playing football. Interrogative: Was he playing football? 2. We were studying science. Negative: We were not studying science. Interrogative: Were we studying science? 3. She was writing a book. Negative: She was not writing a book. Interrogative: Was she writing a book? 4. I was cooking meat. Negative: I was not cooking meat.

Interrogative: Was I cooking meat? 5. Ahmed was getting first position. Negative: Ahmed was not getting first position. Interrogative: Was Ahmed getting first position?

Activity: Past perfect tense (page 150)

Make five sentences of the past perfect tense. (Model sentences, following the book's examples.)

1. Before the movie started, I had already bought the tickets. 2. By the time the meeting began, they had already discussed the agenda. 3. They had finished their work before the deadline approached. 4. The train had already departed when I arrived at the station. 5. By the time the storm hit, we had already secured all the windows.

Activity: Formal letter (page 152)

Write a letter to the Director of Education for establishing an examination centre in your area. (Model letter)

Ahmed Khan, Jinnah Town, Quetta. 8 November 2024. The Director of Education, Quetta. Dear Sir, I hope you are well. I am writing to request the establishment of an examination centre in our area, Jinnah Town. At present our students must travel a long distance to appear in examinations, which causes hardship, expense and loss of time, especially for girls and younger students. An examination centre in our own area would save time and money, reduce travel difficulties, and help our students perform better. I kindly request you to establish an examination centre in Jinnah Town at the earliest. Thank you for your attention, and I look forward to your favourable response. Yours sincerely, Ahmed Khan. (Model letter:

write your own name and area.)
