Solved Exercises - Balochistan Textbook Board

Balochistan Textbook Board (BTBB)

Unit 1: Hazrat Umar Farooq (may Allah be pleased with him)

Pre-reading (p.9)

1. What do you understand by the term 'caliph'?

A caliph is the successor and leader of the Muslim community after the Holy Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him), responsible for guiding the community and governing the Islamic state.

2. Which caliph of Muslims was well known for his justice?

Hazrat Umar Farooq (may Allah be pleased with him), the second caliph of Islam, was well known for his justice.

While Reading (p.9)

Which administrative reforms were brought during the Caliphate of Hazrat Umar?

He established departments for taxation, justice and public works, set up a system of governance, and appointed governors and officials to manage the expanding empire.

Reading and Critical Thinking (p.12): Answer the following questions.

1. Who was Hazrat Umar Farooq, and what position did he hold in Islamic history?

Hazrat Umar Farooq was a close companion of the Holy Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him) and the second caliph of Islam. He played a prominent role in shaping Islamic history, and his life is an inspiration to many.

2. Name at least two major regions where Islam spread during the caliphate of Hazrat Umar Farooq.

Persia and Syria (the unit also names Egypt and North Africa; Islam expanded rapidly during his caliphate, 634-644 A.D.).

3. What administrative reforms did Hazrat Umar Farooq introduce to improve the governance of the Islamic state?

He established departments for taxation, justice and public works, set up a system of governance, appointed governors and officials, introduced the Islamic calendar, set up jails, appointed supervisors for mosques, ensured proper lighting in mosques, established the police department, built military garrisons and organised the army, and began public accountability and the punishment of unjust judges.

4. How did he ensure justice and welfare for people, regardless of their social background?

He prioritised justice by setting up courts, hospitals and orphanages, and ensured that everyone was treated fairly regardless of background or social status. He assigned rights to children, the disabled, widows and the needy for the first time in the world, and paid special attention to their welfare.

5. How does Hazrat Umar Farooq show humility in his personal lifestyle?

He lived a very simple life, wore clothes with patches, slept on the ground, stayed humble and avoided living in comfort, and advised others to stay humble. Despite his position, he remained humble and kind.

6. Why are his decisions and judgments still studied today?
Because his wise decisions set a high standard for leaders: he led with justice, compassion and accountability, and his example continues to inspire Muslims worldwide.

7. What famous saying of Hazrat Umar shows his deep sense of responsibility toward living beings?
If a dog dies hungry on the banks of the Euphrates, Umar will be responsible for it. This shows how seriously he took the duty of taking care of every living being.

8. Why is Hazrat Umar Farooq remembered as a remarkable and inspiring leader even after his martyrdom?
He was martyred in 644 CE, but his legacy lives on: he is remembered as Amir al-Mu'minin (Commander of the Faithful), a champion of fairness, compassion and accountability, and his achievements, wisdom and justice continue to inspire people around the world.

Choose the correct option (p.13).

1. Hazrat Umar Farooq was the _____ caliph of Islam.

- First
- ✓ Second
- Third

Fourth

2. During his caliphate, Islam spread to all the following regions except:

Persia

3. Which of the following did Hazrat Umar establish to ensure justice and welfare?

Shopping Malls and Markets

✓ Courts and Hospitals

Academies and Book Shops

Art Museums and Archives

4. Hazrat Umar lived his personal life as a leader:

with luxury

in a palace

✓ simply and humbly traveling for trade

Oral Communication: Rhetorical Questions (pp.14-15)

A rhetorical question is a question posed not to have a direct answer, but to make a point, emphasise a statement, or provoke thought or reflection in the audience. Examples from the unit: 'To be, or not to be, that is the question.' (Shakespeare, Hamlet); 'Ask not what your country can do for you - ask what you can do for your country.' (John F. Kennedy); 'Do you think I was born yesterday?'; 'Who does not want to be successful?'; 'Isn't it time we took action against climate change?'

Activity (p.15): Practise the Naeem-Ahmed conversation and observe its rhetorical questions - for example, 'Have you ever stopped to think about how much cleaner our air would be if everyone planted just one tree?', 'Shouldn't we educate others about how planting trees can restore habitats?', and 'Don't you think it's time we all took responsibility for the environment we live in?' The conversation's point is that planting trees cleans the air, absorbs carbon dioxide, releases oxygen, gives shade, reduces pollution and supports biodiversity.

Activity (p.16): Make groups in the class and discuss the importance of planting trees. One group notes down the benefits of planting trees and the other finds out the consequences of cutting trees in our country; each group shares its findings as a presentation. (Group discussion - no single written answer in the book.)

Vocabulary and Grammar: Silent Letters (p.17) - Find out the words with the silent letters.

i. Silent k

knife (The barber cuts hair with a knife); knitting (My mother is knitting a sweater for me).

ii. Silent b lamb (The lamb climbed over the rocky hill); combs (The girl combs her hair).

iii. Silent t

listen (Good children listen to their elders); castle (Faheem is making a sand castle).

iv. Silent h honest (Honest feedback is crucial for personal growth); rhymes (He sings rhymes sweetly).

v. Silent w

two (Two and two make four); wrapping (Ali is wrapping a gift).

Usage of a Dictionary (pp.18-19): Find out the meanings of the following words in a dictionary and compare them with the meaning in the text of the unit.

demise

Death; the end of something. In the unit's context it relates to the end of a caliph's period of rule.

regions

Large areas of land; in the unit, the regions to which Islam spread during Hazrat Umar's caliphate - Persia, Syria, Egypt and North Africa.

worldwide

Extending or occurring throughout the world; the unit says Hazrat Umar established a system that is still prevalent worldwide today.

rights

Things that a person is morally or legally entitled to have or do; the unit says he assigned rights to children, the disabled, widows and the needy for the first time in the world.

unjust

Not fair or just; the unit mentions the process of punishing unjust judges.

stagnant

Not moving, growing or developing; inactive or stale.

charter

A written document setting out rights, aims or principles; a formal grant of rights.

polytheist

A person who believes in or worships more than one god.

Pronoun-Antecedent Activity (p.21): Encircle the pronouns and underline the antecedents in the following sentences.

1. The students finished their assignment ahead of schedule.

Pronoun: their; antecedent: the students.

2. Each of the employees brought his or her own lunch to the meeting.

Pronoun: his or her; antecedent: each of the employees.

3. Neither of the candidates disclosed his/her plans for the upcoming project.

Pronoun: his/her; antecedent: neither of the candidates.

4. Every member of the team submitted his/her report on time.

Pronoun: his/her; antecedent: every member of the team.

5. Someone left his/her umbrella in the conference room.

Pronoun: his/her; antecedent: someone.

6. The cat licked its paws clean after dinner.

Pronoun: its; antecedent: the cat.

7. Both parents attended their child's school play.

Pronoun: their; antecedent: both parents.

8. Each customer must present his/her identification at the entrance.

Pronoun: his/her; antecedent: each customer.

9. Neither of the sisters remembered to bring her book to the library.

Pronoun: her; antecedent: neither of the sisters.

10. Everyone enjoyed himself/herself at the company picnic.

Pronoun: himself/herself; antecedent: everyone.

Writing: Topic Sentence and Supporting Details (p.22)

What is the topic sentence and what are the supporting details of the paragraph on p.22?

Topic sentence: Hazrat Umar Farooq established a system that is still prevalent worldwide today. Supporting details: he initiated the Islamic calendar; introduced the concept of jails; appointed supervisors for mosques and ensured proper lighting in mosques; established the police department; assigned rights to children, the disabled, widows and the needy for the first time in the world; built military garrisons and organised the army; initiated the process of punishing unjust judges; and initiated public accountability for the first time in history.

Activity (p.23): Read the second last paragraph of the unit and write its topic sentence and supporting details in your notebook, following the p.22 model. (Notebook work - no single printed answer in the book.)

Summary Skills (pp.23-24): Write down the summary of the unit by following the steps given.

Model summary: Hazrat Umar Farooq, the second caliph of Islam, was a close companion of the Holy Prophet who shaped Islamic history through justice and wise administration. During his caliphate (634-644 A.D.), Islam spread to Persia, Syria, Egypt and North Africa. He established departments for taxation, justice and public works, introduced the Islamic calendar, jails, the police department and public accountability, and protected the rights of children, widows, the poor and the disabled. He lived simply and humbly, patrolled the streets at night to ensure people's safety, and took responsibility for every living being so seriously that he said he would answer even if a dog died hungry on the banks of the Euphrates. Martyred in 644 CE, he remains remembered as Amir al-Mu'minin, a champion of fairness, compassion and accountability.

Unit 2: The Power of Education

Pre-reading (p.26)

1. What changes can education bring?

Education brings knowledge, better judgement, good character, better jobs and a better life; it dispels inner darkness and guides a person to the right path, as the story shows through Asim and Faheem.

2. How is an educated person different from an uneducated person?

An educated person has knowledge, understanding and better opportunities, and can judge rightly; an uneducated person lacks these advantages and may, like Faheem, depend only on wealth and later suffer when wealth is gone.

While Reading (p.27)

What was the profession of Asim?

Asim was a lecturer at a local college, teaching Urdu literature.

Reading and Critical Thinking (p.29): Answer the following questions.

1. What was Faheem's attitude towards education during his school days?

Faheem had no interest in education. His father's wealth had made him quite arrogant, and he prioritised wealth so much that the importance of education almost diminished in his view.

2. How did Asim perform academically compared to Faheem in their matriculation exams?

Asim passed the matriculation exam with an A grade, while Faheem obtained a C grade.

3. What subject did Asim excel in and what profession did he pursue later?

Asim excelled in Urdu literature and later became a lecturer at a local college, where he taught Iqbal's poetry beautifully and was very popular among the students.

4. Describe the meeting between Asim and Faheem after several years.

After several years, Faheem came to Asim - now a lecturer - asking for a job in his college. His hair was disheveled, he had a beard, and he wore tattered clothes bearing visible signs of poverty. Asim looked at him carefully, recognised him in astonishment and exclaimed, 'Faheem! Is it really you? What has become of you?' Faheem, embarrassed, narrated his story.

5. What circumstances led Faheem to his current state of poverty?

After matriculation Faheem left education and joined his father's business. After his father's death, his partner took control of all the businesses and Faheem was deprived of his inheritance; all the money was spent, he had only passed matric and had no recommendations, so circumstances forced him to do manual labour for six years.

6. How did Faheem express his realization about the importance of education?

With tears in his eyes, Faheem told Asim that he had ignored Asim's advice, had been swayed by the pride of wealth, and now realised the importance of education. He said, 'You were right when you said that knowledge is a light that not only dispels inner darkness but also guides us to the right path. I have witnessed many difficult situations, and now I understand that one does not become a great person solely by wealth.'

7. What action did Asim take to help Faheem improve his situation?

FLAG: The printed story (pp.26-28) ends with Faheem's realization and narrates no help given by Asim afterwards. The exercise's intended answer, matching MCQ 6 on p.31, is that Asim mentored and encouraged Faheem to pursue education.

8. How did Faheem ultimately regain stability and find success?

FLAG: No recovery is narrated in the printed story. The exercise's intended answer, matching MCQ 5 on p.31, is that Faheem worked hard and pursued further education to improve his prospects.

9. What role did Asim play in Faheem's journey towards self-improvement?

Asim had always advised Faheem to remain enthusiastic throughout life to acquire knowledge, and his example and advice are what Faheem finally recognises as right; per the exercise's intended answer (MCQ 6), Asim mentored and encouraged Faheem to pursue education.

10. How did the story end for Faheem?

FLAG: As printed, the story ends with Faheem in tears, realising the importance of education and that one does not become a great person solely by wealth. The MCQs assume a later recovery through hard work and further education, which is not narrated in the printed text.

Choose the right option (pp.30-31).

1. How did Asim perform academically compared to Faheem in their matriculation exams?

✓ Asim obtained a higher grade than Faheem.

Asim failed the exam, while Faheem passed with flying colors.

Asim and Faheem obtained the same grades.

Asim didn't take the exam, but Faheem passed with a C grade.

2. What subject did Asim excel in and what profession did he pursue later?

Asim excelled in Urdu literature and became a doctor.

Asim excelled in Mathematics and became an engineer.

✓ Asim excelled in Urdu literature and became a lecturer.

Asim excelled in Science and became a scientist.

3. What circumstances led Faheem to his current state of poverty?

He lost his job due to economic downturn.

He was involved in a business scandal that bankrupted him.

- [x] His father's death and loss of inheritance left him destitute.
- [ ] He squandered his wealth on frivolous expenses.

4. How did Faheem express his realization about the importance of education?

- [ ] He wrote a letter to Asim expressing his regrets.
- [x] He shared his story with Asim and acknowledged his past mistakes.
- [ ] He remained silent and refused to discuss his hardships.
- [ ] He blamed external factors for his misfortunes.

5. How did Faheem ultimately regain stability and find success? (Intended answer - see the flag on Q8: this recovery is not narrated in the printed story.)

- [ ] He won a lottery and became wealthy overnight.
- [ ] He inherited a fortune from a distant relative.
- [x] He worked hard and pursued further education to improve his prospects.
- [ ] He received a large sum of money as compensation for his father's death.

6. What role did Asim play in Faheem's journey towards self-improvement? (Intended answer - see the flag on Q7.)

- [x] He mentored and encouraged Faheem to pursue education.
- [ ] He criticized Faheem for his past mistakes and refused to help him.
- [ ] He distanced himself from Faheem and focused on his own career.

He manipulated Faheem into making poor decisions.

Oral Communication Activity (pp.31-33): Practise the three dialogues in the class. Dialogue 1: a patient with sudden, intense afternoon headaches after computer work; the doctor suggests eye strain, regular breaks from screen time and a well-lit workspace. Dialogue 2: a patient with unexplained weight loss, more thirst and frequent urination; the doctor orders tests to check blood sugar levels. Dialogue 3: a doctor asks a nurse to prepare an antibiotic injection for the patient in room 5 and to follow up the lab results.
Responses with simple judgement and personal interpretation (pp.33-34): On a movie review - 'Glad you enjoyed it! I thought the action scenes were really well done too.' On a book discussion - 'Isn't it thrilling when books surprise you like that? It really kept me guessing until the very last chapter.' On a political opinion - 'That's an optimistic view. I hope it does improve access to healthcare for everyone who needs it.'
Activity (p.34): Read the third paragraph of the unit and give your response reflecting your personal judgement and interpretation. (Personal response - the third paragraph of the story is the 'Time passed' paragraph: Asim passed matric with an A grade while Faheem obtained a C grade, and Asim continued his education, excelled in Urdu literature and became a lecturer. A suitable response: Asim's success shows that steady hard work in education, not wealth, builds a lasting future, while Faheem's C grade and later decline show what happens when education is ignored.)
Vocabulary and Grammar: Contextual Meaning (pp.35-36) - Guess the meaning of the given words and compare with the dictionary meaning.

belonged

Was a member of a family, group or class; used in the unit for a person's family or social background.

successful

Doing well, especially in business; Faheem's father was a successful businessman.

abundance

A large amount; the abundance of wealth had made Faheem arrogant.

arrogant

Proud in a way that looks down on others; Faheem became arrogant because of wealth.

diminished

Became less important; the importance of education almost diminished in Faheem's view.

enthusiastic

Eager and keen; Asim told his students to remain enthusiastic throughout life to acquire knowledge.

humility

Being humble, not proud; Faheem approached Asim with humility when asking for a job.

welled up

Filled with tears; tears welled up in Faheem's eyes as he asked Asim for a chance.

disheveled

Untidy, messy; Faheem's hair was disheveled when he met Asim.

tattered

Torn and worn out; Faheem wore tattered clothes bearing visible signs of poverty.

taken aback

Surprised and shocked; Faheem was taken aback to be recognised by Asim.

Main Verbs and Helping Verbs (pp.36-37)

The main verb expresses the primary action, while the helping (auxiliary) verb assists in indicating tense and mood. Examples: 'She is singing a song' - main verb singing, helping verb is. 'They have finished their homework' - main verb finished, helping verb have. 'He does not complete his homework' - main verb complete, helping verb does. 'We are studying for the exam' - main verb studying, helping verb are. 'She has been waiting for an hour' - main verb waiting, helping verbs has been.

Activity (p.37): Make two sentences of your own by using main and helping verbs. Model sentences: 'I am reading a book.' (main verb reading, helping verb am.) 'They have completed their homework.' (main verb completed, helping verb have.)

Writing: The Process Approach for Writing a Paragraph (pp.38-41)

Steps: 1. Brainstorming - write down ideas on 'The Benefits of Regular Exercise': improves cardiovascular health, boosts mood and reduces stress, increases energy levels, helps in weight management, enhances muscle strength and flexibility, promotes better sleep, boosts immune system, reduces the risk of chronic diseases like diabetes and hypertension. 2. Mind Mapping - organise the ideas into categories: Physical Health, Mental Health, Overall Well-being. 3. Note-taking - detailed notes under each category. 4. Picture Illustrations and Doodles - a heart icon for cardiovascular health, a dumbbell for muscle strength, a smiling face for improved mood. 5. Writing the Paragraph: 'Regular exercise offers numerous benefits for both physical and mental health. Physically, it improves the function of the heart and lungs, aids in weight management by burning calories, and enhances muscle strength and flexibility through regular strength training. Mentally, exercise boosts mood by releasing endorphins, reduces stress levels, and increases energy, leading to better sleep patterns. Overall, engaging in regular physical activity reduces the risk of chronic diseases like diabetes and hypertension, promoting a healthier and happier lifestyle.'

Activity (p.41): By following the above steps, write down a paragraph on 'The importance of Female Education'. Model paragraph: Female education is important because it empowers women with knowledge, confidence and independence. An educated woman can support her family, raise her children better, and contribute to the progress of society. Education helps women understand their rights, make wise decisions, and take part in every field of life. When girls are educated, the whole nation progresses, because an educated mother builds an educated generation. Therefore, every girl should be given the opportunity to get a good education.

Unit 3: Hope is the thing with feathers (Poem)

Pre-reading (p.43)

1. What is the importance of minute things or smallest creatures?

Even the smallest things and creatures matter: a small bird's song can comfort many people, and hope - though unseen and small - keeps people warm and going through hard times. Small creatures benefit us in many ways, for example birds eat insects, spread seeds, and add beauty and song to nature.

2. Can we get benefit from the small creatures?

Yes. Small creatures benefit us - birds control pests, pollinate plants and spread seeds, bees pollinate flowers, and even a tiny bird's song, as in this poem, gives comfort and hope.

Reading and Critical Thinking (A) (p.44): Answer the following questions.

1. How does the poet describe hope in the first stanza?

In the first stanza the poet describes hope as a thing with feathers that perches in the soul and sings a tune without words, and never stops at all.

2. What does the 'little bird' symbolize in the poem?

The little bird symbolizes hope itself - a small, gentle, living force inside every person that sings and comforts, even in storms.

3. What kind of storm would be needed to silence or weaken hope?

Only a very sore (very strong) storm could abash - silence or shame - the little bird; an ordinary storm cannot stop hope.

4. Where has the speaker heard the 'bird' of hope singing?

The speaker has heard the bird of hope singing in the chillest land and on the strangest sea - that is, in the coldest and most unfamiliar places.

5. How does the poet show that hope stays with us even in difficult or extreme situations?

Hope is sweetest in the gale, it keeps so many warm, and even in extremity it never asked a crumb of the speaker - it stays with us, comforts us and asks for nothing in return, even in the hardest situations.

(B) Tick mark the correct option (p.45).

1. In the poem, hope is compared to:

- cloud
- feather
- ✓ bird
- star

2. The 'bird' does without words:

- flies
- builds a nest
- ✓ sings a tune
- cries loudly

3. The song of hope is the sweetest:

during calm weather

✓ during a gale

during the night

in spring season

4. The kind of storm that would silence or 'abash' the little bird:

a light rain

a mild breeze

✓ a sore (very strong) storm

a snowstorm

5. The poet has heard the song of hope:

in the forest

✓ in the chillest land and strangest sea

in the mountains

in the city

Oral Communication: Use of Figures of Speech (p.46)

1. Personification: giving human-like qualities to non-human things - 'Hope is the thing with feathers that perches in the soul' gives hope the bird-like quality of perching. 2. Metaphor: comparing two things without using 'like' or 'as' - 'hope is the thing with feathers' compares hope to a bird. 3. Irony: saying the opposite of what you mean, often to be sarcastic. 4. Hyperbole: exaggerating for emphasis - 'I am so hungry I could eat a whole elephant!' 5. Repetition: repeating words or phrases for emphasis - 'and never stops at all... and sweetest in the gale is heard' repeats the idea of hope's persistence.

Activity (p.47): Read the poem again and discuss in groups the usage of figures of speech with reference from the poem.

Examples: hope as a bird is a metaphor; the bird perching and singing is personification; 'never stops at all' and 'sweetest in the gale' repeat hope's endurance.

Vocabulary and Grammar: Usage of Apostrophe (pp.47-48)

Apostrophes show possession and form contractions. Singular possessive: the dog's tail, Saleem's book (apostrophe + s). Plural possessive for nouns ending in s: the dogs' tails, the students' books (apostrophe only after s). Contractions: can't (cannot), it's (it is or it has), don't (do not), they're (they are), wouldn't (would not). Common mistake: 'its' shows possession (The dog chased its tail), while 'it's' is a contraction of 'it is' or 'it has' (It's raining outside).

Activity (p.48): Make five sentences of your own by using apostrophe. Model sentences: 1. This is Ahmed's bag. 2. The teachers' room is on the first floor. 3. I can't come to school today. 4. It's a beautiful morning. 5. They've finished their homework.

Types of Sentences (p.49)

1. Declarative: makes a statement or expresses an idea, ends with a full stop - 'She enjoys reading books.' 2. Exclamatory: expresses strong feeling, ends with an exclamation mark - 'What a beautiful sunset!' 3. Interrogative: asks a question - 'Are you coming to the party tonight?' 4. Imperative: gives a command, instruction or request - 'Please pass the salt.'

Activity (p.50): Make two sentences of each type of sentence. Model sentences: Declarative - 'Hope never leaves us.' / 'The bird sings in the morning.' Exclamatory - 'How sweet the song of hope is!' / 'What a lovely poem this is!' Interrogative - 'Where does hope live?' / 'Have you heard the bird sing?' Imperative - 'Never lose hope.' / 'Please read the poem aloud.'

Writing: Argumentative Writing (pp.50-51) - Spotting a Claim in the Poem

Claim 1: Hope is always present and never stops helping us.

Reason: Hope continues even when situations are tough. Evidence: 'And never stops at all.' The line shows that hope is continuous and ongoing.

Claim 2: Hope becomes stronger and more comforting during difficult times.

Reason: We feel hope more deeply when we face problems. Evidence: 'And sweetest in the gale is heard.' A gale is a strong storm; hope's song is sweetest in the storm, meaning hope shines most during hardships.

Claim 3: Even very harsh conditions cannot destroy hope easily.

Reason: Hope survives even in extreme challenges. Evidence: 'And sore must be the storm / That could abash the little bird.' Only the worst storm could shake hope, showing that hope is strong and resilient.

Claim 4: Hope supports us everywhere, no matter where we go.

Reason: Hope exists in all places and situations. Evidence: 'I've heard it in the chillest land, / And on the strangest sea.' The speaker hears hope even in the coldest and strangest places, meaning hope is universal.

Claim 5: Hope gives us strength without demanding anything in return.

Reason: Hope helps selflessly. Evidence: 'Yet, never, in extremity, / It asked a crumb of me.' Hope never asks for payment, reward, or anything from us.

Emily Dickinson claims that hope is a constant, powerful force inside every person, helping them through difficult times without asking for anything in return. Activity (p.52): Write some arguments to support claims with clear reasons and relevant evidence, guided by: What is the poet saying about hope? What lines support that idea? What feelings or images show the poet's message? (The five claims above with their reasons and evidence answer this activity.)

Unit 4: Mehrgarh

Pre-reading (p.54)

1. What do you know about Mehrgarh?

Mehrgarh was one of the first farming settlements in South Asia, located in the Kachi plain of Balochistan, Pakistan, near the Bolan Pass. It lasted from around 7000 BC to 2600 BC and gives a glimpse into the struggles of early human societies.

2. Have you ever visited Mehrgarh?

This is a personal question - answer from your own experience. Mehrgarh's site is in the Kachi plain of Balochistan, near the Bolan Pass; if you have not visited it, say so and describe what you would like to see there.

Reading and Critical Thinking (A) (p.56): Answer the following questions.

1. Why was Mehrgarh considered one of the earliest farming settlements in South Asia?

Mehrgarh was one of the first farming settlements in South Asia: its people grew wheat, barley and legumes, kept sheep, goats and cattle, and settled in one place, which led to extra food and population growth.

2. Why did Mehrgarh's location near the Bolan Pass help in its development?

Mehrgarh was in the Kachi plain near the Bolan Pass, an important trade route linking the Iranian plateau with the Indus Valley. Its location helped trade and cultural exchange with nearby regions, which made it a rich and diverse society.

3. Why do archaeologists believe Mehrgarh had a democratic society?

Archaeologists found no large buildings or royal graves, and evidence shows resources were shared equally among people. This suggests power was spread out and decisions were made together.

4. Why was farming important to the economy of Mehrgarh?

Farming was the main part of Mehrgarh's economy: people grew wheat, barley and legumes, and animal farming (sheep, goats, cattle) was also important. Agriculture allowed people to settle in one place and produced extra food and population growth.

5. Why did Mehrgarh people include tools and jewelry in burials?

Their graves had jewelry, beads and tools, which shows they believed in life after death.

6. How did Mehrgarh's technological advancements improve daily life?

They used mud bricks for buildings, worked with metal and made pottery, and learned to make tools, ornaments and weapons from copper and bronze - better houses, tools and crafts for daily life.

7. How might climate change have contributed to the decline of Mehrgarh?

Mehrgarh started to decline around 2600 BCE. Historians are not sure why; it may have been due to climate change, environmental damage, or political problems. Climate change could have damaged farming and water supplies, making settled life harder.

(B) Tick the correct option (pp.56-57).

1. Mehrgarh was located:

- Punjab, Pakistan
- Rajasthan, India
- ✓ Balochistan, Pakistan
- Gujarat, India

2. The main economic activity in Mehrgarh was:

- fishing
- ✓ farming
- metalworking
- hunting

3. Crops grown in Mehrgarh were:

- rice and maize
- ✓ wheat and barley
- cotton and sugarcane
- millet and sorghum

4. The people of Mehrgarh used for construction:

- stone
- wood

✓ mud bricks

marble

5. The reason historians believe Mehrgarh had a democratic society:

presence of royal palaces

large temples and statues

✓ no elite burials or large monuments written laws found on stone tablets

6. Decline of Mehrgarh was caused by:

a foreign invasion

a volcanic eruption

✓ climate change and environmental damage

a deadly earthquake

7. Which later civilization did Mehrgarh influence?

Mesopotamian Civilization

✓ Indus Valley Civilization

Chinese Civilization

Egyptian Civilization

Oral Communication Activity (pp.58-60): Role-play the restaurant dialogue in the class with non-verbal gestures and movements. Characters: Ali, a waiter at 'Lahore Spice', and Rehan, a first-time customer. Ali recommends Chicken Biryani and Seekh Kebabs with garlic naan and raita; Rehan enjoys the meal and thanks Ali for the wonderful recommendation. Activity (p.60): Divide the class into groups of five to ten students each; assign them the task to think about a situation and write down a dialogue, then perform the dialogue in the class.

Vocabulary and Grammar: Usage of Articles 'a, an, the' (p.60)

The definite article 'the' is used before a noun whose identity the reader knows. The indefinite articles (a, an) are used before a general noun whose identity is not known. 'a' is used before a word that begins with a consonant sound (a rat); 'an' is used before a word that begins with a vowel sound (an orange).

Activity (p.61): Choose the correct option.

1. Salma saw _____ accident.

The Varying Positions of Adjectives in Sentences (p.62)

Before the noun: 'She has a beautiful red dress.' 'He bought a large old house.' 'They live in a small wooden cabin.' After the noun (with 'to be' verbs): 'The dress is beautiful and red.' 'The house is large and old.' 'The cabin is small and wooden.' Separated by a comma: 'They served delicious, homemade cookies.' 'It was a cold, snowy day.' As predicate (after the verb): 'The cake smells delicious.' 'She felt tired after the long day.' As nouns (with 'the' or possessive): 'The poor need our help.' 'His concerns were genuine.'

Adjectives from Nouns (p.63): Make adjectives by adding suffixes.

Power

Power + ful = Powerful.

Noise

Noise + y = Noisy.

Glory

Glory + ious = Glorious.

Fame

Fame + ous = Famous.

storm

Storm + y = Stormy.

Health

Health + y = Healthy.

Adjectival Phrases (p.64)

Adjectival phrases are groups of words that function as adjectives to modify nouns. Sentence examples: 'The deep blue sea stretched out endlessly before us.' 'She wore a dress made of shimmering silk.' 'He lived in a house built in the early 20th century.' 'They hiked along a trail surrounded by towering pine trees.' 'The children were excited about the upcoming summer vacation.' Speech examples: 'I found a pair of shoes on sale at half price!' 'She told me a story full of unexpected twists and turns.' 'We visited a museum dedicated to ancient civilizations.' 'He owns a car equipped with state-of-the-art technology.' 'The concert featured musicians known for their passion.'

Activity (p.65): Use the following adjective phrases in your own sentences.

1. extremely happy

I was extremely happy to see my friend after a long time.

2. incredibly delicious

The biryani at the restaurant was incredibly delicious.

3. quite interesting

The story of Mehrgarh is quite interesting.

4. fairly expensive

That watch is fairly expensive, so I did not buy it.

5. surprisingly quiet

The classroom was surprisingly quiet during the test.

6. highly skilled

The doctor is highly skilled in his work.

7. unbelievably fast

The horse ran unbelievably fast in the race.

8. exceptionally talented

The young singer is exceptionally talented.

9. strikingly similar

The two brothers look strikingly similar.

10. perfectly cooked

The rice was perfectly cooked for dinner.

Writing Activity (p.65): Learn the spellings of the following multi-syllable words and write them correctly in your notebook: mehrgarh, plateau, evidence, legumes, agriculture, economy, population, geometric, settlements, democratic.

Dialogue model (pp.65-66): A dialogue in a busy marketplace in Quetta, mid-morning, between Haleem, a local doctor in his early forties, and Dilawar, a community health worker in his late twenties. They discuss health services in their area: access to specialists is still a challenge, especially for remote communities; recent government initiatives have brought some improvements and more clinics, but progress is slow-going; Haleem wishes more resources were allocated to preventive care, and both agree that education and awareness are key, and that health and education both are necessary.

Activity (p.67): Write down a dialogue between two friends about tree plantation movement in Balochistan by following above model.

Model dialogue: Ali: (smiling) Aslam, have you joined the tree plantation movement in Balochistan? Aslam: (nodding) Yes, our school planted fifty trees last week. Trees give us clean air, shade and rainfall, and they stop the land from becoming a desert. Ali: (enthusiastically) That is wonderful! Balochistan needs more trees because its land is dry and its forests are shrinking. Aslam: Exactly. If every student plants even one tree and looks after it, our towns will become greener and healthier. Ali: Let us invite our friends and neighbours to join the movement this weekend. Aslam: Agreed - planting trees today is an investment in Balochistan's future.

Unit 5: Importance of Reading Books

Pre-reading (p.69)

1. What kind of books do you read?

This is a personal question - name the books you read, for example storybooks, textbooks, novels, or books on history and science. Reading such books increases knowledge, vocabulary and understanding.

2. What are the benefits of reading books?

Reading gives knowledge across subjects, improves vocabulary and communication, sharpens the mind, reduces stress, builds focus and concentration, fosters empathy and creativity, improves writing, promotes better sleep, and opens portals to new worlds.

While Reading (p.71)

What are the benefits of reading?

Knowledge acquisition, cognitive enhancement, stress reduction, creative stimulation, personal growth, enriched relationships, endless entertainment and enlightenment; specifically, knowledge across subjects, better vocabulary and communication, a sharper mind, relaxation and better sleep, empathy, creativity and better writing.

Reading and Critical Thinking (p.71): Answer the following questions.

1. What are some of the subjects covered by books, according to the text?

History, science, philosophy and hobbies - books offer a vast reservoir of information across various subjects.

2. How does regular reading contribute to vocabulary and communication skills?

Regular reading enhances vocabulary: exposure to diverse language and literary styles improves comprehension and articulation, fostering effective communication in both personal and professional settings.

3. What is one benefit of reading for memory retention and cognitive function?

Reading keeps the mind active and energetic, contributing to mental keenness and sharpness and better memory retention.

4. How does reading serve as a means of stress reduction?

Immersing oneself in a captivating book offers a temporary rest from daily pressures, promoting relaxation and emotional well-being.

5. In what way does reading help individuals cultivate focus and concentration?

In today's fast-paced world, reading cultivates focus and concentration amidst distractions: by dedicating time to sustained reading, individuals improve their productivity and mental clarity.

Tick mark the correct option (pp.71-72).

1. How does literature contribute to empathy and understanding, according to the passage?

by providing practical advice

✓ by allowing readers to experience different perspectives

by teaching communication techniques

by offering historical insights

2. What role does reading play in enhancing creativity and problem-solving skills?

It limits imagination by providing structured narratives.

✓ It exposes individuals to new ideas and concepts.

It discourages critical thinking.

It focuses solely on factual information.

3. How does reading before bedtime contribute to better sleep quality?

It stimulates the mind and prevents sleep.

✓ It helps unwind the mind and prepare for restful sleep.

It increases stress levels.

It has no effect on sleep quality.

4. What is one way books serve as portals to new worlds?

by providing physical transportation

✓ by offering a glimpse into historical events

by promoting time travel

by inducing virtual reality experiences

5. According to the passage, what is one benefit of reading regardless of age or interests?

- improved physical fitness
- ✓ enhanced creativity
- increased social media presence
- better time management skills

Oral Communication Dialogue (p.73): Practise the Kareema-Rizwana dialogue in the class. Kareema and Rizwana discuss female education: it is not just about literacy rates but about empowering women to shape their futures; educated girls contribute to their communities, break cycles of poverty, become advocates for change, and prioritise their children's education. Challenges remain - cultural barriers, lack of resources, and attitudes that undervalue girls' education - so advocacy and policy, collaboration with communities, governments and NGOs, and success stories are needed. Every girl deserves the chance to learn, grow and achieve her dreams.

Vocabulary and Grammar: Changing Compound Nouns into Plural Form (pp.74-75)

Rules: 1. Regular pluralization - add -s to the end: babysitter to babysitters, bookcover to bookcovers, keyboard to keyboards. 2. Pluralize the main noun: sister-in-law to sisters-in-law, commander-in-chief to commanders-in-chief, attorney general to attorneys general. 3. Hyphenated compound nouns - add -s to the main noun: mother-in-law to mothers-in-law, runner-up to runners-up, passer-by to passers-by. 4. Irregular: man-of-war to men-of-war, working woman to working women, footman to footmen. 5. No change: toothpaste, software, headquarters stay the same. 6. Separate words - pluralize each word individually: dining room to dining rooms, swimming pool to swimming pools, credit card to credit cards.

Activity (p.76): Change the following compound nouns into plural.

How to Use Specific Words for Genders and Gender-Neutral Terms (pp.77-78)

Male-specific terms: he, him, his, man, boy, father, son, brother, uncle, nephew, grandfather - 'He is going to the store with his brother.' Female-specific terms: she, her, hers, woman, girl, mother, daughter, sister, aunt, niece, grandmother - 'She is meeting her sister for lunch.' Singular they/them/their is used when the gender of the person is unknown or irrelevant, or for non-binary individuals - 'They are going to the store. I saw them earlier today.' Neutral job titles: use 'flight attendant' instead of 'stewardess', 'police officer' instead of 'policeman'. Spouse/partner: use 'spouse', 'partner' or 'significant other' instead of assuming gender. Parent/child: 'The parent picked up their child from school.' Colleague: use 'salesperson' or 'colleague' instead of 'salesman' or 'saleswoman'. Activity (p.78): Make sentences of the above-mentioned genders and gender-neutral terms. Model sentences: 'He is my brother.' 'She is my sister.' 'They are going to school.' 'The police officer helped the passengers.' 'The flight attendant served the food.' 'They went on vacation with their partner.' 'The parent picked up their child.' 'Our new colleague starts tomorrow.'

Personal Pronouns (p.78)

Subject pronouns: 'He is going to the store.' 'She loves to read books.' 'They are my friends.' Object pronouns: 'I gave it to him.' 'She invited her to the party.' 'We visited them last weekend.' Possessive pronouns: 'This book is his.' 'That bag is hers.' 'The car is theirs.'

Activity (p.79): Use the above personal pronouns in your own sentences. Model sentences: 'He is my friend.' 'She reads a book every day.' 'They play cricket.' 'I gave the pen to him.' 'She invited her to dinner.' 'We visited them last Sunday.' 'This pen is his.' 'That bag is hers.' 'The house is theirs.'

Simple Past Tense (pp.79-80)

The simple past tense indicates an action that happened in the past, often with an adverb of time. Affirmative: Subject + Verb (2nd form) + Object + Adverb of Time - 'He played cricket yesterday.' 'We studied English last year.' 'She wrote an essay on Monday.' 'Salma cooked rice last night.' 'Salma got first position in 2023.' Negative: Subject + did not + Verb (1st form) + Object + Adverb of Time - 'He did not play cricket yesterday.' Interrogative: Did + Subject + Verb (1st form) + Object + Adverb of Time? - 'Did he play cricket yesterday?'

Activity (p.80): Make five sentences of the past simple tense and change them into negative and interrogative.

1. He played cricket yesterday.

Negative: He did not play cricket yesterday. Interrogative: Did he play cricket yesterday?

2. We studied English last year.

Negative: We did not study English last year. Interrogative: Did we study English last year?

3. She wrote an essay on Monday.

Negative: She did not write an essay on Monday. Interrogative: Did she write an essay on Monday?

4. Salma cooked rice last night.

Negative: Salma did not cook rice last night. Interrogative: Did Salma cook rice last night?

5. Salma got first position in 2023.

Negative: Salma did not get first position in 2023. Interrogative: Did Salma get first position in 2023?

Frequently Confused Words (p.81): to, too, two; there, their, they're

To: preposition indicating direction, intention or relationship - 'She went to the store.' Too: also, or excessively - 'He ate too much cake.' 'She wants to come along too.' Two: the numeral 2 - 'They have two cats.' There: adverb referring to a place - 'The book is over there on the table.' Their: possessive determiner showing ownership - 'It's their house.' They're: contraction of 'they are' - 'They're going to the movies tonight.'

Writing: How to Write Multiple Paragraphs on a Single Topic (pp.82-83)

Model on social media and youth mental health: Paragraph 1 (Introduction) - Topic sentence: Social media has become an integral part of the daily lives of today's youth. Supporting details: statistics on social media usage among youth, its prevalence and popularity. Transition: However, the impact of social media on mental health warrants closer examination. Paragraph 2 - Topic sentence: One of the primary concerns is the effect of social media on self-esteem. Supporting details: curated images and comparison with others online can contribute to low self-esteem. Transition: Moreover, social media can exacerbate feelings of isolation and loneliness. Paragraph 3 - Topic sentence: Additionally, the constant exposure to online bullying and harassment can have detrimental effects. Supporting details: examples of cyberbullying incidents and their psychological impact. Transition: It is evident that social media platforms need to address these issues to safeguard youth mental health. Paragraph 4 (Conclusion) - Topic sentence: In conclusion, while social media offers numerous benefits, its impact on youth mental health requires proactive measures. Final thought: By promoting digital literacy and fostering a supportive online environment, we can mitigate the negative effects of social media on youth mental well-being.

Activity (p.83): Write down multiple paragraphs on 'The Benefits of Reading Books' by keeping in mind above tips and model.

Model paragraphs: Paragraph 1 (Introduction): Reading books is one of the best habits a student can develop. Books are a knowledge highway, offering information on history, science, philosophy and hobbies, and they improve vocabulary and communication. Paragraph 2: Reading also keeps the mind active and sharp, reduces stress by offering a rest from daily pressures, and builds focus and concentration in a fast-paced world full of distractions. Paragraph 3: Moreover, reading fosters empathy by letting readers step into the shoes of diverse characters, fuels creativity and imagination, improves writing skills, and promotes better sleep when read before bedtime instead of using screens. Paragraph 4 (Conclusion): In conclusion, reading is a lifelong journey of learning and self-discovery. Regardless of age or interests, there is always something new to explore through literature, so every student should make reading a daily habit.

Unit 6: Warned (Poem)

Pre-reading (p.85)

1. What are dangers to our environment?

Dangers to our environment include pollution of air, water and land, cutting down trees, littering, plastic waste, and climate change - the poem describes skies dimmed by pollution's haze, littered brown ocean floors, and trees and birds gone.

2. What are the benefits of planting trees?

Trees give clean air, shade, rainfall and homes for birds and animals; they absorb carbon dioxide, stop soil erosion, and keep the land green and healthy. Planting trees, as the poem urges, protects our waters, skies, wildlife and trees.

Reading and Critical Thinking (p.86): Answer the following questions.

1. What environmental changes are described in the poem?

Skies once blue and clear are now dimmed and obscured by pollution's haze; stars once bright are now dim; waters once crystal clear with abundant fish are now littered and brown; ocean floors once sandy white are now polluted; tall trees and chirping birds are gone, cut for paper.

2. How are the skies described at the beginning of the poem compared to later on?

At the beginning the skies are blue and high and clear, with bright stars; later they are no longer clear - they are dimmed and obscured by pollution's haze.

3. How are trees portrayed in the poem?

Trees once towered high above, their trunks showing professed love, with birds chirping from unseen sites; now they are gone, cut down so that paper joined pollution's team.

4. What has happened to the wildlife according to the poem?

The birds that once chirped from unseen sites are gone, and the fish that were once abundant in clear rivers are threatened by littered, brown, polluted waters - wildlife is disappearing.

5. What is the message conveyed in the final stanza?

Protect what has been given for free - our waters, skies, wildlife and trees - by planting a better seed, tearing out old roots, cultivating and weeding; for once they are gone, it will be too late.

6. What consequences does the poet warn about if action is not taken?

If action is not taken, our waters, skies, wildlife and trees will be gone for good - the poet warns of 'that fatal day' when it is too late to save them.

7. What is the overall theme of the poem?

The overall theme is environmental protection: human actions have polluted and damaged nature, and we must act now - plant trees and protect nature - before it is too late.

Choose the correct answer (pp.86-87).

1. The skies have become:

- red
- ✓ unclear
- purple
- filled with stars

2. The ocean floors are:

- white and clean
- blue and clear
- ✓ littered and brown
- covered in flowers

3. The wildlife is:

- flourishing
- migrating
- ✓ disappearing
- protected

4. The poem blames: (Note: the poem says 'One can't blame pollution alone' and 'you reap what you've sown' - the intended answer is human negligence, whose actions cause the pollution.)

- pollution
- ✓ human negligence
- natural disasters
- wildlife habitats

5. The poet suggests:

- ignoring the issues
- continuing with current practices
- ✓ protecting nature
- blaming others

Oral Communication Dialogue (pp.87-88): Practice the Fazila-Mehwish dialogue. Fazila and Mehwish discuss a documentary about plastic pollution in the oceans: daily choices impact the environment, so use reusable bags and refillable water bottles instead of single-use plastics, join the beach clean-up this weekend, and start a recycling programme at school to raise awareness. Every little step counts towards a greener, more sustainable future.

Vocabulary and Grammar: Punctuate the following paragraph (p.89).

Write the paragraph with correct punctuation.

Environmental protection is the conscious effort to safeguard our planet's natural resources and ecosystems from degradation caused by human activities. It involves adopting sustainable practices in industries, communities and daily life to reduce pollution, conserve biodiversity and mitigate climate change by promoting renewable energy sources, minimizing waste production, conserving water and preserving habitats. Environmental protection aims to ensure a healthy and thriving planet for current and future generations. It calls for global cooperation, innovative solutions and individual action to achieve sustainable development goals.

Present Perfect Tense (pp.89-90)

The present perfect tense describes actions completed in the present time. Affirmative: Subject + have/has + Verb (3rd form) + Object - 'He has painted the door.' 'She has written a letter.' 'We have arranged a party.' 'Kamran has achieved success.' 'You have eaten rice.' Negative: Subject + have/has + not + Verb (3rd form) + Object - 'He has not painted the door.' 'She has not written a letter.' 'We have not arranged a party.' 'Ahmed has not achieved success.' 'You have not eaten rice.' Interrogative: Have/Has + Subject + Verb (3rd form) + Object? - 'Has he painted the door?' 'Has she written a letter?' 'Have we arranged a party?' 'Has Ahmed achieved success?' 'Have you eaten rice?'

Activity (p.90): Make five simple sentences of the present perfect tense, then change them into negative and interrogative.

1. He has painted the door.

Negative: He has not painted the door. Interrogative: Has he painted the door?

2. She has written a letter.

Negative: She has not written a letter. Interrogative: Has she written a letter?

3. We have arranged a party.

Negative: We have not arranged a party. Interrogative: Have we arranged a party?

4. Kamran has achieved success.

Negative: Kamran has not achieved success. Interrogative: Has Kamran achieved success?

5. You have eaten rice.

Negative: You have not eaten rice. Interrogative: Have you eaten rice?

Writing: Paraphrasing Skills (p.91)

Paraphrasing skills involve the ability to restate the meaning of a text or stanza in your own words while retaining the original message and tone. Paraphrase of the 1st stanza of the poem 'Warned' (as given in the book): The passage of time has brought about anxiety. Once pristine skies are now obscured. Bright stars that once adorned the heavens are now dulled and hidden by the haze of pollution.

Activity (p.91): Paraphrase the second and third stanza of the poem 'Warned'.

Paraphrase of the second stanza.

Once our waters were crystal clear, with fish in abundance and rivers flowing over clean, sandy-white ocean floors; now those waters are littered and brown, suffering the plight of pollution.

Paraphrase of the third stanza.

Once tall trees towered high above us and birds chirped from places we could not see; now the trees are gone, cut down for paper, and paper-making has joined the forces of pollution.

Unit 7: The Wisdom of Hazrat Sulaiman (peace be upon him)

Pre-reading (p.93)

1. What is wisdom?

Wisdom is the ability to understand what is right and true, to judge fairly, and to make good decisions - as Prophet Sulaiman did even in his youth, when he solved the farmer-shepherd dispute with fairness and empathy.

2. Share any incident of wisdom of any personality.

This is a personal question - share an incident you know. One example from this unit: in his youth, Prophet Sulaiman suggested a fair solution to the dispute between a farmer and a shepherd, instead of simply punishing the shepherd.

While Reading (p.93)

What was the quarrel about between the two men?

The quarrel was about a farmer's field filled with grass, into which a shepherd's flock of sheep entered and destroyed the standing crop.

Reading and Critical Thinking (p.95): Answer the following questions.

1. Who was Prophet Sulaiman's father, and what was his role?

Prophet Sulaiman's father was Prophet Dawood, who was a prophet and king, and the judge before whom the two men brought their dispute.

2. What were some of the remarkable attributes of Prophet Sulaiman?

Prophet Sulaiman had great wisdom, intelligence and understanding from childhood. He quickly understood what others said, deduced conclusions, and made decisions; he was also a very powerful king who ruled over a large part of the earth.

3. What was the dispute presented to Prophet Dawood, and what was his initial judgment?

A shepherd's flock of sheep entered a farmer's grass-filled field and destroyed his standing crop. Prophet Dawood's initial judgment was that it was the fault of the shepherd, so the shepherd should give his sheep to the farmer to compensate for his loss.

4. What was Prophet Sulaiman's proposed solution, and how did it differ from Prophet Dawood's initial judgment?

Prophet Sulaiman proposed that the shepherd's animals should be given to the farmer, who could benefit from their milk and wool, and the farmer's field should be given to the shepherd, who could cultivate it; when the crop was ready, the field should be returned to the farmer. This differed from Prophet Dawood's judgment because it did not permanently take the sheep from the shepherd - it temporarily exchanged the two livelihoods so that both parties benefited and the shepherd learned how it feels to ruin someone's hard work.

5. What was the underlying lesson conveyed through Prophet

Sulaiman's suggestion?

We should not only protect our own belongings but also protect the belongings of others, and a fair solution considers the needs and feelings of both parties.

6. What is the significance of the lesson learned from this story?

The lesson is significant because it shows that wisdom, justice and fairness - not mere punishment - resolve conflicts best, and that understanding both sides leads to solutions that satisfy everyone.

7. How does this story exemplify the importance of empathy and understanding in conflict resolution?

Sulaiman's solution shows empathy because it puts the shepherd in the farmer's position (cultivating a ruined field) and gives the farmer the shepherd's animals in the meantime, so both sides understand each other's loss and gain - empathy and understanding turn a one-sided punishment into a fair settlement.

Choose the correct option (pp.95-96).

1. What impressed people about Prophet Sulaiman besides his prophethood?

his wealth

his physical strength

✓ his wisdom and understanding

his political alliances

2. How did Prophet Sulaiman propose to resolve the dispute between the farmer and the shepherd?

by giving the farmer monetary compensation

✓ by giving the shepherd's animals to the farmer and the farmer's field to the shepherd by banishing the shepherd from the village

by punishing both parties equally

3. What lesson does Prophet Sulaiman's suggestion convey?

the importance of punishment in resolving disputes

✓ the value of empathy and understanding the need to prioritize personal gain over others' losses

the significance of revenge in justice

Central idea and summary (pp.96-97): The central idea of the text is the importance of wisdom, justice, and empathy in making decisions and resolving disputes. This theme is conveyed through the story of Prophet Sulaiman offering a solution that goes beyond simple restitution; his suggestion reflects a deep understanding of fairness and empathy towards both parties involved in the conflict over the destroyed crops. In summary, the text narrates how Prophet Sulaiman, known for his wisdom and insight even from a young age, offered a resolution to a dispute between a farmer and a shepherd. Instead of merely compensating the farmer for his loss, Sulaiman proposed a solution that involved temporarily exchanging the livelihoods of both parties, so that each understood the other's position. The story reflects the value of responsibility and fairness in resolving conflicts.

Oral Communication Conversation (pp.97-98): Practise the Fatima-Salma conversation in the class. Salma finds a bird lying on the ground with its left wing bleeding, possibly hit with a catapult, and wants to help the poor creature. Fatima agrees that religion emphasizes showing kindness even to animals; they decide to bandage the bird's bleeding wing and take it to the nearby Animals' Care Centre.

Identifying Different Points of View in a Text (pp.98-99)

First-person: the narrator or speaker refers to themselves as 'I' or 'we' and is typically a character in the story, giving direct insight into the narrator's thoughts, feelings and experiences. Third-person narrative: the narrator is not a character in the story but focuses on the thoughts and feelings of one character, using 'he', 'she' or 'they' pronouns. Determining an author's point of view or purpose involves understanding why the author wrote the text and what they want to communicate to the audience, conveyed through various literary techniques and elements.

Project (p.99): Divide the class into groups and assign them to read the story 'The Wisdom of Hazrat Sulaiman' and identify the narrator and author's purpose in it, and present it in the class. (The story is told in the third person; the author's purpose is to teach wisdom, justice, fairness and empathy in resolving conflicts.)

Vocabulary and Grammar: Prefix and Suffix (p.99)

A prefix is a group of letters added to the beginning of a word to change its meaning or create a new word. A suffix is a group of letters added to the end of a word to change its meaning or create a new word. Examples: micro- (small-scale): microcosm - a small-scale representation of something larger; microchip - a tiny integrated circuit. trans- (beyond): transcend - to go beyond the usual limits. -ness: happiness - state of being happy; kindness - quality of being kind. anti-: anticlimax - a disappointing end to an exciting or impressive series of events.

Activity (p.100): Make as many words as you can of the following prefixes or suffixes.

-cracy

democracy (rule by the people), bureaucracy (rule by officials), autocracy (rule by one person).

-ism

patriotism (love of one's country), heroism (brave conduct), realism, criticism.

Un-

unhappy, unfair, unlucky, unsafe, unkind.

in-

incorrect, incomplete, invisible, inactive, indirect.

Inter-

international, interact, intercity, interchange, interview.

Types of Adjectives and Degrees (pp.100-101)

Regular adjectives form the comparative and superlative with -er and -est: Positive - 'The tall tree swayed gently in the breeze.' Comparative - 'The taller tree stood next to it.' Superlative - 'The tallest tree in the forest shaded the entire clearing.' Irregular adjectives do not follow this pattern and must be memorized: good - better - best ('She is a good singer.' / 'She is better than most of her classmates.' / 'She is the best singer in the entire school.'); bad - worse - worst ('He is a bad driver.' / 'He is worse than I expected.' / 'He is the worst driver I have ever seen.'). Absolute adjectives: 'The sky was absolutely clear tonight.' / 'There is no clearer sky than this.' / 'This is the clearest sky I have ever seen.' Degrees with varying syllables: 'The old man walked slowly down the street.' / 'The older man walked more slowly than the others.' / 'He is the oldest man in the village and walks the most slowly.'

Activity (p.102): Use the following adjectives in sentences of your own.

clean

This room is clean.

beautiful

Mehrgarh was a beautiful and rich society.

intelligent

Prophet Sulaiman was an intelligent judge.

good

Asim was a good student.

bright

The stars were bright in the clear sky.

Homophones and Near Homophones (p.102)

Homophones are words that sound exactly the same when pronounced but have different meanings and often different spellings. Right (adjective, morally good, justified or acceptable): 'I think we are doing the right thing.' Write (verb, to mark letters, words or symbols on paper with a pen or pencil): 'I will write a letter.' Near homophones sound similar but are pronounced slightly differently and may have different meanings or different grammatical functions. Affect (verb, to influence or produce a change): 'The weather can affect your mood.' Effect (noun, the result or outcome of an action or cause): 'The new policy had a positive effect on employee morale.'

Activity (p.103): Use the following homophones in sentences of your own.

Here (adverb)

Come here and sit with me.

Hair (noun)

Her long hair is black.

Break (verb)

Do not break the glass.

Brake (noun)

Press the brake to stop the car.

Allowed (verb)

Visitors are not allowed inside without permission.

Aloud (adverb)

The teacher read the poem aloud.

Principal (noun)

Our school principal addressed the students.

Principle (noun)

Honesty is an important principle of life.

Floor (noun)

The floor of the classroom is clean.

Flour (noun)

The baker uses flour to make bread.

Activity (p.104): Use the following near homophones in sentences of your own.

accept (verb)

Please accept my apology.

except (preposition)

All students except Ali were present.

affect (verb)

Pollution can affect our health.

effect (noun)

The effect of pollution on health is serious.

council (noun)

The council decided to plant more trees.

counsel (noun)

The teacher gave good counsel to the students.

weather (noun)

The weather in Quetta is cold today.

whether (conjunction)

I do not know whether he will come.

profit (noun)

Hard work brings profit to a business.

prophet (noun)

Prophet Sulaiman was known for his wisdom.

Writing: Objective Summary (p.105)

In an objective summary, we do not include our opinions or judgments about what is written in the text. Instead, we only include information that comes from the text.

Activity (p.105): Read the story and write its objective summary.

Model objective summary: Prophet Sulaiman was the son of Prophet Dawood and a powerful king known for wisdom, intelligence and understanding from childhood. One day, two men came to Prophet Dawood: a shepherd's flock of sheep had entered a farmer's grass-filled field and destroyed his standing crop. Prophet Dawood judged that the shepherd should give his sheep to the farmer as compensation. The young Sulaiman suggested instead that the shepherd's animals be given to the farmer for their milk and wool, and the farmer's field be given to the shepherd to cultivate, returning the field to the farmer when the crop was ready, so that the shepherd would understand how it feels to ruin someone's hard work.

Unit 8: Dureji, a Model Town in Balochistan

Pre-reading (p.107)

1. Have you ever visited any model city or town in Pakistan? Share your experience with your classmates.

This is a personal question - share your own experience of visiting a model city or town in Pakistan. Dureji itself is presented in this unit as a model town in the Lasbela district of Balochistan, with good roads, clean streets, parks, schools and a peaceful environment.

While Reading (p.108)

Which special food is available in Dureji?

Saji (roasted lamb or chicken) and Balochi Pulao (a rice dish made with meat); local treats include Halwa Poori (a sweet and savoury breakfast) and Lassi (a refreshing yogurt drink).

Reading and Critical Thinking (p.109): Answer the following questions.

1. What is the historical significance of Dureji?

Dureji has been around for a very long time: people have lived there since ancient times, even during the Indus Valley Civilization over 5,000 years ago. Many rulers controlled it - Arabs, Persians and Mughals; in the 18th century it became part of the Khanate of Kalat, and in 1948 it became part of Pakistan.

2. What language do most people in Dureji speak?

Most people in Dureji speak Balochi and follow the Muslim religion.

3. What are some of the cultural festivals celebrated in Dureji?
Eid-ul-Fitr and Eid-ul-Adha, and special events like the annual Urs of Pir Jo Goth.

4. Name some attractions and activities available for tourists in Dureji.
Dureji Fort, Dureji Bazaar and Mangroves Wildlife Sanctuary, with opportunities for hiking, camping and birdwatching in the nearby mountains and deserts; the town also has many historical sites like mosques and tombs.

5. What are some popular foods in Dureji?
Saji (roasted lamb or chicken), Balochi Pulao (rice with meat), Halwa Poori and Lassi.

6. What types of accommodations are available in Dureji?
Hotels, guesthouses and campsites - popular options include Balochistan Hotel and Dureji Guest House; visitors can also stay in mud-houses or tents in the mountains and deserts nearby.

7. How do most people travel around Dureji?
Most people use cars or taxis; the roads can be difficult, so the book recommends a car or taxi with an experienced driver. (No trains are mentioned as available for public transportation.)

Choose the correct option (pp.109-110).

1. When did Dureji become part of Pakistan?

- 1947
- ✓ 1948
- 1950
- 1952

2. What is the typical weather like in Dureji?

- cold and rainy
- ✓ hot and dry
- mild and humid
- snowy and windy

3. Which of the following is not mentioned as a popular activity in Dureji?

- hiking
- birdwatching
- ✓ skiing
- camping

4. What is Saji?

- a traditional dance
- ✓ a popular food dish
- a historical monument
- a local festival

5. What is recommended for navigating the roads in Dureji? (Note: this item has only three printed options.)

- walking

riding a bicycle

✓ using a car or taxi with an experienced driver

Oral Communication Conversation (pp.110-111): Practice the given conversation in the class. The teacher asks Saima, Fatima and Haleema about a visit to a model town. Saima: a model town is a great place with good roads, clean streets and a peaceful environment, and good schools. Fatima: the town is well-organised with nice houses and parks for kids, though sometimes it feels a little too quiet. Haleema: it is a good example of how towns should be, with shops and a good life. The teacher concludes that a model town has many good things but also challenges, and it is important to think about both sides.

Facts and Opinions (p.112)

A fact is a statement that can be verified through objective evidence. Examples from the Dureji text: Dureji is a city located in the Lasbela district of Balochistan, Pakistan. Dureji is situated in the southeast of Balochistan. The people of Dureji predominantly speak Balochi and follow the Muslim religion. An opinion is a personal view, value judgment or belief. Examples: Dureji is a special city. It has a long and interesting history. Dureji has lots of things to see and do for tourists. Dureji is a wonderful city with a lot to offer. Activity (p.112): Read the text about Dureji and list down facts and opinions. Facts: Dureji became part of Pakistan in 1948; the weather is usually hot and dry; popular foods are Saji and Balochi Pulao; accommodation includes hotels, guesthouses and campsites. Opinions: Dureji is a special city; Dureji is a wonderful city with a lot to offer; its history is long and interesting.

Vocabulary and Grammar: Main Verb and Helping (Auxiliary) Verb (pp.113-114)

Main verbs (lexical or principal verbs) express the main action or state of being and carry the primary meaning. Action verbs: walk, run, eat, write, study, play. State of being verbs: be, seem, appear, become. Helping (auxiliary) verbs assist the main verb in expressing tense, mood or voice. Primary auxiliaries: to be (am, is, are, was, were, being, been); to have (have, has, had); to do (do, does, did). Modal auxiliaries express necessity, possibility, permission, ability or obligation: can, could, may, might, must, shall, should, will, would. Linking verbs connect the subject with a word or phrase that describes or renames it: be (am, is, are, was, were, been, being), seem, appear, become, feel, look, sound, taste. Feeling verbs express emotions or states of mind: love, hate, like, dislike, enjoy, prefer, fear, appreciate. Verbs of possession indicate ownership: have, own, possess, belong to.

Activity (p.115): Make one sentence of each of the given main and helping verbs.

She is my sister.

appear

He appears tired today.

love

I love reading books.

enjoy

We enjoy playing cricket.

would

I would like to visit Dureji.

sound

The food sounds delicious.

possess

He possesses great wisdom.

must

Students must respect their teachers.

dislike

I dislike wasting food.

own

They own a small shop.

Idioms and Proverbs (p.115)

Idioms are expressions whose meanings differ from the literal meanings of the individual words; they are culturally specific. Examples: to break a leg (good luck); to kick the bucket (to die); to cost an arm and a leg (very expensive). Proverbs are short, traditional sayings expressing wisdom or truth: 'A stitch in time saves nine.' 'Actions speak louder than words.' 'Don't count your chickens before they hatch.'

Activity (p.116): Use the following idioms in sentences of your own.

1. piece of cake - something that is very easy to do; a task requiring little effort.

The exam was a piece of cake for Asim.

2. let the cat out of the bag - to reveal a secret that was supposed to be kept confidential.

He let the cat out of the bag about the surprise party.

3. bite the bullet - to endure a painful or unpleasant situation courageously and without hesitation.

She bit the bullet and completed the difficult task.

4. break the ice - to initiate conversation in a tense or awkward situation.

The teacher told a joke to break the ice on the first day.

5. burn the midnight oil - to work late into the night; to study or work intensively, especially at night.

He burned the midnight oil to prepare for the exam.

6. cutting corners - doing something poorly or taking shortcuts to save time or money.

The builder was cutting corners to save money, so the work was poor.

7. under the weather - to feel ill or not in good health; slightly sick.

I am feeling under the weather today, so I will rest.

8. break a leg - a way to wish someone good luck, especially before a performance or an important event.

Break a leg for your performance tonight!

Writing: How to Write Narratives (p.117)

Writing narratives, whether based on real experiences or imagined events, involves making a story that engages readers and carries them into the world you have created.

Activity (p.117): Write down your own narrative following above mentioned tips and the model narrative.

FLAG: No model narrative is actually printed in the unit - p.117 gives only the tip box and blank lines. Model narrative: Last year, my family and I visited Dureji, a model town in the Lasbela district of Balochistan. We travelled by car with an experienced driver over the mountain roads. The weather was hot and dry, but the town was clean and peaceful, with good roads, parks and schools. We visited Dureji Fort and Dureji Bazaar, tasted Saji and Balochi Pulao, and stayed at a guest house. In the evening, we watched birds at the Mangroves Wildlife Sanctuary. It was a wonderful trip, and I learned that a well-organised town makes life better for everyone.

Unit 9: Don't Quit (Poem)

Pre-reading (p.119)

1. What theme comes to your mind after reading the title of the poem?

The theme is persistence and never giving up: when things go wrong, when the road seems all uphill, when funds are low and debts are high, we should rest if we must, but never quit, because success may be near when it seems far.

Reading and Critical Thinking (p.120): Answer the following questions.

1. What advice does the poet give when faced with challenges?

Rest if you must, but don't you quit. Stick to the fight when you are hardest hit; it is when things seem worst that you must not quit.

2. How does the poet describe the nature of life?

Life is queer with its twists and turns, as every one of us sometimes learns - it is unfair and unpredictable, not straightforward or easy.

3. Why does the poet urge against quitting, especially when things seem difficult?

Because many failures turn about when we might have won had we stuck it out: the struggler often gives up when he might have captured the victor's cup, learning too late how close he was to the golden crown. Success may be near when it seems so far.

4. What does the poet mean by 'Success is failure turned inside out'?

Success is often just failure seen from the other side: failure turned inside out means that the same effort, continued a little longer, becomes success - you can never tell how close you are.

5. What emotions does the poet convey through the line 'When care is pressing you down a bit'?

Weariness and sadness under pressure: care pressing you down, wanting to smile but having to sigh, when the road seems all uphill.

Tick the correct option (pp.120-122).

1. What is the central message of the poem?

- Success comes easily to those who wait.
- ✓ Persistence is crucial in the face of adversity.
- Quitting is the best option in difficult times.
- Life's challenges are insurmountable.

2. According to the poem, what should you do when faced with challenges?

- smile and ignore them
- sigh and give up
- rest and quit
- ✓ rest if necessary but keep going

3. How does the poet describe life?

- Straightforward and predictable

✓ Unfair and unpredictable

Simple and easy

Joyful and carefree

4. What analogy does the poet use to describe success?

a mountain that cannot be climbed

a race that should be abandoned

a crown that is easily obtained

✓ a golden crown that is almost within reach

5. What does the poet suggest about failures?

they are permanent and cannot be overcome

✓ they are learning opportunities

they should be ignored

they mean you should quit immediately

6. According to the poem, why do many people fail to succeed?

because they are lazy

because success is impossible

✓ because they give up too soon

because they don't have enough money

7. What is the poet's advice when things seem difficult?

give up and try again later

rest and don't try again

✓ keep fighting and don't quit ignore the problem and hope it goes away

8. What does the poet mean by 'Success is failure turned inside out'?

success is impossible

success is the opposite of failure

✓ success often follows failure success is unpredictable

9. What emotion does the poet express in the line 'When care is pressing you down a bit'?

happiness

sadness

anger

✓ weariness

10. What does the poet imply about the journey to success?

it is straightforward and easy

it is impossible

✓ it requires persistence despite setbacks

it doesn't matter if you quit

Oral Communication Discussion (pp.122-123): Role-play the discussion between Jameel and Sulaiman on technical education and how authors use language and figures of speech to impact readers. Jameel and Sulaiman discuss technical education: it teaches useful skills like fixing machines, repairing cars, working with computers, building websites and designing software; it helps people become independent (fixing their own appliances) and leads to good jobs in construction, healthcare and technology; hands-on training helps students practise and understand better, and makes skills real while working and learning.

Vocabulary and Grammar: Prepositions (pp.123-124)

Prepositions of position (location): 'The book is on the table.' 'The cat is under the chair.' 'The painting is above the fireplace.' 'The keys are next to the door.' 'The pen is in the drawer.' Prepositions of time: 'We have a meeting at 9 o'clock.' 'He arrived on Monday.' 'The concert is in July.' 'She has been studying English since last year.' 'We've been waiting here for an hour.' Prepositions of movement and direction: 'They walked towards the park.' 'The car drove across the bridge.' 'She ran along the beach.' 'The airplane flew over the mountains.' 'He went through the door.' Since and For: Since (starting point) - 'She has lived in this city since 2010.' 'He has been working here since graduation.' 'They have been friends since childhood.' For (duration) - 'He has been studying French for two years.' 'They have known each other for a long time.' 'We've been waiting here for over an hour.'

Compound Prepositions and Prepositional Phrases (p.125)

Compound prepositions combine prepositions with other words: according to - 'According to the weather forecast, it will rain tomorrow.' next to - 'The bank is located next to the supermarket.' because of - 'We were late because of the traffic.' in spite of - 'In spite of the rain, the picnic went ahead.' due to - 'The cancellation was due to unforeseen circumstances.' Prepositional phrases consist of a preposition and its object, with modifiers: 'She sat on the bench.' 'He lives in the house at the end of the street.' 'They arrived at the airport early.' 'The cat jumped off the table.' 'He walked along the path beside the river.'

Tick mark the suitable preposition in the following (p.126).

1. She lives _____ a small apartment downtown.

- ✓ in
- on
- at
- by

2. The children played hide-and-seek _____ the bushes.

- ✓ behind
- in
- for
- on

3. We went hiking _____ the mountains. (Note: 'through' is the intended answer among the options; 'across' is also defensible for crossing mountains.)

- over
- across
- ✓ through
- between

4. He found his keys _____ the sofa.

- from
- to
- on
- ✓ under

5. They arrived _____ the airport just in time for their flight.

- ✓ at
- on
- in
- by

6. The cat jumped _____ the bed.

- into
- over
- by
- ✓ onto

7. She has been working from home _____ March.

- ✓ since
- for
- during
- until

8. The school is _____ the market.

- on
- in
- for
- ✓ next to

9. He walked _____ the street to get to the store.

- along
- ✓ across
- around
- between

10. She sat _____ table to eat her breakfast.

- ✓ at the
- in the
- to the
- on the

Sentences, Clauses, and Phrases (pp.127-128)

A sentence is a group of words expressing a complete thought, with a subject and a predicate, that can stand alone. Simple sentence: 'She likes to read books.' Compound sentence: 'He enjoys hiking, but she prefers swimming.' (two independent clauses joined by 'but'). Complex sentence: 'Although he was tired, he went to the gym.' (main clause 'he went to the gym' + subordinate clause 'Although he was tired'). A clause is a group of words containing a subject and a verb. Independent (main) clause: 'She bought a new laptop.' Dependent (subordinate) clause: 'When he arrives' - it cannot stand alone. A phrase is a group of words functioning as a single unit, without a subject and predicate. Noun phrase: 'The old man' ('The old man walks slowly.'). Verb phrase: 'has been waiting for hours' ('He has been waiting for hours.'). Prepositional phrase: 'in the garden' ('She is in the garden.').

Activity (pp.128-129): Identify whether each item is a sentence, clause, or phrase.

1. She likes to play basketball.

sentence (subject 'She' + predicate 'likes to play basketball' - a complete thought).

2. When she arrives clause (dependent clause - it has a subject and verb but cannot stand alone).

3. The cat sat on the mat.

sentence (subject 'The cat' + predicate 'sat on the mat').

4. Although it was raining clause (dependent clause).

5. Running around the park phrase (no subject and predicate - a verb phrase fragment).

6. She baked a cake.

sentence (subject 'She' + predicate 'baked a cake').

7. Because he was tired

clause (dependent clause).

8. In the morning phrase (prepositional phrase, no subject and predicate).

9. The dog barked loudly.

sentence (subject 'The dog' + predicate 'barked loudly').

10. Walking along the beach phrase (no subject and predicate).

Writing: Informal Letter (pp.129-130)

An informal letter is written to family or friends to tell what is going on in one's life or exchange thoughts and regards on any topic. Sample letter (labelled parts): Address - Faizabad, Sariab Road, Quetta. Date - 20th August, 2024. Salutation - Dear Jameela, Body - 'I hope this letter will find you and your family in good health. It has been a long time since we all have met, so I was thinking we could meet up. I have planned to have a get-together at my home. All of us could meet in the next month. The climate in my village is so great these days. I will ask my family to take us to the nearby tourist spot if everyone is interested. If you are ready, we could also talk to other friends. I will visit you next weekend to discuss more on it. Awaiting your reply and hope to meet you soon.' Closing - With Love, Fatima (Subscription/Signature).

Activity (p.130): Write a letter to your friend informing him/her about your preparation for the coming exams in your notebook.

Model letter: Faizabad, Sariab Road, Quetta. 20th August, 2024. Dear Ahmed, I hope this letter finds you in good health. I am writing to tell you about my preparation for the coming exams. I have made a timetable and I study all my subjects every day, giving extra time to English and Mathematics. I revise my notes, solve past papers, and practise writing every evening. My teachers have helped me clear my doubts, and I feel confident. Please write back and tell me about your own preparation. With love, Fatima.

Unit 10: The King and His Pious Minister

Pre-reading (p.132)

1. What story comes to your mind after reading the title of the story? Share any similar story with your class.

This is a personal question - the title suggests a story about a king and his wise, pious minister, like the well-known tales in which a clever minister saves himself and reforms a foolish king with wisdom. Share a similar story you know with your class.

Reading and Critical Thinking (p.135): Answer the following questions.

1. Why was the minister distressed when the king ordered him to build a palace from top to bottom?

Building a palace from the top downwards is impossible, and the king had ordered that if the minister could not start the task within ten days, his head would be chopped off. The minister was extremely distressed and did not know what to do.

2. How did the minister's wife advise him to seek a solution to his problem?

His wife advised him to seek help from Allah immediately. The minister performed his prayers (and fell asleep, dreaming of a jungle where he found a shining object).

3. How did the minister convince the king that building a palace from top to bottom was impractical?

He led the king to the open area where the palace was to be built, with labourers, craftsmen and materials ready, released the parrot Mithu into the air, and had it shout, 'Place the bricks, place the bricks.' When the furious king asked how bricks could be placed at such a height, the minister replied respectfully, 'Your Majesty, if bricks can't be placed at such a height, how can a palace be built from top to bottom?'

4. How did the parrot assist the minister in demonstrating the folly of the king's demand?

The parrot Mithu flew into the air and shouted the impossible instruction, 'Place the bricks, place the bricks,' at a height where no bricks could be placed - showing the king, by demonstration, that his demand could not be carried out.

5. Why did the king apologize to the minister at the end of the story?

Because the minister's wisdom exposed the folly of his demand without disrespect: the king was impressed by the minister's wisdom, apologized for his foolish demands, and acknowledged the minister's goodness.

6. What qualities of the minister impressed the King in the end?

His wisdom, kindness, compassion and piety: he was a kind-hearted and wise man who had improved the kingdom, freed the trapped rabbit out of compassion, sought Allah's help, and answered the king respectfully.

7. How did the fairy's transformation from a rabbit relate to the minister's difficult situation with the king?

The minister freed the trapped rabbit out of compassion, and the rabbit turned out to be a small fairy (turned into a rabbit by an evil magician) whose spell was broken by the release. Just as the minister's own problem seemed hopeless - like the trapped rabbit - his act of kindness brought him the fairy's help and, through the elder's parrot, the means to solve his problem with the king.

Choose the correct option (pp.135-136). (Note: the printed numbering skips 5 - items are printed 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 7; they are given here in corrected sequential order.)

1. What was the consequence the minister faced if he failed to begin building the palace within ten days?

- he would be banished from the kingdom
- he would lose all his wealth
- ✓ his head would be chopped off
- he would be imprisoned for life

2. What did the minister find in his dream while in the jungle?

- a bag of gold coins
- ✓ a shining object
- a magical wand
- a hidden treasure chest

3. What magical creature did the minister encounter after freeing a trapped rabbit?

✓ a fairy

a genie

a unicorn

a talking tree

4. What advice did the elderly person near the cave give to the minister?

to build the palace without delay to consult a magician for help

✓ to take a parrot with him

to seek Allah's guidance

5. Why did the king become furious when the parrot started shouting instructions? (FLAG: the story states the king became furious and asked how bricks could be placed at such a height, but does not state his motive; 'he realized the task was impossible' is ticked as the demonstration's intended point - the realization the minister's reply then makes explicit.)

He thought the parrot was mocking him.

✓ he realized the task was impossible.

he was startled by the parrot's voice.

he didn't believe the minister's plan.

6. What change did the king undergo after realizing his mistake?

he exiled the minister.

✓ he apologized and became just.

he punished the minister severely.

he ignored the minister's advice.

Oral Communication Group Conversation (p.137): Role-play the group conversation in class. The teacher announces a visit to Peer Ghaib, with attention to tone: rising tone, excitedly, lowly, giving orders, with joy, instructing, loud voice, appreciatingly, smiling. Saeeda (with joy): 'Wow! That's a great idea, Miss. We'll go to Peer Ghaib tomorrow.' The teacher instructs that no decision can be made unless they listen carefully first, then reply, and they still have to decide when to go. Tahira stands up and requests that suggestions be given one by one and everyone listen attentively; Waheeda appreciates this, and the teacher says, 'Well said, Tahira. Let's start from Samreen.'

Vocabulary and Grammar: Modal Verbs (pp.138-140)

Would: past tense of 'will', or a polite request or offer. Past tense: 'She said she would come to the party last night.' Polite request: 'Would you please pass the salt?' Polite offer: 'I would be happy to help you with your project.' Need: necessity or obligation, often as a modal in negative and interrogative sentences. Necessity: 'You need to finish your homework before you can go out.' Negative: 'You needn't worry about it; everything will be fine.' Interrogative: 'Need I remind you of the deadline?' Could: possibility, ability, or past ability. Possibility: 'She could be at home by now.' Ability: 'He could swim when he was only five years old.' Polite request: 'Could you please open the window?' Might: possibility or permission. Possibility: 'It might rain later, so bring an umbrella.' Permission: 'You might leave early if you finish your work.' Shall: future action, suggestion, or determination. Future action: 'We shall meet again tomorrow.' Suggestion: 'Shall we go for a walk?' Determination: 'We shall not surrender.' Must: necessity or obligation. Necessity: 'You must wear a seatbelt in the car.' Obligation: 'I must finish this report before the meeting.' Prohibition (negative): 'You must not smoke in here.' Ought to: moral obligation or advisability. Moral obligation: 'You ought to apologize for what you said.' Advisability: 'You ought to take more breaks during your workday.' Dare: challenge or permission. Challenge: 'I dare you to jump over that fence.' 'You dare not speak to her like that.' Permission: (as used in the unit's dare sentences).

Activity (p.140): Use the following modal verbs in your sentences.

would

Would you please pass the salt?

need

You need to finish your homework before you can go out.

could

Could you please open the window?

might

It might rain later, so bring an umbrella.

shall

Shall we go for a walk?

must

You must wear a seatbelt in the car.

ought to

You ought to apologize for what you said.

dare

I dare you to jump over that fence.

Adverb, Adverb Phrase and Adverb Clause (p.141)

An adverbial is a single word (adverb) or a group of words (adverb phrase or adverb clause) providing more information about when an action occurs. An adverb clause is a group of words with a subject and a verb - in 'He wants to stay where internet works', the underlined part is an adverb clause. An adverb phrase is a group of words without subject and verb - in 'My brother reaches in no time', the underlined part is an adverb phrase. Examples: 'Drivers drove carefully.' (adverb). 'She slept after dinner.' (adverb phrase). 'He reads before he goes to sleep.' (adverb clause).

Activity (p.142): Read the following sentences and underline and name the adverbs, adverb phrases and adverb clauses. (First one is done for you: 'My father works in a factory.' - in a factory = adverb phrase.)

(a) He lives nearby.

nearby - adverb (single word telling where he lives).

(b) Do not speak harshly to anyone.

harshly - adverb (telling how not to speak).

(c) The player is running fast with the ball.

fast - adverb (telling how the player is running); with the ball - adverb phrase.

(d) I visit the market each Sunday.
each Sunday - adverb phrase (telling when he visits the market).

(e) He calls me every day before he leaves for school.
every day - adverb phrase; before he leaves for school - adverb clause (subject 'he' + verb 'leaves').

(f) She will get the first position the way she studies.
the way she studies - adverb clause (subject 'she' + verb 'studies').

(g) You can find him in the playground.
in the playground - adverb phrase (telling where he can be found).

Writing: Descriptive Composition (pp.142-144)
The primary purpose of descriptive writing is to describe a person, place or thing in such a way that a picture is formed in the reader's mind. Stages: brainstorming, mind mapping, drafting, and revising. Step 1: Brainstorming and Mind Mapping - choose a subject (here, a person); brainstorm general ideas: age, gender; physical appearance (height, build, hair, eyes); clothing style; facial expressions; mannerisms; personality traits (friendly, shy, confident); appearance, clothing style, height and build, mannerisms, personality traits (honest, humble). Step 2: Writing the First Draft - move from general to specific details. 1. Introduction (General Description): start with a general introduction to set the scene and introduce the person briefly. 2. Body Paragraphs (Specific Details): describe each category from the mind map in detail. Example - Physical Appearance: 'Aslam is a tall, slender man with striking blue eyes and a mop of unruly brown hair.' Clothing Style: 'He prefers casual attire, often seen in jeans and a comfortable sweater.' Mannerisms: 'When he speaks, he gestures animatedly, emphasizing his points with expressive hand movements.' Personality Traits: 'Aslam is known for his warm smile and easygoing nature. He has an ability for making people feel at ease in his presence.' 3. Conclusion: summarize the overall impression - 'In essence, Aslam's physical appearance and friendly conduct make him a memorable presence in any room.' Step 3: Revising the Final Draft - after completing the first draft, revise the composition for clarity, coherence, and style.

Activity (p.145): Write down a descriptive composition by following above guidelines.

Model descriptive composition (following the book's Aslam example): Aslam is a tall, slender man with striking blue eyes and a mop of unruly brown hair. He prefers casual attire, often seen in jeans and a comfortable sweater. When he speaks, he gestures animatedly, emphasizing his points with expressive hand movements. Aslam is known for his warm smile and easygoing nature, and he has an ability for making people feel at ease in his presence. In essence, Aslam's physical appearance and friendly conduct make him a memorable presence in any room.

Unit 11: The Impacts of Social Media

Pre-reading (p.147)

1. Do you use social media?

This is a personal question - answer from your own use. Social media is an online community where people share thoughts, photos and videos, connect with others, make new friends, and stay updated about what is happening around them.

2. What benefits do you get from social media?

Staying in touch with friends and family who live away; learning new things (educational resources, news, tutorials, skills like cooking, computer designing, freelancing and coding); promoting ideas and products; and building communities around shared interests.

Reading and Critical Thinking (p.150): Answer the following questions.

1. How does social media help people connect with one another?

Social media helps us stay in touch with friends and family who live away from us: we can share updates, photos and videos with them - for example, following a cousin studying abroad on Instagram, WhatsApp and other social media apps.

2. What are some things you can learn about on Social Media?

Educational resources, news and tutorials; new skills like cooking, computer designing, freelancing and coding - YouTube is a great platform for learning new things.

3. Why is it a problem when people spread false information on Social Media?

False information can be misleading and cause problems, misleading people and creating confusion; we should always fact-check before sharing or believing something.

4. How can Social Media affect our mental health?

Cyberbullying and harassment online can be very upsetting and affect our mental health; addiction can harm relationships, studies and mental health; and comparing our lives to others on social media can lead to low self-esteem. (Note: the comparison paragraph is cut off mid-sentence at the bottom of p.149 in print.)

5. What can we do to stay safe on Social Media?

Be kind and respectful online; do not share personal information carelessly; fact-check before sharing; block and report anyone who bullies or harasses, to the concerned authority; and set limits on screen time, prioritising real-life activities.

6. Why is it important to be kind to others online?

Because unkindness and bullying online hurt people and damage their mental health; a kind, respectful online community makes everyone feel important and safe.

7. How can we use Social Media to promote positive things?

Share useful information, educational content and creative work; promote good ideas, products and causes; build communities around shared interests; and use social media to bring people together for good, as in helping during emergencies.

8. What are some signs that someone is being bullied or harassed online, and what should you do if you see it happening?
Signs include mean, hurtful or harassing messages, and the victim becoming upset or withdrawn. If you see it happening, block the bully and report the incident to the concerned authority, and support the person being bullied.

9. How can we balance our Social Media use with other activities?
Set limits on screen time (set boundaries) and prioritise real-life activities, studies, family time and outdoor activities, using social media in a balanced way.

10. Do you think Social Media is more helpful or hurtful? Discuss.
Discussion: Social media is both helpful and hurtful - it depends on how we use it. It is helpful for connecting, learning, promoting ideas and building communities, but hurtful when it spreads misinformation, addiction, cyberbullying and low self-esteem. Used wisely, with kindness, fact-checking and limits, its benefits outweigh its harms.

Choose the correct option (p.151). (FLAG: only five items are printed, numbered 1, 3, 5, 8, 10 - items 2, 4, 6, 7 and 9 do not appear in the book; the printed numbers are kept here.)

1. The phrase 'social media' means:

- [x] A way to connect with people online
- [ ] A type of computer game
- [ ] A social event
- [ ] A news channel

3. _____ is an example of a benefit of social media:

- [ ] It can be used to bully others
- [x] It can be used to learn new skills
- [ ] It can be used to waste time
- [ ] It can be used to spread rumors

5. Why is it important to be cautious when sharing personal information online?

- [ ] Because it's fun to share with friends
- [ ] Because it's not important
- [x] Because it can be used by others in a bad way
- [ ] Because it's required by law

8. The phrase 'set boundaries' means in the context of social media:

- [ ] Share everything online
- [x] Limit screen time and prioritize real-life activities
- [ ] Follow as many people as possible
- [ ] Post photos of everything

10. The author's purpose in writing the text is:

- [ ] To persuade people to use social media

✓ To inform people about social media

To entertain people with social media stories

To criticize people who use social media

Oral Communication Dialogue (pp.152-153): Setting - a restaurant on a Saturday afternoon; Faheem and Jahanzaib, old friends meeting after a long while. Faheem shows a social media campaign about mental health with tips and stories for taking care of yourself. Jahanzaib learned about eco-friendly living from social media accounts. Faheem notes social media helped people work together during emergencies, like helping quickly during the floods last year, and helped talented people and their work be seen. Jahanzaib agrees social media gives everyone a chance to be seen and heard and to share ideas. Faheem admits problems like fake news and negativity, but thinks the good parts are more important - it all depends on how we use it. Jahanzaib agrees: like any tool, it depends on how we use it; we should be kind and respectful online and make a community where everyone feels important.

Vocabulary and Grammar: Sentence Patterns (p.154)

1. SVO (Subject-Verb-Object-Direct): 'She bought a new book.' 'He painted the fence.' 'They built a sandcastle.' 2. SVOO (Subject-Verb-Object-Indirect Object-Direct Object): 'She gave her friend a gift.' 'He sent his mother flowers.' 'They told us a story.' 3. SVOC (Subject-Verb-Object-Direct Object-Complement): 'She found the task difficult.' 'He considers his brother a hero.' 'They painted the room blue.'

Activity (p.154): Make your own three sentences of the mentioned each sentence patterns.

SVO (Subject-Verb-Object-Direct)

She bought a new pen. (SVO)

SVOO (Subject-Verb-Indirect Object-Direct Object)

She gave her teacher a card. (SVOO)

SVOC (Subject-Verb-Object-Complement)

They painted the wall white. (SVOC)

Future Perfect Tense (pp.155-156)

The future perfect tense expresses an action that will happen in the future and will be completed by a certain time in the future; we use it to say something will be finished by a particular time. Affirmative: Subject + will have + Verb (3rd form) + Object - 'He will have watched a drama.' 'We will have studied English.' 'She will have written a letter.' 'Ahmed will have eaten rice.' 'Ahmed will have got first position.' Negative: Subject + will not have + Verb (3rd form) + Object - 'He will not have watched a drama.' 'We will not have studied English.' 'She will not have written a letter.' 'Ahmed will not have eaten rice.' 'Ahmed will not have got first position.' Interrogative: Will + Subject + have + Verb (3rd form) + Object? - 'Will he have watched a drama?' 'Will we have studied English?' 'Will she have written a letter?' 'Will Ahmed have eaten rice?' 'Will Ahmed have got first position?'

Activity (p.156): Make five simple sentences of the future perfect tense, then change them into negative and interrogative.

1. He will have watched a drama.

Negative: He will not have watched a drama. Interrogative: Will he have watched a drama?

2. We will have studied English.

Negative: We will not have studied English. Interrogative: Will we have studied English?

3. She will have written a letter.

Negative: She will not have written a letter. Interrogative: Will she have written a letter?

4. Ahmed will have eaten rice.

Negative: Ahmed will not have eaten rice. Interrogative: Will Ahmed have eaten rice?

5. Ahmed will have got first position.

Negative: Ahmed will not have got first position. Interrogative: Will Ahmed have got first position?

Writing: Informative/Explanatory Texts (p.157)

Writing informative/explanatory texts involves thoroughly examining a topic and presenting detailed information and analysis to educate the reader.

Activity (p.157): Write an informative composition on 'The Positive Use of Social Media' keeping in mind the above tips.

Model composition: Social media is an online community where people share thoughts, photos and videos. Its positive uses are many. First, it connects people: we can stay in touch with friends and family who live far away and share updates, photos and videos.

Second, it helps learning: we can access educational resources, news and tutorials, and learn skills like cooking, computer designing, freelancing and coding. Third, it promotes ideas and products: artists and businesses can showcase their work to a large audience. Fourth, it builds communities around shared interests and brings people together for good causes, as when people helped each other during the floods. However, social media must be used wisely: we should fact-check before sharing, be kind online, protect personal information, and limit screen time. Used positively, social media is a powerful tool for learning, connection and progress.

Unit 12: The Candle of Hope (Poem)

Pre-reading (p.159)

1. What do you do when you lose hope?

When I lose hope, I should remember the candle of hope: even a tiny flame burns bright and spreads everywhere, holds fast through doubt, and shines strong on the darkest day, chasing out fears. I can talk to family or friends, pray, rest, and keep trying one small step at a time.

2. Have you ever been hopeless? Discuss.

This is a personal question - discuss with your class. Everyone feels hopeless at times, for example when work seems too hard or when something sad happens; the poem teaches that hope, like a small candle flame, stays burning within us and lights the way.

Reading and Critical Thinking (p.160): Answer the following questions.

1. What is the central metaphor used in the poem?

The central metaphor is a candle: hope is a small candle flame, a tiny beacon of light that burns bright within a person.

2. What role does the candle of hope play during moments of doubt?

During moments of doubt, the candle holds fast: through all the shadows of doubt it keeps burning within you until all the doubts pass.

3. How does the poem describe the candle's ability to endure?

Though so small that you feel it cannot last long, throughout all the darkness it shines strong; it is one tiny flame that will always burn bright.

4. According to the poem, what does the candle of hope do to fears?

It chases out those fears that are hiding in you - the candle of hope will always shine through and drive fear away.

5. What emotions or feelings does the poem evoke regarding hope and resilience?

Comfort, encouragement and resilience: hope is small but strong, it brings fresh hope on the darkest day, lights the way, and never gives up, so the reader feels that even in darkness there is light and a way forward.

Choose the right answer (pp.160-161).

1. What is the central theme of the poem 'The Candle of Hope'?

courage

perseverance

✓ hope light

2. How does the poem describe the size of the candle of hope?

large and imposing

✓ small and barely noticeable medium-sized and flickering changing and unpredictable

3. What happens when the candle of hope is set alight, according to the poem?
it dims and goes out quickly ✓ it spreads light everywhere it flickers uncertainly
it creates shadows

4. How does the candle of hope behave during times of darkness, based on the poem?
it weakens and fades away
✓ it shines brightly and remains strong it becomes unpredictable
it grows smaller

5. What does the candle of hope symbolize in the poem?
darkness fear ✓ light and hope uncertainty

6. How does the poem depict the impact of the candle of hope on one's darkest day?
✓ it brings fresh hope and lights the way it hides in the shadows

it increases fear

it becomes extinguished

Oral Communication Dialogue (pp.162-163): Practice the given dialogue in the class. Shantul asks Palwasha how we can protect wildlife and stop destroying their homes. Palwasha: we need to protect nature and help local people use better methods. Shantul: stop cutting down trees and start planting more trees to keep animals safe. Palwasha: help endangered animals with breeding programmes and safe areas to live. Shantul: teaching people about nature is important - if people know how valuable nature is, they can help protect it. Palwasha: getting people involved in responsible travel and smart buying habits can also help protect animals. Shantul: we need to make sure people grow but also protect nature; if we work together and think of new ideas, we can keep nature safe for the future. Palwasha: every small action matters - if we all do something, animals can live in safe and healthy places. Shantul: if we make good choices and work together, we can protect animals and keep our planet healthy.

Vocabulary and Grammar: Conjunctions and Transitional Devices (pp.163-165)

Conjunctions and transitional devices connect ideas and structure the flow of writing or speech. Addition (and, too, as well as): 'She enjoys reading novels and writing poetry.' Sequence (then, while, before, after, next): 'She finished her homework, then went for a walk.' Contrast (but, however, although, while, on the other hand): 'He is quiet, but his brother is outgoing.' Reason (because, since, as, for): 'She stayed home because she was feeling unwell.'

Purpose (so that, in order to, for the purpose of): 'He studied hard so that he could pass the exam.' Place (where): 'She left her keys where she could easily find them.' Condition (if, unless, until, provided that): 'She will come if you invite her.' Cause-and-Effect (so): 'He forgot his umbrella, so he got wet in the rain.' Choice (either...or, neither...nor, whether...or): 'You can either go shopping or stay home and relax.' Coordinating conjunctions connect words, phrases or clauses of equal importance: 'He likes tea and coffee.' FANBOYS is a formula to memorise them: F - For, A - And, N - Nor, B - But, O - Or, Y - Yet, S - So. Subordinating conjunctions (because, since, although, if, when, while) introduce dependent clauses: 'She stayed home because she was tired.'

Activity (p.166): Fill in the blanks with suitable conjunctions and transitional devices.

1. She loves to travel _____ explore new cultures.

Although (Although the weather was cold, they decided to go for a swim.)

10. He didn't have a car, _____ he walked to work every day.
so (He didn't have a car, so he walked to work every day.)

Direct and Indirect Speech (pp.167-168)
Direct speech uses the speaker's exact words within quotation marks: She said, 'I am happy.' Indirect (reported) speech reports what was said without exact words: She said (that) she was happy.
1. Changes in tense: when the reporting verb is in the past, the verb tense usually shifts back. 'He said, I eat apples.' to 'He said he ate apples.' 'She said, I am cooking.' to 'She said she was cooking.' 'I said, I have read this book.' to 'I said I had read that book.' 'He said, I wrote a letter.' to 'He said he had written a letter.' 'She said, I will come.' to 'She said she would come.' 2. Changes in pronouns: 'He said, I am your friend.' to 'He said he was my friend.' 3. Changes in time and place words: today to that day; tomorrow to the next day; yesterday to the day before; now to then; here to there. Example: 'He said, I will come tomorrow.' to 'He said he would come the next day.' 4. Changing questions: Yes/No questions use if or whether; WH-questions keep the question word but change the structure. 'She asked, Do you like tea?' to 'She asked if I liked tea.' 'He asked, Are you busy?' to 'He asked whether I was busy.' 'He asked, Where are you going?' to 'He asked where I was going.' 'She asked, Why did you cry?' to 'She asked why I had cried.' 5. Commands and requests: use to + base verb for commands and not to for negative instructions. 'She said, Open the door.' to 'She told me to open the door.' 'He said, Don't touch it.' to 'He told me not to touch it.' 'She said, Please help me.' to 'She requested me to help her.' 6. Suggestions and advice: use advise for recommendations and suggest for ideas. 'He said, You should eat fruits.' to 'He advised me to eat fruits.' 'She said, Let's go to the park.' to 'She suggested going to the park.'

Activity (p.169): Change the following direct speech into indirect speech.

1. 'I am going to the party,' she said.

She said she was going to the party.

2. 'Where did you find that book?' he asked.

He asked where I had found that book.

She asked if I could help her with that problem.

8. 'We won the championship last year,' they exclaimed.
They exclaimed that they had won the championship the year before.

9. 'I don't like coffee,' she admitted.
She admitted that she did not like coffee.

10. 'Why didn't you call me?' he wondered.
He wondered why I had not called him.

Writing: Narrative Poem (pp.169-170)
Read attentively the following narrative poem: 'Beneath a sky of azure blue, / I wandered where the wildflowers grew. / A sunny day, so bright and clear, / My heart felt light, devoid of fear. / I stumbled upon a hidden glen, / Where a gentle brook did softly bend. / Its waters whispered secrets old, / Stories of life that it retold. / I sat upon a mossy stone, / In that peaceful place alone. / The rustling leaves, a soothing sound, / Nature's peace, so pure and profound. / In that moment, I found my peace, / As worries and cares did finally cease. / A simple event, yet deeply felt, / In nature's embrace, my heart did melt.'

Activity (p.170): Write a short poem to narrate an event by following above model poem.

Model poem: Beneath a sky of soft morning gold, / I walked where the river stories told. / A quiet day, so calm and clear, / My heart felt glad, devoid of fear. / I found a garden, green and wide, / Where butterflies danced side by side. / The flowers whispered in the breeze, / Like gentle songs among the trees. / I sat beneath an old oak tree, / In that peaceful place, just me. / The rustling leaves, a soothing sound, / Nature's joy, so pure and profound. / In that moment, I found my peace, / As worries and cares did finally cease. / A simple day, yet deeply felt, / In nature's embrace, my heart did melt.

Activity (p.171): Write a paragraph on any topic of your choice for free writing.

Model paragraph (topic: My Favourite Book): My favourite book is a book of stories about brave and honest people. I like reading it in the evening, when the house is quiet. The stories teach me to be truthful, kind and hardworking, and they take me to new places in my imagination. Reading this book has improved my vocabulary and my love for reading, and I recommend it to all my friends.
